Bert Armstrong was in Moosup Wednesday.

Wednesday an all day missionary meeting was held at the home of Mrs. O. B. Leffingwell. Nine were present. White cross work was done. Mrs. O. B. Leffingwell presided at the devotional meeting and there were several readings.

EAST WOODSTOCK

Miss Fanny Phipps, 79, a former local resident, died last Thursday at Southbridge, Mass. She had been in failing health for several years. She was born in East Woodstock, was educated at Dudley academy and Framingham Normal school. For many years she was a teacher in Hartford, where the family lived after leaving here in the '70s. Miss Phipps returned here after the death of her parents and later rented a furnished house in Dudley. She was the last of her family, a brother, Henry, dying some years ago. The funeral was held Sunday and burial will be in East Woodstock in the spring.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

OIL SHARES FEATURED MARKET.

New York, Jan. 29.—Revival of excited speculation in the oil shares, most of which attained their highest prices since 1923 and then fell back on profit taking; buoyancy of several high priced industrial specialties, and heaviness of many standard industrials and rails characterized the trading in today's irregular stock market. Business was increased volume, the day's total transactions running close to two million shares.

Feverish activity in the oil shares followed the publication of the weekly report of the American Petroleum Institute showing a drop of over 20,000 barrels in the daily average of crude oil production, and the announcement of an advance of 25 cents a barrell in Gulf Coast Crude. Atlantic Refining closed 3 points higher at 113 1-2 after touching 115, but most of the other active issues showed only fractional changes on the day.

United States Steel common closed nearly a point lower at 126 1-2 after selling as high as 127 3-4. Baldwin yielded fractionally to 131. American Can was pushed up more than four points to a record top at 169 3-4 and then slipped back to 167 1-4. New life was infused into Studebaker, which closed 1 1-2 points higher at 43 1-2.

Spirited bidding for Mack Trucks, which sent that issue up 13 points to 134 1-2, gave birth to rumors that General Motors interests were seeking control, but Pierre Du Pont, General Motors chairman, declared it was news to him.

S. S. Kresge soared nearly 50 points to a record top for all time at 510 on the declaration of 50 per cent. stock dividend, and the announcement that 1924 earnings were equivalent to more than $40 a share on the common stock. It later reacted to 500 3-4. Associated Dry Goods soared seven points to 156, also a new top, and the first preferred moved up 3 points to 95 1-2. Other outstanding strong spots included Kelly-Springfield 3 per cent. preferred, Kelsey Wheel, National Cloak and Suit preferred, Pierce Arrow preferred, Vivadou and Yellow Cab Manufacturing, up from 2 to 4 points.

The Commercial Solvents issues recorded another sensational advance but were unable to hold it. The A stock soared to 190 and then fell back to 175 1-2, off 1-2 on the day, and the B on the day.

Another bear attack on Radio Corporation common forced that stock down nearly four points to 62. Other weak spots were American Woolen preferred, General Electric, American Sugar Refining, United States Industrial Alcohol, Goodrich Rubber, National Cloak and Suit, Laclede Gas, Union Tank Car and Worthington Pump off about 2 to nearly 6 points.

Rails were supplied freely on the theory that recent storms would increase operating costs and cut down earnings, losses of 1 to 2 points being recorded by New York Central, Lackawanna, Rock Island, Baltimore and Ohio, St. Paul preferred, Southern Pacific, Erie first preferred, Lehigh Valley, Missouri Pacific preferred, and Western preferred. Wabash preferred A, which has been bid up prior to each directors' meeting for the last year or more in expectation of a resumption of dividends, fell back about a point when the directors again failed to take any action. Call money held steady at 3 1-2 per cent. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchange rates were slightly reactionary. Demand sterling ruled around $4.79 and French francs around 5.41 1-2c.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Jan. 29.—Bond prices drifted irregularly lower today as profit-taking swept over the list after an early period of firmness. Oil company liens, however, continued to display independent strength, most of the leading issues working into new high ground although they failed to maintain their extreme gains.

Renewed activity developed in Mexican government obligations although international bankers reported no new developments on which today's advances of a point or more could be based. Brazilian and other South American issues were inclined to work lower following the announcement that interest payments would be deferred on the $5,000,000 bond floated here by the state of Santa Catherine, Brazil, in 1922.

Final price changes of corporation bonds were narrow. California Petroleum 6 1-2s and Sinclair Consolidated Oil 6 1-2s closed higher, but Pan-American 6s, after touching a new top price, fell back a point at the close. Reports of new merger negotiations in the southwest stimulated trading in "Katy" issues, which established new high records. New York Central convertible 6s, St. Paul 4s of 1935 and convertible 4 1-2s and Chesapeake and Ohio convertible 5s lost ground.

A large advance subscription was reported for a $50,000,000 Consolidated Gas Company of New York issues which bankers are ready to offer as soon as approval of the public service commission is obtained. Other offerings which are pending include part of a $35,000,000 Canadian National Railways issue and loans for several French industries.

WELL DONE

His master's lash the slave may drive his labors to renew;
The bugle's blast the soldier spur to charge the foe anew;
The sting of want the peasant urge to delve from sun to sun,
But no incentive rouses like the little words, "Well done!"

Too oft the world withholds the meed of praise, when fairly earned;
Too oft, alas, indifference has zeal to languor turned;
Too oft have loyalty and faith no recognition won;
O weary hearts, how ye have craved those treasured words, "Well done!"

Arraigned before the great white throne, we each must stand at last,
While judgment is pronounced on all the deeds which form our past;
How sweet the blest assurance that the golden crown we've won
Embodied in the Master's words, "Well done, my child, well done!"

Then do not fail these words to give whenever they are due;
Like bread upon the waters cast, they may return to you,
Dispelling gloom and loneliness, like mists before the sun,
Those simple words, those magic words, those blessed words, "Well done!"

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Jan. 29.—Owing largely to 10c a bushel collapse in wheat prices at Winnipeg, the Chicago wheat market today underwent a setback of 4 5-8c, but later rallied as a result of persistent, strenuous buying and of unexpected up turns in the value of corn and oats. Wheat closed unsettled at 1-4 to 3 1-4c net decline, May $2.03 1-2 to $2.03 3-4 and July $1.71 1-4 to $1.71 3-8. Corn soared 1 3-4 to 2c gain and oats 1 to 2 3-4@2 7-8c. In provisions, the outcome ranged from 10c loss to 17c advance.

Wheat fluctuations today carried the May delivery down to within 3-8c of $2.00, but the ensuing upturns lifted that month to only 1c under yesterday's record high price, $2.05 7-8. Reports that the Canadian government might interfere if advances at Winnipeg became excessive were current here simultaneously with news that the Winnipeg market had weakened. Subsequent purchasing here was led by houses that sold out large quantities of wheat earlier. Opinions that Europe would sooner or later follow advances in American markets helped to stimulate fresh speculative investment.

Taken as a whole, wheat buying on the part of the general public showed little sign of slackening from the recent big average, although it was evident that the total purchases today would fall to reach yesterday's aggregate 111,827,000 bushel, an amount never equalled before in Chicago, so far as official records disclose.

Corn and oats, on the other hand, showed a huge increase of activity today. Buying of oats in particulr was on tremendous volume, and lifted oats prices to the highest level in some time. Likelihood of liberal export business in oats appeared to be chiefly responsible for the upward swing of oats and corn.

Provisions advanced on account of government figures showing 12,000,000 fewer holdings than a year ago. The advance, however, was offset by packers' selling.

CURB MARKET.

New York, Jan. 29.—Resumption of the advance in the oil shares, which was later checked by profit-taking, and a reactionary tendency in the rest of the list were the outstanding characteristics of today's curb market.

Buying of the oils was stimulated by the posting of a higher price for Gulf Coast Crude and reports of another decline in daily average crude production, but closing prices showed mixed changes. Continental Oil, Mexico, Sonar Refining, Standard Oils of Kentucky and Kansas and Wilcox Oil showed net gains of about 1 to 2 points, while Gulf Oil, Imperial Oil, Prairie Oil and Gas and South Penn. Oil sold off a point or more below last night's final quotations.

Further selling of the radio shares reflected the growing belief that all the good news in sight had been discounted, and the recent advance overdone. Losses of a point or more were recorded by Dubilier, Freed-Eisemann, Garod, Thermiodyne, Thompson, Ware and Freshman. Hazeltine yielded nearly a point despite the inauguration of dividends.

Weakness also developed in the public utility group. The new Electric Bond and Share stock sold down to a new low at 65 5-8, off 1 3-8 or slightly more than one-half of what it was quoted in the exciting trading a few weeks ago. National Power and Light broke 13 points to 138 and American Power and Light, Lehigh Power securities and Middle West Utilities were off 1 to 2 1-4 points. Independent strength was shown by American Light and Traction, which closed a point lower at 143.

American Legion Show.

Bimbo, the annual American Legion show, boasts of one of the largest casts of local performers that has ever been assembled for an amateur performance in this city. Over one hundred and fifty persons have been definitely assigned to places in the various chorus and dancing groups. Many familiar and well known names are included in the cast and the very best talent that Norwich affords has been engaged to present this year's production. The principal roles are being assigned by the director after the necessary tryouts and a number of local favorites will be placed in the more important parts.

This season's play offers some new and spectacular novelties and holds some unique surprises in the line of stagecraft. The settings are of a tropical nature and the play derives its name from the South Sea Island of Bimbo where the scenes are laid. An extravagant wardrobe has been arranged for and the committees in charge are confident that this new musical revue will be far superior to last year's "hit," Kathleen.

Harty House and William Anderson are in charge of the talent and have been ably assisted by many of those interested in the production.

Carl W. Brown Incorporates.

Papers of incorporation of Carl W. Brown, Inc., have been filed with Town Clerk Holbrook. The incorporators are Carl W. Brown, Martin E. Jensen and H. R. Clark and the corporation will take over the Delco-Light and Frigidaire business which has been handled for a number of years by Mr. Brown.

The new corporation will be in a better position to serve the public and continue the dependable Delco-Light service which Mr. Brown has rendered since he entered the Delco-Light business in 1898.

There are now several hundred Delco-Light plants in operation on farms in this section of the state. The installation and service of Frigidaire, the electric refrigerator, will also be continued as well as the installation of automatic water systems, automatic oil heating, radio receivers, and other electrical equipment, including sales and service of the Easy Electric Washing and Wringing Machine.

Carl W. Brown, Inc., will be under the direct management of Carl W. Brown and Mr. Brown states that the prompt and dependable Delco-Light and Frigidaire service, which he has made a practice of rendering for several years, will be continued by the new corporation.

Strand Theatre.

In Women and Gold, a gripping, tense romance of modern times, which will be shown for the first times today and Saturday in this city at the Strand theatre there are some striking climaxes in which the principals are Frank Mayo, Sylvia Breamer and William Davidson. This picture tells an intensely interesting love story that has a touch of nature that is irresistible. The scenes are laid in the United States and certain picturesque sections of South America with the colorful side of Paris also entering into the story. The companion feature at the Strand today and Saturday will be Charles Hutchison in Surging Seas. The story of Surging Seas is based on a black sheep son of a rich father who comes home in time to be charged with the robbery and assault on his father. After many thrilling adventures on land and sea the story works out to a happy ending with the discomfiture of the villainous brother, the redemption of the weakling and the happy reunion of the lovers. On the same program a two-reel comedy, Watch Out, will be shown and the Strand management announces the performance at the Strand on Saturdays will be continuous from 2 to 10.30.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broad Theatre.

One person in every ten owns an automobile, according to statistics of the automobile press agents, but not one person in ten million would take the chances in one that Reed Howes takes in the latest William Fox special production. The Cyclone Rider which is the attraction at the Broad theatre today and tomorrow.

Howes makes his little red racing car behave like a stunt rider with an aeroplane. It leaps across twelve feet of space from a river pier to a ferryboat like it had wings. It dashes madly along a 200-foot precipice just like it was on a paved boulevard; it leaps in between two speeding express trains and heads them to the mark; it jumps a fence much like Tony, the equine movie star, does with Tom Mix on his back and it flies along the race course so fast that it would make Barney Oldfield in his old Blitzen Benz or Tommy Milton or Ralph DePalma in their speed cars look like they were standing still.

Howes, incidentally, is the handsome hero in this Lincoln J. Carter thrilldrama, which was directed by Thomas Buckingham. Others in the cast who play prominent parts are Alma Bennett, Evelyn Brent and Charles Conklin.

Days of 49, views of the total eclipse, the Pathe News and a Monkey comedy make up the remainder of the bill.

Broadway Theatre.

True enough, one of the outstanding programs of the season was seen at the Broadway theatre yesterday. Every act is in a class by itself, representing the acme in entertaining qualities.

Those acts that put over this great show are as follows in order of appearance: Aldine & Wright, De Witt & Gunther, Bobby Barker & Co., Jones & Rea and Gella-Rini & Sisters.

The photoplay also proved to be one above the average with Matt Moore and Patsy Ruth Miller in Fools in the Dark. It is a great comedy mystery drama.

What is the most sensitive subject to a woman; and at the same time the most interesting? Correct! Her age! Instance the innumerable beauty parlors along the main arteries of life of all our cities and towns. No subject which could have been selected has such a universal interest for women; and for men, too, when it comes to that. The eternal youth which Ponce de Leon sought and which has been the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow for humanity since Hector was a right small dog has ever an abstract appeal for us all. Not all, of course, will go to Vienna to submit to a dangerous and delicate operation as Vanna de Maurier does in this lavish F. B. O. production. Not all would do it even if they could afford to. But at least it is an interesting idea.

Vanity's Price is a production on which no expense has been spared either in assembling an exceptional cast of players or in building magnificent sets. In an atmosphere which reeks of drama, and before backgrounds which look as if they might have been done by a Robert Edmond Jones, Anna Q. Nilsson, Lucille Rickson, Stuart Holmes and Wyndham Standing and other feature players, enact this impressive and powerful story.

Jews Rebuilding Palestine.

Many have wondered why so numerous a people as the Jews do not have a nation of their own, especially when 3,000 years ago they were the most prominent people upon the earth. The greatest and most wonderful and mysterious book on earth is the Bible, which is confessedly a Jewish production, inspired by the great Creator. Why have the dealings of God with the Jews been so peculiar? Why have the Jews shunned Christianity? Why is Zionism now engaging the attention of Jews the world over.

House and office buildings are going up, orchards and gardens are being planted, roads are being built, hospitals and nurseries have been established; millions of dollars are flowing to Jerusalem, and every month thousands of Jews are going thither. Railroads are being built and many automobile routes have been established in the Holy Land. Great activity prevails and much encouragement comes from all parts of the world. What is the meaning?

Some claim that the Bible teaches that Jerusalem ultimately shall become the capital of the world. What is the prospect of this becoming a fact? And what shall be the system of government? Will such an arrangement be beneficial to the world at large? Have the radio, and its present popularity anything to do with the fulfilment of prophecy?

A lecture on Jews Rebuilding Palestine—the Reason, answering these questions will be given by T. E. Barker of New York, under the auspices of the International Bible Students Association, local branch, in Steiner's hall, Friday, Jan. 30, at 7.45 p. m. The speaker is said to be informed on these and kindred subjects; and all are invited to hear him, as the lecture is free, and no collection will be lifted.

SEES JUDGE BROWN IN PROMINENT LIGHT

Expressing satisfaction that the city of New Haven is to have possession of the Lighthouse Point seashore property, the New Haven Journal-Courier speaks editorially as follows of Judge Allyn L. Brown, who rendered the decision setting the value of the property:

"Judge Allyn L. Brown, whose wise and moderate ruling brings the property to the citizens at a price just to both seller and buyer, is one of the judges of Connecticut marked in the eyes of layman and lawyer alike. He has been mayor of Norwich and member of the state senate. Men of the law who are filled with a reverence for justice, dream their ambition in the language of their calling; but it has been the thought of not a few that the time may come when Allyn Brown will be needed in a broader service that the bench affords."

NORWICH STATE HOSPITAL KEEPS PER CAPITA LOW

The Norwich state hospital for the insane is one of the least expensive institutions to maintain in the state, costing $5.70 weekly per capita.

This is shown in the report of the State Board of Trade which has just been made public in Hartford. The cost at Mystic Oral school is $13.15 per capita.

PUMPING STATION KEEPS NORWICH RESERVOIRS UP TO 30 DAY MARK

Pumping operations at the station on Trading Cove brook have succeeded in keeping a 30-day supply of water in the Norwich reservoirs, but without the pump going since the last week in December the city would now have had only a two weeks' supply at the present time.

Measurements by Superintendent John J. Corkery this week showed that there is at present on hand 120 million gallons of water. There has been pumped 96 million gallons so that if there had been no pumping the supply now would have been 86 million gallons, which at the rate of consumption, about 4 million gallons daily, would have been enough for 12 or 14 days.

Present conditions are right for a substantial additions to the water in the two reservoirs as the big body of snow on the watersheds will discharge a great quantity of water into the basins as soon as it begins to melt with milder weather, especially if it should be accompanied by a good rain.

HUSBAND DENIES CHARGES MADE BY HIS WIFE

Charging her husband, Abraham Meyer, of New London, dry goods merchant, with forcing unnatural marital relations upon her, which resulted in her becoming ill, Mrs. Elizabeth Meyer of Shaw street, on the stand in her divorce action which was partially heard by Judge C. L. Avery in the superior court at New London Thursday, told a sordid story of the five months that she lived with Meyer following their marriage. Much of the testimony was of an unprintable nature. Mrs. Berman, sister of Mrs. Meyer, told the court that Meyer had admitted his actions to her, but had excused them with the statement that he was not accountable for his actions when excited. Meyer, on the stand in his own behalf, denied the charges and said that he could give no reason for his wife bringing them, declared he still loved her and was willing to take her back as his wife now if she wanted to come.

Mrs. Meyer brought suit for divorce in 1921, on the grounds of intolerable cruelty, but the petition was denied. In the present action she is charging desertion. Attorney Daniel M. Cronin appeared for Mrs. Meyer, while Attorney Morris B. Lubchansky represented the defendant. The case was continued until February 6, at which time Dr. Emanuel Henkle, who attended Mrs. Meyer at various times, will be called to testify.

Much of Meyer's testimony was amusing, and it was with difficulty that court attaches, and spectators restrained from laughing aloud at some of his remarks. Mrs. Meyer's first husband, Jacob Ostrow, was killed in a railroad accident. The wife brought suit against the railroad for $10,000 damages but pending the trial of the action she married Meyer.

The jury which heard the case awarded Mrs. Meyer the sum of $7,500. Meyer testified Thursday that after the trial of the suit against the railroad his wife came home and told him that if she hadn't married him with the $7,500 she could get a young man, and not an old man like him. Meyer is 48, his wife, considerably younger. He claimed to have treated her royally during their married life, did everything for her, and even brought garlic for her and rubbed it on her bread, when she expressed a wish for ... garlic flavored sandwich. Attorney Cronin introduced as evidence a note written by Meyer addressed to his brother in which the writer said that he was going to commit suicide. Under cross examination by Mr. Cronin, Meyer stated that his wife had complained to him that if she had not been married she would have received an award of $10,000, instead of $7,500. "Jokingly, I told her," the witness said, "that the only way that I could make amends for the loss of the $2,500, was to commit suicide and she would get $1,000 insurance that I had taken out with my wife as beneficiary. She said if I committed suicide she might be blamed for the death, so I put it in writing. That's the note."

KILLINGLY BOY AT 20 IS A SKILLED VIOLINIST

A Killingly boy is a student in one of the famous Italian Conservatories of Music. The boy's family are very quiet, modest people who have not boasted of the fact. But for more than four years they have denied themselves and worked and saved to give the young man the best musical education the world affords.

The young musician is Peter Trinchero. His home is in the Ballouville section. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. John Trinchero. His father does shoe repairing and runs a jitney in Attawaugan. His parents have lived in Connecticut for many years, at one time conducting a hotel in Torrington. Afterwards they were proprietors of a hotel in Naugatuck. They also have lived in the great west. They are natives of Italy.

Peter is a student at the Conservatory Verdi at Palermo. He has studied the violin, the violoncello (the modern form of the medieval viola da gamba) and the piano. He expects after five years in study there to receive his diploma next June. Then he will return to America and visit his parents before starting in upon his musical career in New York city.

When very young Peter Trinchero became very much attached to his violin. His father took it away from him and tried to have him forget it. The boy was miserable and refused to be comforted until his beloved instrument was returned. Then it was his parents realized that nothing but a musical career would satisfy the lad. They decided to give him the best training the great Italian conservatories could furnish. At 15 he entered the Conservatory Verdi. Next June, at 20, he will receive his diploma.

Storrs Students to Teach.

In keeping with the plan of the course in teacher training at Storrs college, fifteen of the senior young women enrolled in this course will leave February 2 for various high schools throughout the state, where they will engage in four weeks of practice teaching. Those enrolled in this course, together with the town or city in which they will teach are: Irene Cooke, Hartford; Pauline Graf, Stamford; Christine McNenemy, Hartford and Manchester; Alice Hubbard, Winsted; Florence Bailey, Meriden; Pauline Girard, Watertown; Hazel Clark, Windsor; Cora Lavallee, Central Village; Katherine Manchester, Seymour; Marie Bronson, Waterbury; Helen Slanetz and Mary Coppola, New Haven; Dorothy Stellenwerf, Willimantic; Hannah Jensen, South Manchester.

Movement of Barges.

Tug Aquidneck towed barge Northern No. 36 from New London to Montville, and the barge James Howard from Allyn's Point to New London Thursday.

DESCRIBES PUBLIC UTILITY BUSINESS TO LIONS

A very interesting talk on the size, growth and future of the public utility business in the United States was given by Harold D. Larrabee, general manager of the Eastern Connecticut Power company, at the weekly luncheon meeting of the Norwich Lions club. After speaking of the gas and electric industry in general as it affects the country as a whole, Mr. Larrabee spoke of the millions of dollars invested in public utilities of this kind. He described the remarkable development of the industry which has grown by leaps and bounds and went on to speak particularly of the Eastern Connecticut Power company. In this connection he said:

The Eastern Connecticut Power company has developed a power generation and transmission system which covers 32 towns in Connecticut from which power is distributed to four towns in Rhode Island, besides a small amount, which one of its customers sells to Fishers Island, and a varying quantity which is sold at the Massachusetts state line to the New England Power company.

This represents something over $11,000,000 and covers the ownership of several companies which have been purchased, with the result that in addition to selling power wholesale, we have something over 10,000 customers whom we serve directly. The maximum load on the system in 1924 was approximately 86,000 H. P. and the output for the entire year was a little over 66,000,000 KWHrs. As to what this output means, it might be well to say that for the last five months of 1924, the average output was 6,900,000 KWHrs per month which is to say more in each month than the Norwich Gas & Electric department would buy from us in a year.

Total Capacity.

The total capacity of the power plants is a little over 50,000 H. P. of which 43,500 H. P. is in steam at the Montville power station. This development replaces 10 smaller and very much less efficient power plants which formerly operated in this territory, and the power is taken to the various points of load over a transmission system consisting of approximately 150 miles of pole line. From this system we are supplying electric power for the entire needs of eastern Connecticut with the single exception of the city of Norwich. The backbone of the system is of course the steam power plant at Montville, and that plant is equipped with all sorts of modern devices for efficient production. There is coal handling equipment for a capacity of 200 tons per hour by virtue of which it is not necessary for a man to handle the coal himself from the time it reaches the plant in the 3,000-ton barges until it is taken away as ashes in small push cars and dumped out for filling. The boiler and turbine are as nearly up-to-date as exists without going to some extremes of design which are occasionally found, and the cost of the installation is well under the cost of any similar construction recently undertaken. The equipment is new, it is well laid out, and it is operated by a crew of men who have not only been well trained as to facts but who also have that keen interest in results which comes from true loyalty. As a consequence of this condition, we are able to generate and transmit power cheaper than it can be produced in any of the smaller plants, and this saving is no small item. For the year 1923, due to the better economy, it would have cost to produce the amount of power which we generated and sold $625,000 more than it did actually cost us.

Transmission Lines.

From the power plant our transmission lines reach west as far as Guilford, east to the Rhode Island state line, south to New London, and north to the Massachusetts state line, connecting up some of the water powers on the Shetucket and Quinebaug rivers and delivering power at various points. This linking up of existing water powers and the supplementing of inefficient fuel burning plants, absorbing those requirements into a more unified system, is what has been well advertised as superpower. This term does not of necessity need to be confined to tremendous power aggrerations, but means simply the replacement of certain waste and inefficiencies with modern power production and transmission facilities.

This is exactly what we have done, and we expect that our steam plant at Montville will grow to 150,000 KW and that as conditions warrant, all of the available water powers on the Shetucket and Quinebaug rivers will be tied into our systems as a conservation measure. There will be no super-power development here, nor at any other place, except with large and efficient steam power plants as the basis, for the simple reason that water power is neither great enough nor sufficiently reliable to make it worth anything beyond the saving in the amount of fuel to be burned.

The public utility business then is big business. It is a business which is rapidly growing built upon a basis of sound business integrity and brought to its present high state of development through sound financing, fair treatment of the public which it serves and a true appreciation of the duty which it is called upon to perform.

Entertainers at Meeting.

In the absence of President C. Edward Carpenter, the meeting was presided over by Vice President Louis Fontaine. Lion William R. Frisbie acted as song leader. Guests included H. D. Larrabee, general manager of the Eastern Connecticut Power company; M. V. O'Connell, manager of the San Carlo Grand Opera company, Gerald Griffin, who is appearing at the Palace theatre; Edward L. McEvoy, manager of the Palace theatre and Rev. William A. Keefe, rector of St. Mary's Memorial church.

Mr. O'Connell spoke briefly on the business side of grand opera and there was an interesting talk by Rev. Father Keefe. Mr. Griffin entertained with a number of witty Irish songs. The speakers and the entertainers were given rising votes of thanks and the meeting closed with the singing of The Star Spangled Banner.

BURNS PROVE FATAL TO MRS. JOSEPH STANLEY

Failing to rally from the effects of the burns which she received at her home, 310 Franklin street, Sunday evening, Mrs. Jessie Wilson Rae Taylor, wife of Joseph Stanley, died Thursday morning about 3.30 o'clock at the Backus hospital. Mrs. Stanley was born at Aberdeen, Scotland, October 8, 1900, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Taylor, now of Barre, Vt. She came to this country when a child and with her parents, located in Vermont. In 1919 she graduated from Goddard Seminary, Barre, and October 2, 1922, she was united in marriage with Joseph Stanley, the wedding taking place at the rectory of the Sacred Heart church, Groton. Mrs. Stanley was a member of the Order of Maccabees and belonged to the local order of the Degree of Pocahontas. Surviving are her husband, and one son, Joseph Stanley, Jr., aged 1 year and 9 months, her parents in Barre, two sisters, Euphemia Taylor and Mrs. Leo Lucius, and a brother, James Taylor, Jr., all of Vermont. The body will be taken to Barre and burial will take place in that city.

Mrs. Stanley was terribly burned when her clothing caught fire from an oil heater in her room. She had opened the top of the heater to turn down the wick. As she turned to light a gas stove in another part of the room her skirt swept into the flames and in an instant she was enveloped in flames. Mrs. Stanley suffered severe burns on his hands while extinguishing the flames. Dr. A. C. Freeman was summoned and had the young woman removed to the hospital.

FOOT GUARD EXPECTS ORDERS FOR INAUGURAL

Both the First and Second companies. Governor's Foot Guards, are expecting orders shortly to accompany Gov. John H. Trumbull to the inaugural ceremonies at Washington in March. Although no official announcement has been made, it is understood that the governor will accept the invitation to attend the ceremonies incident to the induction into office of President Coolidge. The governors of all the states have been invited to attend.

All About "Sam Hill."

A query often propounded by local people is thus answered by Francis A. Stratton in a New York paper of Thursday:

Referring to the origin of the saying, "Like Sam Hill:"

Colonel Samuel Hill was born in Guilford, Conn., Feb. 21, 1678, and died in May, 1752. He was elected to the general assembly, term after term, and was for a time justice of New Haven county court; he was town clerk in 1717 and clerk of the proprietors of the common and undivided lands; was clerk of the probate court from 1720 to 1725, when he was chosen judge of probate, which position he held until his death.

Sam Hill was so often and continually elected to office that it became a common and usual expression of the moderator at town meetings, who would rise and say: "We are again assembled to nominate Colonel Sam Hill and someone to give with him in the next general court;" hence the saying "He runs like Sam Hill," which is used in and about Guilford to this day, applying to an unusually successful candidate for office, and which expression "Like Sam Hill" is used throughout the United States to emphasize excessive action.

Men attribute their overstrained mental condition to brilliancy.

SEEKING $35,000 FOR FIGHT ON MOSQUITOES

The fight of Connecticut against the mosquito for the next two years will center around a bill which was introduced Thursday into the senate by Senator Matthew A. Kenealy of Stamford. It provides that the appropriation made for the state agricultural experiment station the next two years to conduct its anti-mosquito work shall be $35,000.

Two years ago the general assembly passed rigid laws for draining the mosquito infested lands of the state but made an appropriation of only $12,000 for carrying out its program. This proved entirely inadequate and the station officials were unable to continue last year their work of draining the worst mosquito areas of the state and even of keeping open the drains made several years ago.

When the bill introduced by Senator Kenealy is given a committee hearing, officials of the station of the state department of health and education, parks and several other departments, together with a large number of volunteer civic, health, and business organizations, will urge its passage. They have already held two mosquito institutes in New Haven and Hartford, respectively, the past fall, under the auspices of the State Agricultural Experiment station and the Connecticut Anti Mosquito Association, to advise with the health business and civic organizations on methods for improving mosquito control in Connecticut.

From business men and organizations who feel the need of prompt action a sum of several thousand dollars has been pledged to cooperate with the state in carrying out the program urged by the state agricultural experiment station of draining the mosquito marshes and swamps which are regarded as the worst menace to the health of Connecticut.

Picture Taken By Jean Kieffer at Norwich Tuberculosis Sanatorium

SUNDAY SCHOOL WORK DISCUSSED AT MEETING

Representatives from the Sunday schools of the northern part of the county were here Wednesday evening at the Central Baptist church for a meeting of the New London county council of religious education. Twenty-one schools were represented in the 50 who attended the meeting which began with supper at 6.3 served by the women of the United Congregational church under the direction of Mrs. W. H. Dawley.

Rev. Howard Wells of Lyme, president of the council, conducted the meeting at which State Secretary W. I. Wooding of Hartford was present to outline plans for the season, which include teacher-training course at New London and Norwich under Rev. Dr. Honline.

SHOWS HOW ECLIPSE LOOKED IN NORWICH

An excellent picture of the total eclipse of the sun last Saturday morning was taken by Jean Kieffer, technician at the Norwich tuberculosis sanatorium and is shown herewith.

Mr. Kieffer took pictures from the porch of the main building at the sanatorium, using a 24 inch focus lens. He gave an exposure of 3 seconds, beginning 35 seconds after the beginning of totality and was successful in securing this admirable picture of the corona, showing how the beautiful pearly light streamed out irregularly around the black orb of the moon as it shut out the sun.

FORBES FOUND GUILTY OF VETERANS' BUREAU FRAUDS

Contractor Thompson also Found Guilty of Conspiracy in Cullusion of Awarding of Contracts—Jury Was Out Five Hours and 50 Minutes—Maximum Penalty is Verdict Was Unamimous—Maximum Penalty is Two Years' Imprisonment or $10,000 Fine, or Both—Counsel For Former Director of U. S. Veteran's Bureau Indicated That the Case Would Be Carried to a Higher Courts.

Chicago, Jan. 30 (By the A. P.).—The federal jury which reviewed the administration of the United States Veterans' bureau under former Director Charles R. Forbes tonight convicted Forbes and John W. Thompson, wealthy St. Louis contractor, of conspiracy to defraud the government in the allocation of veterans' hospital contracts.

Pending hearing Feb. 4 on the defense motions for a new trial, Federal Judge George A. Carpenter reserved sentence. The maximum penalty for the offense is two years' imprisonment or $10,000 fine, or both.

The verdict came as a surprise to the defense and the crowded courtroom.

Defense counsel, indicated that the case would be carried, if necessary, to the United States supreme court.

"It is not all over with yet," Forbes said in commenting on the verdict. Thompson, who was perhaps the calmest man in the startled courtroom, made no comment.

The jury was out five hours and fifty minutes, but its verdict was reached on the twelfth ballot, after exactly five hours' deliberation. The vote on the first nine ballots was 9 to 3 for conviction. On the next two, it stood 10 to 2. The verdict was reached on the next ballot.

After four hours' deliberation, the jury asked the court concerning its right to consider overt acts committed beyond the jurisdiction of the trial court. Judge Carpenter informed them they must confine their verdict to overt acts within the jurisdiction of northern Illinois. The principal overt act charged by the government to have been committed in this district was the alleged payment of $5,000 in cash to Forbes by Elias H. Mortimer, one of the alleged conspirators, who became the government's informer and chief witness for the prosecution, in the Drake hotel in Chicago on June 20, 1922.

On this date, the government charged, there existed between Forbes, Thompson, Mortimer, James W. Black, deceased partner of Thompson, and Charles F. Cramer, former general counsel of the Veterans' bureau, a conspiracy to fraudulently award veterans' hospital contracts to Thompson & Black interests. Mortimer, a self confessed "snipper of official red tape in Washington," testified he paid the money to Forbes as an agent for Thompson.

Cramer and Black died within a week of each other early in 1923.

After hearing the opinion of the court on the point of law, the jury retired for further deliberations. In less than an hour word came from the jury room that a verdict was ready.

When the verdict was read, the defense asked for a poll of the jurors, each of whom confirmed the finding as his own.

GASTON B. MEANS GIVEN TWO YEARS AND $10,000 FINE

New York, Jan. 30.—Gaston B. Means, one time confidential agent of the department of justice, under Director William J. Burns, was fined $10,000 and sentenced to two years in the federal prison at Atlanta today, when a jury found him guilty of having conspired to obstruct justice.

Thomas B. Felder, Means' former attorney, and co-defendant on the conspiracy charge, was fined $10,000 but got no prison term. Both men were granted permission to apply for writs of error, automatically staying execution of their sentence.

Sentence was imposed by Judge Lindley on a sealed verdict returned by a judge-picked jury after five hours' deliberation last night. Opened with resumption of court today, it was found to have declared the defendants guilty of all counts charged in the indictment. Mercy was recommended for Felder, but no recommendation was made in the case of Means.

Judge Lindley later put over to June 30 the date for imposition of sentence on Elmer W. Jarnecke, known as secretary to Means when he was in the department of justice. Jarnecke, indicted with Felder and Means, pleaded guilty at the start of the trial and was the government's strongest witness.

Both Means and Jarnecke were convicted last July on bootlegging conspiracy charges. Means was at that time given the maximum penalty of two years' imprisonment and a $10,000 fine and Jarnecke was sentenced to the same term and a $5,000 fine. Both convictions are pending an appeal.

Judge Lindley today ordered that Means' two sentences were to run consecutively—the second to begin with the expiration of the first.

OVERRULES JUDGE BROWN IN MADISON ELECTION CASE

New Haven, Jan 30.—Three errors are found in decisions handed down by the Connecticut supreme court here today.

The refusal of Judge Allyn L. Brown of the superior court to grant an appeal to one of the complainants in the Madison town election contest was overruled by the supreme court and Judge Brown is ordered to make a finding of acts within a reasonable time. It was a unanimous decision. Judge Brown decided against all of the independent republican town officers and reversed the town election by ordering the regular republican seated. All of the contestants with the exception of the one for first selectman dropped their appeals. In connection with the action of William W. Miner against J. Milmer Marsh, a contest over the position of registrar of voters, Judge Brown refused to grant an appeal. The court held that the defendant had failed to put up a contest hence was not entitled to an appeal. The attorneys carried their case to the supreme court of errors in Hartford and were granted the special right of way with their motion that Judge Brown be directed to allow an appeal.

In the suit of Louis Ursini of Hamden against Ralph Piazzia of Bridgeport, the supreme court found error, judgment set aside and cause remanded with direction to enter judgment for the defendants. Judge Ernest C. Simpson gave the plaintiff a judgment for $505.25.

In the action of George W. Davis against Otto L. Hemming, the Winchester company and others, the supreme court found error in part on appeal by the Winchester company, judgment set aside and cause remanded for entry in accordance with opinion. The case was tried before Judge Allyn L. Brown.

FOOD SCARCITY PREVAILS IN WEST OF IRELAND

Dublin, Jan. 30.—(By the A. P.)—Energetic relief measures have been undertaken by the government to alleviate the food scarcity in the west of Ireland which is admittedly serious—the worst since 1881—but not regarded here as an actual famine. The relief also takes in the fuel situation, as in addition to the partial crop failure along the western seaboard, the peat lies watersoaked in the bogs, unfit for burning.

Free meals are being distributed daily by the government to 15,0000 school children, and coal and wood are being supplied at nominal prices. Seed potatoes also have been sent to the affected districts and £250,000 has been provided to give employment to those needing work on the roads and in forestry operations.

The Connecticut infirmary commission, which has recommended to two preceding sessions of the general assembly that $500,000 be appropriated for the establishment of a state infirmary, will this year, upon the advice of Governor Trumbull, confine its requests to an appropriation of $4,000.

34 INCHES OF SNOW ON LEVEL IN CENTRAL N. Y.

Syracuse, N. Y., Jan. 30.—Snowbound Syracuse today abandoned business to shovel its way out of the heaviest and costliest snowfall in two decades and at nightfall had only partially succeeded in restoring communications. The storm caused two fatalities and heavy property damage. Hundreds of persons passed Thursday night on stalled trains, among them Col. Theodore Roosevelt.

Frank Powers of East Syracuse, a railroad conductor, died from a heart attack after struggling through the snow on his way home. A two months' old son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Omilanowics died while being carried to a hospital.

Reports from all sections of the central New York snow belt told of damage to residences and factories.

Measurements made by the weather bureau officials showed 34 inches of snow on the level, a depth unparalleled in the history of the bureau. The storm was the worst since the great blizzard of 1888. The wind had an average velocity of 25 to 30 miles an hour.

Washington, Jan. 30.—The submarine S-48 which went ashore off Portsmouth, N. H., last night, carried a crew of 37 officers and men, according to the official list made public by the navy department today.

The officers aboard were Lieutenant Commander S. E. Bray, of San Francisco and Lieutenant, junior grade William A. Swanston, of New York city.

Those of her crew having New England addresses were:

Seaman Joseph P. Walsh, Portsmouth, N. H.; Torpedo Man Julius Flenberg, Dorchester, Mass.; Torpedo Man John R. Mercer, New Haven, Conn; Machinist's Mate Ruben A. Frye, North Lubec, Maine; Machinists Mate Theodore Steinfield, of Boston; Gunner's Mate Joseph Cybulski, Woonsocket, R. I.; Radio Operator, Redmond C. Carroll, of Phoenix, R. I.; Cook Arthur Labonte, Belchertown, Mass; Cook Lauriano Novarro, New London, Conn.; Quartermaster John H. Dolan, Roxbury, Mass.

TO POSTPONE ATTEMPT TO DISLODGE SUBMARINE S-48

Portsmouth, N. H., Jan. 30.—No attempt will be made at present to dislodge the submarine S-48, which tonight was fast on a mud bank in Little Harbor where she was driven today after striking on the rocks near the entrance to Portsmouth harbor. A survey of the vessel by naval officers from Portsmouth navy yard disclosed that it would be unsafe to pull it into deep water under present conditions.

Lieutenant Commander Stewart E. Bray of New London, Conn., in command of the S-48, and his crew were at the navy yard here tonight recovering from exposure and chlorine gas fumes. They were taken off early today by coast guardsmen from Wallis Sands and Wood Island stations when the forepart of their vessel was flooded from punctures of the hull and chlorine gas fumes from the batteries had driven them to the deck. Several of the men whose clothing had frozen in the night long struggle with the gale, sea and cold had to be carried from the deck of the submarine to the coast guard boats.

Officers investigating the position of the S-48 today reported that she was in no immediate danger. The two breakwaters of Little Harbor protected her from the seas where she lies in 13 feet of water at low tide on soft bottom, at high water the vessel is submerged except or her conning towed and part of the superstructure. Her bow is pointed seaward. Members of the crew said that at flood time the ship listed to the seas. All watertight compartments and hatches except the upper conning tower were closed by the crew before they abandoned the vessel.

The chief damage to the submarine appeared to be at the head where she pounded on the rocks off Point Jaffrey for several hours last night. The ront turret room is flooded, and the front control and battery rooms also are partially flooded although officer were not certain whether the latter two had been punctured.

CORRECTS STATEMENT ON CURE OF SCARLET FEVER

New Haven, Jan. 30.—Dr. Francis G. Blake, professor of medicine at the Yale Medical school, said this afternoon that he would reply to a request received from the American Medical association inquiring about reports of an address made in Hartford referring to his experiences with the use of a serum for the cure of scarlet fever. Dr Blake was reported to have stated that a serum had been found that would cure the most hopeless cases of scarlet fever in twelve to 24 hours.

"The report is slightly misleading," said Dr. Blake. "It would have been more accurate had it stated that in some apparently hopeless cases cure had been effected by the use of serum within a period of from 24 to 48 hours. The period of 12 to 24 hours applies, as I stated, only to moderately severe cases. A period of 36 to 48 hours has usually elapsed before apparently hopeless cases have become convalescent."

RAIDING RESUMED IN WILLIAMSON COUNTY

Herrin, Ills., Jan. 30.—(By the A. P.) Two carloads of special deputies led by Constable Walter Newell and M. D. Coleman of Herrin, resumed raiding in Williamson county late today. Moston of the men were those who had assisted S. Glenn Young, klan liquor raider, who was slain here Saturday night.

To Plug Crevices in State "Volstead" Act

Enforcement Bill Introduced in Senate at Instance of Chief Justice Wheeler.

Hartford, Jan. 30. — The virtual starving of Connecticut bootleggers into obedience to the prohibition amendment is contemplated in a bill introduced in the legislature today by Senate Leader Cronin at the instance of Chief Justice George W Wheeler. The bill is a proposed revision of the state enforcement act, sometimes called the state Volstead act, carefully prepared under the direction of the chief justice and State's Attorneys Alcorn, Brown and Comley, who, with other state's attorneys will advocate its adoption by the legislature as a means that gill greatly aid them in the enforcement of the eighteenth amendment.

In the effort to famish the bootleggers, it is proposed to make the purchase of intoxicating liquor a criminal offense and to punish not only the rum runners themselves but also those who act as convoys, even if they be in other vehicles running ahead or behind of the trucks carrying the liquor. If these provisions had been in the present law, the prominent Hartford people who were summoned to court by subpoenas about a year ago as customers of two "society bootleggers," could have been sent to jail with the liquor peddlers. As it was, the state law provided no penalty for their action in buying from the bootleggers.

Another bill put in during the day was said to be aimed at certain kinds of so-called "beauty parlors" which it is alleged are being used for purposes contrary to law and which are conducted by persons engaged by the owners who live out of the state.

Another bill is intended to give the authorities closer supervision over billiard rooms and to regulate the use of them.

In medical bills there are several which will be used in the fight over revision of the healing arts laws. The chiropractors, the natureopaths, and others have their own bills.

Among other bills were these: For branch offices of the motor vehicle department in Danbury, Greenwich and Putnam; to amend the Connecticut state teachers' penston laws; for appointment of a chief deputy sheriff in each county who would assume the sheriff's duties in event of the death or disability of the sheriff; to prohibit the piling up of oyster shells on docks and wharves where such piles may draw flies and create a nuisance; that druggists be limited to one to each 1,000 of population; making the state tax on gasoline two cents instead of three.

The appointment of the governor of Judge Edwin C. Dickenson to be superior court judge will clear the way for appointments of other judges, two for the supreme court bench to fill vacancies which will come when two associate justices retire for age, and also a judge for the common pleas court bench in Hartford county. Callers on the governor today spoke in behalf of Judge John J. Walsh of Norwalk, and of Attorney Thomas M. Cullinan, of Bridgeport, both democrats, for a place on the superior court bench.

STILL MYSTIFIED BY THE DISAPPEARANCE OF PIANIST

New York, Jan. 30.—The mysterious disappearance of Ethel Leginska, pianist, conductress and composer, has resulted in cancellations of all her engagements for the next three months, a friend said today. Miss Leginska's next scheduled appearance was in Duluth, Minn., on February 8.

Friends of the missing musician said they were still without word of her whereabouts. A description of her, broadcast over the radio last night, was repeated tonight. Several clues given to the police by persons who thought they had seen the young woman proved valueless.

RESCUED SEAMAN WHO WAS CLINGING TO BARREL

Washington, Jan. 30.—The submarine V-1, cruising in the freezing, black darkness off Thimble Shoals on the night of January 20, swept her searchlight over the sea surface in response to a cry for help, and discovered a Lascar seaman clinging to a barrel and being tossed about by the waves.

Reporting today to the navy department, Lieut. Commander Picking said the sailor was lost overboard from the British steamship Luceric. He was delirious and naked except for a thin shirt when picked up. He was transferred to a pilot boat off Cape Henry.

Some one has said that happiness is a habit. If it is, here's hoping that you may acquire the habit.

SENATE PASSES POSTAL PAY AND RATE INCREASE BILL

Measure Carries the Same Provisions For Salary Increases, Effective July 1, 1924, as Bill Passed at Last Session and Vetoed by President Coolidge — Rate Increases Would Apply to Practically Every Form of Mail Service—Bill May Encounter Opposition in the House, Where Revenue Legislation is Considered a Prerogative.

Washington, Jan. 30.—The senate today passed the postal pay and rate increase bill shortly after house leaders had served notice they would ask for its immediate return from that body on the ground that it was revenue raising legislation and as such could be initiated only in the house under the constitution.

The vote on passage was 70 to 8, with Borah, Brookhart, Norbeck and Norris, republicans, and Glass, Harrison, Swanson and Underwood, democrats, opposing it.

The only change today was the adoption of an amendment to cut from two to one cent the service charge on parcel post packages.

Return of the bill to the senate if effected by the house, will make it necessary, in order to enact it, for the house to initiate the legislation, pass it and send it to the senate for repassage. The measure has yet to be considered by the house post office committee, and some time is expected to elapse before it makes a report to the house.

Representatives Longworth, Ohio, and Garrett, Tennessee, the republican and democratic leaders, respectively, both declared against acceptance of the bill from the senate, and were supported by the unanimous opinion of a house ways and means sub-committee.

As passed, the bill provides for the same increases in postal employes' salaries, effective as of July 1, as were carried in the pay bill at the last session but vetoed by President Coolidge. It would mean an average increase of $300 annually in the salaries.

Revised rate schedules affecting practically every class of mail also are provided to meet the salary raises, although the recommendations of the post office department for increases in these rates were greatly modified, particularly in the second class.

Senator Moses, New Hampshire, in charge of the bill, estimated today that the rate increase approved would raise about $40,000,000 additional revenue annually, while the salary section calls for an expenditure of about $68,000,000 additional each year.

The only amendment making a change in the measure which was adopted today reduced the proposed two cents service change on parcel post packages to one cent This cost $9,000,000 in revenue. Senator Moses said, declaring the action "fatal." It was adopted on motion of Senator McKellar, democrat, Tennessee, by a vote of 40 to 39.

SATISFIED WITH EXCLUSION OF LAFOLLETTE SUPPORTERS

Washington, Jan. 30.—The dispute between organization republicans and LaFollette insurgents broke out afresh today in the house. Representative Longworth, the republican leader, stirred up another round of debate by declaring the Wisconsin delegation, by its activity in the recent campaign, had forfeited the right to participate in party councils.

About the same time, it was made clear at the White House that the decision of the republican leaders in the house to exclude from the party organization caucus, Feb. 27, members who did not support the national ticket in November, had the approval of President Coolidge.

The president's view of the situation is that it does not involve exclusion of any member from the party, but is a question of limiting party responsibility to those who in the campaign united to pledge the republican party to the accomplishment of definite purposes. An honest attempt to carry out these pledges, he holds, makes necessary the inclusion within the party of organization or only those pledged to such an accomplishment.

Disclaiming any intention of "punishment" the dozen followers of Senator LaFollette who are to be barred from the party's organization caucus February 27, Mr. Longworth said it was the duty of house republicans to carry out the mandate of the people in the last election "unimpended by enemies."

WORST TRAFFIC JAM IN NEW YORK IN 35 YEARS

New York, Jan. 30.—Manhattan Island was blockaded today, both by land and sea. Transportation officials said it was New York's worst traffic jam in 35 years.

Blizzard-like storms throughout New England and northern New York, piling roads high with snows, and floods in the southland made virtually all main line trains bound for the city far behind their schedules. On the water, a freak wind that developed a velocity of 60 miles an hour, churned great blocks of ice against Manhattan shores discouraging traffic in the North and East rivers and in Long Island sound. Harbor traffic cut to the minimum, barely moved.

The city itself enjoyed a day of brilliant sunshine, with the temperature comparatively mild. The storm, starting in blustery snow flurries and ending in driving sweeps of bitterly cold rain, spent itself during the night. The sun made an early and vigorous appearance and kept on the job all day.

All important trains, including such crack specials as the Twentieth Century Limited, of the New York Central lines, and the Broadway Limited of the Pennsylvania, were behind their schedules. The first of several sections of the Century, due at 9.30 this morning, was not expected at the Grand Central Terminal before 11 o'clock tonight. Other trains of the New York, New Haven & Hartford, and other railroads were from a few minutes to eight and nine hours late.

GOVERNMENT TO ABANDON PROSECUTION OF CROWELL

Washington, Jan. 30.—The federal government today decided to abandon its war fraud prosecution against Benedict Crowell of Cleveland, former assistant secretary of war, and six other defendants in the federal court here.

Attorney General Stone announced tonight that he had directed that the appeal from the decision of Justice Hoehling of the District of Columbia supreme court sustaining the demurrer in the case, be not prosecuted.

In addition to Crowell, the defendants in the case were Morton C. Tuttle of Boston, William A. Starrett of New York, Clemens C. Lundoff of Cleveland, Clair Foster, formerly with companies with which Starrett was associated, John H. McGibbons of Baltimore and Chicago and James A. Mears of Boston and Springfield, Mass.

They were indicted by the federal grand jury here in December, 1922, on a charge of conspiracy to defraud the United States by prejudicing the orderly administration of laws and regulations promulgated under them.

YALE MADE $47,000 ON ATHLETICS LAST YEAR

New Haven Jan. 30.—That football is the only sport at Yale university that is showing a financial profit was disclosed today when two financial statements, one of the year ending June 30, 1924 and the other for the year ending June 30, 1923, were issued by Professor C. W. Mendell, chairman of the board of control of the Yale university athletic association and published in the Yale Alumni Weekly.

The books show for the year 1922-23 a net gain of $46,444.25 and for the year 1923-24 a net loss of $20,425.06. The report says that higher football expenses, a heavier draft on the football net revenue by the baseball team and the Olympic crew, painting the bowl, and the cost of carrying the steadily increasing number of undergraduates coming out for competitive sports of all sorts accounted for the difference. The income for both years was said to be about the same.

The football receipts, the report continues, average about $600,000, pay its own expenses, carries the deficit of the other sports and give the net profits for the year. For the year 1923-24 the football net profits were $214,946.05 and for the preceding year $247,322.36.

Football gross receipts in 1923, captain Mallory's team, are placed in the report at $626,149.11.

A heavy cut into the $214,946 football surplus was made by the baseball and track teams of 1924 and the champion crew, according to the reports. In baseball there was a net deficit of $5,465.53, track showed a net loss of $58,267.32 and the crew of $53,951.63. The sum total in revnue from Captain Rockefeller's Olympic champion eight was $5,413.96 while it cost the athletic association $59,365.59 to carry it through the year.

In the four major sports, a recapitulation shows that the revenue was $524,450.31 an dthe expenses $427,178.74. The sixteen minor sports were run at a loss of $51,387.68.

EMPLOYMENT SITUATION HAS IMPROVED IN NEW ENGLAND

Boston, Jan. 30.—Business activity in New England is now at a rate almost equal to that prevailing a year ago at this time and is not much less than it was during the period of prosperity in the early part of 1923, according to the monthly review of industrial and financial conditions, issued today by the Federal Reserve bank of Boston.

"There have been few reports of reduced operations during January," the report said. "The trend has been rather toward a higher rate of operations. Complete reports for December show that there was a larger increase in the rate of activity than in any single month in several years. The improvement, furthermore, was quite widespread and not confined to a few large industries toward the latter end of January there was some reduction in the volume of new orders booked, but this had no immediate effett on the average production schedule.

"The employment situation has been favorably affected, there being increases in the total number employed, the proportion of those employed on full time schedules and average weekly earnings in December as compared with November. An even more pronounced improvement in the demand for workers was reported by public employment offices."

NORWICH BULLETIN
Willimantic Office, 771 Main Street

Office Hours: 9:30 to 12 m.; 1:30 to 6 p. m.

The total of the grand list of the town of Windham as completed by the assessors, John R. Pickett, Lawrence S. Casey and Arthur J. Dubreuil is $7,651,080, an increase of $321,186 over that of 1923.

In the total number of lists for 1924 the increase over 1923 is 196. 3,262 residents and 201 non-residents filed lists. The west division, inclusive of the city of Willimantic shows $259,876 of the total increase and the Windhams or east division show $61,310. There are but few instances where the assessors placed increased values on property owned by manufacturing concerns, there being a tendency of a decrease in valuation by the reduced stocks of both raw and finished goods. The only manufacturing concerns here which are still exempt from taxation are the Goyer Manufacturing company, Washburn Silk Company and the S. C. Box company. There are about 1,500 automobiles on the list. This is 400 additional to last year, but the lowering of cost prices and depreciation prevent any increase in revenue from the tax on these.

Dating from 1912 when the town property was revalued, the increase has been steady, beginning at a figure between 12 and 13 millions in that year to an increase of 50 per cent. The tax rate has been advanced 160 per cent. from five to thirteen mills. The higher figure in the number of lists is direct evidence that much of the property in Windham has been "chopped up" and sold to parcel purchasers. The assessments of the leading manufacturing plants in the city and town are: American Thread Company, $5,312,040; Quidnick-Windham Manufacturing company, $359,300; Holland Silk Manufacturing company, $364,785; the Windham Silk company $227,548; Chaffee Braid company, $11,475; Hall & Bill Printing company, $23,500; Hillhouse and Taylor company, $64,450; Rossie Velvet company, $191,212; Vanderman Plumbing Manufacturing company $35,000; Smith-Winchester Manufacturing Company, $222,100; L. M. Hartson company, $19,900; Harris company, $17,250; the Rockville-Willimantic Lighting company, $313,325. Approximately the total share of the manufacturing concerns toward the grand list is $7,000,000.

Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton has received the completed lists and he will turn them over to the board of relief which will hold its first meeting on Tuesday, February 3, to hear complaint. The special town meeting called to levy a tax rate for town expenses for the fiscal year ending September 15, 1925, on the list just completed, has been called. In the opinion of the assessors and town clerk the grand list will be diminished by a sum of approximately $170,000, mostly for soldiers of the three wars. The subtraction will bring the total to about $17,651,080 and a thirteen mill tax on that would net a revenue of $228,000 in round figures.

The saying is everybody complains about the weather, but nobody seems to do anything about it. After the snow and intense cold the first part of the week, rain came that froze as it fell, all Thursday night, leaving the streets and the sidewalks either swimming with melted snow or glazed with great patches of ice. Coming up Main street about ten Thursday evening, it is said that a couple of women halted before one of the drives that runs into the street and cast the "wishful eye" of the hyma-tune over the stormy Jordan that roared and eddied down it into the street. "Goodness," said one of them, "picking desperately for a foothold. "Why don't they put some sand or something on this pavement!" "More fun to watch the women try to cross over," drawled a voice from the corner. By noon Friday, streets and sidewalks were in pretty good shape for perambulation and traffic. The thing that made the walking most difficult then was the sharp wind that all day tore across the valley from Hosmer mountain.

The bi-monthly bean supper was held at the Congregational church in Windham Friday evening with a very good attendance. The committee in charge was Mrs. F. B. Guild, chairman, Mrs. Carl Josephson, Mrs. A. S. Roberts and Mrs. Edward G. Billings.

After the report of the last lyceum was read and Alma Mater was sung, the sophomore eight piece orchestra opened the program with "At the End of the Road" and responded to an encore with a jazz number, Doodle Doo Doo. This was followed by a one-act comedy, Thirty Minutes for Refreshments, well cast and presented very smoothly with William Jordan as John Downley, the unprotected bachelor in a railway restaurant; Clarence Fitts, his (colored) valet, impersonated by Jack MacLean; Edward Gatchell, as John Foxton, the deserted husband; Richard Wilkinson as Major Pepper, in search of his spinster sister: Mrs. Foxton, the deserted bride, Lois Holman; Miss Arabella Pepper, admirably acted by Barbara Pollard, and Polly, the maid played very cleverly by Doris Armstrong. The play was received with much enthusiasm. Miss Gertrude Girouard of the faculty assisted in the coaching. As a final number the orchestra played Follow the Swallow. The players were Joseph Hinds, saxophone; Walter Costello, cornet; Everett Allen, violin; Thurston Brown, violin; Roderick Beaulieu, and Richard Pickett, clarinet; John Keefe, drum and traps; Virginia Hinman, piano.

A letter recently received from Rev. Allen H. Gates, a former pastor of Scotland Congregational church, who is now engaged in missionary work in the Hawaiian Islands, describes a little community there in which the population is about 75% Japanese. He also treats the American-Japanese situation from an interesting first-hand observation. He says that as one sees it there, the attitude of Japan is practically the same as that for which the thirteen colonies fought England in the Revolution: "All Japan is asking for is that she be recognized, and no longer despised as belonging to an inferior yellow race. In the hearts of the Japanese people lies the spirit of self-destruction for a principle, 'hari-kari.' They are not afraid of death. They are ready to sacrifice themselves if it may establish the right of the yellow race to a place on the globe. They have acted far more honorably and gentlemanly lately than our country has. They have revoked their dual citizenship law upon the protest of America, when we have all along had a dual citizenship law, and so has every other country, practically. In spite of the slap in the face we gave them, they have treated Americans with frank courtesy. They kept the gentleman's agreement to the letter."

Willimantic, Jan. 30.—On a charge of using the United States mails to defraud, William G. Waldron of South Coventry was placed under arrest at his home there late Thursday afternoon by Deputy Marshal Albert P. Marsh of New Britain. It is said that Waldron was recently indicted on that charge by the federal court. A bench warrant was served upon him at the time of his arrest and was issued by Judge Thomas. Waldron has been a resident of South Coventry for the past five years, residing on the Judd farm, near South street. He played a lone hand, living a life of comparative solitude, and made no friends about the community. He spent but very little time on his farm, but made a show of operating it. He is said to have claimed to some that he was a lawyer and Yale graduate. He was arrested a few years ago for making bonfires on his farm, a violation of the law. In the Coventry town court he was found guilty and fined, but he appealed the case to the Tolland county superior court, where he acted as his own attorney. He made a fine display of ability and so comported himself that the court acquitted him of the charge. According to the present charges to be pressed against Waldron, it is alleged that he defrauded a number of people through a correspondence school scheme which advertised that it taught draughtsmanship by mail.

Breed Theater

There's a mighty good domestic drama at the Breed theatre Sun., Mon., and Tues., in which James Kirkwood and Lila Lee are starred. Wandering Husbands it's called. It deals with the marital troubles of George and Diana Moreland. George is neglecting his wife and small daughter for a "lily of the field." Finally Diana gets tired of it and decides to have a show-down. She invites the "lily" to spend a week end at their Long Island home and arranges to have the motor boat spring a leak when the three are well away from shore. Neither woman can swim and Moreland can save only one. Moreland chooses his wife.

Excitement is at a high pitch throughout, as it would be with a theme of this sort. Both James Kirkwood and Lila Lee do splendid work. Margaret Livingston is good as Marilyn Foster and little Muriel Dana does some very promising work as Rosemary. Others in the supporting cast are Eugene Pallette, Turner Savage, George Pearce and George French.

This is a good picture—an interesting story, well acted and beautifully photographed. Don't miss it?

As an added attraction pictures of The Death Ray will be shown. The Death Ray is the invention of Grindell-Mathews and is believed to be the most terrible weapon of war ever perfected. It is a death-dealing beam which will wither everything in its reach. Topics of the Day a Sunshine comedy make up the remainder of the bill.

Todays bill consists of Lincoln J. Carter's melodramatic hit The Cyclone Rider, Days of 49, Pathe news, Monkey comedy and views of the total eclipse. Continuous show today 1:30 to 10:30.

Capitol Theater Hartford

Fedor Chaliapin who is one of the most conspicius figures in the music world, will come to Hartford Sunday afternoon, February 8th, at the Capitol theater, for the fourth concert of Mr. Kellog's Sunday afternoon series. The concert ranks as the principal concert of Mr. Kellog's series, 39 Asylum street, phone 2-4066.

Feodor Chaliapin, the most famous of living basses and one of the outstanding figures in the musical world of today was born in 1873 in the historic city of Zasan. At seven he was apprenticed to a cobbler; he broke down and was sent to school. Later he worked in turn as a woodcarver, a book binder, a clerk in the administration office of his native city, a novice in a Russian monastery and a longshoreman on the Volga at seventeen cents a day. Here the men are in harness and draw the boats along by sheer man strength. These men have a chant which they sing as they work. From this comes the famous Volga Boat song. Chaliapin having actually helped there, he says that sometimes when he sings the Boat Song for an audience, he forgets and across his mind again comes the swish of the river, he feels the straps pulling across his chest and seems to be among the laborers, until the applause of the audience rouses him.

Palace Theater

The Clean Heart or The Cruelties of Life, which will be shown at Palace theatre on Sunday is an adaptation from the A. S. M. Hutchinson novel. The cast includes Percy Marmot, Marguerite de la Motte, Otis Harlan, Violet La Plante, George Ingleton, Martha Petelle, Louis Morrisson Hughie Mack, Anne Lockhart, Andrew Arbuckle and William Moran.

The picture is one of the most unusual ever used for a screen production, a fact readily appreciated in considering that the novel was first published in 1914, several years previous to Hutchinson writing If Winter Comes and This Freedom both of which have been made into internationally famous motion pictures. The unusual theme of The Clean Heart, or The Cruelties of Life, and the incidental difficulty in properly filming it has been responsible for the delay in making it into a screen production.

Moving Pictures of Moses at Y. M. C. A. Sunday.

Considerable interest has developed by the showing of very impressive moving pictures of Bible characters at the local Y. M. C. A. on recent Sunday afternoons, and what will probably be the most attractive thus far will be shown tomorrow at 4 o'clock, when the first part of a two Sunday showing of Moses will be seen on the screen. These will include the hiding of Moses in the flags by the river bank by his mother to save him from being slain according to the King's order. Pharoah's daughter discovers the child, and decides to adopt him, and seeks a nurse to care for him. Providentially she unawares selects Moses' own mother for a nurse who brings him up as the son of Pharoah's daughter; Moses grows to manhood and leaves the attractions of the king's court for the humble life of a shepherd with his own people and he is in due time called to lead his people out of bondage. The films will show the burning bush experience of Moses and the terrible plagues of Egypt sent by Jehovah because of Pharoah's cruel treatment of the Israelites while he held them in bondage; finally afraid of further consequences, Pharoah reluctantly permits Moses to take his people out of Egypt in the words, "Get thee from me, and see my face no more." To this showing both men and women are cordially invited and boys and girls will be admitted if they are accompanied by adults. Hugh Kinder will furnish music for the pictures and also render vocal solos. Edmund A. Prentice will give a brief talk appropriate to the Bible pictures.

Broadway Theatre.

Vanity's Price, which opens at the Broadway theatre for a four days' run beginning Sunday, is a distinguished and powerful drama from the pen of Paul Bern, featuring a cast of exceptional merit. Anna Q. Nilsson, Stuart Holmes, Wyndham Standing, Lucille Rickssen, Cissie Fitzgerald, Arthur Rankin and Dot Farley are the featured players. R. William Neill, who directed this picture for F. B. O., has turned out a product which rivals the greatest dramas of the screen, according to those who have seen the picture. The story deals with the ambition of a great actress to regain her youth, and the difficulties which beset her when her overwhelming sex attraction is restored to her. The scenes between the actress, her lover, and her son are replete with a tremendous emotionalism which transcends anything seen on the silver sheet this season, many critics aver.

The second big feature is a story of the great outdoors, chock-full of colorful drama, action and comedy, and that is Women First, featuring Eva Novak and William Fairbanks.

The short subjects consist of a comedy and new Kinograms Weekly and orchestra.

Don't miss these fourteen big reels and you'll see them at regular Sunday night prices.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

It was neither good walking nor riding Friday. Such a mess under foot has not been experienced here this winter. It was an optimist that remarked in the face of all the complaining, "But it's a fine day overhead." Unfortunated, few were going that way.

A heavy rain that began during the early hours of Thursday evening and continued into the small hours of Friday morning was the basis for all the difficulties of locomotion on Friday, for with the end of the storm came a drop in temperature and another of the freezing periods.

Getting about during Friday was a task, especially in the early morning. Sanded walks made the traveling a bit better later in the day, but there were many places about the borough where one would break through a thin coating of ice over several inches of of slush and descend to one's shoe tops before there was an opportunity to do anything about the matter.

Streets were masses of jagged ice, slush and water. During a few hours there was some thawing but not enough to make even a reasonable improvement in the going. This being a half holiday, a grand opportunity is presented for the members of "I love winter" club to go out for a ten mile hike. It would be a strong love that would survive the test.

The girls' basketball team of Killing High school and the girls' team of Woodstock academy are to play here next Monday evening. The Killingly team has been engaged at practice for some time past and is said to have developed an interesting game. Woodstock, too, has a capable team of girls, so the game should be an interesting one.

Miss Rose Bonneau died Thursday night at a hospital in Norwich where she has been a patient for some time past. Miss Bonneau lived practically all her life in Danielson and was well known here. She was a sister of Miss Elodia Bonneau of this place. She also leaves two brothers and three sisters, all former residents of Danielson.

At a recent meeting of the standing committee of the Westfield Congregational church the following committees were appointed for the ensuing year: Finance, Walter Anderson, Frank J. G. Bailey, Irving W. Davis; music, Arthur G. Bill, Mrs. George M. Burroughs, F. A. Jacobs; social planning, Mrs. F. E. Cunneen, Mrs. Irving W. Davis, Mrs. Oliver Downs, Mrs. H. E. This sort of a season recalled to the minds of old timers in Danielson Friday the diversions in winter time of years long since gone. One particular thing talked about was the practice of racing horses down Main street through the business section when the sleighing was good. Imagine that being allowed in this strictly regulated days. But it was the fashion then, and if a horse ran away and dashed along a sidewalk, as sometimes happened, it was all taken as a matter of course. This racing of horses furnished diversion not only for the drivers, but for a large gallery of people, who gathered each pleasant afternoon to watch the brushes between the best of the horses owned in town.

The men who drove them are dead and gone and only memory of them and their exploits remain.

The race course usually was from the vicinity of Davis park at the monument to the Quinebaug bridge. There were no motor cars to interfere with the sport in those days and not much traffic of any kind, though as recently as 30 years ago such winter racing was the regular thing here. The drivers took their chances with such traffice as there was and despite the racing, few accidents of any consequence ever occurred.

There has been a lull for a few weeks in ho prosecution of personal tax cases, but this not to be taken as indicating that further prosecutions of delinquents will be foregone. There will be more cases later.

The proceeds of the recent annual concert and ball of Putnam lodge of Elks, held at the state armory here, will be used next Christmas time in

New writ entered—Germain vs. John Ferguson, Jr. Answered by him.

The case of Fred T. Mitchell, sheriff vs. Frank T. Shannon for reckless operation of an automobile in Charlestown, R. I., was taken up and through his attorney, A. T. L. Ledwidge, reading of the complaint was waived and a plea of nolo entered.

Sheriff Martin testified that a week ago Sunday night the truck of defendant ran into a Chevrolet sedan of a man named Campbell in which was his wife, daughter and two children as they were going toward Providence. The accident occurred at 4.30 o'clock and about 6 o'clock he received a telephone call from Cross Mills. Going out near the old Church place on the Boston Post road he found on the curve there that the truck wheels were 14 inches over the white line and that the Chevrolet on the right hand side of the road had been forced to pull into the ditch. The truck had a wishbone broken, wheels were flat on the ground and that it was necessary for someone to to traffic duty so that automobiles could pass the place. The Chevrolet had a hub cap off, fenders off and the running board was split and fortunately no one was injured. He found the defendant somewhat under the influence of liquor and reported to have been more so at the time of the accident. Dr. Michael H. Scanlon had been called by him and pronounced the man under the influence of liquor.

The attorney for the defendant told the court that there was a possibility that the automobile had been in charge of a daughter and not the defendant himself and that he had held a license for five years, this being the first time it had been asked for. In entering the plea it was hoped that a nominal fine would meet the ends of justice.

Judge Turano said that he had got to discourage the operation of automobiles on highways by anyone under the influence of liquor. "The defendant would not be able to operate an automobile for some time in Rhode Island, under the indictment, and I sentence him to pay a fine of $100 and costs."

In state, Thomas R. Brown vs. Percy William Riley, alleged forgery of check, Attorney Gallaher admitted sufficient evidence to convict." The defendant was found probably guilty and bound over to the superior court with same bail. Court adjourned.

MOOSUP

In connection with the survey of the water supply of Moosup the following statistics were given:

Moosup is a factory village essentially. There are three textile manufacturing concerns located here. The largest is the mill of Aldrich Brothers company, who employ about 700. The Floyd Cranska Company employs about 200. The American Woolen company maintains two mills, known as the upper mill at the easterly end of Almyville, where 225 pepsons are employed, and the lower mill nearer Moosup, which employs 136. In addition to those people connected with these factories there are a considerable number engaged in other lines of occupation. There are a number of stores as well as a hotel, bank and other buildings in the center of the village.

Moosup is not without some semi-public water supplies, for the Aldrich Bros. Co., and the Floyd Cranska Co., both maintain supplies for a number of their own houses. The former mill furnishes water to 176 tenements as well as drinking water for the employes. The latter mill supplies water to 56 tenements and two outside houses as well as drinking water to the employees. The parochial school of All Hallows' parish is supplied with water from the Aldrich mill and the public school obtains water from the Cranska mill. The two mills owned by the American Woolen Company, in Almyville have no extensive supply.

GOSHEN

The most wonderful sight ever seen was the total eclipse of the sun on Saturday.

The best place in this locality to see the wonderful sight was at the summit of Goshen Hill where the view of the horizon was magnificent at 9.13 o'clock it seemed like early evening, dogs barked, roosters crowed and stars appeared.

It was noted several sleighs appeared in the recent snowfall.

OCCUM & VERSAILLES

Icy conditions was responsible for pulling off of an unusual stunt by one of the large Pierce-Arrow coal trucks of Max Gordon & Son, Inc., at Versailles, near the plant of the Hygienic Fibre Co., Inc., at eight o'clock Friday morning.

The truck had been placed for the delivery of family coal with which it was loaded at the restaurant of the company, brakes set and gear in mesh and wheels carrying full equipment of skid chains. The truck started down the incline to the highway. The driver endeavored to get the truck under control, jumping, when he saw he was unable to do so. The truck continued down across the highway over a steep embankment and came to a stop 10 feet below the street level, resting on its side. During the afternoon the truck was gotten back to the highway and was driven away under its own power.

CUTTING RED TAPE.

Cutting down needless expenditures is one of the duties under the budget system now in operation at Washington. And it may be well understood that our national government provides opportunities for putting economy into effect in many directions.

There are practices that have existed in government departments for a long time. It is difficult to get away from them. They have continued because someone else started them, and no thought has been given to the expense that is involved or the saving that might be made by using something else or doing something different.

In looking over the appropriations sought and studying the various items it is possible for the director of the budget to see many ways in which savings can be effected. That is his business and it is to be noted with satisfaction that he is thoroughly on to his job. His latest endeavor is to cut the expense that is now charged up to red tape. This concerns the actual thing and not what is so often referred to figuratively concerning federal affairs.

With full recognition of the old saying that if you save the pennies the dollars will take care of themselves Director Lord has called for the substitution of white twine for the physical red tape that has been employed in the past. This can be done without sacrificing anything in the way of effective results from the use of twine. It means cutting down expenses in the same way that he would accomplish the saving of $49,-900 a year by the use of gray instead of striped material for mailbags.

Saving money in this way here and there is the economy that is needed. Checking such needless wastes is what the budget aims at. With that policy in effect throughout all the departments and in connection with all appropriations there can be squeezed out the extravagances which have existed too long. The budget bureau is working as it should and the country is bound to look on with approval. Perhaps it will be possible some day to eliminate the other type of red tape in government affairs.

ANNUITY PAYMENTS.

In a letter which has been written by Secretary Work of the department of interior to Senator Standfield, the chairman of the civil service committee, it is urged that there be an increase made at the present session of congress to the annuitants under the existing retirement plan.

This annuity system is one to which the government employes contribute. A certain percentage is retained from their pay every month as their contribution thereto, and then following retirement they receive a certain sum each year. Inasmuch as it is a form of insurance for which they pay it is only proper that there should be a distribution of the funds in a manner that will be for the best interests of those concerned. It is to be expected that there will be a businesslike administration of the fund.

At the present time in urging an increase in the amount paid, it is pointed out that the average annual rate to annuitants is only $646.30. There are some who get $720 and some only $432, the fund taking care of 11,000 under the existing terms. Such an annuity would be regarded as most welcome by many people, and there might be less support in behalf of an increase but for the fact that it is claimed the fund is receiving much more than contemplated at the start because of the fact that the government employes are receiving higher wages and the percentage going to the fund is larger. With the fund able to take care of the present and prospective annuitants and still provide for larger annual payments the matter should resolve itself into a purely business proposition. An actuary could easily set them straight.

There can be no disposition to loot the fund or see it looted. If the fund will stand the proposed larger draught upon it it is susceptible of proof, and that being furnished the way for action would seem to be clear. There seems to be no reason for going about the matter blindly.

SETTLING DEBTS.

When Premier Herriot of France makes a definite statement to the effect that France has no intention of repudiating the debt to this country, it is no more nor less than what was expected. It may not necessarily be for that reason, but he has taken a position that corresponds exactly with those who have preceded him in the premiership. The acknowledgment of the debt and the intention of paying it have been stated often enough to have them accepted as fixed French policy. It is for that reason that there is no surprise over he Herriot statement.

The desirability under the circumstances is that there be some definite understanding between the nations concerning this adjustment. It was for the purpose of bringing this about that the debt commission was appointed. It has been able to come to terms with certain of the nations, but there are a few with which it has as yet been unable to do business.

There is full regard for the situation which exists in France. It is known what that country has suffered and what is required of it to get back onto its feet. But there is no desire to press France for settlement any earlier than conditions will warrant. Such terms as might be agreed upon between the nations would take that into consideration. The debt payments would be distributed over a long term of years, but the desire now is to end the existing situation and overcome the present uncertainty. That could be done even if France did not commence payments for a decade or so.

As has been previously said, the outbursts which have occurred on both sides of the water in the past fortnight haven't helped the situation. There have been reiterations of old statements and a repetition of things which have long since become history. The debt adjustment should and will come as the result of a sane consideration of the situation, and it is unfortunate that such has not been arranged before now.

SERVING THE STATE.

Even though the recommendation was made by the experts who examined the books of the state treasurer that the salary of the office should be made $10,000, there will be general approval given to the view which has been expressed by State Treasurer Rogers against such an increase. He does not believe that the present salary of $2,500 should be changed and furthermore he does not believe that the fees which the treasurer is entitled to collect should be taken by him. He favors turning such over to the state.

Treasurer Rogers isn't one of those officials who considers an office the stepping stone to working for a bigger salary. He is duly conscious of the honor connected with the office and is mindful of the fact that there is just as great reason now for giving recognition to that honor and to the service that can be rendered the state as there was in the past. Evidently he doesn't intend that anyone who has held that office shall outdo him when it comes to living up to the requirements of the office and in rendering service to the commonwealth.

He has taken the office in the right spirit. He is out to see how much he can do for the state without trying to see how much he can do the state for. He represents the highest type of a public servant. It may be said that he is old fashioned in his ideas, but it is to be hoped that many more generations of just such old fashioned views may be had before there is any departure therefrom. Treasurer Rogers is to be congratulated on his stand.

REACHING THE DISTRESSED.

What the wireless is to those in distress on the high seas the airplane is certain to be to those in distress on land at isolated points. This is illustrated by the manner in which it is proposed to send assistance to those fighting the outbreak of diphtheria in Nome, Alaska.

There is today an antotoxin for this dread disease which was not available in years gone by, and Nome had provided itself with a supply of it to meet any emergency. It was some time ago, however, and the effectiveness of that which has been held for use has been uncertain. It is possible that it is still good in which case outside aid may not be required. But if it isn't, or if there is an insufficient amount it is possible in these days to send a supply to that distant point by flying machine in a short space of time compared with what would be required under ordinary methods of reaching that out of the way place.

Science has been steadily at work for the benefit of mankind. It hasn't reached a stopping point but it is possible in looking back to note in many directions what we of the present time have to be thankful for that those of other generations had to struggle along without.

By the time that would be taken to send a supply of antitoxin to Nome through ordinary channels the whole community might expire from an epidemic. But an antitoxin, which is among present day discoveries, and the fast flying machine disclose the big advantages which prevail today. It is through some such practical use that there is a full appreciation of them.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The man on the corner says: So long, January! See you next year!

Herrin continues to figure in the news in a way that shows it a good place to stay away from.

Those who seek a further cut in taxes are heartened by the economy demands of the president.

This is the season of the year when everyone swears by his own thermometer, no matter how far off it may be.

All things considered, January hasn't been such a bad month. It was far better than its traducers claimed it would be.

With damage in this country last year totalling $30,000,000 from tornadoes not all our big winds are to be found in legislative halls.

January rain and sposh are accepted with less grumbling this year since the reservoir needs are known to be getting delayed attention.

There is to be an inquest over the shootings in Herrin. Just as if any such inquiry could have any effect on future conduct in that wilderness.

Because it figured it wasn't getting its money's worth in the league of nations Costa Rica has resigned. The efforts to stop waste are on the gain.

Just because the end of the world has been predicted for February 6, it doesn't mean the flocking of great numbers into Connecticut to witness it.

As reports come in from different states, there are those who were as disappointed as there were those who were pleased with the eclipse. Think of the difficulty of satisfying everybody!

THE MAN WHO TALKS

We are told that the royal lily grows at the very edge of the desert. We also know that a very thin line separates flowers from glaciers and icebergs; and we are told in poetry, "This day the noise of battle the next the victor's song." But from experience we, here in New England, know that one day is all slush and mud, the next is Greenland's icy mountains." We are not yet quite able to give a clear explanation of such changes. In default of this at present, having no real explanation to give, we can lay the blame to the eclipse, without fearing any reply in rebuttal. How very nice it is to have some scapegoat one can slam right and left without having any slam coming back at you! Whatever eclipses may be and do, they never do any rag chewing. They are a sort of celestial pantomime! It may be that they generally make things askew.

In the telephone world one of the suggestions is, "don't call from memory." Now that raises the question just how far can memory be trusted? There is no question but what the memory can be trained to do almost the miraculous. At the same time there is no sense in cluttering the memory with a lot of useless junk. Because a man owns a large and beautiful mansion is no reason why he should turn it into a furniture shop, or should make the walls look like an art gallery. It is quite possible for a man to so far overload his home as to undo it. I have heard of a minister who committed the Psalms, all of them, to memory. Did it pay for the time spent? Some of them to be sure are classics for all time, but there are others which he could never use when committed. If one is called to memorize, it is best to try to commit only the best and most useful.

We have meteors and eclipses; pageantries of the sky that have their brief and brilliant day! We also have men, stars of the first magnitude, that flash for awhile and make a brilliant appearance that enter into the clipse period, and some of them never get out of it. The sun is more fortunate than men. It is so big and bright that nothing can hide it very long. But men do not come out of an eclipse so quickly; some of them not at all. On January 31, 1830, James G. Blaine was born. To the younger generation of school children he is only a name, and to many not even that. But many of us can remember that—for awhile—he was the most talked of man in the world, and was for many years the most brilliant man in our national congress. He was speaker of the house; was the unsuccessful candidate for the presidency in 1884; was secretary of state from 1889 to 1892, and then his light went out.

About this season come the mid-year examinations in our high schools and colleges in which a sort of inventory is taken of the advancement made in the work gone over thus far. Is it on the gain or loss side? In other words, has it come up to the standard required by the school? It is well for all students who can reasonably be expected to get A on their cards to pass a creditable examination. It would easily be done by more students if they would bone right down to really hard work. I mean that grade of work they must do if they are to make good on either the diamond or the gridiron. When this is done the intellectual firmament will be fairly swimming with big A's. It is also well to remember that ultimate success in life is not to be measured by slick examination papers. If the mark set to be reached is missed by a few points it is not a matter which, under ordinary circumstances, would justify suicide.

The necessity of preserving the tenderness of a boy's heart was never expressed better than in these words taken from The Reveries of a Bachelor. "God have mercy on a boy who learns to son early! Condemn it as sentiment, if you will; talk as you will of the fearlessness and strength of the boy's heart—yet there belong to many, tenderly strung chords of affection which give forth low, and gentle music, that consoles, and ripens the ear for all the harmonies of life. These chords, a little rude and unnatural tension will break and break forever. Watch your boy then, if so be he will bear the strain; try his nature, if it be rude or delicate, and if delicate, in God's name, do not as you value your peace and his, breed a harsh youth spirit in him, that shall take pride in subjugating, and forgetting the delicacy, and richness of his finer affections!"

Opening the other day an old worn-out Bible, there fluttered out on to the floor a newspaper cut of a group of three men that had the title: Three Great British Leaders. The date of the paper was June 1900, and the three men were Drs. Joseph Parker, Alexander MacLaren and Robert Rainey. The secular paper made no mistake in calling them great leaders, for so they were along many lines of human activity. Joseph Parker was probably the greatest pulpit orator of his day in London, and was also a great favorite in the churches in this country. He was also a power along humanitarian lines. In another part of the British Isles, MacLaren was lifting up his powerful voice in a great Baptist church and wielded a power for righteousness that was felt throughout the empire. Robert Rainey, a Presbyterian, at the same time was making his contribution to the Kingdom of God in Scotland. It is not necessary to put the likeness of these men into stone or bronze, for they will live in the hearts of the people!

We have all seen the great astronomical circus in the heavens—if it is proper and dignified to so call the recent total eclipse of the sun. Did it not teach us that there is nothing in the world so big and important that it may not at times be obscured by something that is comparatively small and trivial? As far as we know it may be done to keep the sun from getting a swelled head, and feeling that it is everlastingly "it!" It is sometimes necessary to take the starch out of really fine things. Take for instance the ex-kaiser, who was beginning to feel that he was the world's chief luminary, and at one time it was looking rather serious for the rest of the world. But the hour of the eclipse came, and he has not yet emerged from the shadow. He is still in the penumbra haze. Eclipses serve their purposes in both the natural and the human world.

Sail, Don't Drift

Sail, don't drift! Choose the port that you wish to make, then set your course and hold it. There may be contrary winds and storms that will set your sails aback and drive you far to leeward. But Will is a compass and Determination is a helm that will set you right again, and bring you at last to the port of your ambition.—Selected.

WHERE AMERICAN BEAUTY COMES FROM

"The geography of cosmetics is shifting," says a bulletin from Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society. "Formerly the women of the United States drew upon the more sophisticated countries of Europe for the boxed and bottled substances that alter their appearances for better or for worse. Now they are coming more and more to use what might be called 'made in America complexions' and the country is even exporting aids to beauty to the ends of the earth.

"'Cosmetic,' continues the bulletin, 'is derived from a Greek word meaning 'to adorn' or 'to beautify;' and the term serves in its strictest sense to weed out the large group of perfumes and soaps and certain other accessories used in the negligee period of milady's day that cannot be considered directly to enhance her appearance.

Rouge From a Flower and a Bug

"The big three in the world of cosmetics are powder, rouge and cream; and of these stand-bys of the feminine toilet table the United States exports about $2,500,000 worth annually. This probably is close to the value of the imports of these specific substances, for the greater part of the $9,000,000 worth of 'perfumery and cosmetics' brought into the country each year is made up of perfumes and perfume materials. Many times the amount of the exports and imports of powders, creams and rouges are consumed in American boudoirs—and on American street-corners—for the value of the products turned out annually by the perfumers and cosmetic manufacturers of the United States is between $75,000,000 and $100,000,000.

"For the best rouge the consumers of the United States must still look beyond the country's borders. The original coloring material was dried red corollas of the thistlelike safflower plant of the Near East. The plant is cultivated in France and still is the source of the bloom on millions of rosy cheeks. Much of the coloring matter of commercial rouges is carmine, the red obtained from the crushed, dried bodies of the cochineal insect, also a foreign substance.

Powders from Stone and Starch

"Face powders are made of ground and bolted talc and chalk, rice powder and corn powder. Of the last named ingredient America possesses vast quantities, but unfortunately the grains of corn starch are about three times the size of those of rice starch and therefore do not make as high grade face powders. Much rice is grown in the United States and home-produced as well as imported rice powder is metamorphosed into the Poudre de Riz of the cosmetic counter.

"Tremendous quantities of talc and chalk are used annually in the form of talcum powder and in combination with rice and corn powders. Low grade powders are made from domestic talc mined in several eastern states, but for the highest grade powders the manufacturers import their materials. Annual imports of talc and chalk amount to about 10,000,000 pounds from Italy and 5,000,000 from France.

Cold Cream Cosmetic Patriarch

"Cold cream is the typical cream cosmetic and one of the oldest of the beauty aids used today. Savages started the cold cream habit millions of years ago with rancid butter and salt. With vanishing cream, a slight modification, cold cream today makes up an important part of the cosmetic business. Those creams which are built on vaseline, lard and lanolin, or wool-grease, are entirely a domestic product. Liquid paraffine has become the most popular base recently, however, because it does not become rancid, and for this ingredient manufacturers must depend largely on importation. Large quantities are brought in annually from the Dutch East Indies and British India.

"Face powders and rouges are largely for application to the cheeks, but no other facial feature has been permitted to escape the cosmetic specialist. There are henna and other washes for the hair, eyebrow pencils, lipsticks, lash pastes, and 'shadow' coloring for eyelids. In addition the well appointed cosmetic shop offers hand lotions, and nail polishes and enamels, and such general cosmetics as skin foods, complexion clays and sunburn removers.

Coconuts Contributs "Skin Food"

"Henna is extracted from the leaves of an Egyptian plant. The coloring matter of eyebrow pencils and lash paste may be India ink or coal tar dyes. Most lipsticks are made of greases stiffened with beeswax and colored with carmine or safflower. The majority of the hand lotions and vanishing creams contain glycerine of which the United States produces ample quantities. Nail polishes usually contain tin oxide and nail varnishes and enamels consist of resinous gums, mostly imported. The ingredient par excellence for 'skin foods' is cocoa butter, the fat produced as a by-product in chocolate and cocoa manufacture. The cocoa butter imported as such comes chiefly from the Netherlands and Germany, but large quantities of cacao beans are brought in from South America and the West Indies.

"Women are not responsible for the entire consumption of cosmetics in the United States. Shaving creams are probably man's chief cosmetic and by but large quantities of talcum powder are used by men after shaves and baths. Man's other cosmetic demands help to use up considerable amounts of shaving lotions, manicure supplies, shampoo mixtures and hairtonics.

"If 'cosmetics' be made an inclusive enough term to include such necessities as dentifrices and soaps the United States at once becomes a big factor in the world cosmetic trade with exports amounting to approximately $10,000,000 and consumption measured by several hundred millions of dollars. In the manufacture of dentifrices the United States has taken a leading part, and the annual exports now amount to about $2,500,000. Tooth pastes consist largely of powdered chalk, soap and essential oils. The bulk of the ingredients, therefore, are obtainable at home.

U. S. Helps World Keep Clean

"Soap, the basic substance in the toilets of men and women alike is made in vast quantities in the Uted States and more than $3,000,000 with is exported annually. Various oils, treated with alkalis, are used in soap manufacture, including our own cotton-seed oil. Coconut, olive and palm oils are the standard fatty substances employed, however. Annually the Philippines contribute $16,000,000 worth of coconut oil, while $50,000,000 worth of olive oil comes from Italy and Spain and $55,000,000 worth of palm oil is imported directly from Brish West Africa and via England from other tropical countries.

"The history of soap is closely intertwined with the history of modern civilization. It is believed that the Phoenicians were the first to make soap and that they taught the art to the Gauls. The Gauls in turn taught the Romans their rather crude method of treating tallow with wood ashes. The Romans improved the method somewhat. A complete soap story whose product was doubtless highly prized by the beauties of ancient Rome, has been found among the ruins of Pompeii. From Rome the use of soap has continually spread further and farther. One might say the civilization has slipped around the world on a film of soap."

Florence Nightingale Gave Up Society

Accustomed to affluence and trained to take her place as a society and intellectual leader, Florence Nightingale chose another career, and in following it underwent hardships that severely taxed her frail constitution.

Born in Florence, Italy, she was reared at her home at Lea Hurst, England, where she was educated by private governesses. At 16 she was skilled in science and the arts and was an artist, a musician and a gifted linguist.

Presented at court, she became a society favorite, but she was more interested in hospitals and charitable institutions, and in her first season withdrew from social activities.

As a girl she had been interested in nursing and prison work. Now she decided to become a nurse, and enrolled at Kaiserwerth, on the Rhine, as a volunteer. Following her period of training she entered a hospital in Paris. Just when fully prepared to take up her chosen calling she broke down in health and had to return home to recuperate. Soon afterward she founded an institution for sick and aged governesses.

Then came reports of the frightful suffering of English soldiers in the war and the crimes because of want of attention. Volunteering her services, Miss Nightingale was placed in charge of 30 nurses and at once, the pale and fragile woman became lady-in-chief at the barracks hospital at Scutari.

There was prejudice against women nurses being at the front, conditions were appalling and frequently she had to stand for two hours at a time to care for arriving detachments of wounded. She broke down the prejudice, turned chaos into order and soon had more than 10,000 sick and wounded under her care and all women of England rallying to her aid.

After two years of the horrors of war peace was declared and she returned home. Although weakened by the Crimean fever, she began an entire reorganization of the army hospital system, but her health broke down and she retired to Lea Hurst, where she lived in forced seclusion.

But in spite of bodily infirmities, she was active for 40 years in formulating plans for furthering the nursing system until she became an inspiration and advisor for institutions for the care of the sick in all parts of the world.

SUNDAY MORNING TALK

The Next World's Legal Tader

We all know what legal tader is in this world—cowrie shells, ephant tusks, silver, gold or paper based thereon, but this world is to pass away. Wood, hay, stubble, gld silver, precious stones are closed together as things to be burned up. But surely values will be braised and exchanged thereafter, what will be the medium of exchange

Perhaps we can judge what is best thereby what best things brig here When the blessing of liberty is growing millions of men in Americ was preserved by a spirit represnted in Washington and his fellow soldiers what was the price paid? Wen millions of slaves were transfored into free men what was the price paid These were pangs of sacrice, but ghastly and terrible as it was, the general judgment of mankid is, the liberty of millions was worl it all.

Emerson says that "goo manners are made up of petty sacrifices." Those gentle delights, that make home a heaven of joy could nobe bought with gold, the legal tender hat brings them is carried out of th soul.

So when we go to the reasr values of the better world th legal tender that brings them cannot be coined out of corruptible things. out of precious blood as of a lmb without blemish and without spt, even the blood of Christ.

If blood signified only the sacrifice of physical life it would not reach the height of the blessings received. It was characteristically stated by the Father of lit that all that a man had would he gve for his life, no, there are many things for which a man counts no his life dear unto himself. So th lamb of God, laying down His physical life was not the greatest sacrice. No other man was legal tende for such good. He was made a curse for us, bare our sins, on Him was laid the iniquity of us all. "He was wounded for our transgressions. He bor our grief and carried our sorrows."

We measure greatnss of the price by the benefits received. The names of Washington and Lincoln grow great and luminous with the speeding years but what comparison is there with the power of the spreading of Kingdom of God. It spreds over nation after nation, it crosss seas, and overleaps the mountains.

We conclude then that love, outgrowing in any way, being grieved forty years with hardness of heart in the wilderness, exclaiming "How shall I give thee up, oh, Ephraim, I have loved thee with an everlasting love." Or so loving the world as to give His only begotten son, is the price of this world's highest good, and will be the price of our highest good in any other world.

The divine love has no human measures. So the value of the purchase redemption has no human measures. It will take immeasured years of growth to begin to comprehend the things God hath prepared for them that love Him, and whom He loves with an ever lasting love. Eye hath not seen nor ear heard, nor has it entered into the heart of man to conceive these things at present.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Walker D. Hines, selected by the League of Nations to head a commission which will investigate navigation conditions in the Rhine and the Danube territory, was chairman of that board of directors of the Santa Fe Railroad when, in 1918, he was named as assistant to Mr. McAdoo as Director-General of railways of the United States, and when Mr. McAdoo resigned Mr. Hines succeeded him. Like many of the men who filled important posts under the Wilson Administration, Mr. Hines is a southerner, born in Kentucky and educated in that state and in Virginia. A lawyer by profession, he settled in Louisville, where he was employed as counsel by one of the largest of the southern railway systems, and continued as such until given a similar, but much more important position with the Santa Fe. He continued as director-general of railways until 1920, when he went to Europe on a mission similar to that involved in his latest appointment, namely the distribution of European river shipping under the terms of the peace treaty.

YOUR INCOME TAX

Taxable Gain and Deductible Loss

The revenue act of 1924 provides that the basis for determining taxable gain or deductible loss from the sale or other disposition of property acquired after February 24, 1923—the first income tax law became effective March 1, 1913—shall be the cost of such property with certain exceptions.

The first is that if the property should have been included in the taxpayer's last inventory, the basis shall be the last inventory value thereof. For example, if a merchant in 1922 bought a certain article, and it was not sold by him prior to December 31, 1923, but was included in his inventory as of that date, the taxable gain or deductible loss would be the difference between the selling price and the amount at which the article was carried in the inventory.

If the property was acquired by gift after December 31, 1920, the basis shall be the same as it would be in the hands of the donor or last preceding owner by whom it was not acquired by gift. For example, a man in 1921 bought stock in a corporation at $100 a share, kept it until January, 1923, when it was worth $120 and then gave it to his son who in 1924 transferred it to his wife, the stock then being worth $150 a share. If in 1924 the wife sold the stock for $200 a share, her taxable profit is not $50 but $100 a share, the gain over the cost to the last preceding owner who did not acquire the stock by gift.

In computing the gain or loss from the sale or other disposition of property acquired by gift or transfer in trust on or before December 31, 1920, or by bequest, device, or inheritance, the basis shall be the fair market price or value of such property at the time of acquisition. For example, a taxpayer received in 1919 a gift of real estate having a fair market value of $10,000 which he sold in 1924 for $15,000. The original cost to the donor in 1916 was $12,000. The taxable gain, however, is $5,000.

CHILD TRAINING

Mildred Anne Leslie

"Play, laugh, run, strive, and work with your children."

There was once a little girl who had the most wonderful mother and father in the world. Also her brother and sister, who were quite grown up, were the finest and most beautiful young persons this particular little girl could imagine. Unfortunately, they had to be away at school nine months out of every twelve, for this family happened to live in a very tiny town.

Father's business was such that he made frequent trips to the country, and still nicer, frequent trips to the city. Whenever there was anything that this little girl could possibly be interested in, Daddy was always willing to let her go along.

Mother could always find time to devise some plan for a dull day. What fun it was to play school with mother as a teacher! She could teach while she was sewing, or baking, or making beds, or writing a paper for her club. It was all the more fun to have a teacher who made pretty dresses for her pupil while she was actually teaching her to read or write. It wasn't every one who could learn to subtract while sniffing delicious cookies, and know that if one worked very quickly she might have just one cookie with her glass of milk!

And oh, the thrills before the first trip on a Pullman with Daddy, to a Convention! Mother and Daughter played the lovely game of "sleeping car" for weeks before with chairs and portieres. And when the time came to go, and all of her clothes were packed in Daddy's big suitcase, and she was kissed for the last time, and Daddy was reminded once again to ask the porter on the Pullman or the maid in the hotel to tie her hair ribbon, and the train finally pulled out for a glorious adventure—what a happy little girl she was! Then the breath-taking sight of the inside of the big hotel! The distracting sounds of the bustling city! The delicious "never-before-did-anything-taste - so good" flavor of the foods Daddy let her order all by herself! The important feeling of sitting very still beside Daddy at meetings, even when she hadn't any idea what they were all about! And, best of all, the joy of going home again and telling Mother all about everything! Jokes were much funnier shared with Mother, experiences so much more wonderful, after they had been talked over with her.

Once in a while because Mother and Daddy were so good to this all-alone little girl and so thoughtful in her behalf, she forgot to appreciate them.

Then they very wisely and very gravely would just not have time for her for awhile, and would let her exhaust her own possibilities for education and entertainment. It usually didn't take long for her to realise that getting up for breakfast with them was much more pleasant than sleeping late and cooking her own! When she insisted on having a puppy in addition to her cat and two pet chickens, Daddy brought her one; but taking care of so many pets soon got to be a very irksome pleasure. It developed that there had been a reason for his original objection to that additional care.

No matter what happened, or didn't happen, our little girl was always finding that no one else understood, no one sympathized, so one rejoiced as Mother and Daddy did. Of course, Daddy seldom said so, but she always knew. Mother was so busy doing things, that discussions were rare, but her little girl always shared in that doing. When Big Brother and Sister came home from college they always opened up a delightful new world of work and parties and interests which Little Sister could share, by proxy, if not actually. Everything seemed to combine to make this little girl happy!

But it was not always to be so. Something happened to Daddy's business which took away all the peace from Mother's and much of the happiness from Sister's and put a new, stern expression in Big Brother's which seemed to say that he had been graduated from college just in time to be Father's strong right arm.

Little Sister grew up quite suddenly. Mother and Daddy had played and laughed and worked and rejoiced and sympathized with her—she would show them that she could find ways of making dull hours bright for them, could learn to work in order to help take burdens from their shoulders. She it was who remembered to say grace at meals and have family worship when the family was torn up and transplanted to a new community and a strangely friendless environment.

Father's eyes finally brightened with confidence, and Mother's with hope, if not with assurance. Big Sister learned to work, hand-in carrying her end of the load and Big Brother was a true rock of strength. Little Sister, consciously growing up, was filled with a sense of responsibility which was a joy in itself because it afforded her an opportunity to give back in some measure the happiness of her childhood!

Stories That Recall Others

Pity the Tailor.

Walt liked one suit very much, but he didn't like the crease in the trousers. He later came to accept what he called a "wrinkle," however and, in fact, became such a slave to it that he worked overtime to keep it. One night two chums went to his room and found him trouserless, reading. To their inquiry as to the cause of this he replied:

"Oh, it costs so much to keep the crease in I just thought I wouldn't wear my trousers when I was in my room."

Diamonds in the Sugar Bowl

Gems, so-called diamonds, may be produced from lumps of sugar, it is claimed, by first separating the carbon from the other substances contained in the lumps. While the sparklers thus produced are too small for commercial purposes, they are said to withstand all tests usually used for detecting the real article.

GAVE SPLENDID PROGRAM AT NORWICH SANATORIUM

The patients and staff at the Norwich tuberculosis sanatorium were royally entertained Friday evening when a concert was given at the institution by D'Atri's Wauregan Hotel orchestra and a number of local entertainers.

Over a dozen high class numbers were rendered by the orchestra under the direction of Edgar J. Caron, and they were called back repeatedly for encores by their delighted audience. Other features of the program which met with instant approval were solos by Warren Kane, who was accompanied on the piano by William O'Brien; and a monologue by Frank Carbray. These entertainers handled themselves cleverly and their numbers were exceptionally well chosen.

The program rendered was as follows: Me and My Boy Friend, Sunshine of Mine, Follow the Swallow, Too Tired, Where is My Sweetie Hiding? Blue-eyed Sally, Tell Me, Dreamy Eyes, Dear One and Patsy.

James McSheffery was instrumental in bringing the orchestra and entertainers to the sanatorium and the evening was thoroughly enjoyed by the sanatorium family.

LATER DATE IS SET FOR HEARING OVER DEEPENING THAMES RIVER

At a Chamber of Commerce directors' meeting Friday afternoon, President Arthur E. Story in the chair, a report of progress was made regarding the activity for deepening the channel of the Thames river. In order that the chamber can be properly represented at the hearing in Washington before the board of army engineers, the hearing set for next Tuesday has been postponed by request, but it will be held at an early date.

The directors voted into membership in the chamber the following: Levine Bros., wholesale produce merchants, Harry F. Powers of the Merchants National bank, and John R. Tarrant of the Bankers Trust Co.

The Ft. Shantok, state park in Montville proposition was again considered by the directors. An option had been secured on the property so that when legislative action is taken by the general assembly a definite appropriation can be made to secure the site for a public park.

The city government officials courteously agreed to the request made by the chamber for legislative action to secure for Norwich the necessary permission to create a zoning commission which will function when Norwich adopts a zoning ordinance.

The prohibition of parking cars at the New Haven railroad station was discussed at length. The activity shown by Mayor Waters was commended. Opinions were expressed that Norwich was losing business because of the inadequate public parking areas now existing in Norwich. The directors authorized the president to appoint a committee to study the need and the spaces available for public parking of automobiles. If the city does not provide sufficient parking areas for those who come to Norwich to transact business, the city is bound to become the loser and the losses will be felt not only by merchants but by the local banking institutions, professional business and manufacturers. It was pointed out that Norwich, like every other growing community, is coming nearer and nearer to a city planning necessity.

ORIENTALS ARE COMING TO NORWICH RENDEZVOUS

A notice has been sent out to sheiks and tribesmen of Ahab Sanctorium, No. 230, United Order of Splendor and Perfection of Mystic, Conn., otherwise known as the Orientals, that the pilgrimage will be made to Norwich today (Saturday). The Orientals plan to make this one of the greatest Odd Fellow events in the history of the local order and have been looking forward with pleasure to the coming of January 31st.

The Orientals are to Odd Fellowship what the Shrine is to Masons, in other words, it is the playground of the order. Its membership is limited to Royal Purple Degree Odd Fellows of Norwich, Willimantic, Danielson, Mystic, or in fact, any place within 35 miles of Mystic.

The ceremonial is in charge of Tribesman A. Orville Lewis, who has had much experience as a degree master for Stonington lodge, No. 24, I. O. O. F., and Mystic Encampment, No. 17, I. O. O. F., of Mystic. He is well known in Norwich as a former district deputy grand patriarch.

The degree staff and caravan have been putting in a lot of time getting things in shape for the ceremonial and the camels are "rearin' " to go. They expect to give the "Junk" in and around Norwich a lively time today, one that Odd Fellows will remember for many a day.

Another treat in store for the Orientals is the Moon Feast which is to be served at 5 o'clock in the evening by the Rebekahs. The Norwich committee of arrangements comprises Frank Q. Smith, Edward Smith, John Amburn, Edward F. Kinney and members of the Rebekahs.

Despite the inclement weather on the meeting night this week, there was a large attendance at the regular meeting of Court City of Norwich, No. 63, Foresters of America, which was presided over by Past Chief Ranger Henry A. Congdon. A large amount of routine business was transacted and the reports for the year just closed showed that progress had been made both in membership and finances. Two applications were read and referred to the investigating committee.

Deputy Grand Chief Ranger William Smith of Taftville, with staff, was present and installed the following officers:

C. O. MURPHY RUNNING FOR ASSESSOR IN PALMER

Charles O. Murphy, formerly of this city where for many years he conducted a plumbing business in Greeneville and was on the school board for several years, but removed to Palmer, Mass., several years ago, is a candidate for reelection as assessor there.

In an open letter given out this week, Mr. Murphy states that the action of the present board in revaluing the property of the town the past year was based on an unanimous agreement of the assessors and not on the desire of only one or two members. The advantages of having a high valuation and low tax rate were brought out in the letter.

Mr. Murphy pointed out that the valuation on the property of an assessor is fixed by the other two members of the board, and that the assessor himself has no voice in the matter of naming his own valuation. Statements to the contrary, he asserted, were made either with malicious intent or through sheer ignorance.

STATE TREASURER DECLINES RAISE IN SALARY

Expressing the opinion that state officials are in office to see what they can put into the state, not for what they can take out of it, State Treasurer Ernest E. Rogers of New London has made known his firm opposition to the proposal to increase his salary from $2,500 to $10,000, which was recommended by the board of accountants which audited the state treasury books following the Gilpatric incident.

Among his reasons for declining the salary raise, Mr. Rogers said: "Provide a big salary for this office and it will be eagerly sought by politicians. In the scramble for the biggest elective plum in the state government, the qualifications required for the conduct of the office, which handles millions upon millions of public funds, might be overlooked. The state can get men of high caliber to administer the duties of this office without offering big salaries."

GET-TOGETHER BANQUET IS HELD BY THE XENS

Members of the Xens society, which disbanded about a year ago, held their first get-together banquet Friday evening, at the First Baptist church and the affair proved a most enjoyable one, covers being laid for 34.

Shortly after 6 o'clock the following menu was served:

Native Chicken Pie.
Mashed Potatoes. Green Peas.
Cranberry Sauce. Celery.
Rolls.
Sweet Pickles. Relish.
Apple Pie. Cheese.
Assorted Nuts. Assorted Candy.
Coffee.

The toastmaster of the evening was Walter M. Cowan, who spoke briefly and called upon various members to speak. Several groups of interesting readings were given by Mrs. Grace E. Manning, after which songs were sung and members spoke of interesting happenings during the life of the Xens society.

Mr. Cowan read a letter of appreciation from the First Baptist church for the gift of money to the church from the Xens shortly before the society disbanded. An original Xens poem was read, composed by William J. Koons, a former member, now of Shelburne Falls, Mass. This was followed by a paper written by Mrs. Grace E. Willey, entitled An Xens Memory Trip. In her reading Mrs. Willey went back in the history of the society, bringing the conclusion of her story with the disbanding in 1924. John B. Oat furnished a number of statistics, calling off names of old members and telling of work done by the society during the many years of its existence. In closing an original verse, composed by Mr. Oat was sung to the tune of The Sidewalks of New York.

Rev. Edward C. Dunbar, pastor of the church, was a guest of honor at the meeting and spoke briefly during the banquet.

A feature of the program of the evening was a debate on the subject "Who are the best managers, men or women?" The debate was hotly contested and at the close the judges said that they would render no decision, being moved to this agreement from fear of raguments late into the night between the married members after they arrived home.

The committee in charge of the get-together banquet comprised Walter M. Cowan, Mrs. Grace E. Willey and Mrs. John B. Oat. Mrs. James E. Barnett and Miss Justine Briggs assisted in serving.

Of French Origin

The term "tailor" comes from the French tailler, to cut. At one time the tailor, or cissor, made clothes of all descriptions, including underwear and the padding and lining of armor; hence the name "Taylors and Linen Armorers" which figures in the early charters granted to the Merchant Taylors' Company of the City of London.

Various Uses for Quartz

The common variety of crystallized quartz is employed in the arts as an abrasive, principally in the manufacture of sandpaper. It is also crushed and used for polishing marble and as a filler for wood. Quartz sands are of importance in the manufacture of glass, refractory brick, mortar, cements, etc.

An Idea of Space

One may judge how great is the distance to even the nearest stars, says Nature Magazine, from the fact that Vega, a near neighbor, is about 1,500,000 times more distant than the sun, which is our own particular sun, the one about which our earth revolves.

Flowers' Preferences

There seems to be something about certain persons that violets really dislike, and not only will they withhold their perfume but they will droop as well. Much the same kind of thing has been observed in the more delicate sorts of roses.

Cat's Self-Protection

Most of us would not be able to say why a cat always washes its jaws and paws immediately after a meal. It is because in the days when the cat was a wild animal and killed and ate its food raw, it would naturally finish a meal dripping with blood. If the cat had not bothered about this, the blood would have betrayed its hiding place to its enemies. Therefore it always washed itself carefully, and it has never lost the habit.

Accident Record

The accidental deaths in this country in the course of a year amount to more than those from typhoid, measles, diphtheria, dysentery and whooping cough together. Among the various kinds of accidents those attributed to the automobile have grown with far greater rapidity than any of the other and are now placed among the major causes of accidents in this country.

BERLENBACK PUNISHES MARULLO BUT IS UNABLE TO DELIVER KNOCKOUT

New York, Jan. 30.—Paul Berlenbach of New York, lightheavyweight, decisively outpointed Young Tony Marullo of New Orleans in a 12-round match at Madison Square Garden tonight.

Berlenbach punished Marullo with his heavy hitting attack, cutting him about the face but was unable to knock him from his feet. The New Orleans boy fought a game fight, coming up for the 12th round with as much pep as he displayed when the opening gong sounded. Berlenbach fought with his usual coolness, using his feet effectively to Marullo's head and body, but despite the terrific punishment which Berlenbach meted out the Southerner swapped punches right to the end.

Berlenbach won every round excepting the fourth and almost had Marullo out on three or four occasions, but he could not produce a decisive blow to terminate the encounter. Berlenbach weighed 171 and a half; Marullo 168 1-2.

In the eight round semi-final, Sully Montgomery of Fort Worth, Texas, former Center College football player knocked out Clemente Saaverda in the 2nd round of the match. The verdict will go on the records as a technical knockout, as the referee stopped the bout to save the Chilean from further punishment.

Gordon Munce, New York heavyweight, knocked out Eddy Garvey of South Bend, Ind., in the third round of an eight-round match. Reine Ve Voe, Belgian middleweight knocked out Jimmy Ogapty of New York city in the first round of a six round match.

Jacky Cohn of Montreal won on a foul from Gabriel Castles of Ecuador in the first round of a four-round curtain raiser.

ENGLISH TRACK ATHLETES TO COME TO AMERICA

New Haven, Jan. 30.—Acceptance by Oxford and Cambridge universities, England, of the joint invitation from Yale, Harvard, Princeton and Cornell to take part in two track meets in this country in July has been received, it was announced tonight by N. F. Woodstock, general manager of the Yale athletic association.

The track and field athletes from England will meet Yale and Harvard in the Harvard stadium on Saturday, July 4, and on the following Saturday will meet a joint team from Princeton and Cornell, probably in the Palmer stadium in Princeton. These will be the first international track meets since 1923 when Yale and Harvard met Oxford and Cambridge in England.

It was announced by Mr. Cook that examinations in the English universities may make it impossible for the athletes of those institutions to reach this country in time to prepare for a meet on July 4. In this event, the Yale and Harvard and Oxford and Cambridge meet will be held on July 11 and the meet in Princeton on the 18th. At the present time, however, the dates are set for Independence day and the following Saturday.

There will be 13 events on the programs and first places only will count. The universities will have an understanding, however, that in the event of a tie score in first places, second places will count, and if the score is still tied, third places will be counted.

The events will be the following 100-yards; 220-yards; 440-yards; half mile; one-mile; two-miles; 120-yard hurdles; 220-yards; shotput; broad jump; high jump, and pole vault. The javelin, discus and hammer throws, which are usually on American programs, will be dropped as the English do not have these events in their own dual meets. The point scoring will be in accordance with the English system and which was used at Wembley in 1923.

Boston, Jan. 30.—Howell Van Gerbig, defense man on the Boston athletic association team of the United States amateur hockey association, who was injured recently in a game with the Port Pitt team in Pittsburgh, will wear a steel face guard in future appearances on the ice, he announced today. An Xray examination disclosed that Van Gerbig suffered four fractures of the left cheek bone.

A similar injury befell Dr. Charles Stewart, goal tender of the Boston professional hockey team, who was hurt in practice on Monday. Stewart played against the Canadians of Montreal in a National hockey league game here Tuesday with one eye shut. Today it was found that his cheek bone was fractured. A substitue will be used in tomorrow night's game against the Hamilton Tigers at Hamilton, Ont.

CONN. AGGIE TEAM HAVE EXCEPTIONAL FINE RECORDS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Storrs, Jan. 30.—In the first half of the college year just closed, the athletic teams of the Connecticut Agricultural college have made a record unequalled in any past years at Storrs, and one that is seldom duplicated among the smaller New England colleges.

Taking the records of the varsity and freshman teams together, and tabulating the records for football and basketball to date, the Aggie teams have lost but 2 out of 24 contests played. The varsity football game went throught a schedule of eight games without a defeat, turning back Massachusetts Aggies and New Hampshire, both recognized as among the topnotchers last season; Maine, the champions of the Pine Tree state; Trinity, Norwich and Rhode Island. The freshmen tackled a hard schedule of seven games, winning them all, which gives both Aggie grid teams a record of 15 games without defeat.

In basketball, the Aggie varsity has played 5 games to date winning three and dropping two, while the freshmen have won four games in as many starts. This gives the court teams a record of 7 victories in 9 starts.

Thus with but two contests lost out of 24 played so far during the present year, the Aggie teams have obtained results far above those of other Aggie teams in the past. Sumner A. Dole and Louis A. Alexander, varsity and freshman coach respectively are the men who have handled the Aggie teams. Both men are now in their second year at Storrs, and their work has brought forth the much favorable comment from those familiar with athletic conditions at the State College. Dole is a former Mass. Aggie athlete, where he starred on the football teams of the Bay State institution, and Alexander is a Connecticut Aggie man, and rated as one of the gest all around athletes in the history of the college.

Since the formation of the New England College Conference on intercollegiate Athletics two years ago, of which Connecticut is a charter member, athletics have been run on a much higher plan at the state college and the rules of eligibility governing student participation in intercollegiate athletics are fully as strict as those in effect in the larger colleges and universities of the country.

The record of the Aggie varsity team for this year is all the more impressive, when the size of the three upper classes, from which the varsity teams are picked, is considered. There are but 132 men in the senior, junior and sophomore classes at the Connecticut Agricultural College, and it is from this small group that the Aggie Varsity teams of football and basketball have been selected.

CHAPMAN PLAYS R. I. FRESHMEN THIS EVENING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Jan. 30.—Chapman Tech's short string of wins is most likely to be shattered when the team travels full force to south Kingston to take on the fast Rhode Island State College freshmen quintet at the college gym. The Rhode Island frosh with a decisive victory over Bulkeley, looms up with another formidable array of basketball talent.

Saturday's game with the freshmen five will bring to an end a rather successful month of indoor court activity to the Red and Black five. Tech with her Hewitt who has done much to bring a victory to the local institution, is pointing all her activities which will be culminated in the engagement at the Connecticut Aggies tournament held in March. Hewitt's work has been outstanding in most all the games Tech has played in, at times scoring two thirds of the entire Red and Black total for the contest. His scoring in several of the contests has touched 25 points or more, accounting for the success of the Tech team in the early weeks of basketball play.

BULKELEY LOSES TO STAMFORD HIGH TEAM

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Stamford, Jan. 31.—A lucrative second half for Stamford High stopped Bulkeley High of New London in the first game of the westward trip which began with the locals this evening. The final score was 44 to 21, with Stamford doing most of her scoring in the second half.

Losing the fine combination which held Stamford to a 14 to 14 tie in the first half several regular players were forced to make an exit due to personal fouls. Bulkeley lost a golden opportunity to win. With Bulkeley's defense ragged Stamford showered the baskets with goal after goal and defeat was inevitable due to the overwhelming odds. The game in the second half was very roughly played. Huck Taylor was the only Bulkeley player who distinguished himself scoring 10 points.

W. M. I. GIRLS SWAMP MAIDS FROM STONINGTON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Jan. 30.—Williams Memorial Institute with its two complete teams did not need to use their girlish wiles to gain a decisive victory at the expense of Stonington High at the "Y" gym this afternoon. Wading through the visitors as in previous games which found both Plainfield and Windham forced to take the count, the W. M. I. girls meant business every minute of the game. The difference between the two teams is what the final score indicates, 20 to 3.

GRANGE TURNS DOWN OFFER OF MOVIE COMPANY

Urbana, Ills., Jan. 30.—Harold "Red" Grange cast as a movie hero is a possibility not likely to materialize, according to the All-American half back himself.

Grange, who was offered $2,000 a week for his services in the role of screen hro for the Fine Arts Picture Corporation of New York, refused immediately on the ground that it would make him ineligible for his remaining year of football at Illinois.

"Red" was offered further inducement in the form of screen work when he finished school, but said tonight that he did not think he would accept the offer as he had other plans.

WANDERERS TAKE FAST GAME FROM CHENEY FIVE

Playing fast basketball from start to finish, the Baltic Wanderers nosed out the Cheney Bros. Five at the Baltic gym Friday evening, 34 to 26. The teams played on level terms practically the whole route until the last few minutes of play, when the Wanderers forged ahead on some brilliant shooting by Charon and Simineau. Simineau was the high scorer of the evening with 5 field baskets and 3 fouls. In the preliminary game the Taftville Celtics trimmed the Bantams 31 to 28. The Bantams led until Martin was put into the Celtic lineup, and it was his playing that won the game.

Powerful Floating Crane

A floating crane, built by a British firm and shipped to Japan, is probably the largest in existence. It can lift a load of 350 tons at 100-feet radius, or 00 tons at a radius of 121 feet.

Jam and jellies were not known until the Eighteenth century, when virtues unknown today were ascribed to them, ally being recommended for a sore throat and jam advised for a cough.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Timmy Wakes Up Just in Time

By Thornton W. Burgess

Who knows just when to act or wait,
You'll find is master of his fate.
—Timmy the Flying Squirrel

Timmy the Flying Squirrel had slept all day. He had been curled up in a little round ball with his tail wrapped around him in the softest of soft beds in a hollow stump in the Green Forest. Ever since the last of the Black Shadows had disappeared in the morning Timmy had been there. Now he awoke, yawned and stretched and wondered if it was time to get up. Of course, down in that hollow it was dark. He looked at his little round doorway. There was no sunlight coming in there. In fact, there was very little light.

"I guess it must be most shadowtime again," thought Timmy. "I'll wait a few minutes and then I'll go out."

With a squeak of dreadful fright Timmy jumped with all his might any time about it. He was up there in the time you would take to wink your eye.

The instant Timmy reached his doorway he looked down. Then he caught his breath. For just a second he couldn't move. There, more than half way up, was a slender, trim, little fellow all in white with a black tip to his tail. It was Shadow the Weasel! With a squeak of dreadful fright Timmy jumped with all his might. He was none too soon. As it was, Shadow's teeth all but closed on the tip of Timmy's tail. Down sailed Timmy with his legs spread out flat and landed on the foot of a tree. Up he raced to the top and jumped again. This time, because he jumped from high up, he sailed a long distance. But even then fear held him. Up another tree he ran and jumped. Twice more he did it before he stopped. He was still shaking with fright.

"Oh!" he cried softly. "Oh, but that was a narrow escape! It makes me shiver just to think of it. If I hadn't waked up when I did Shadow would have got me. If I hadn't climbed up to see who was coming he would have got me. It was a lucky thing for me that he didn't happen along when I was sound asleep."

And then a new thought came to Timmy. He was homeless! He had been so thankful for his escape that nothing else had entered his head. But now he realized that never again would he dare sleep in that snug, warm home.

"I can't go back there," sobbed Timmy. "No, sir I can't go back there. Now that Shadow the Weasel knows where I have been living it wouldn't be safe for me to go back there. He would be sure to catch me. I've got to find a new home. Yes, sir, that's what I've got to do. And it has got to be a long way from that dear old stump I was so fond of. I wouldn't dare make a new home anywhere near that place. Oh, dear, Oh, dear me. Why can't people leave other people alone? I haven't the least idea where to look for a new home, but I've got to find one right away. Oh, dear! It is dreadful to be homeless in any season of the year, but this is the very worst season of all. Where shall I go? Where shall I go?

Ridiculed King's Memory

The hatred some Englishmen bore Charles I, beheaded in 1649, is shown by the formation about 1093, of the "Calves' Head club, in ridicule of Charles. An ax and a dish of calves' ends were used as symbols.

"Right" Is Supreme

The angels may have wider spheres of action, may have nobler forms of duty; but right with them and with us is one and the same thing.—Chapin.

Hard Punishment

Only a few years have passed since petty criminals received punishment that today would be regarded as inhuman. A London magistrate sent a man of eighty to jail recently for three months for stealing an umbrella. The man's record showed that he had six years' penal servitude when only nineteen, a ten years' sentence at twenty-five, and ten years more in 1890 for stealing articles worth only a few shillings.

Has Cure For Tuberculosis

Prof. Albert Calmette, assistant director of the Pasteur Institute, Paris, who has announced to the world a new vaccine which he has proven before the institute to be a preventative for the deadly tuberculosis. Newborn calves, monkeys and even babies have been inoculated with the vaccine and show later a strong physical ability to withstand the deadly germs of the disease.

NURMI WINS BUT HIS SHOWING NOT SO GOOD OWING TO HIS HAVING BAD COLD

New York, Jan. 30 (By the A. P.).—Paavo Nurmi of Finland had little trouble in defeating four countrymen in a special mile and one-eighth race at the Morningside A. C. games tonight, but ran the slowest race of his American invasion. He accomplished the distance in 5 minutes, 19 2-5 seconds, 20 seconds slower than the record.

Nurmi, who said he had been troubled with a cold, apparently did not try, getting away in fourth place and remaining there for several laps.

The feature race of the evening was delayed for an hour and a half. At first it was reported that Nurmi could not be persuaded to run, as he had suffered an injured leg while swimming in the Fordham university pool this afternoon, and also had a cold. He appeared on the floor at 10.20 o'clock, however, and entered his race without the semblance of warming up exercises. His time was 5 minutes, 19 2-5 seconds.

Only one record fell during the contests, Willie Plant of New York, who conquered Ugo Frigerio, the Olympic champion, Wednesday night, reducing his walking record for one and one-eighth miles, made in 1920, by two seconds. His time was 7 minutes, 37 1-5 seconds. Plant had little opposition and easily overcame a handicap of 12 seconds granted to Mike Fekete of Hungary.

Willie Ritola of the Finnish-American A. C., who has broken several records recently, made a valiant effort to cut down the time for the two-mile run, catching opponents who had been handicapped at 150 yards and then lapping the field. His time was 9 minutes, 10 4-5 seconds, missing the record by 2 2-5 seconds.

Ugo Frigerio of Italy, who was expected to appear against Plant, had not filed an entry for the meet, but it is understood that there was some sort of "gentlemen's agreement" by which he was to compete. The walking star was reported on his way to Boston for the Boston Athletic association games tomorrow night.

Indebted to Americans

A newspaper correspondent who had been staying at Stratford says that one day he asked his aged landlady: "Who is this Shakespeare, of whom one hears so much in this town? Was he a very great man?" Whereupon the lady made reply as follows: "Lor', sir, when I was a girl he wasn't thought nothing on. It's the Americans as has made him wot he is."

Nesting Habits of Crows

Crows build in trees, usually at a considerable height. The nests are made of small sticks and are lined with rootlets and the bark of trees and shrubs, especially the bark of grapevines. From three to five eggs are laid, which hatch in about three weeks, and the young birds learn to fly when they are about one month old.

Early Printing

The oldest known printed book, according to a well-known authority, is the "Diamond Sutra," which dates from 868 A. D. The printing in the "Diamond Sutra" was made by use of block prints similar to our woodcuts. The first type printing was done some time between 1051 and 1058. It was by means of type made of earthenware.

Glacial Period

The Glacial age or period is a division of geological time comprising the earliest part of the quarternary period. At this time the temperature was essentially arctic, and within the continental areas enormous glaciers and sheets of ice then formed, advanced southward, filling the rivers and lake basins, covering the mountains and burying the lowlands beneath a vast sea of ice.

Chinese Friendship

Friendship is fine in China. Friendship reigns over the Chinese as love rules over us. It can speak without a word, serve without acknowledgment, suffer without pride; and their poets, who sing it as ours do love, make it known without passion or a name. Friendship is understanding, understood, and it happens man to man, man to woman, man to child.—Lincoln Steffens in the Century Magazine.

CABBAGE AND POTATOES AFFECTS FLAVOR OF MILK

Cabbage and potatoes, though not grown generally for dairy feeds, are often fed to dairy cows to supply succulence in the ration and to dispose more economically of these products during periods of low prices. Like other succulent feeds they tend to affect the milk with undesirable flavors and odors when fed under certain conditions of quantity and time.

In order to determine the amounts of these feeds that may be fed, as well as the time of feeding without affecting the flavor of the milk, the United States department of agriculture conducted a number of tests the results of which have just been published in department bulletin 1297.

From these tests it is concluded dairy cows may be fed as much as 24 pounds of cabbage immediately after milking without imparting any objectionable flavors or odors to the milk. On the average, however the feeding of 14.3 pounds of cabbage within one hour before milking will cause objectionable flavors in the milk, and an increase in the amount of cabbage fed will intensify the flavors produced. Proper aeration, however, will reduce strong abnormal flavors to some extent, and some of the slightly abnormal flavors may be eliminated.

When dairy cows consume an average of 14.8 pounds of potatoes one hour before milking, slightly abnormal flavors and odors may be produced in the milk. They are slight, however, and would seldom be perceived by the average consumer. Increasing this amount to as high as 28.7 pounds does not increase the abnormal flavors. That amount may be fed immediately after milking with no effect whatever on the flavor of the milk.

Demand for directors and supervisors of home economics education in negro schools and colleges in the south has led to an increase of 300 per cent in the enrollment in the school of home economics of Hampton Institute.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

Two sets of lantern slides showing types of kindergarten work were shown to 21 groups aggregating more than 2,000 people during the last 10 weeks of 1924. These, as well as slides on rural schools, may be borrowed from the department of the interior, bureau of education, by interested people.

Nevada has two hundred and fifty-three 1-room schools, with an average of 8.8 pupils each. New Hampshire has 701 such schools with an average of 17.5 pupils per school, according to recent reports from these states received by the department of the interior, bureau of education.

Writing of education in Esthonia, Hans Leoke, acting consul for that country, says there are practically no illiterate adults in the Republic. Primary education is free and compulsory. Opportunity for advanced education is provided at 123 secondary and vocational schools and 2 higher institutions, the Technium and the University of Esthonia. At the university more than 3,200 students were matriculated in 1922.

"General practice in kindergartens in the United States" is under investigation by the department of kindergarten education of the national education association. The two means used to determine what constitutes general practice in kindergarten are stenographic reports of full kindergarten sessions and returns from a questionaire sent through superintendents to a large number of kindergartens throughout the country.

Rural homes and small villages of Vermont supply 422 of the 633 students registered in the normal training courses of the State University, the State Normal school, Lyndon Institute, and the one-year normal classes in selected high schools. Large villages furnished 127 of the whole number, 84 came from large towns and small cities, and only 50 from Burlington, Rutland and Barre, the principal cities of the state.

The executive board of the International Kindergarten Union held its mid year meeting in Washington December 29 to 31, 1924. Plans were formulated for the annual meeting of the union, which will be held in Los Angeles, July 8 to 13, 1925. Means of closer cooperation with other agencies working in the field of preschool education were also considered.

A committee to organize a program on the problems of early elementary education for the meeting of the World Federation of Education Associations at Edinburgh, Scotland, July 20-28, has been appointed by A. O. Thomas, president of the federation.

"Guidance conferences" for freshmen students at West Virginia University are proving to be of value and interest. Addresses adapted to the needs and problems of university men are given and the students invited to take an active part in discussions. "The choice of a life career," "Intelligence tests," and "How to study" are among the subjects presented by students for discussion.—School Life.

Remarkable Achievement

Handel's most memorable achievement—perhaps in its way the most astounding in all musical history—was, of course, the writing of "The Messiah" in little over three weeks! The thing would indeed be almost unbelievable if it were not attested beyond dispute by the dates on the autograph score now preserved in Buckingham palace, London, which show the work to have been begun on August 22, 1741, and completed on September 14.

Forgiveness

"When on the fragrant sandal tree
The woodman's ax descends,
And she who bloomed so beauteously
Beneath the keen stroke bends,
E'en on the edge that brought her death
Dying she breathes her sweetest breath,
As if to token in her fall
"Peace to her foes and love to all!"
How hardly man this lesson learns.
To smile, and bless the hand that spurns;
To see the blow and feel the pain,
But render only love again!
This spirit ne'er was given on earth;
One had it—He of heavenly birth;
Reviled, rejected, and betrayed
No cure he breather no plaint he made,
But when in death's deep pang He sighed,
Prayed for His murderers and died."

The Sickle

The ice is thick upon the lake,
The snows are deep and white,
My garden, in a frozen drift,
Is buried out of sight.
The silent fairies of the frost
Their pearly laces weave,
Like curtains o'er the cottage panes,
And this is New Year's eve.

When evening's glow of rose and gold
Still lingers o'er the pines,
A slender silver crescent see!
The new moon faintly shines—
The year has reaped his harvest now
And with the setting sun
Has hung his sickle in the sky,
For all his work is done.

Stately Verse

If Mary goes far out to sea,
By wayward breezes fanned,
I'd like to know—can you tell me?—
Just where would Maryland.

If Tenny went high up in air
And look o'er land and lea,
Looked here and there and everywhere.
Pray, what would Tennessee?

I looked out of the window, and Saw Orrv on the lawn;
He's not there no, and who can tell
Just where hah Oregon?

Two girls were quarreling one day
With garden tools, and so
I said, "My dears, let Mary rake,
And just let Idaho."

A friend of mine lived in a flat
With half a dozen boys;
When he fell ill, I asked him why,
He said: "I'm Illinois."

An English lady had a steed,
She called him Ireland Bay,
She rode for exercise, and thus
Rhode Island every day.

USING AN OLD RAINCOAT

Dear Corner Sisters: I am going to tell you how I utilized an old discarded raincoat a while ago. A young friend of mine brought one here and asked me what kind it could be put to as she had it given to her. First, I ripped it apart and washed it thoroughly and then I fashioned a piece of it into a little sheet for her to use under her baby in the bed. There was still enough left to make baby a pair of panties when she took him out to ride so as to keep everything dry in the machine. With the several small pieces left I lined four bibs for her. Since then I had one given to me by another party to make to something for her. That was a larger one than the first, so after ripping and washing as before I made her a large apron for household use to be used at the sink when washing the dishes, when scrubbing and while washing at a tub to keep her dress dry. As she has a daughter in high school I also made her a chemistry apron to be used when needed at that work. I bound it in red and made quite a cute little apron. From a small piece left I made a case for the daughter to hold her spoons, brushes and toilet articles when visiting. She was much pleased with everything. There are still other way. One could use an old coat for a dusting cap, sleeve protectors, a cover to tie over the laundry basket, for the housekeeper who sends her soiled linen to the "wet wash." And it will save incomfortable dripping from the basket for those who do their own laundry at home, and will save the extra work of mopping up the floor afterwards.

I hope some of the sisters will try these and see how they like using an old raincoat.

Yours for the good of the Corner.

CRIMSON RAMBLER.

MIRACLES

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: For the benefit of Sisters Bar Bar and Lois I am sending in a recipe for miracles. We think they are very nice and hope you try them and report.

Miracles: 1 egg 1 1-2 tablespoons sugar, 1 tablespoon cream or milk, 1 pinch soda, 1-2 teaspoon vanilla, flour enough to mix hard. Roll very thin, cut three inches square and make three two-inch cuts through center. Fry in hot fat like doughnuts. I double the recipe and you will be surprise at the number it will make.

Necia: Glad to hear Mr. Necia is improving.

Many thanks to those who sent me birthday cards on Jan. 21.

Keziah Doolittle: I had strawberry shortcake on the 21st. Wish you had been here.

Jennie: How nice of you to remember me. Many thanks. No, I am not a granger or a Rebekah.

Best wishes to all.

A BIRTHDAY PARTY

Social Corner Editor, Sisters and friends: Greeting. Wishing you all a happy and prosperous year with long life to the Corner. As I have been spared to pass the fourscore and one mark and have seen the many changes and improvements that have taken place in that time which are truly wonderful, our sister Mary France took the opportunity Jan. 19 to honor me with a party at her home, inviting some friends and members of Club No. 1. I take this way to return thanks to her for her hospitality and kindness also to Brother France for the lovely birthday cake he made and decorated with candles. All united in saying it was very nice indeed. Also thanks to those who presented me with the lovely carnations which are still fresh this morning, Jan. 27, besides other presents that I received. The day proved very pleasant overhead but icy underfoot, so my son took me to the home of Mary France early as he had business to attend to later. The guests began to arrive about 10 A. M. and in all there were 19 present. Everything passed off very pleasantly with the exception that one guest was taken sick soon after her arrival, but as there were capable women present everything was done that could be for her until she was very much relieved. I also received a good shower of birthday cards which I appreciate very much and for which I thank the senders very much. I shall be looking them over very frequently but there are too many names to put in this letter. When the time for leaving came our Sister Busy Bee brought me home in her auto for which I return her my thanks. This ended a day long to be remembered. Of course I hope to see many more even if I have no party to celebrate them. As I think this will fill all the space I am entitled to I will not add to it.

Yours from

WRENKLE.

TIME TO PLAN FOR FLOWERS

Dear Editor and Cornerites: I wish to thank you who sent greetings and a Social Corner Member for the sweet little calendar.

Theoda: No, not yet.

True Blue, Bob White, Crimson Rambler, Wild Flower and others, many thanks.

Now that we are on the sunny side of winter let's plan and select a nice lot of both hardy and annual seeds to beautify the yard. It is easy to raise them from seed and inexpensive. If you don't know just how to start in, write me and I will help you, as I would love to see everyone's yard full of bright flowers and there are so many kinds that are easily grown.

I have mine planned and quite a number already purchased. Have been looking over my needle work books and found some mending to do. One of my best ones had pulled apart and I fixed it up like new with adhesive tape 1 inch wide I also covered the inside of my shoes heels as they were bunchy and uncomfortable. It will cover nails, but I would put two thicknesses over the tape. You can put a piece over your heel (if there is danger of blisters) before taking a walk in new shoes. You can mend paper money with it. You can secure a parcel with it to go by mail much better than string. Apply it quickly to cuts and they will be perfectly healed in a few days.

You can use it on the under side of darning on coat or trousers not to be washed.

You can cover a handle that hurts you like a crochet hook. I wrap it twice around the lettering in a large hook and it is much easier to hold. You can stop a temporary leak in your overshoes by applying it to the inside of your shoe. Also mend a raincoat. Heat it a little before applying. There are other uses for it too numerous to mention.

As the year is new you see I am beginning it better, but let us see how it ends. Let's hear some of you silent ones speak up.

Best wishes to all.

ORANGE MARMALADE

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Although I have not written for a long time my interest in the Corner is as keen as ever. I have greatly enjoyed the letters and the Buckingham Memorial dinners.

Pocahontas: Was very sorry to hear of your illness but glad to know that you are now better and out again.

Here is a good recipe for

Orange Marmalade: 4 oranges and 4 apples cut in small pieces, 4 cups of sugar, 1 cup water. Boil all together until thick.

Wishing the best of success to the Corner.

LENA.

MIRACLES

Dear Social Corner Members: Way back in 1845, about 80 years ago, there was printed in a cook book the following recipe for miracles:

Miracles: Two coffee cups sugar, 1 cup milk, 4 eggs, 6 tablespoons butter, two teaspoons cream tartar, flour to make stiff enough to roll. Fry in boiling lard. Spice to suit taste, nutmeg and ginger, preferable. Cut in squares or heartshape.

SKRAPS.

GREETINGS FROM LORNA

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Glad to see that our page was full last week. I like to get the Bulletin every week, for I like to read the letters.

Crimson Rambler: How is your cold? Mine is allright. What did P. W. say?

Balsam Fir: Did you receive my letter? How are you feeling? Well I will close and leave space for the other sisters to write. Best wishes from.

SOME QUESTIONS

Dear Sisters: Why do many wives put on an injured martyr air instead of telling their husbands just what they think?

Why do many husbands work hard for their wives and families, but never think how the wife would appreciate an invitation to a theater, a little dinner at a restaurant, a box of candy or some flowers brought home unasked?

Why do so many children resent any thing their parents say, and look on them as bores and long to grow up so as to escape from them?

Why do so many rich folks look on their poor relatives as being on the lookout for favors, and so prevent the poor relatives from giving them a little present or being mutual with them?

Why do so many poor relatives look on their rich relatives as arrogant and purseproud, scarcely admitting any good qualities, and adding or prefacing any account of the rich relative's generosity or kindness with, "If I were rich as he is it would be my delight to do so and so," instead of being appreciative of the kindness?

Why do so many employers say their clerks are a stupid lot and unworthy of consideration?

Why do many clerks look with envy on their employers, and rage over every correction or sharp word?

Why do men laugh at women's lack of business ability, and yet sneer and look down on the woman who shows she has some?

And one question I would be more pleased to have answered. I have always wondered why do many persons behave more courteously and kindly to outsiders than they do to ones they really loves best of all?

KITTY LOU.

GREETINGS FROM OLIVE

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: First I want to say present it is not too late. As the sisters say, I, too, enjoy the letters and was glad to see a full page last week. I also miss the meetings very much as Club No. 1 knows, I am, or was, always present. But am looking forward to March 11 if all is well. Was sorry indeed to hear of H. M. L.'s death, I knew her quite well. I extend my sympathy to the family.

Amy: Write again. The letter was very welcome. Go slow in Feb. and let others work for you.

Ma of Greene Gables: Glad to hear you are a Rebekah (as I am one also) Some class I should say. If I remember the number correctly there were 247 who took the 6th degree in the state grange here, Priscilla, Jennie, and Olive were among them. I have sewed rags enough for a couple of rugs and will get them woven by spring. Have pieced one and tied three quilts for single beds this year so far.

Wittywork: Letter was real interesting. Write again.

Mary France: Wish I could have been with you on the day you gave the party to Neighbor.

Hope Cotweb: Wish I could have seen you the day you were here. Do love to see faces from home.

Priscilla and Jennie: Let's meet at the depot March 11 and go to Club No. 1? What say you?

Lavender: Glad sick one is better. Would love to run in store and chat a little while with you. Thanks for remembrance.

Necia: Hope the sick one is O. K. by this time.

Well as the eclipse is over it will make room for something else to fill the paper now. There was some crowd, and cars galore on the campus at Trinity college, a most wonderful sight, this Saturday morning, and some cold—5 below here—here.

Brave: How art thou? Have not heard a word in ages. How are the sisters down near and on the camp ground? Well, I hope.

I hope there will be a goodly number out March 11. Wish to thank all that sent me cards and gifts at Christmas.

Best wishes to all.

TREATMENT FOR TALL HOUSE PLANTS

Dear Social Corner Folks: I have noticed that anything pertaining to the care of plants seems to be of interest so am passing along a help to those who have huge house plants as castor-oil or india-rubber plants. As they grow tall, they lose their lower leaves making the stem bare and unsightly with the tuft of leaves on top.

To remedy this make a clean upward cut half way through the stem just below the bottom pair of leaves. Open up this cut portion gently and insert a piece of match or tiny stone so as to keep the wound open. Press a mixture of damp earth and moss around the cut portion and into the wound, taking care that the aperture is not allowed to close up. Bind over it a strip of raffia. Keep the moss moist and in eight or ten weeks roots will be emitted from the cut portion. The top part of the plant may be severed from the bottom just below the ball of moss and planted in a fresh pot.

Mary Gusta: We were disappointed not to have the Social Corner bride of Club No. 4 with us Dec. 31st. She would have received a royal welcome had she come.

Roseland: You certainly gave us a surprise. Now that you have found out "who is who" let us hear from you occasionally.

Water Lily: I do not know who you are but welcome you to the Corner. Your birthday is the same as mine and I do not know of another on that date, do you?

A Social Corner Member: I thank you for the pretty calendar you sent me. The scene reminds me of the poem, Driving Home the Cows, only the driver is not in sight.

With best wishes.

PRIMROSE.

EMERGENCY TREATMENT

Social Corner Editor and Cornerites: We may be miles from a doctor with no telephone, and the horse, father and husband away for the day on business, with very cold weather, stormy, rough and ice covered road and some one of the family may be taken with that dread illness, indigestion. Something must be done quickly. In that case first clean out the stomach by putting finger down the throat till it causes a nauseous feeling. If that doesn't do the trick give a mouthful of salt and water and try again. Then sit or lie down and draw the knees up to the stomach. Give a laxative and cover up warm or soak the feet in hot water. Just plain cooking soda in a cup partly filled with warm water often relieves.

I always keep a bottle of white vaseline, or eucalyptol, for a stuffed up head, sterilized gauze, red cross cotton, surgeon's plaster, pair of good scissors, bright strong needles, silk and linen thread and fine violin strings to sew up bad cuts after cleaning them first. All of these things help as first aid with nerve to use them.

I learned this at a school of correspondence, studying at home for two years. This may help someone sometime.

J. E. T. (March 21.)

FLAXSEED POULTICE.

Dear Cornerites: To make a poultice of flaxseed, or linseed, make a bag out of old muslin large enough to cover the parts affected. Sew the bag up on three sides, leaving the remaining side to be sewed after the flaxseed is in the bag. Place a kettle on the stove, after putting in it enough water to make the poultice sufficiently large enough to fill the bag. When the water comes to a boil, and a fresh boil is the best—that is, when the water first begins to boil—stir the flaxseed or linseed in gradually; just as you would treat oatmeal or any cereal that you have to boil. Let it boil until about as thick as cake mixture. Then take from the fire and beat quickly, fill bag and apply.

ETHELYN.

FAMILY IS LARGE BUT MANY HAVE GONE

Dear Social Corner Members: Its been some time since I have added my bit to the Corner page. Owing to sickness in my family circle I neglected to answer the roll call, but I am still here to tell the story. First I wish to thank the sister who sent me the calendar. It did not seem like Christmas to me this year, not having any of my children home and how little the young of today realize how their parents look forward to their coming for the holidays! I saw in one of the papers a sister spoke of what a large family the Social Corner was getting to be, but just think of how many of the dear ones have passed on! When I saw dear Mrs. Hoxie's death it seemed terrible, for she had so much to live for in more ways than one.

I could but think:

From the ranks our friends are dropping,
One by one they pass away.
Friend brave, who fought beside us,
Many a long and weary day,
But her warfare is accomplished
And her life work now is done
At the river peaceful river
We are gathering, one by one.

She has reached the land of promise
With the faithful gone before
Safe within the Golden City
She shall dwell forever more.
Through the Savior she has conquered,
And her life work now, is done,
At the river tranquil river,
We are gathering one by one.

Will now close and promise to be more prompt in the future.

START WITH A CLEAN SLATE

Dear Social Corner Friends: As this is the first letter I have written you since 1925 came in, I hope it is not too late to send greetings for the New Year, which is well started on its way. Still, I would like to send a loving message to each and every one of our wide circle of Social Corner sisters. I want to encourage all to begin the New Year with a clean slate.

Sometimes it is a relief to know the old year has passed away, that its trials and sorrows belong to 1924, and we now belong to 1925.

"Hope that spring immortal" rises in us and we try to go forward to nobler doings and brighter days.

Longfellow says, "look not mournfully into the past. It comes not back again. Wisely improve the present."

May we all be enabled to meet normally each one of the 365 steps through the new year.

"One by one thy griefs shall meet thee.
Do not fear an armed band;
One will fade as others greet thee,
Shadows passing through the land."

I am glad to see such a well filled page and some new names. It must certainly be very pleasant for those who can attend the meetings and get acquainted. I will feel almost like a stranger as I have never met but two of the sisters, and they are relatives. I am sending in a favorite poem which I hope the sisters and editor will enjoy. With love and good wishes for a happy New Year from

PALMLEAF.

CARO SEEKS HELP

Dear Social Corner Brothers and Sisters: Have a few minutes in which to write a few lines.

First, I will give Kitty Lou a hint as to my identity. My home is in East Killingly. I have an uncle and aunt at number 23 Ann street. Now I am sure you will remember I. E. L.

Hon Tinbusqui—No I did not pull out any more chunks, took the whole ripstitch to polish the stove.

Tildy: When I met you Sunday evening my mind ran back to our May basket party, and what a fine time I did have, even if I did lose my arm off.

Hope you all remember the birds with crumbs and grain. As I am writing now there are bluejays, puncos, chippies and sparrows close to my window. They scold and bluster and scrap just like folks.

Now I am going to ask for help. Would like to know if any one can tell me what will take tea stains out of a white table cloth.

Mary Gusta: Is your ink bottle as dry as my well or do you put all your spare time in doing puzzles? How we shall miss Just Pete, when we want company, and what will poor Graby do?

CARO.

GREETINGS FROM DIAMOND.

Dear Social Corner Friends: I hope all the Corner writers had a happy New Year.

I want to extend my thanks to Clubs Nos. 1 and 3 for the beautiful flowers sent to the funeral of my mother (H. M. L.). They were greatly appreciated. I also wish to thank all the sisters who sent me the lovely cards and letters. It is comforting to know that our friends think of us.

My little son, five years old, was taken sick two days after my mother's death and has been very ill with an attack of the grip and swollen glands. For ten days he was in bed with a high fever but at present is able to be up although very weak.

Neighbor Everready's Sister: Was so glad to receive your letter. Will answer as soon as I can get settled down again. At present I am sort of bewildered and hardly know what I am doing.

Dorinda: Yes, I shall try to get up to see you some time when the traveling is such that I can drive the auto again. Hope you are feeling lots better.

Papa's Boy: How is hubby's prize rooster? Hope that things will be so that you and the girls can get over here soon.

With best wishes to all.

DIAMOND.

SOLVING PUZZLES

Dear Social Corner Friends: I fail to see how I am to figure out how Crimson Rambler can get the radio by the sale of blackberries the coming summer. First, there may not be any berries and you may not have a high fever for picking them, no one knows what prices they will bring and how many you will sell on the way home. You also forgot to say what price you intend to pay for a radio set. I think I will have to get a little help on the puzzle. Perhaps the boy can assist me who went into the editor's office and asked if he wanted a correspondent for his paper. The editor said, yes, have you ever written news items for any paper. The boy said, "Sure thing! I writ for the Pumpkinville Screamer six weeks. If you want to ask any questions blaze away. I am here with the goods." The editor said, "I will ask you a few questions. If you answer them you can have the job." "Let um come. I am right here for business!" "Who is our president?" Correct.

Who is our governor? That's right. You are some boy, one more question. If a turtle was crossing a desert and you touched him up every forty rods with a red hot poker, how long would it take him to get across.

The boy said, "Gee, I can't tell you just now, but I can go home and figure it out."

As we live at one of the highest points of the state no one had a better view of the total eclipse except by airplane than was seen here. It was a wonderful sight from beginning to end. Three planets at the right of the sun were very plain while the eclipse was total. The fast moving shadows on the earth at the same time were also one of the sights never to be forgotten. It was one chance in a lifetime and it was well worth the trouble and the expense to all who saw the one grand sight.

Papa's Boy: Saw your letter in the Corner and will be on the lookout for later news. No I do not eat cabbage I feed it to the chickens.

Billie: Was glad you returned home to the Social Corner family. I remember the card you sent me years ago. I began to think you were lost at sea. It is fresh in my mind of Brother Bromley and his poem in the Corner page "where the White Birches Grow." Yes there are many changes as time goes on while there are changes of pen names in the Corner, and four changes of seasons in a year, I seem to remain about the same. "spooney" as ver. Why not smile and the world smiles with you? Fighting is bad for the eyes. Our kind editor will lose his patience if I write another line.

RURAL DELIVERY.

ALL MUST COOPERATE IN PROVIDING DINNERS

Dear Editor and Social Corner Friends: What a busy day Jan. 24 was for everybody. For several days before the event I watched the sun to see where around my house I could get a good view. Well I smoked my glass on the 23rd, perched myself on the kitchen table and oh, my, what a fine view and a nice warm place to see the eclipse. And, to think of people out in the cold and I had a big porch and five windows to view it from. It surely was a wonderful sight.

Don Pedro: In regards to pin you wrote about I have nothing to say about it. A pin of that kind is all right for the gatherings, but as for myself I wouldn't wear one on the street. But that's only me. Perhaps I don't need tagging. I guess they knew Calla Lily both in and out of the Corner without a pin or badge. I never put mine on and its always in my handbag. To come down to business at the fair the man that sells jewelry there has pins with a heavy plate bar style that he engraves people's names on and sells. Why wouldn't any jeweler get these in your own home towns and cities. True Blue has one, a gift to her and very pretty. Its hard for me to get the ribbon badges made so I've given that up now.

True Blue: I believe you are hostess. I do hope each and every person who comes will each bring an article of food. Lately the different hostesses or helpers tell me that a member comes and some have two or three extra people with them and only one brings food. Now everybody must help furnish for the dinner, grownups and children. Where there are two and three children their little stomachs get as empty as the grown-ups do and in order to have enough for members and workers all must donate. If 60 came 60 must furnish food, not 59. You know Social Corner sisters, these complaints come to me. I don't like to write or speak about them, but when I'm asked to why I try to do it the best way I can. I feel like laying down the heavy load of these meetings and have tried to three times and kept on because of being asked to. So I must have the cooperation of each and every member and every visitor to make it a success as it will not be unless you all help. We do have lovely gatherings and good friendship prevails there. How we would miss it if it was dropped now. It is a day each month you and I look forward to.

My sympathy to all who have lost dear ones and a speedy recovery to all the sick ones is the wish of

CALLA LILY.

GOOD USES FOR KEROSENE

Dear Editor and Sisters: I have read in our Corner how useful salt is Now I am sending in all the good uses for kerosene.

Kerosene is one of the most valuable of kitchen familiars, not only as a dirt solvent but as an insect exterminator. Beds wiped over occasionally with kerosene cannot harbor bugs.

Cockroaches put their backs to a kitchen wall, or a sink floor where they smell kerosene.

If one insists on using kerosene as a fire kindler better pour a pint or so in an old tin pail and stand as many corncobs or pieces of kindling in it as the pail will hold over night.

The cobs will be thoroughly saturated by morning and are not so dangerous to use.

After removing all dust, wipe screen doors with kerosene. They will look like new and as long as the odor remains mosquitoes and moth millers will give them a wide berth.

Clean the rollers of the clothes ringer with kerosene.

Kerosene will remove the gummy substance which forms on sewing machine.

If the fly paper has been blown to the floor or on some article such as furniture, after removing the paper, apply a generous amount of kerosene.

A flannel wet with kerosene will remove fly specks from brass. Polish with chamois.

To keep your stove nice without blacking it rub every day with a flannel cloth saturated in kerosene after each meal.

Kerosene will remove rust from bolts and bars.

Kerosene will remove fresh paint.

If your wash boiler has become black with smoke and soot try cleaning it with kerosene. It will clean as by magic.

To clean granite pots and pans also galvanized pail use kerosene. After ward wash in boiling water and soap.

Kerosene is an excellent window cleanser. Moisten a woolen cloth with it and rub the glass clean.

Polish with a piece of chamois.

Kerosene cleans brass but it should be afterwards wiped with dry whiting.

A little kerosene in hot starch will prevent it sticking.

Kerosene on a cloth will prevent flat irons from scorching.

Kerosene will remove tar.

Soak your paint brushes in kerosene when not in use.

If painting and you are out of oil try adding a little kerosene.

BLUE BABY.

APPRECIATE GIFT

Dear Social Corner: I want to thank the kind Social Corner member for the lovely calendar.

GREAT GREAT GRAND AUNT.

JOINS THE CORNER

Dear Editor of Social Corner: I wish to join and feel entitled to the good times the members of the Social Corner enjoy. I wish to take as my name

GEORGETTE.

"WASTE NOT, WANT NOT."

Dear Corner Friends: When at Martha's Vineyard years ago some sailors in a boat a little distance from the lighthouse sang a song and out on the water it was much enjoyed by mother and me, but we had no opportunity of so expressing our pleasure to them as they soon sailed away—but the song and words have ever remained in our memory and hearing quite a few people who came in from nearby places say, "My well is dry," which reminds me of the verses which are as follows:

When a child, I lived at Lincoln with my parents at the farm.
The lessons that my mother taught to me were quite a charm;
She would often take me on her knee
when tired of childish play,
And as she press'd me to her breast,
I've heard my mother say

Chorus.

Waste not, want not,
Is a maxim I would teach.
Let your watchword be despatch,
And practice what you preach;
Do not let your chances like sunbeams pass you by,
For you'll never miss the water
Till the well runs dry.

As years roll'd on, I grew to be
A mischief making boy,
Destruction seemed my only sport,
It was my only joy;
And well do I remember,
When oft-times well chastised,
How father sat beside me there,
And thus has me advised.

When I arrived at manhood, I embarked in public life,
And found it was a rugged road,
Bestrewn with care and strife;
I speculated foolishly,
My losses were severe.
But still a tiny little voice
Kept whispering in my ear:

Then I studied strict economy, and found to my surprise,
My funds instead of sinking,
Very quickly then did rise;
I grasped each chance, and always struck,
The iron while 'twas hot,
I seized my opportunities,
And never once forgot:

I'm married now and happy,
I've a careful little wife,
We live in peace and harmony,
Devoid of care and strife;
Kind fortune smiles upon me,
We have little children three,
The lesson that I teach them,
As they prattle round my knee:

I would like to know the name of a music book (instrumental pieces), and where I can obtain one containing pieces as follows: Old Oaken Bucket, Mocking Bird, Shepard's Greeting, Serenade, Banjo and many others. Had one in our family but it has disappeared.

Balsam Fir: Letter received. My mother left me a quilt—no cotton between outside and lining, made of white bleached cloth—each block outlined with red cotton of different designs, set together with a sash two inches wide, green with white diamonds set into this sash. Is old fashioned oil boiled, with little figure on green of fast colors. It is quite pretty and takes less blocks.

I've been out this afternoon to a meeting of "The King's Daughters," worked on aprons as they are to have a food and apron sale before many weeks go by. There's a W. R. C. meeting tonight, but decided I better remain inside and retire early, as with evening meetings and delayed openings it so late in getting home.

"Early to bed, and early to rise makes a man healthy, wealthy and wise." Equal rights now.

CRETIA.

GREETINGS FROM ANNA MELL

Dear Editor and Cornerites: I too, wish to thank Social Corner Memory favorite color.

Lavender: You were very good at guessing.

Nemo: How well I remember we children used to follow the hand organ man and monkey. We don't see those very often nowadays. I also had the straw surnoonnet called "shakers." Mine was trimmed with blue chambray. I think you and I must have been girls together, only we were far apart. I don't think we have ever met one another but we may someday in the near future as I like to meet new faces and get acquainted as we all have such nice times. It is rightfully named "Social Corner." I have a great many nice friends in the different clubs, and I think a great deal of them too. Long may the Corner survive.

Necia: Was very glad to learn Mr. Necia was improving. Hope for his speedy recovery.

Nellie Bly: Hear you are on the sick list. Hope to hear of your recovery soon. Also all other sisters

How nice to see the Corner page full and running over! Hope the good work may continue as I read it every Saturday and enjoy them so much it was so nice of a friend to have the Bulletin sent to me for a year. I appreciate it very much, and so do the other ladies here in the home who can't afford to take it, as I lend it to them to read. Then I read it to a poor blind lady, so it is pretty well perused.

As I am getting tired will close soon and not use all the paper so we write so rambling a letter as I have. With all good wishes for health and happiness to you all. I will say good bye till some other time.

ANNA MELL. (April 14.)

SAUERKRAUT AS A HEALTH FOOD

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Everywhere throughout the country there is a new interest in sauerkraut for science has been finding some remarkable things about an honorable food, sauerkraut juice. Some very interesting tests have been made in cases of diabetes.

Sauerkraut Luncheon Canape—One-half cup cooked salad dressing, 2 cups sauerkraut, 2 tablespoons gelatin, 1-2 cup cold water, 2 tablespoons finely chopped chives or onion, 2 tablespoons finely chopped green pepper, stale bread, peeled tomatoes.

Sauerkraut Olive Relish—Two cups sauerkraut, 1 package lemon jello, 1 cup boiling water, 4 tablespoons lemon juice, 1 cup finely chopped celery, 12 olives stuffed with pimentos sliced in rings, 1-8 teaspoon salt, 6 green peppers, lettuce, mayonnaise dressing. Dissolve a package of lemon jell-o in one cup boiling water when cool add sauerkraut, lemon juice celery olive and salt. As it begins to thicken pour into green peppers from which seeds have been removed. When chilled slice in thin rings and serve on thin pieces of toast with a dab of thick mayonnaise dressing on top of each ring.

Sauerkraut Soup—Two cups sauerkraut, 1-3 cup carrot, 1-3 cup turnip, 1 1-2 cups potatoes, 1-2 onion, 1 quart water, 5 tablespoons paprika. Wash and prepare vegetables by cutting them in small pieces, mix vegetables, except potatoes. Cook 30 minutes in the butter or other fat, add water and potatoes, boil one hour. Add sauerkraut. Beat with spoon or fork to break vegetables, add teaspoon salt and paprika. Serve hot on toasted cubes or bread.

Sauerkraut Cucumber Salad—Can tomato soup, 2 tablespoons gelatin, 1-2 cup cold water, 1 cucumber, sliced in thin rings, 2 cups sauerkraut, 2 tablespoons chopped onion, 1-8 teaspoon paprika, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 2 hard cooked eggs, lettuce leaves. Soften gelatin in the half cup cold water ten minutes, bring tomato soup to the boiling point and dissolve in it the softened gelatin when cool add sauerkraut, cucumber, onion, salt and paprika. Slice hard cooked eggs and put a slice in the bottom of small cups or molds and fill with the tomato-sauerkraut mixture and chill. When ready to serve turn out lettuce leaves. Serve mayonnaise dressing with this salad. This is a very good salad to serve with fish.

Note all measurements are level. The juice or liquid of the sauerkraut is used in all recipes the juice and liquid are packed solid in measuring cups when measured. No vinegar is used in connection with sauerkraut—always lemon juice—to increase and not destroy the food value. Sauerkraut is considered raw just as it comes from either the can or the keg. Sauerkraut must never be bitter, sweet or rancid.

AN EXEMPLARY YOUNG WOMAN

Dear Corner Sisters: I thank the Social Corner Members for the beautiful little calendar. It is a lovely gift.

A short time ago, I went to New London on an early car. I had been seated only a short time when I heard a voice asking if I would like company. I looked up and saw the smiling face of a young girl that I knew. She was on her way to school. She thought I might be lonely so she left her companions to sit with me. She told me of her school, her studies and the things she hoped to do and of some of the things she had accomplished and it was all of so much interest that I passed a most enjoyable hour. Now I think that girls actions that day tells of the woman she will be, so full of kindly thoughts and such a quiet little lady. I watched her get off of the car at Bullard's corner and the contrast to some of the girls. No loud talking or jumping, but going about her business seriously and so full of purpose. I did wish other girls would copy her, and then her attention to an old woman, I think is one of the most lovable deeds a young girl can do. I felt I would like to tell about her. It brought to my mind these lines that I read years ago, "May the charm and the grace that are written on thy face, never lose their place little maiden."

CADY.

GREETINGS FROM ROSY POSY

Dear Social Corner Sisters: It is such a stormy day that I thought I would write you all a few lines to thank the sisters who were so kind in sending me birthday cards, I received them from Lonesome, Kentucky Wonder, S. W. A. K., Abigail, True Blue, Paula, Balsam Fir and Sister H.

Paula: I thank you for the pretty present and letter you sent me on my birthday. It is very nice to be remembered and I am sure I try to send cards to those whose birthday I know. I also received a pretty calendar on my birthday. That came on the right day and I thank the silent member with all my heart, only I wish any one who would send me a gift or card would sign their name, so I could return thanks anyway.

I hope that none of the sisters had the misfortune that I had last week. I slipped on the ice and fell. I hurt my leg. I am lame yet but I am getting along better now.

Balsam Fir: I received your card yesterday and I thank you very much.

Daisy Dean: I do not hear from you you said you would write to me after the holidays. But perhaps you are busy.

Lonesome: I hope you have enjoyed my potato fudge. When you come again I'll have a new kind of candy to let you taste. I hope you do not fall, the same as I did. Did you have a good view of the eclipse Saturday?

Pieces: That was a very nice letter you had in the Corner last Saturday. I will now close hoping all the sick ones are on the road to recovery. Best wishes to all the sisters and editor.

DOING BIT FOR CORNER

Dear Corner Sisters: I must write and do my bit to keep our page full, also to thank the sister for a very pretty calendar.

I suppose most of the sisters watched the eclipse Saturday morning. I hope all could see it as well as we did here. It was a wonderful thing. We were nearly in the center so perhaps saw it better than some.

Abigail: I wish to thank you for card but I do wish I knew who is who. Couldn't you write in and give me some idea. It almost seems to me I should know. It certainly is cold here now, but I really can't say it had been bad before. I came back from visiting Double Fuschia and Midget last week Friday and it was very rough coming over and also very cold riding from the boat.

I wonder if any of the sisters have the words to the song, White Wings Never Get Weary? It is rather an old song but the sisters have helped before so I thought some one might have them. Although rather late I will wish all a happy New Year.

REMINISCENCES.

Dear Social Corners: The summer was a busy one, so I did not write. In fact, all seasons are busy at the present day. Some writer has called for reminiscences of childhood. I will remember my first visit away without my parents. I think I was about 8. My aunts were at our home and I was to return with them, for a few days. Then my parents were to come for me. It was a distance of only 12 miles, but to me a long distance, though today a distance of only a few minutes. As my cousins and aunts when visiting for the summer often brought a trunk, I thought that a proper thing, so off into the attic I went, remembering an old hair trunk studded with brass nails which had been my grandmother's. Out from under the eaves I dragged it and began packing in some of my possessions, when a call from my mother asking where I was and what doing delayed my work. She then told me I would not need the trunk, much to my disappointment. I went on my visit, but without the trunk. A trip last summer was much enjoyed, but different from the long ago.

Starting from near Boston and going to Cape Cod, we went by auto or through the different places that we read about in Lincoln's stories. We followed the Cape Cod canal for quite a distance and then went on over to Sandwich, where the first pressed glass in this country was made. There certainly is sand enough there for the industry, now given up. We passed the cranberry meadows which on both

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Stories of extreme cold weather were reported in the Bulletin of 1875, reporting snow on the ground in July and sail boats Long Island Sound frozen over during the winter; a horse having been driven from New York to Barnstable.

Items in part from the Bulletin of 1875 are related as follows:

Monday, Jan. 25, 1875—The Ferry-boat Uncas was started Saturday to the great satisfaction of our inconvenienced Groton neighbors, but it was discovered that the steamchest was leaking badly and the boat was taken back for further repairs.

The secretary of the New London County Historical society has received from one of its members, through the Rev. Dr. Daggett, the following interesting pamphlet and papers; viz; a proclamation by Thomas Fitch, the following interesting pamphlet and papers; viz; a proclamation by Thomas Fitch, governor; "A copy of the Connecticut Gazette, Dec. 4, 1789; the Mohegan Extra, published June 16, 1842; the 150th anniversary of the organization of the Congregational church in Columbia; a historical discourse delivered in the Congregational church of Jewett City in 1856, Dr. Horace Bushnell "speech for Connecticut" being a historical estimate of the state before the legislature at the festival of the normal school in New Britain, 1851; the dedication sermon at the new Congregational church at Ledyard by Timothy Tuttle, pastor, 1843; a manuscript sermon by Rev. S. Nott, D. D., preached in Norwich in 1804 and a discourse delivered on the annual fast in Massachusetts April 9, 1801 by Nathaniel Emmons, D. D., paston of the church in Franklin.

Hayden, the terror, has been invited to the choral union to assist at the coming philharmonic concert.

The wife of a Preston gentleman presented him with triplets Friday night. He immediately decided that life on shore was too prosaic for him and shipped aboard a oile driver.

Tuesday, Jan. 26, 1875—E. P. Slocum at the Adams Express office has recently adopted a marmoset and is bringing him up in nurture and admonition of the express business. The marmoset is a cheerful beast but as he usually develops a fine talent for breaking things Mr. Slocum hopes to educate him to be a baggagemaster.

A colored man sliding down the Bath street hill in the position popularly known as "belly gutter" struck a stone post squarely with his head. He was carried into Clark's stables insensible and upon regaining consciousness his first question was, "Where's de fellow what hit me?"

Mills in towns surrounding Norwich have partly suspended work for lack of water, the river being lower than for seven years, here, at this season.

An old resident of Norwich recalls the famous winter of 1741, claiming that no year since could furnish testimony for cold, either so intense or protracted. The snow in that year covered the whole country as early as the 13th of November and still covered fences the next April. Fishers Island was united to the mainland by a solid bed and people living on Thompson's island crossed over to Dorchester to church on the ice for 15 consecutive Sundays. As late as the 9th of July a letter from New London reported on the east side of the Connecticut river a body of ice clear and sound, that might lay here a month longer. He also said that on the 17th of July snow was still lying in a mass in the town of Ipswich, Mass., nearly four feet thick. But the most famous record reported of that season is the statement made by Alonzo Lewis, author of The Annals of Lynn, Mass., that "Francis Lewis, the signer of the Declaration of Independence, drove his horse from New York to Barnstable, the whole length of Long Island Sound, on the ice."

Wednesday, Jan. 27, 1875—Three gentlemen from Preston went fishing on Falls pond in Poquetanuck last week. After fishing through the ice all day and taking nothing, they discovered that the water had been drawn off last fall.

Sliding is now fine in this city. Several hundred men and boys are out each night on Union street hill. A match for $20 between a West Side and a Preston sled is arranged for tonight.

The Wallace Sisters played to a full house in Breed Hall last night. The audience was an appreciative one and copious in the matter of applause.

After the work at Wauregan Lodge last evening, C. C., R. McWhirr was presented with a very elegant gold headed ebony cane by the members. On it was engraved the emblems of the Order and the inscription, "Presented to Robert McWhirr, C. C., by the members of Wauregan Lodge, No. 6, K. of P., Jan., 1875." The presentation speech was made by I. W. Carpenter, Thursday, Jan. 28, 1875—At a meeting of the Norwich printing Company the following directors were elected; M. H. Sanger, retiring; J. W. Stedman, H. B. Tracy, George Sherman, D. P. Coon, W. L. Brewer, H. H. Roath, and C. W. Denison. J. W. Stedman was elected president and treasurer and F. Utley, secretary.

A gentle stop was put to the trotting on Broadway and Washington street yesterday afternoon by the interference of the police, a number of people having made informal complaints against the fast driving. The owners of the fast horses feel somewhat aggrieved and suggest that the privileges of one street be allotted to them, Washington street to Broadway.

Librarians Henry J. Adams and Frank Utley made their report to the Central Baptist Sunday school last Sunday showing 716 volumes belonging to the library. During the year these books have been loaned out in 7,112 distributions, all being accounted for.

Friday, Jan. 29, 1875—At a meeting of the Delanoy Engine Co., the following officers were elected for the year: Foreman, William P. Myers; first assist, J. N. Phillips; second assist, George W. Roberts; sec., T. F. Kelly; treasurer, H. L. Stanton; fire police, James Rowan, P. Mahoney. Ex-Chief Delanoy was present and gave the boys some very good advice.

The congressional committee have decided to recommend the removal of the New London Navy Yard. This will be received with regret by people of Norwich as well as New London.

There were 40 cars on the freight express on the Norwich and Worcester road yesterday, the heaviest freight in some time.

Saturday, Jan. 30, 1875—George Stone, the billiardist, formerly of this city has gone to Galveston, Texas, to take charge of a billiard room there. Friends here wish him the best of luck.

Physicians of Norwich are now protesting against the habit of kissing babies promiscuously, especially female babies. It is well to notice though, that the protest does not extend to babies of that persuasion born about 18 years ago.

A story of the change of times was printed in the Bulletin telling of how girls become tired after a five mile ride and needed the arm of the accompanying male companion to support them. The men of Norwich, ever willing to aid a female in distress are reported as loaning the use of both arms whenever needed, and, it is said, that this is quite often. (Thus we see that times haven't changed only the automobile has been substituted for the sleigh and carriage.

sides of us were covered with blossoms of a lavender hue over a large acreage, and saw the homes of the islanders who gather the cranberries, returning through historical Plymouth, visiting the old cemeteries where our forefathers rest, Plymouth hall, Myles Standish monument on a high elevation where you can see miles, and back to the starting point, covering between one and two hundred miles. Quite a difference in method of traveling from the one years before.

I wish to acknowledge the lovely little calendar received and wishing the patient editor and many readers a happy new year. May B's come out in cold weather sometimes. Many others I know but have not seen their names lately. BREEZE.

TOUCHING ON MANY SUBJECTS.

Dear Corner Editor and Folks: Have been keeping quiet for quite a while now and enjoying all your nice letters. Last night between 10 and 11 o'clock I was in Moncton, N. B. and Atlantic City, N. J. (via radio), but this morning finds me in our own warm kitchen, with the thermometer 10 degrees below zero outside, and I know it is much more enjoyable now to sit down and write a letter to the Corner than it would be to go out and roll in the snow as in days gone by, when we got so much pleasure out of walking up a hill a mile or more long just for the fun of riding down it. But those were healthy, happy days, and a little snow inside and outside did not harm us a bit.

It is a little late for wishing you all a happy and prosperous new year, but I do just the same, and also extend thanks for the holiday cards and the pretty calendar from a Social Corner member.

Now I am going to tell you about a plant we have which Bee True tells us belongs to the crab cactus family. On the end of each branch comes a deep yellow tassel like bloom which is very dainty and waxy and as we do not know the name of it, Zany has christened it Social Corner cactus.

I congratulate the Putnam sisters on the pleasant time they made for all who were fortunate enough to meet with them on the 31st of December. 'No time for a nap that day, and the "beauty prize" went where it should even if Olga has not been able to solve the mystery. I never attend a Corner meeting but what I learn something new and that day one thing was the way Cactus Blossom decorated the top of her nice mince pie, and I have been doing the same ever since. Had always seen a leaf or scroll before. Things are apt to get mixed a bit at such a time and I trust that everything is all straightened out by this time and certainly hope there was not one there who mistrusted her Social Corner sisters' honesty.

Baked Beans: When I wrote my sister your name and address little did I think that she might know you, so it was a happy surprise when I learned that she did, and I hope to meet you some time.

Saturday Eve: Have enjoyed your letters and will write you soon. Want you to know that Baked Beans lives near my sister.

Keziah Doolittle: Busy all the time as usual. Did you receive the holiday card from me?

It seems good to have some Free Air in our Corner once more. Was afraid we had lost it for all time. Being an economical person, I am not going to waste my ink by writing that great long name which begins with H and ends with I. I do remember the time you used to phone but as I think you are not old enough to vote yet you cannot make me believe we are as ancient as you try to make out.

This letter is a sort of a hit and miss pattern, so right here let me tell you that we had a fine view of the total eclipse and feel sorry for those who were so unfortunate as to miss it.

1492: Here is an epitaph for you: The following version appears on pages 188, 189 of John R. Kippax's "Churchyard Literature," Chicago, 1877, where it is stated that the epitaph was copied from an ancient gravestone in Pembroke, Mass.:

Here rests a poor woman
Who always was tired,
For she lived in a house
Where help was not hired.

Her last words were: "Friends,
Fare ye well; I am going
To a place where there's nothing
Of washing or sewing.

"Then weep not, my friends,
When death shall us sever,
For I'll have a nice time in Doing nothing forever;

"For everything there
Is exact to my wishes,
Since when they don't eat,
There's no washing of dishes.

"The courts with sweet music
Are constantly ringing,
But, having no voice,
I shall get clear of singing."

She folded her hands
With her latest endeavor
And whispered, "Sweet nothing,
Oh, nothing, forever."

Here is something for those who have a radio and do not know what to do with their dead dry cells: Take a hammer, break them up, and when you have a good hot fire put the pieces on. They will all burn up, cut the soot from the pipes and chimney and save a chimney fire. The zinc in them cuts the soot and the rest makes a hot fire. Husband puts one in the boiler about every month.

All best wishes for the Corner from TWICE TWENTY.

CREEPERS, PUZZLES, BUTTER.

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: How do you like the slippery going? Shall I tell you how I get along? Not having any creepers, and not feeling too safe with old stockings over my rubbers, I took an old pair of rubbers, some short, flat-headed nails, drove a few nails through the heels and soles from the inside of rubber and like it better than creepers that I have had.

Suppose everyone tries the cross-word puzzle. I don't very often as I haven't a library and think it's needed, but some make pretty patterns for filet crochet and quilt blocks. Did you notice the one in Jan. 14's Bulletin?

Do some of you make butter and have trouble with white streaks in it? I tried every way I ever heard of for caring for the cream, but still had trouble. One day after it was salted, had to leave it until next day. Then worked it over good before moulding it and found 'twas all right. Probably would have been if butter coloring had been used, but I like the butter better without coloring in it, although it doesn't taste.

Wisteria: I may get to meeting in W—— some time. When do they stop? Something always prevents my going.

Happy New Year to all.

AUTOGRAPH ALBUMS.

Dear Social Corner Friends: First I wish to thank a Social Corner Member for the lovely calendar. As one of the writers said the sender must know just what each one likes. I love the birds, and then such a cheery, friendly verse. I like to read it over. When the calendar came I said I will write at once to the Corner but that very night came the sad news of our dear Sister H. M. L's death, and I could not put my mind on anything else. Even yet I can hardly realize that never again will I hear her cheerful voice over the 'phone. Those of us who knew her best realize what a place she filled in the home and no words can express our sympathy to her family. We can only say in the words of the hymns sung at her funeral, God Knows the Best and Sometime We'll Understand.

I also wish to thank all sisters who sent me cards on my birthday; at Christmas and also cards and letters of sympathy at the time of my father's death.

Bon Ami: I do not know you but feel a bond of sympathy when I read that you too had to part with a loved one around the holidays. They will never seem quite the same.

Speaking of autograph albums I have one that I enjoy looking over and calling to mind old school friends. How characteristic of the writers the verses they penned there! Some were full of fun, some sedate, one verse was written by the teacher (Miss Hattie Robinson). I wonder how many of the Social Corner writers were her pupils?

"May there be just enough clouds in your life to make a glorious sunset," how little I realized at the time the meaning of those lines. Now I can see the beauty in them.

Willwyck: Was interested in your account of your visit, glad you could go. Have you had a sleighride yet? I was housed up with the grip at the time the sleighs were going by here but am better and it's now snowing hard and Toby has just called me on the 'phone to say we would take me for a sleigh ride soon. So guess I shall get my wish yet.

Bar Bar: I wonder if I know you. Best wishes to all.

PICTURES IN THE HOME.

Dear Social Cornerites: During these wintry days when there is not a rush of house work is a good time to look forward to beautifying our homes when springtime comes and thus give interest to the drudgery of house cleaning.

Among other things a few new pictures will quite change the aspect of a room. Framed pictures are expensive, but almost every old-time attic has some discarded pictures stored away. Examine the frames and you will find they were usually made up of from two to four narrow frames, one set into another and fastened together with a nail in each side. The glass is of course fitted into the smallest frame which is perhaps an inch wide more or less. If gilded it may be freshened up with a coat of gold paint or if you prefer a coat of black paint. The outer frames are perhaps of black walnut or oak and need only a coat or two of varnish. They will have to be provided with glass for which measurements must be carefully taken.

Reproductions of paintings by famous artists can be procured at moderate cost and sometimes the top of a calander or a magazine will afford good pictures for framing. The smaller pictures are good and are easily done with passe partout, using brown for those in sepia tones and black for those in black and white. A piece of card board and two picture hangers for the back and a seven by nine window pane for the two-cent size picture, are all the materials required. A roll of passe partout will bind a dozen pictures of this size. Photographs may be done in this way, too.

While you have the can of varnish and brush around for varnishing the picture frames, if it is the kind of varnish that is not affected by heat or water, try giving two coats to some of the ten-cent cork mats for use under hot dishes. They can then be wiped off when soiled and will last indefinitely.

This is my first visit to the Corner, but I hope some one may find these hints useful.

LIVING LIFE OVER AGAIN.

Dear Editor and Sisters of the Social Corner: It is high time I put my pen to use in writing to the Social Corner. First, I wish to thank Social Corner Member for my pretty calendar. These lines come to me:

"'Tis sunset to be remembered
In the turmoils of this life,
While toiling up its pathway,
While mingling in its strife."

The snow is so beautiful, but 'give me Florida where the flowers bloom all the winter. The children don't mind the snow as they scamper home from school. How many of the sisters remember the days in winter when coasting was the pleasure enjoyed? No hill was too steep for Trottie. In Connecticut where all my young years were passed the hills were long and very steep. Skating was not at that time for girls, but now I think it is enjoyed by most young people and as they skim along over the ice it is quite interesting to see them and the boys cutting figures on the ice. One feels they would like to be young again.

A dear friend of mine asked me if I would like to live my life over again. I replied "No, I might do better in the experiences I had, but might make many worse mistakes in living it over again." Experience often bitter, is the means of bringing many to the need of being fitted for the nobler, and eternal things. Eternity, by experience, all of us must find. No one can know any other way. Though the Good Book tells us the mortal shall put on the immortal. But when we experience this great change we shall know then as we know and experience as we trust true unending happy lives. Sometime ago a sister sent in some epitaphs from stones in a cemetery.

I will send a couple I read on grave stones in a very old cemetery in Colchester, Connecticut:

"A man of invention great
Above any other nigh,
But he could not invent to live
When God called him to die."

"Here lies a mother of children five,
Three are dead and two are alive.
Those that are dead prefering rather
To lie with their mother than live
With their Father."

Many queer ones I might have gotten had I time to go about the cemetery but it was getting lat. It seems to me the education in those days was lacking (poor souls), but their chances in eternal happiness no doubt were just as great.

Best wishes for editor and all sisters, old and young. Ever an old writer,

TROTTIE. (Jan. 20.)

NOTED DAYS IN FEBRUARY.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Friends: Primrose has just called up and wanted to know what I was doing this stormy day. Well, I have been sewing. Had a full skirt and have managed to get out a one-piece dress, and then I said it was a good day to write for the Social Corner. Snow Snow! I don't care for it, but I suppose we have to expect it in winter.

We have some noted days in the month of February. The ground hog day or Candlemas day and two presidents were born in this month—Washington and Lincoln. Washington, the Father of Our Country, leaving his hungry and ill-clad men and going out into the woods in that terrible winter at Valley Forge, kneeling in the snow to ask for divine guidance and strength, has long been the subject for the artist and writer. Lincoln's religious faith was no less than that of Washington. We also have St. Valentine's day. St. Valentine was a Roman Catholic priest who was martyred in Rome in A. D. 270, on Feb. 14, and the day has for centuries been celebrated by Catholics and Protestants, though in no serious manner. Some folks say that the god St. Valentine used to go from house to house, leaving food on the doorsteps of the poor, and from this fact springs the custom of sending valentines, greetings of love and appreciation.

Was glad to see Fan Tan's letter, but failed to see Trixey's. Have read in yesterday's Bulletin Abraham Davenport, Whittier's Dark Day Poem. What could be a more wonderful day than last Saturday! It gives one a chance to think what is above us. As it is growing dark, will have to think about supper. February, the second month of the year, having 28 days except in leap years, when it has 29, is named for Febrius, an ancient Roman diety. The flower for this month is primrose.

ECHOES FROM THE LODGE ROOMS

DEGREE OF POCOHONTAS

Sebequanash Council, No. 11, met at 88 Broadway Wednesday evening with a good attendance. Sister Lorenia Clark of Hiawatha Council, No. 15, of New London, the deputy raised the chiefs to their respective stumps assisted by P. G. P. Nettie Kinne. After the raising of the chiefs' regular business of the order was transacted. After the salute to the flag the meeting closed and all adjourned to the dining room where a Christmas tree stood waiting to be divested of its numerous packages. There were several surprises for some of the members. Every one received a present, not one was forgotten. After all the packages had been opened, the entertainment committee of which Sister Button is chairman, invited all to partake of a fine supper to which each did justice. Much regret was felt that Pocohontas Della Bailey was not able to be present on account of the severe illness of her self and husband, both being confined to their beds with a nurse in attendance. The latest reports were to the effect that both were doing well and it is hoped to see them out soon among us.

MOOSEHEART LEGION

A successful whist was given by the Women of Mooseheart Legion Thursday at Buckingham Memorial with Mrs. Teresa Watters in charge. The prizes were awarded as follows:

First, lades, Mrs. John Foley; second, Mrs. Retkovske; first, gentlemen, Thomas Fields; second, Walter Cormier; consolation, Mrs. Hallisey and Mr. Dixon.

The prize cake donated by Mrs. Emma Beaver was awarded to Mrs. Jensen.

MACCABEES

The W. B. A. of Maccabees held their regular meeting last week in Buckingham Memorial with Commander Eckstein in the chair. Four new members were initiated in to the order, and a number of applications were received. Plans were made for a whist to be held later. There was also an interesting talk for the good of the order by Mrs. Emma Haas, state deputy of Hartford. Installation of officers will take place in February. It is expected that State Commander Margaret Littleton, State Captain of Guards Mrs. Horsman, and State Deputy Emma Haas of Hartford will be present to conduct the installation. Refreshments will be served and a social evening will follow.

ELKS

John A. Condon of New Haven was elected president of the Past Exalted Rulers' association of Connecticut Elks at the annual meeting held in Middletown Sunday. Ernest Humphreys of New Britain was elected vice president, Harry C. Brown of New Britain, secretary and Louis Brock of Bridgeport, treasurer. One hundred and fifty past exalted rulers and deputies from all parts of the state attended.

Among the issues discussed at the meeting was included one dealing with the welfare work among ex-service men undergoing treatment in hospitals of New London, Middletown, Allingtown and Wallingford. Provision was also made for those who die and leave no relatives.

HOURIGAN POST AUXILIARY

At the last meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary of Hourigan post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Mrs. Emma Hull was appointed chairman of the welfare committee. Mrs. Anna Hoelck was made chairman of the entertainment committee for the coming six months.

The welfare committee reported making visits to the sick members of the auxiliary and of taking plants to each one visited. The proceeds of the the whist held at the home of Mrs. Hoelck have been added to the disabled veterans' fund. A social time followed the meeting. Mrs. Anna Turner, the president, presided at the meeting.

MOOSE

Congregational church service will be broadcast from the First Congregational church at Aurora, Ill., through Station WJJD (302.8 meters) at Mooseheart, on Sunday morning, Feb. 1, beginning at 10.30 o'clock. The service will be in charge of the Rev. Joseph Clare, pastor. His sermon-subject will be: "Safety first; an inquiry into the validity of the law of self-preservation." The sermon will be special as it will be street car men's Sunday at his church.

The Rev. Mr. Clare a splendid pulpit speaker and popular to the highest degree with persons from all walks of life as well as those of other religious denominations, has had a varied career. He had his early training in England while doing Y. M. C. A. work. While serving in London he was appointed to the pastorate of the British-American church at Petrograd, Russia, serving there from 1913 until 1917, after the time of the Revolution. He left Russia just before Lenine and Trotzky came into power there. After leaving Russia he was on a lecture tour throughout the United States and England, from coast to coast, speaking upon the Russian Revolution, and his message carried the facts about conditions in the country of so much mystery. He then served as pastor of the Congregational church at Cando, N. D. He has been at Aurora for nearly three years.

His church is of historical interest as the republican party was born there—the meeting being held long before the ones at cities in Wisconsin, Michigan and Illinois, all of which claim to be the birthplace of the party. Further, the father of Bob Ingersoll, was a pastor of the Aurora Congregational church in the early days of its existence.

This will be the fifth Aurora church to have its service broadcast from Station WJJD by means of a special wire extending from Mooseheart to Aurora. The first service was Episcopal, then followed Presbyterian, the Roman Catholic high mass and Methodist Episcopal.

REBEKAHS.

Hope Rebekah lodge, No. 21, met on Wednesday evening, Jan. 21, in Odd Fellows' hall, with Mrs. Ella Stapleton, noble, grand, in the chair. Three applications for membership were received and it is understood more are coming in at the next meeting. The past grands are planning a pinochle meet to be held in the hall Tuesday, Feb. 3, at 8 p. m. The different committees were appointed for the year and it looks like a banner year.

PATRONS OF HUSBANDRY.

Norwich grange, No. 172, started the year with a most enthusiastic and well attended meeting Wednesday evening in Steiner hall when the chief business was the installation of officers. Preceding this part of the evening, supper was served at 6.30 with a musical programme through the supper hour supplied by John M. Swahn, Miss Lucille Gulle, George Gulle and George Dougherty. Grace was said by John E. Fanning, chaplain of the grange, before the following menu was served: roast pork, mashed potatoes, turnips, cabbage salad, apple sauce, jellies, rolls, cake and coffee. The supper was in charge of the committee, consisting of Mrs. Retkowski, chairman, Mrs. Bessie Murray, Mrs. Milo E. Waters, Mrs. William Hastedt, Mrs. Eva Higgins, Mrs. Cora Geib, and Mrs. Walter Pendleton. The waitresses were Mrs. Binns, Mrs. Sterry, Mrs. Lavalle, Mrs. William Crowe, Mrs. Paul Waters and Mrs. Staubley. The tables were prettily decorated in a color scheme of yellow and white and with flowers loaned by Hawkins, the florist.

The installation was admirably carried out by Mrs. Lillian Frink of Canterbury, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Milo Appley. The following were the officers seated: Worthy master, Arthur W. Avery; overseer, Leonard W. Staubley, Sr., lecturer, Louis Aldrich; chaplain, Charles C. Ellis; treasurer, Edward Cook; secretary, Ora C. Spencer; steward, John Rogers; assistant steward, Ralph Marsh; gate keeper, Leroy Miner; Ceres, Althea Brown; Pomona, Nettie Fanning; Flora, Lena Pukallus; lady assistant steward, Adella Spalding.

Following the installation there were remarks by the installing officers and by Charles Downes of Killingly, Harold Morrarty of Putnam, Charles Adams, state assistant steward. Reports from the state grange meeting were given by Worthy Master Avery and by the retiring lecturer, Mrs. Ida Richardson.

Worthy Master Avery made the following committee appointments: executive, John E. Fanning; Mrs. Ivy Pendleton, Mrs. H. L. Richardson; home economics, Mrs. H. L. Richardson, Mrs. William Banfield, Miss Louise Helm; relief, C. E. Ellis, chaplain, Rev. Edward Ayers, Mrs. W. D. Thatcher; ways and means—Mrs. Bessie Murray, Mrs. Cora Geib, Mrs. Myra Waters, Mrs. Peckham; finance, William Bode, Carl W. Brown, Mrs. Eva Higgins; press agent, Mrs. Roswell J. P. Brown; feast committee, January to April, Mrs. M. Retkowske, chairman; insurance agent, John E. Fanning.

The meeting had an attendance of 109, which included 23 visitors from Putnam 1, Killingly 6, Canterbury 6, Ledyard 1, Groton 4, Preston City, Pachaug and Franklin.

ODD FELLOWS.

The meeting of Shetucket lodge, No. 27, was held Tuesday night at Odd Fellows' hall with Noble Grand Archie Perry and Vice Grand John McNeely in charge. POETRY

ATLANTIC ROLLERS.

Such a wind,
Bending the hardy cliff-grass all one way,
Hurling the breakers in huge battle-play
On these old rocks whose age leaves time behind,
—The whorls and rockets of the fiery mass
Ere earth was earth—shoots over them the spray
In furious beauty, then is twisted, wreathed,
Dispersed, flung inland, beaten in our face,
Until we pant as if we hardly breathed.
The common air. See how the billows race
Landward in white-maned squadrons that are shot
With sparks of sunshine, Where they leap in sight
First, on the clear horizon, they flash white
The blue profundity; then, as clouds shift,
Are gray, and umber, and pale amethyst;
Then, great green ramparts in the bay uplift,
Perfect a moment, ere they break and fall
In fierce white smother on the rocky wall.
—John Presland, in "Songs of Changing Skies."

TIES WILD.

Some may long for the soothing touch
Of lavender, cream and mauve,
But the ties I wear must possess the glare
Of a red-hot kitchen stove.
The books I read and the life I lead
Are sensible, sane and mild;
I like calm hate and I don't wear spats,
But I want my neckties wild!

Give me a wild tie, brother,
One with a cosmic urge!
A tie that will swear
And rip and tear
When it sees my old blue serge.

O, some will say that a gent's cravat
Should only be seen, not heard,
But I want a tie that will make men cry
And render their vision blurred.
I yearn, I long, for a tie so strong
It will take two men to tie it;
If such there be, just show it to me—
Whatever the price, I'll buy it.

Give me a wild tie, brother,
One with a lot of sins,
A tie that will blaze
In a hectic gaze,
Down where the vest begins.

TUG GOES FROM NEW LONDON TO RESCUE OF SUBMARINE S-48

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Jan. 30.—The Merritt-Chapman-Scott Wrecking Co., Inc., has sent three wrecking outfits from Boston and New London to the rescue of the S-48, one of the big submarines stationed at this port, which went on flats at Jeffreys Point, off Portsmouth, N. H., harbor during the heavy snowstorm of Wednesday night. The wreckers Hesolite and T. J. Merritt have gone to the assistance of the craft from Boston, while the powerful tug Commissioner left for Portsmouth this morning. The S-48 is in command of Lieut. Com. Stewart E. Bray of Thames street, this city. The craft has been most unlucky since she was accepted by the navy department, as she has become to be known as the "hoodoo" submarine. Some time ago, when the craft was engaged in practice stunts off Bridgeport harbor, she went to the bottom of the sound, and it was with extreme difficulty that the crew was rescued. The craft has a crew of 45 officers and men, many of whom reside in New London.

The severe storm of last night caused considerable damage in various parts of the city. At the corner of Howard and Hamilton streets, catch basins became plugged and water rose to a depth of four feet in the highway, some of the water finding its way to the cellar of the Raymond & Alexander company, where building material was damaged. The same condition existed at the corner of Howard and Harris streets, although the damage at that point was slight. At Ocean Beach the tide was exceptionally high, which, aided by a strong northeast wind early this morning, swept over the beach and boardwalk and to Bentley avenue. Several of the cottages on the boardwalk were damaged, water entering the cellars.

When the city proposed to erect a junior high school last year it secured permission from the legislature to issue some $200,000 of bonds "to erect and equip a junior high school." Then the people by a referendum vote decided that there should be no junior high school—that it was not wanted here. So that plan was abandoned. Now the board of school visitors has recommended to the city council that a school building is needed and that they have decided upon the style of building, for which they had received plans from Architect A. Graham Creighton. The structure, it is believed, can be erected for $165,000. The city council Monday evening voted to have Mr. Creighton's plan accepted and directed the city manager to go ahead and get the plans and specifications from Mr. Creighton, and, if it was so desired, to purchase the plans. Councilor Fox objected to such hasty acceptance of the plans, but he stood alone in that respect. Now it turns out that the bonds which the assembly gave the city permission to issue "to erect and equip a junior high school" can be used for the school building which the board of school visitors desires shall be erected on the J. M. Harris lot, Mercer and Williams streets. A special act of the assembly is necessary to convert the use of the bonds from one source to another. The council has requested such legislation, so a bill to cover it was introduced today in the assembly by one of the representatives from New London. So the money for the school will come along undoubtedly, for the assembly is almost certain to grant a request from the city government unless there shall be the best of reason for denying it. There is not apt to be any opposition to the plan. Councilor Fox is not likely to oppose the authority which the council has asked for, and no one else will probably appear before the committee of the assembly to object. The representatives from New London and the senator from the district are understood to take the view of the matter that if the city council and the board of school visitors have decided that the city is in need of the building, they should not oppose their desire and set up the opinion of the members of the assembly against that of the parties who have studied the situation and have reached a conclusion. It is represented by a considerable number that the proposed school is no more nor less than a junior high school, a structure and adjunct of the school system the people have decided they do not want. But the school will come, unless prevented by a referendum vote of the people, and that is not at all likely.

As soon as a thaw comes the authorities of this city should see to it that the sidewalks are cleared of ice. They are in many instances in breakneck condition at present. The low temperature that followed the storm of snow, sleet and rain Thursday night froze the wet snow and made ice of it, so that the walks are absolutely dangerous where they were not cleared. Sand was distributed on many of them this morning, but there are many others which have not seen the sandman, and these are the spots that are menacing.

Rosario Vocaline, 83 Shaw street, employed as a track worker by the Connecticut company, was struck and injured this afternoon by an automobile owned and operated by Harry F. Morse of Niantic. Vocaline was at work clearing switches on State street, near the corner of Main street, when the car operated by Morse emerged from Main street and headed easterly on State street. Before Morse could reduce the speed of his machine, and before Vocaline observed the approaching automobile, the track worker was knocked down. Traffic Officer Clyde Murray assisted the man to the office of a physician, where it was determined his injuries consisted of sprains and bruises. After receiving treatment, Vocaline went to his home.

The police probe by the special committee of the city council, Edward L. Streeter, Jr., John F. Murray and Lucius E. Whiton, together with City Manager William A. Holt, resumed sessions in the juvenile court room this evening, when several witnesses all citizens, were interrogated. The committee, it is understood, intends to call 12 or 15 additional witnesses, after which it will render its report of its findings and recommendations to the city council. This, it is expected, will be some time during the latter part of February.

The will of Miss Fannie Gleason, drawn July 11, 1922, with two codicils annexed, one being drawn Aug. 31, 1923, and the other March 24, 1923, were admitted to probate this afternoon, at a hearing for that purpose in the probate court.

Two employes of the Spicer Ice company at Groton—Eugene Jennings and Medrick Roberts—had a day off Thursday, because of the severe weather. They got into wet territory and finally absorbed so much booze that they were found tangled up in the legs. Roberts also had hallucinations that he was to be attacked. Jennings couldn't navigate. In that condition the men were taken into custody by police and today they were given a hearing in the police court. Both admitted that he had offended against the laws of the state and the ..... out both pleaded for mercy. Roberts has a family dependent upon him for support. That support would be taken away from them if he was jailed. With compassion in his heart Judge Prince fined Roberts $10 and then suspended the collection of the fine. Judgment was suspended in the case of Jennings, for it was the first time he had been in court. Judge Prince gave the pair some advice, which was a warning that when next they appeared they would be sent to jail. "Watch your step" was the parting shot he gave to the offenders.

A private dancing party by Elks was given at a local hotel this evening. The patronage was limited to fifty couples at a charge of $4 a couple. This included lunch.

January has been one of the slowest months for the police that has come during the past twelve months. The number of arrests decreased and the offenses for which arrests were made were of a minor character generally. There was some stimulus imparted to the police business today, but even that did not bring the average number of arrests.

Following the indefinite suspension of Supernumerary Police Officer Dennis Murphy yesterday by City Manager William A. Holt, as a result of the officer having been found at his home and off his beat by Acting Lieutenant James D. Gaffney, a hearing on the incident was conducted this morning at 11 o'clock by the city manager, in his office at the municipal building. At the hearing were the accused officer and Acting Lieutenant Gaffney. The testimony of Acting Lieutenant Gaffney in finding the officer off his beat and at his home and the story of the accused officer were taken. City Manager Holt announced that he would reserve his decision as regards the penalization that will be meted to the officer, but that he would make the announcement within a few days. In the meantime Murphy is suspended.

An automobile owned and operated by Walter McLean, of New Haven, in being driven from beside the curb on State street, near Main street, this afternoon collided with a fire hydrant and damaged it.

The Canadian merchant marine freight steamer Canadian Britisher, arrived in port this afternoon from Halifax. The steamer went direct to the state pier where she will receive a cargo of automobiles for delivery at New Zealand and Australian ports.

The police late this afternoon raided the residence of George Ross, colored, 39 Douglass street, a resort where a watch has been maintained some time. Ross was taken into custody, charged with conducting a disorderly house and James Stanners, of Stanners street and John Brady, who was too drunk to give his address, both white, were apprehended, being charged with frequenters of the place. Ross and Brady were unable to provide a surety on their respective bonds for their appearance in the police court tomorrow morning, but Stanners was released upon furnishing a surety on his bond of $50. The raiding officers were Sergeant Nelson Smith and Patrolmen George McGeachey, William Graham and Augustus Kay.

For a long time the Rose place has been resorted to by a gang of men, who, it is alleged, have gone there for the purpose of drinking. No liquor was found in the place today, but it is declared that Ross would accept funds from his callers and then go to places where liquor was sold and return to his home with his supply for the visitors.

Tonight Brady secured a surety on his bond of $50 and was released pending the hearing in the police court tomorrow morning.

JEWETT CITY

The 27th annual concert and ball given by A. A. Young, Jr., Hose and Ladder Co., No. 1, Friday evening in the Finn opera house, ranked with the former successes of this popular annual social event. Shortly after 8 o'clock the big balcony was filled by an assemblage gathered to enjoy the concert, given by the famous Sullivan Bros. orchestra of eight pieces, from Milford, Mass. They gave an hour of fine entertainment, the applause received indicating the pleasure they afforded the assemblage. Their program included the following numbers: March, College Spirit, J. Meiarath; Follow the Swallow, Ray Henderson; solo, Joseph F. Sullivan; Where's My Sweetie Hiding, Tommie Mali; Suppose I Had Never Met You, Harry Archer; comedy song, Edward J. Sullivan; What is Your Name, Jack Little.

The grand march of over 70 couples compared favorably with those of other years, the leading couple being Chief Thomas Wakely and Mrs. Wakely. Mrs. Wakely's gown was of electric blue messaline with georgette and gray fur trimming. Her bouquet was of Queen Alexandra roses.

Not every year has the attractive color contrasts been as outstanding, in the varying shades of the smart dresses seen to the best advantage from the gallery chairs, as the finely executed figures of the grand march were produced on the floor below.

The firemen's ball is among the leading social functions of the season and hats were off all around, with courtesies offered to the firemen and their handsome wives, daughters, sweethearts and friends. The dance program of 24 numbers, was carried through with the usual satisfaction and success. The figure plan offered attractions in order, to suit the fancy of the more than two hundred who enjoyed its varied selections.

Carnations, the gift of Mrs. A. A. Young, were offered for sale, adding to the substantial receipts of the evening.

The orchestra came in for their share of praise for the excellent music furnished for the dances.

Visitors were present from Norwich, New London, Willimantic, Danielson, Plainfield and other surrounding places.

The efficient committees, without whom the evening's success would have been impossible included: Master of ceremonies, Thomas Wakely; floor director, Peter Bryant; aides, Leslie Hyde, Jerry Morey, Matthew Geary, John W. Blake, Austin Harris, Hector Sibelleaud; reception committee, William Grenier, Louis Masse, Eugene Carroll, Joseph Couture, Peter Bryant; committee of arrangements, Thomas Wakely, William Duggan, Hector Sibelleaud, Clovis Casavant, Mose Loranger.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS STRONG.

New York, Jan. 30.—Constructive forces were at work in today's stock market, which moved to higher ground under the leadership of the oil shares, the buying of which was stimulated by additional gasoline and crude oil price advances. Net gains in the active issues ranged from 1 to 4 1-2 points, with the day's total sales running above one and one-half million shares.

Maracaibo Oil and Independent Oil and Gas assumed the leadership of the oil group, rising 5 and 3 3-4 points respectively. Net gains of 2 to 3 points were recorded by Royal Dutch, Shell Transport, Atlantic Refining, Colorado Fuel and General Asphalt, while Marland, Pacific, Phillips and several others advanced a point or more.

Little interest was manifested in United States Steel common, which closed 1-4 lower at 126 1-4. American Can closed more than a point higher at 165 1-8 and Baldwin moved up 3 points to 133. Studebaker, in which a new pool is reported to be formed recently, advanced 1 3-8 to 44 7-8. Mack Trucks was run up 5 points to another record top at 139 3-4 and then cancelled its gain on official denial by General Motors officials of rumors that they were seeking control of that property.

Coppers, which have been lying dormant for a long time, were galvanized into activity in the late trading, American Smelting and Refining, Anaconda, Butte Copper and Zinc, Butte and Superior, Calumet and Arizona, Chile, Magma and United States Smelting being lifted 1 to 3 points.

Violent fluctuations were noted in a number of specialties. American Bosch Magneto soared nearly 7 points to 42 7/8 and then reacted to 41 1-2; General Electric jumper 6 points to 43 7-8 and then reacted to 41 1-2; General Electric jumped 5 points to 309 3-8 and then fell back to 307 1-2, and United States Realty closed 5 points higher at 127. The Commercial Solvents issues soared about ten points and then cancelled their gain. Other outstanding industrial strong spots included Dupont, Radio Corporation and Worthington Pump, all of which closed about 2 points higher.

A sudden demand for Southern Railway, which sent that stock up 3 3-8 points to 85 and the establishment of a record top by "Katy" preferred at 84 3-4, up 2 3-8 points, featured the trading in the railroad shares. A good demand also was noted for Wabash Preferred A, which crossed 60 for a net gain of 2 1-8 points. Most of the other popular issues showed only fractional changes.

Call loans held steady at 3 1-2 per cent. Time money rates showed a slightly easier tone, maturities of four to six months being available at 3 3-4 per cent.

Trading in the foreign exchanges was quiet, but the tone was firm. Demand sterling ruled around $4.79 and French francs were quoted around 5.41 cents.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Jan. 30.—Bond prices turned upward today under the leadership of the Southwestern railroad issues, which were stimulated by reports of new merger alignments and prospects for favorable earnings and dividend action. Leading oil company obligations also continued to respond to another series of gasoline and crude oil price advances.

Spirited bidding for "Katy" adjustment 5s developed today following the announcement. That new banking interests had acquired a block of the company's stock and reports that the road might form the nucleus of a new railroad consolidation. The possibility of an increased dividend on "Katy" preferred stock into which the bonds are convertible also was a factor in lifting their price up more than two points to a new high at 87 5-8.

Other southwestern rail liens for which there was a brisk demand were the International Great Northern Adjustment 6s, which jumped 3 points to a new top, and various issues of the Frisco, St. Louis Southwestern, Missouri Pacific and Kansas City Southern railroads, all of which were touched by merger rumors.

While the oils still maintained their leadership of the industrial group, some of the coppers and miscellaneous issues scored substantial gains. Advances ranging from 1 to 4 points embraced Pan-American Petroleum 6s, Skelly Oil 6 1-2s, Magma Copper 7s, Virginia-Carolina Chemical 7s, Wilson & Company 7 1-2s, and Chile Copper 6s.

Negotiations were reported under way for several important new bond issues. The Est Railway of France is understood to be seeking a loan of $10,000,000 to $20,000,000 and the New York Edison company may enter the market with an offering of about $30,000,000.

CURB MARKET.

New York, Jan. 30.—Business in today's curb market was more evenly distributed but the strength of the oils was again the outstanding feature.

General advances of 12 to 35 cents a barrel in Mid-Continent Crude and additional gasoline price increases stimulated the buying of the petroleum issues. Solar Refining soared 22 points to 250; Standard Oil of Nebraska 11 to 268 and Standard Oil of Ohio 6 to 264. Net gains of 1 to 2 points were recorded by Cities Service, Magnolia, Prairie Oil and Gas, South Penn, and Vacuum.

Hazeltine Radio made a belated response to the inauguration of dividends by rising 3 1-2 points to 43 3-4. Sympathetic advances of a point or more also took place under the Charles Freshman, De Forest and Thompson.

Public Utilities moved irregularly higher. American Light and Traction advanced 3 points to 146, Electric Bond and Share 2 3-8 to 68 and Middle West Utilities 1 to 86 1-2. American Power and Light and Lehigh Power securities were heavy.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Jan. 30.—Although wheat trading as a whole diminished in volume today, the market proved responsive at times when speculative buying in a big way was renewed. May delivery touched $2.05 1-2 within 3-8c of the recent high price record, and September went above any peak heretofore attained this season. July and September corn and oats likewise overtopped the season's best previous quotations. Wheat closed unsettled at the same as yesterday's finish to 1 5-8c higher, May 2.05 3-4 to 2.03 7-8 and July 1.31 5-8 to 1.71 3-4, with corn ranging from 3-4c decline to 3-4c advance, oats unchanged to 3-8c up, and provisions varying from 10c setback to a rise of 15c.

Enforcement of heavy margin rates, 24c to 35c a bushel, on all trading in wheat did much to curtail the volume of business as well as to make the market a good deal steadier than for a long while back. The new rates, at least quadruple the usual figures, virtually shut out the majority of small speculators, a class traditionally a danger to themselves and to others during an excited market. News of greatly enlarged shipments from Australia and Argentina led to an early setback in wheat prices, but this factor was more or less lost sight of later.

Corn and oats derived their strength largely from speculative buying which had been turned away from wheat on account of big margins required for traders in that grain.

Provisions were governed chiefly by the action of corn and hogs.

GREENEVILLE

The annual meeting of the Greeneville Congregational church was held in the church parlors Thursday evening, with Rev. Charles H. Ricketts presiding. There was a good attendance in spite of the storm. Reports of the several departments of the church's activities were read and showed the church to be in a flourishing condition, with excellent prospects for the coming year. The Sunday school in particular showed an exceptionally high average of attendance throughout the year. After making a number of extraordinary expenditures there remains in the treasury a larger balance than there was at the beginning of the year. Plans are being perfected looking to the increased efficiency of the church work and it is confidently expected that the near future will witness a material gain in membership.

The following officers were elected: Trustee, 5 years, Charles J. Twist; Paul H. Zahn 1 year (unexpired term); deacons, 4 years, John Service; William F. Shaw, 2 years (unexpired term); standing committee, 1 year, John McNeely, Mrs. L. W. Whiting, William F. Shaw; assistant treasurer, 3 years, Paul H. Zahn; clerk, 3 years, Mrs. Charles D. Foster; music committee, 1 year, Oscar W. Carpenter, Mrs. L. W. Prentice; auditors, 1 year, Milton Osborn, William A. Pitcher; charity and visitation committee, Mrs. Samuel S. Lathrop, Mrs. Margaret Burton, Mrs. Charles E. Meech, Mrs. Fred A. Fox, Mrs. Charles J. Twist, Mrs. John McNeely, Mrs. F. Louisa Atterbury.

After the business meeting a social hour followed at which refreshments were served by the Ladies' Aid society.

The Women's Auxiliary of St. Andrew's church held a meeting in the Guild room on Thursday afternoon at which Mrs William Mabrey presided. A committee to prepare the work for the auxiliary was appointed consisting of Mrs. Adams, Mrs. R. Donahue, and Mrs. C. Erwin. A box was packed for St. Steven's Mission, Nora, Va.

The Ladies' Guild of St. Andrew's church held a succesful food sale at the People's store on Friday afternoon from 3 to 5 p. m. Those in charge of the sale were Mrs. William Banfield, Mrs. Edward Risley, Mrs. R Bernard and Mrs. James Johnson.

TAFTVILLE

The sudden drop in temperature Friday morning converted all the slush that had accumulated from Thursday night's rain, into glare ice, and local dealers reported a brisk demand for ice creepers. The outside men of the Ponemah Company were out early spreading sand on the sidewalks, to make them safe for pedestrians. The roads were sheets of ice, and Merchants avenue and lower Providence street, always jingoes for automobiles, proved impassable. Only a few drivers were hardy enough to attempt to make the grades, and in most cases, they either skidded into the curbing at the sides of the street or turned completely around and slid to the bottom again. In Versailles, a large truck owned by the Max Gordon & Son Corporation of Norwich, loaded with five and a half tons of coal, slid across the road with the brakes set, and crashed down the river embankment, overturning the load. On Hunters avenue two small cars came together, the collision caused by skidding, but there was no damage. Horses found it difficult to keep on all fours, and several were reported down at various times of the day. After school hours, many of the scholars got out their skates and used the village streets for rinks. Coasting on the highways was dangerous, as the ice made steering difficult and a number of narrow escapes from colliding with automobiles were noted on Post Office hill.

With a program that included everything in music from jazz to grand opera, the minstrel show given by the Taftville Social & Football Club in Ponemah hall, went big, Friday evening. The audience was large, and showed their appreciation of the good music and funny jokes by generous applause. The stage setting was very effective, the chorus sitting in double tiers before a background of orange, black and white. Streamers of the same color were draped from the corners to the center of the stage, and throughout the performance, electric light in neapolitan ice cream hues, cast their beams upon the troupe from the elevated booth in the rear of the hall. Archibald D. Torrance was the interlocutor, holding down the center in true professional style, and the blackface men were Oscar Mathewson, Jr., Edward Sigrist, Thomas Parsons and Victor H. Davis. Their funny bones including many local hits kept up the morale of the audience, and made everyone feel that he had purchased his ticket at bargain prices. The soloists were all in good form, and as the musical program had been made up from every branch in music, everyone was satisfied, although it would have been difficult to pick the star.

The curtains opened to the stirring chorus How Do You Do, and I'm Going to Bring Watermelon to My Girl tonight, sung by the entire company, the rich masculine voices combining in perfect blend. The balance of the program included the following solos, with the rich, rare and racy jokes sandwiches in between: All Alone, Samuel L. Armitage; The Pal That I Loved Stole the Gal That I Loved, George Helm; I Wonder What's Become of Sally, Fred Knowles; Red Hot Mamma, Thomas Parsons; Put Away a Little Ray of Golden Sunshine, Thomas Grimshaw; Because They All Love You, William Mitchell; Bring Back Those Rock-a-by Baby Days, Henry Helm; I'll Sing Thee Songs of Araby, James Lockhart; Hard Hearted Hannah, Victor H. Davis; The Night Wind, Archibald D. Torrence; When Irish Eyes are Smiling, Thomas Greenhalgh. The program came to an end with the lively climax Charley, My Boy, drifting off into Carry Me Back to, Old Virginny, and Good Night Ladies, the curtain closing as the finale was sung. The music for the occasion was furnished by Thumm's Orchestra, which played opening overture and accompanied the singers. Later in the evening there was dancing, for which the orchestra furnished the music.

The affair was pronounced a wonderfull success by those who witnessed it, and it is hoped that the public will soon have the opportunity of listening to the local stars again. Those taking part in the event were Fred Seidel, Fred Meyer, Edward Thoma, Joseph Savignac, Allan Bogie, Terence M. Buckley, Frank Thompson, Oscar Mathewson, Jr., Edward, Sigrist, Thomas Parsons, Victor H. Davis, Samuel L. Armitage, Fred Knowles, George Helm, Henry Helm, Thomas Grimshaw, William Mitchell, James Lockhart, Thomas Greenhalgh, John Wohlleben and John Simms.

WRITER OF MOVIE KNOWN TO MRS. LUTHER K. ZABRISKIE

The striking picture at the Palace theatre this week, "White Man," proved one of special significmance to one resident of Norwich.

This was Mrs Luther K. Zabriskie, of Cliff street. When Mrs. Zabriskie saw the picture announced, she was led to make inquiries, and on attending the theatre Friday she discovered that this was the scenario written by George Agnew Chamberlain, while consul-general at Mexico City, Mexico. Mrs. Zabriskie's husband, the late Luther Kimball Zabriskie, was first consul at Mexico City with Mr. Chamberlain, who acquainted Mr. and Mrs. Zabriskie of the plot of the scenario, which he was then writing, to embody his experiences while U. PICTURE OF ENGAGEMENT RING IN THE ECLIPSE

Statements made in Saugerties, N. Y., that observers of the total eclipse of the sun last Saturday morning had seen an engagement ring at one stage created something of a furor among some scientists, but were given credence when John Mason Clarke, director of the state museum at Albany, produced a photograph taken by E. S. Stein, one of the staff of the state museum, which showed the engagement ring very distinctly.

A perfect engagement ring picture was also secured in this city, a reproduction of which is given herewith, from a photograph taken by Philip C. Roberts of the civil engineering office of Chandler and Palmer. Mr. Roberts had his camera set on Meeting House Rocks at Norwich Town. The picture was taken just at the end of the totality when the first ray of the returning sun caused the sunburst effect seen in the photograph. Just below the "solitaire" can be seen some of the Bailey's beads, the peculiar appearance made by the sun's rays shining through the craters of extinct volcanoes on the moon.

CRITICISM OF APPLICATION OF LAWS AFFECTING FARMERS

Made in the Third Report of the President's Agricultural Commission—Charges That the Administration of Some Departments "as Seriously Handicapped by the Inter-Department on Inter-Bureau Jealousies."—Believes That Rivalry May Prompt Proposals For Departmental Expansion.

Washington, Feb. 1.—Sharp criticism of the administration of certain federal laws and agencies affecting the farmer was contained in the third report of the president's agricultural commission made public tonight. It criticised the conduct of the department of agriculture, interstate commerce commission, federal reserve board, tariff commission and internal revenue bureau.

Charging that administration of some departments is "seriously handicapped by the inter-departmental or inter-bureau jealousies," the commission found two "unfortunate tendencies" were that the "dog in the manger" attitude of one department might retard development of another, or rivalry may prompt proposals for departmental expansion.

The report declared that the country lacked a unified credit system, a condition which agriculture; that the commission was unable to recommend the assumption by the federal government of responsibility as advocate of [illegible] developed into a [illegible] tariff commission [illegible] agriculture by actively functioning along the lines of its powers and responsibilities.

Complete separation of the regulatory and section functions of government [illegible] was recommended, and it was urged that cooperative marketing organizations be given full benefit of tax exemption.

Many instances of "unnecessary and unwise" duplication of effort in assembling information for use by departments which the commission said had discovered were characterized as "personally reprehensible." In many cases it seems to be done deliberately," the report added, and recommended creation of an inter-departmental agency to promote co-ordination in assembling and using government information and data.

The remedy for "inter-departmental jealousies" the commission said it believed that "personal or political influences and the civil service status of employees who may offend in this respect present limitations to the extent to which administrative officers can remove the [illegible]." It suggested, however, that each new administration, in considering proposals for expanding the activities or influence of departments or bureaus, consider the value of the service to be rendered rather than "demands arising out of departmental rivalries or jealousies."

Defects in congress on the act which created the interstate commerce commission, the report said, clearly showed that it was intended to act primarily as arbitrator between shippers and railroads but also as investigator and advocate for the shipping public in general.

Methods of procedure and practices developed by the interstate commerce commission, it stated, are constantly making it more difficult for a shipper to obtain redress.

"The cost of employing counsel and the necessary experts," it added, "makes it almost impossible for the ordinary citizen to get a hearing.

A unified credit system, the report declared, can be developed only through a federal banking policy which will draw membership in a unified national banking system.

Many of the instances of "unsatisfactory administration of government activities touching agricultural welfare" brought to its attention, said the commission, "have been clearly and directly traceable to the feeling of antagonism."

Commending the work of the bureau of animal industry and the federal horticultural board in combating the entry and spread of diseases and pests, the commission declared greater funds and powers and new administrative programs were necessary for the protection of American agriculture. In this connection it suggested co-operation with the various states to enact uniform quarantine regulations.

Recommendations also were made that state directors of agriculture be given the status of collaborators with the secretary of agriculture and that joint conferences be held at the expense of the federal government.

Regarding tax exemption of co-operative organizations, the commission urged application of the exemption provision of the revenue act in a manner "best calculated to secure the benefits contemplated by the law itself." Any co-operative organization, it pointed out, should be eligible for tax exemption if its activities were restricted to serving its members and if its entire income were paid to them.

The report said the tariff commission had powers upon which to build an "aggressive fact-finding body that should take the initiative in assembling information needed for a wise and efficient application" of existing schedules, adding that "with such information at hand the president can call for investigation and receive a report in time to act with at least a fair degree of promptness in proclaiming modification of duties when commodities are suffering from the pressure of foreign competition."

Expansion of the crop reporting and market news service of the department of agriculture to include additional market and producing centers centers also was recommended.

OUTLOOK FOR AMERICAN AGRICULTURE ENCOURAGING

Washington, Feb. 1.—The general outlook for American agriculture this year is "fairly encouraging," compared with recent years, the department of agriculture declared in its annual outlook report, made public today, but added that there "may be a slackening in domestic demand for farm products next winter."

Producers of the major farm crops, such as cotton and wheat, were advised to "follow about the same program of production as last year."

"Increased acreages of these crops," it said, "are not advisable this year."

"General business prosperity during the first half of this year will maintain the domestic demand for the 1924 farm products yet to be marketed," the report continued, "and should stimulate the demand for the better grades of certain products.

"It is not assured, however, that the industrial improvement of the first half of 1925 will continue into 1926 at the same high level and should there be a reduction in business activity as a result of over-stimulation of business a slackened demand for some of the 1925 crops may be expected.

"The foreign market for most American farm products promised to be as good, as least, as during the past year."

"If there is an average world crop of wheat in 1925," the outlook report continued, " the present high price of wheat cannot be expected to prevail for the 1925 crop, although prices are expected to be better than in 1924.

"From present indications, ample credit for farming purposes will be advisable in most regions of the United States on more favorable terms. Interest rates are now somewhat lower than in recent years, and credit needed should be arranged for early in the season.

"The present tendency in industry points to stronger competition for farm labor during the spring and summer of 1925 than prevailed during 1924."

LIQUOR CONDITIONS ROTTEN IN YONKERS, ANDERSON SAYS

Yonkers, N. Y., Feb. 1.—William H. Anderson, former state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league, declared today in his first public utterance on the enforcement of prohibition since his release from Sing Sing, that liquor condition were "rotten" here.

His declaration was a comment on additional statements by Safety Commissioner Alfred Iles in Yonkers that federal prohibition agents are not going after the biggest violators of the prohibition amendment in Yonkers and that the town "is wide open on the liquor question."

"It is true liquor conditions are rotten in Yonkers," Mr. Anderson said. "That is a fact largely because New York state today has less protection against the illegal sale of liquor then any other state in America, and far less than it had even under the old Raines liquor tax law."

Commissioner Iles had charged that "these enforcement agents are a lot of fakirs."

When informed that R. Q. Merrick, divisional chief of the prohibition enforcement forces in New York, had been quoted as saying he never had heard of Iles and knew nothing of the complaints Iles claims to have filed, Commissioner Iles retorted.

"Give the whole bunch of them to Holley Clark in the federal attorney's office. I will give them to him if he wants them. Supposse the federal enforcement chief does not know me. Does he have to know a police commissioner before taking action to enforce the law?"

Y., to Marblehad, Mass., a distance of 275 nautical miles, with the course being down the sound from the LYarchmont Yach club, through Martha's Vineyard, Nantucket sound areund Cape Cod to Marblehead.

HULL OF STRANDED S-19 HAS BEEN DRAGGED 60 FEET

Ineyard Haven, Mass., Feb. 1.—The hopes of salvage workers for an early floating of the United States navy submarine S-19, stranded on an outer bar of Orlean harbor, Cape Cod, have been raised as a result of work carried out by wrecking crews in the wrecking crews in the heavy easterly storm of last Friday, it was disclosed today upon arrival here of the wrecking steamer Commissioner which has been assisting in operations at Orleans.

According to the salvage workers, the hull of the submarine was dragged sixty feet towards deeper water in the storm of Friday before one of the 15-inch hawsers parted. The submarine was driven shoreward again but is not now imbedded in sand, it was reported, and it is expected that the craft will be floated when conditions become more favorable. Power boat beach gear has been placed aboard the submarine and on shore, it was said.

ONE PASSENGER KILLED IN TRAIN WRECK IN ALABAMA

Memphis, Tenn., Feb. 1—One passenger was killed and about twenty other persons were injured when a Frisco passenger train, the Memphis-Atlanta express, northbound, was derailed several miles north of Winfield, Ala., early today, according to dispatches received here, stating that a baggage car, two day coaches and two sleepers left the rails and overturned.

Mrs. Elizabeth Northcutt, Lexington, Okla., was killed, Miss Sarah McFall, of Adamsville, Ala., and Charles Bernard, news agent, of Memphis, were seriously injured.

The passengers and a number of the injured arrived here late today on a relief train. Of the injured brought here, only Miss McFall and Bernard were seriously hurt.

The train was going about forty five miles an hour at the time of the derailment, caused by a broken rail, it was believed. The rail, which is thought to have broken under the weight of the train, was located a few feet south of a trestle about 250 feet long, but only five feet high, which spans a shallow stream. The baggage car, two coaches and two sleeping cars which left the rails were partially overturned on the trestle.

DOG TEAMS CARRYING ANTI-TOXIN TO NOME

Nome, Alaska, Feb. 1.—A number of dog teams and their drivers had been placed today at intervals a few miles apart on the trail into Nome to assist Leonard Seppalla, undefeated sleigh-musher of the north, in relaying diphtheria anti-toxin over the final reaches of their journey into Nome.

Late reports told of an unknown musher heading a team out of Kaltag Friday. At noon yesterday he had passed Old Woman, 50 miles north of Unalakik, and later reached Unalakik on North sound. After resting a short time to feed the dogs, he sped on toward Nome with his precious cargo of 300,000 units of anti-toxin. He has been ordered to keep going until he meets Seppalla.

Unalakik is approximately 200 miles by land, or 100 by cutting across Norton sound, from here.

Seppalla was warned not to attempt to cross Norton sound owing to the treacherous ice which has been breaking away and drifting seaward.

EXPECT NOMINATION OF STONE TO BE CONFIRMED

Washington, Feb. 1—A second favorable report on the nomination of Attorney General Stone to be a justice of the supreme court is forecast by a majority of the members of the senate judiciary committee when the nomination is reconsidered tomorrow.

Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, and other senators who are opposed to the action of the department of justice in presenting a conspiracy charge against Senator Wheeler, democrat, Montana, and other persons of that state to a District of Columbia grand jury instead of a grand jury in their own state have stated that they will interpose no further objection to the confirmation of Mr. Stone.

These senators expect to discuss the new Wheeler case in the senate, but say this will have no bearing on the question of the nomination. Senator Walsh, who is counsel for Senator Wheeler, plans to make his position clear in an address tomorrow, and Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, intends to speak on the question at some later time.

English Pianist Was Located With Friends

Her Disappearance is Said to Have Been Caused by a Nervous Breakdown.

New York, Feb. 1.—Ethel Leginska, English pianist, wh vanished last Monday night, has been found outside of New York city in the care of friends, the police announced today. Her present whereabouts were not revealed. Her disappearance is said to have been caused by a nervous breakdown due to overwork.

In announcing the finding of Miss Leginska, Capt. John Ayers of the bureau of missing persons here issued the following statement:

"Ethel Leginska was located Saturday at a place outside New York, where she is staying with friends. Her disappearance appeared to have been the direct result of a nervous breakdown caused by overwork.

"Her location was brought about through the work of the bureau of missing persons.

"Leginska remembers nothing from the time she left her secretary, Miss Lucille Olive, until she was located.

"On request of Miss Leginska, the location of her friends is withheld so that she will not be bothered by representatives of the press. Her friends also asked that no further statement be made by the police.

"So far as this bureau is concerned, the case is closed."

Miss Oliver is a close friend of the pianist and it was she who first reported the disappearance to the police.

Miss Oliver's story is that she and Miss Leginska started from their apartment to Carnegie hall, where Miss Leginska was to give a recital, and that while Miss Oliver went to get a taxicab Mirs Leginska disappeared.

Miss Leginska is generally conceded to be in the first rank of musicians. She is one of the few women who has successfully conducted orchestras.

Mrs. John Gordon, in whose apartment Miss Leginska and Miss Oliver lived, said today that Miss Oliver left for a short time yesterday and on her return said the pianist had been found. Miss Oliver then announced, Mrs. Gordon said, that she was going to join Miss Leginska and would return in two or three days.

NEED HAVE NO FEAR OF BOLSHEVIKS IN AMERICA

New Haven, Feb. 1.—"America has been needlessly alarmed about the number of bolsheviks in our midst," said Prof. Jerome Davis of Yale today at the first of four February forums in the Central Y. M. C. A. gymnasium.

"We do not know," the speaker said, "what the word bolshevik means. An analysis of 100 articles on the subject showed the term to be defined all the way from 'a dynamiting anarchist' to 'a sincere idealist.' If we take the meaning to be 'a revolutionist who wishes to overthrow our government by force,' then there are very few more. Some of the few there are have been created by their experiences on this side."

After intimate study of the lives of immigrants, Professor Davis says that in too many cases they are physically admitted to, but spiritually excluded from, the life of the republic. "We good Americans," he continued, "try to see that they do not live near us. We do not like it any too well if ordinary foreign laborers join our churches or clubs."

Professor Davis praised the work being done by the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A.

A quart bottle of alleged gin was found in the apartment, according to the police, and some empty bottles also were discovered. Fernandez is being held on a charge of violation of the liquor law and keeping a disorderly house. The others arrested were being held on charges of breach of the peace.

Deaths And Injuries in Coasting Accidents

Three Children Were Killed in the State During January.

Hartford, Feb. 1.—Coasting accidents resulted in the death or injury of 40 children in Connecticut during January, according to records on file at the state motor vehicle department, it was announced tonight. The reports show that three children, all under 10 years of age, were killed outright in the first 14 days of the month, and eight were seriously injured. The fatalities occurred in broad daylight on streets open to traffic in Bridgeport, Waterbury and Lebanon, and nearly all of the accidents, according to the report, were caused when sleds carrying children ran into or under the wheels of automobiles.

Incomplete statistics indicate that 75 children met death in Connecticut motor vehicle accidents during 1924 as compared with 70 automobile fatalities to children in the previous year. Children made up more than 25 per cent. of all the victims of fatal automobile accidents which occurred in the state in the year ending Dec. 31, the whole number of fatalities recorded at the capitol being 299, an increase of 13 over 1923. April, June and October were the worst months for fatalities for children.

The Playground and Recreation Association of America, of which Mrs Charles A. Goodwin of Hartford is a director for Connecticut, has appealed to the motor vehicle department for assistance in giving publicity to a campaign to take children out of the paths of danger by providing more playgrounds for them.

GOVERNMENT TO BEGIN RETIREMENT OF BONDS

Washington, Feb. 1—The treasury tomorrow begins the retirement of approximately $118,000,000 in four per cent. bonds of 1925, used by the National banks to secure their own note circulation.

Thus the first actual step will be taken in a program that provides for the ultimate extinction of the long used national bank notes and their replacement with federal reserve notes which, under the policy laid down by congress, is expected to give the nation the maximum in elasticity of currency.

Retirement of the $118,000,000 in federal securities will mean the retirement of an equal amount of national bank notes. Other national banks notes will be retired as the government bonds bearing the circulation privilege mature in 1930, 1936, an d1938, unless other arrangements are made by congress.

The public was advised of the course proposed by the treasury in an announcement of the program last July. That was done, Secretary Mellon said, to discourage speculation.

With the retirement of the four per cent. bonds of 1925, there still will remain outstanding: 2 per cent., consols of 1930 amounting to $599,724,050; 2 per cent. Panama Canal loan of 1916-1936 of a value of $48,954,180; and 2 per cent. Panama Canal loan of 1918-1938 aggregating $25,947,400, all bearing the circuiton privilege.

2-YEAR OLD WAIF FOUND WITH LETTER IN HIS CAP

New York, Feb. 1—With a letter tucked in his cap from his mother saying that she was "going to end it all," 2-year-old Jackie Karsten was found early this morning wandering quietly about the hallway of an east side tenement. The police could find no trace of either the father or mother of the child and he was turned over to the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Children.

In the letter, signed "Mrs. Karsten," the mother described her poverty, saying she had "no money to buy milk for Jackie," and that she was "tired of the life" she was living. The letter said the boy's father could be found at 216 East 56th street and that he had "plenty of money."

The police could find no trace of Karsten at the address given. In Mrs. Karsten's apartment the police found bureau drawers open and papers strewn about the floor.

Jackie was the only one of the four Karsten children who had been at home recently, according to the janitress. Several months ago two girls, 11 and 8 years, were placed in a private home upstate. The baby, a 3-months-old girl, was in the New York Foundling Asylum, the janitress said.

MAN POSING AS A FEDERAL AGENT KILLED IN HERRIN

Shooting Took Place in Hotel, Where the Victim Had Been Terrorizing the Employes—The Man Shot Had Been Endeavoring to Get in Touch With Klan Leaders—Policeman Killed the Imposter as the Latter Was Firing at Another Policeman—Sheriff Has Requested That Troops Be Returned to Herrin to Prevent Serious Outbreak.

Herrin, Ills., Feb. 1—(By the A. P.)—A man who had represented himself as a government agent and gave his name variously as Phillips and Johnson was shot dead early today in the Lymar Hotel by Policeman Rufus Whitson while he was seeking to get in touch with Klan leaders and newspapermen. In the shooting, another policeman, Sim Stepehns, was injured, but not seriously.

The man had two companions when he was slain, but they escaped they were not recognized by the officers who were present.

Phillips appeared in Herrin last night with two other men and began a search for Glenn Fowler, a close friend of Young's. Saturday night, he had tried to induce the numerous newspaper reporters in Herrin to cover the Young slaying, to help him find Ross Lisenby, a policeman, averring that Lisenby had been slain by Klansmen. He said that Lisenby, who had figured in the Young shooting, had taken refuge in the Herrin jail yesterday when the trouble had broken out between the Herrin chief of police and the Klan.

Phillips said that Lisenby had been taken from the jail and killed. The reporters refused to join in the search as they were convinced that Phillips and his companions had been drinking. Phillips then went to the hotel lobby and telephoned to Glenn Fowler to come to the hotel and be arrested. He told Fowler that he was an officer named Johnson and had brought a warrant from Springfield for his arrest. Fowler hung up the receiver and refused the invitation.

One of Phillips' companions had disappeared, but the other now aided him in forcing the night clerk of the hotel behind the cigar counter. The couple then entered the dining room, and ordered food, displaying revolvers to enforce the demand.

The disturbance attracted the attention of Policeman Stephens and he entered the lobby. He wrenched the pistol from Phillips' companion and started for the kitchen, where he was told that another man was terrorizing the hotel help.

At that moment Phillips entered the lobby and ordered Stephens to throw up his hands. Almost instantly, he fired at him, the bullet hitting the policeman in the shoulder. Stephens grappled with Phillips, who fired several more shots, none of which took effect. Most of the bullets hit the floor. The hotel employes and reporters fled.

Whitson attracted by the shots and a suspicious man he saw outside the hotel, slipped around go to the back door and shot Phillips through the heart before he could close on Stephens again. Phillips was still alive when doctors arrived, but soon died. His companion in the hotel and the man who had been outside escaped.

Phillips, when shot, wore a cap that belonged to Sheriff Galligan of Williamson county, and it was said that he called on the sheriff several times lately.

The sheriff, who had gone to the capital to confer with General Black about the need of troops, had said that Phillips had called several times, but did not divulge any particular business.

The shooting today came on the heels of the killing of S. Glenn Young and Deputy Sheriff Orn Thomas, who shot each other to death in the lobby o fthe European hotel a few days ago, as soon as their funerals had been held, a coroner's jury had returned a verdict that they killed each other, Sheriff Galligan requested that troops be returned to Herrin to prevent a serious outbreak.

Testimony that Judge E. N. Bowen of the Herrin City Court was seen Saturday in company with Phillips and that the judge pointed out Fowler to the stranger, was given in the inquest over the shooting here this afternoon.

The fact that the stranger had telephoned Fowler and attempted to persuade him to come to the hotel, coupled with the testimony at the inquest, was interpreted by Klansmen as meaning that a trap had been set for Fowler.

The jury was unable to determine the stranger's name or his home. It found that he came to his death from a gun shot wound inflicted by Whitson.

Fowler on the stand testified that Judge Bowen had driven by a garage where Fowler was standing Saturday and that he had pointed Fowler out to a stranger that was with him. Fowler said that the man with Bowen was the slain man.

Jack Eberhardt, who was with Fowler, gave substantially the same testimony and C. G. Copeland testified to having seen Bowen with the man. All identified the person seen with Bowen as the dead man.

Major R. W. Davis and Lieutenants Eugene Hansman an dM. D. Boulden late today reported to Adjutant General Black at Springfield that things were quiet here. The request of Sheriff Galligan for martial law had not, however, been withdrawn. Latest information here was that the sheriff had gone to Springfield to confer personally with Governor Small and General Black.

The city council at its meeting tomorrow night is expected to take up the request for martial law as well as the whole Herrin police question. Reports are that the council will depose Chief of Police Matt Walker, his son, Harry Walker, and Officers Lisenby, all appointed with Klan sanction, but now said to be opposed to the Klan.

The council is said to be favorable to the Klan, and it was reported that the body intended to restore John Ford as police chief, the place he held until unseated with the consent of the Klan to make room for Walker.

Another question for the council is the status of Policeman Harold Crain who was discharged by Chief Walker last week, bringing about a refusal to step out, a denunciation of the chief by a Klan leader and the request of Sheriff Galligan for martial law after the situation had been reported to him by Chief Walker.

SPEND IN FRANCE ALL MONEY COUNTRY PAYS ON WAR DEBT

New York, Feb. 1.—France should be assisted in paying her war debt to this country by a provision that the money paid back to the United States be spent exclusively in France, James W. Gerard, former ambassador to Germany, said in an address today.

"This is nothing less than fair," Mr Gerard said, "as it was for war supplies, food and ships France bought from us that she incurred the debt."

By the former ambassador's plan, France would print special currency notes good only if spent in this country. These would be sent to the United States treasury and sold to American merchants at slightly less than the prevailing exchange rate.

In his address Mr. Gerard touched on conditions generally in Europe. He said, referring to the effects of sovietism, that Europe is today in a situation in many respects similar to that which followed the French revolution. He declared that the movements led in Spain, by Revera and in Italy by Mussolini were reactions to sovietism and that he believes both men will disappear when they have accomplished their work.

In Russia, he said, the same actior is bringing people of property back to power.

"Germany," he declared, "will soor be on her feet commercially and when she is she will be one of our strongest competitors for world trade. Already she is making considerable commercial progress in Mexico and South American countries."

In Germany's efforts to regain her place in commerce, Mr. Gerard said she handicapped by her unstable government.

Mr. Gerard said that England's exchange rate is almost normal and he predicted that when normal exchange is reached there will be a rush of English capital for purchase of securities in this country.

PROSPECT OF FLOATING STRANDED S-48 TODAY

Portsmouth, N. H., Feb. 1.—Salvaging operations on the U. S. navy submarine S-48, which went aground at Little Harbor in a blizzard Thursday night had progressed so successfull under ideal conditions today that naval authorities said that the craft would probably be floated tomorrow and brought to the dry dock at the Kittery navy yard for repairs. Work on the submarine was being continued tonight.

A floating derrick from the navy yard under the direction of Commander H. E. Saunders early this morning was towed from the navy yard to a position alongside the S-48. A fire engine pumped on the hold of the submarine and air pressure was applied to check leaking in the forward plates which were stove in when the boat hit the ledge off Fort Stark.

Members of the S-48 crew who had been discharged from the navy yard hospital, assisted in the salvaging work. Lieut. Commander Stewart E. Bray, who was in command of the submarine when she went ashore, another officer and several men were still in the hospital recovering from effects of exposure and inhaling escaping chlorine gas. They are expected, however, to be discharged from the hospital tomorrow.

Divers will examine the submarine's bow plates tomorrow morning to determine whether it will be necessary to patch her forward plates before towing her to the navy yard or whether it is likely that air pressure will hold the leaks.

POSS TO BE SACRIFICED— WOULD NOT BE COERCED

(Special to the Bulletin)

Willimantic, Feb. 1—Talk of the proposed change in the officials of the local police court stirred interest to a high pitch in political and private circles Saturday, following the announcement that the name of Otto B. Robinson had been entered in a bill before the legislature for appointment as judge of the court. Representative Charles B. Pomeroy who stated that he presented the bill on the request of the local branch of the W. C. T. U., made it known that it also had the backing of the Republican town committee. Thereby hangs a tale!

It appears that Prosecuting Attorney Samuel B. Harvey has been the real mark for removal by the civic and political bodies. Two years ago a liquor violation case came up before Judge Foss and he imposed a jail sentence on the accused. An appeal was taken to the superior court and as a result of the alleged efforts of Prosecuting Attorney Harvey and State's Attorney Charles E. Searls the jail sentence was nullified.

The Willimantic Ministers' Union and the W. C. T. U. immediately took up the war cry and condemned Attorney Harvey, placing him forever on the condemned list. At the same time they endorsed Judge Foss and it generally appears that he was filling the bill as judge to the satisfaction of all. The first actual step taken for the removal of Prosecuting Attorney Harvey was in the form of a bill introduced in the legislature a few days ago providing that the judge have the privilege of appointing as his prosecuter a man of his own or any other political creed, doing away with the former requirement that the prosecutor should be of opposite political faith from the judge. This was a scheme intended to remove Harvey, who is a democrat. Foss is a republican and according to one politician interested, he was given a "chance." He was informed that Harvey was not approved, and then was asked to inform the political body as to his choice of a prosecutor if he continued to be judge. It is alleged that Foss refused to commit himself and for fear he would re-appoint Harvey the W. C. T. U. and the Republican committee took steps to remove him also.

Evidently Foss' proposed removal is not grounded on any laxity in the execution of the law, and Harvey's disposal centers about the disposition of liquor cases. Should the bills relative to the police court pass as introduced the officials of the police court will very likely appear in the following arrangement after May 1, next: Judge, Otto B. Robinson; deputy judge, Curtis Dean; prosecuting attorney, Harry S. Gaucher; assistant prosecutor, Frank P. Fenton. Fenton is a democrat and present assistant.

Frank H. Foss has retained the office of judge since 1917 when he was appointed to succeed the late James A. Shea. For a long period after the death of Judge Shea Frank P. Fenton had been acting as judge of the court. The name of Judge Foss was presented in the legislature four times, twice by republican representatives and twice by democrats, but this year his name was not presented by any individual, organization or by the local republican party to either representative for endorsement.

DANIELSON

Mildred Nystrom, 7, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Nystrom of 24 Mechanic street remained in a semi-conscious condition Sunday afternoon. Dr. W. H. Judson, who has been attending her since she was injured Saturday morning, when struck by an automobile of the Gulf Refining company, driven by Olin Badger of 95 Hope street, Willimantic, said Sunday afternoon that the little girl was suffering from concussion of the brain. It was anticipated Sunday that the injured child would show some improvement within a day or two.

A witness of the accident said that the child dashed out from the sidewalk opposite Dowe's store to cross the street just as Mr. Badger was coming north at a very moderate speed in the car he was driving. Main street was deeply rutted, a fact that hampered Mr. Badger in his frantic efforts to swerve the car and avoid striking the little girl. The machine finally did leave the ruts and ran up on the sidewalk in front of the Spa but in the meantime the front end of the car, or some part of it, had knocked down the girl and she lay in the street unconscious.

C. Clinton Cleveland, of the post-office force, who saw the accident, rushed to Mr. Badger's assistance and they took the injured child to the office of Dr. W. H. Judson, where she was given attention, and afterwards was removed to her home.

Chief John McFarland interviewed Mr. Badger, taking the necessary statement of facts relative to the accident, but did not hold him. The accident was another of the many of that class which appear unavoidable—a child dashing out from the sidewalk in the path of an oncoming machine and then the struggle to avoid a crash. In this instance, though the machine was proceeding very slowly, the ruts in the ice that covered the street operated to reduce the driver's chances of avoiding an accident.

After years of operating motion picture houses, wherein he has shown thousands of films, John F. Lewis, former owner of the Orpheum theatre, is out on the Pacific coast enjoying close intimacy with the making of pictures of the gelatine stars and get an inside view of how the wheels go around in that industry. Because of his acquaintance with numbers of men now high in the industry, Mr. Lewis is enjoying exceptional opportunities to get where few visitors ever have a chance to venture, and he tells something of his experiences around the studios in a letter just received by his daughter, Mrs. Lena Shippee, excerpts from the letter being presented herewith:

"Went out to the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios at Culver City, and you know that I know Mr. Mayer, who is about the greatest movie man there is now, I think, and who has charge of the place where we went yesterday. We went on Mr. Mayer's invitation. The manager of the office sent a man through the place with us while they were shooting scenes for a picture that will be named The Merry Widow, and which they have been working on for eight weeks and is now nearly finished. Mae Murray is the star. Our guide took us right in amongst about two hundred people all costumed for parts in the production. The gowns of the ladies were magnificent and the men were in evening dress or army uniforms. It was all very impressive. We stood within four or five feet of camera where Miss Murray was making a close-up scene, so I was within ten feet of her, and it was a wonderful sight with all the splendor of the set and the people who were in it.

"We covered the entire studio territory during our visit. It includes a great many acres, all built up with property buildings as big at the Connecticut mills, office buildings, power plant, dressing rooms for the stars Other acres were covered with buildings that were only fronts—of every kind and description from a cottage to a great mansion, temples, public buildings, streets representing a section of New York, or some foreign city, as the case might me. What we saw is what very few people see who are not in pictures. The whole thing was wonderful and big beyond description."

In more that is of a personal nature Mr. Lewis tells of the delights of his visiting about in Los Angeles among picture stars and those who know them. To Mr. Lewis, so long engaged as an exhibitor, the treat is a real one.

Sunday's mild weather contributed something to clearing the highways bereabouts of the accumulation of ice that has made traveling over them something of a hazard for several days. At various points in the borough deep ruts add to the troubles of drivers of all kinds of vehicles and detract much from their normal temperaments.

N. A. Witter returned Saturday night from a brief winter journey to Florida. Mr. Witter spent two days at Miami and visited the remarkably fine new racing plant opened there about two weeks ago. He found Miami jammed, crammed full of people, anxious, apparently, to be where Florida gets much of its advertising from and bales of money from people who journey thither from other states. At the race course that is getting so much publicity just now Mr. Witter found a stampede of those who wanted to get their money down on the ponies, and he mentions that women, betting haphazard and recklessly were offering their beautiful fur neck pieces, silk umbrellas and various adornments to those who would lend money on them so they could bet some more. Perhaps this isn't the best of advertising for a town where a second rate boarding house charges $8 per night for a room and where a man and his wife and a child were charged $35 a night for sleeping accommodations in a hotel rating far from first class, but it is a picture of the southland that may console in some degree those who have to spend their winters amidst the snow and sleet and zero temperatures of New England, about the most sensible part of the nation there is left, if we have to say it right out in public.

In going about Florida from city to city during the time he spent in that state during January, Mr. Witter found that one of the big enterprises now engaging the attention of hundreds is the selling of real estate. In some towns there is a realtor's office every other door, and those employed therein walk right out and take you by the arm in their enthusiasm over selling you a lot that is very pleasantly situated—when the tide is out.

Everything considered, it would appear to a northerner that the only chance to get even is to invite them up here next summer and sell them something for just half what they might expect to pay.

It was possible during the warmer hours of Sunday to remove from many sidewalks in Danielson the accumulation of ice that has covered them for a week, and many took advantage of the opportunity.

Among the complaints of the day are those dealing with the matter of having clothing spattered with slush and water from automobiles operated by inconsiderate drivers who are going nowhere, and are in a hurry to get there.

Encouraging is the report from one of the big cotton manufacturing concerns of the town of Plainfield that the mill's output is sold for the season and that the outlook for continued good orders is promising.

Sunday just after the noon hour an alarm from Box 13 called out the fire department for a chimney blaze at the home of Sidney Perry on Prospect street, in the Riverview section. The fire was controlled before any damage resulted to the home.

This week will bring further eliminations in the billiard and pool tournaments that are providing interest for the members of the Bohemian club, into which a number of new members will be proposed at the monthly meeting this week.

Figuring up income tax returns is one of the pastimes of these February days, and the task is concerning not a few of Danielson's citizens.

ABOUT 1,500 CHECKS ARE STILL UNCALLED FOR

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Putnam, Feb. 1.—About 1,000 checks representing deposits slightly over $10,000 remain uncalled for at the First National bank. During the two weeks in which clerks have been distributing the dividend checks, 2,500 of the vouchers have been called for by creditors of the bank. In these 2,500 checks about $550,000 was paid out to depositors. At no time since payment of the forty percent dividend was begun has there been any rush on the part of creditors and now they come in but a few for each day.

Receiver George M. Coffin, who is supervising the distribution of the checks, states that creditors of the bank who live out of town and cannot easily get to Putnam, may receive their checks by mail if they will write him to that effect.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Bimbo at Palace Theatre

The last theatrical season welcomed what had been known as one of the biggest hits of the year. It was an amateur production in reality but there were few who saw it who would have thought so had they been strangers in the city. The fact that the members of the cast were well known residents of this community only caused it as an amateur attempt. The staging, equipment such as costumes and scenery, and the actual performing of the huge cast were professional in every manner, shape and form. The producers of this play were congratulated on every side and for a long time the show was the talk of the town. Getting down to "brass tacks" the Robert O. Fletcher Post No. 4, American Legion made an enviable reputation with the above mentioned show which was a John B. Rees production entitled "Kathleen."

News that the local Legion post is going to repeat last year's endeavor with an entirely new production was welcomed by those who are interested in getting an evening's entertainment that is worth while. Rehearsals for the new play are now well under way and in a day or two a cast of unsurpassed talent is to be announced. Over 150 persons are to appear in the production which is of a revue nature and yet retains the musical comedy atmosphere with an interesting story. "Bimbo" is the name of the new show and the details of the production are being, more or less, kept in the dark. "Bimbo" is to be presented in the Palace theatre on the evenings of February 10 and 11 and the next week will be devoted to strenuous work on the part of both talen and those in charge.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Capitol Theater Hartford

Feodor, Chaliapin, the most famous of living bassos, and one of the outstanding figures in the musical world of today, is to sing in concert at the Capitol Theater, Hartford, Sunday afternoon February 8th, tickets may be secured at Robert Kellogg's office, 38 Asylum street, Hartford. Phone 5-4000.

Feodor Chaliapin's earliest memories are of his mother singing. She was gentle and kind. The only influence of this kind in his early life when he was five, it became necessary to move into one room over a blacksmith shop. Everything about the shop of course, fascinated the boy. Chaliapin says that today he could re-produce that shop in exactness. Sometimes his mother would be singing upstairs and the blacksmith would join singing a duet. This was his introduction to two part music. It held him spellbound. He could not understand how two people could sing separately and yet have it sound so beautifully. At seven he was apprenticed to a cobbler. He was intensely curious and one day got into the opera. Here was a world where people sang to each other, rather than talked. No harsh words were spoken. He became a constant theater goer, much to the displeasure of his parents. He was apprenticed to a woodcarver in a small village far from all theaters. Needless to say he did not stay. He was successful in getting into a church choir, where the master began teaching him.

Strand Theater

Nothing but praise was heard from the capacity audience at the Strand last night upon leaving this popular theater. The program consisted of two new features each one an attraction in its self but the Strand management believes in giving to its patrons quantity and quality combined. Richard Talmadge in his latest screen production Laughing at Danger is a feature which should please the most ardent film fan. Laughing at Danger also has plenty of comedy at the same time carries a pleasing story all the way through. You hardly have time to say Laughing at Danger was a good picture when East Side West Side another six reel feature is shown. In East Side West Side Eileen Percy and Kenneth Harlan, are the feature players in this story of life in the world's greatest city—New York. Abounding in many thrills it depicts life on the east side as well as the west side of that

Siege of Belgrade

An Austrian army awfully arrayed,
Boldly by battery besieged Belgrade,
Cossack commanders cannonading come,
Dealing devastation's dire destructive doom.
Every endeavor engineers essay
For fame, for free, fighting fierce furious fray!
Generals 'gainst generals grapple—gracious God!
How honors Heaven heroic hardihood!
Infuriate, indiscriminate in ill,
Just Jesus! Instant innocence instill,
Kindred kill kinsmen, kinsmen kindred kill.
Labor low levels longest, loftiest lines;
Men march midst mounds, moles, mountains, murderous mines;
Now noxious, noisy numbers notice naught
Of outward obstacles, o'ercoming ought;
Poor patriots perish, persecution's pest!
Quite quiet Quakers, "Quarter, quarter!" quest.
Reason returns, religion, right redounds,
Sorrow stop such sanguinary sounds!
Truce to thee, Turkey! Terror to thy train!
Unwise, unjust, unmerciful Ukraine!
Vanish vile vengeance! vanish victory vain!
Why wish we warfare? Wherefor welcome were Xerxes, Ximenes, Xanthus, Xavier?
Yield, ye young Yaghier yeoman, yield your yell!
Zeus's, Zarpater's, Zoroaster's zeal
Again attarcts; arts against amrs appeal.

The Brotherhood

He was a heavy-browed, firm-looking man,
And when he came to till the farm
Beside my father's,
We children were half-scared of him.
We could not tell just why,
But in the manner children will affect,
We were afraid,—
Because.

But when the winter softened to the spring,
And spring had mellowed to the joyous June,
And haying-time had come,
This man, in mowing his green, waving fields,
Left splotches of the grass uncut,
Here, there, about the meadows,
Wherever his keen, sympathetic eyes
Could find the nest of bobolink or lark.

And since that time we have been fond of him,
And he of us; for they that love the birds
And little peoples of the field,
Will treat with kindliness their brother man.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKES

Lately Uncle Jed has received in his mail a number of letters from boys and girls who neglect to sign their names and addresses to the letters. Some of the letters have been exceptionally good ones and worthy of prize books but as the writers did not sign their names Uncle Jed did not know from whom they came and of course could not place the names in the prize winning list.

Sometimes young writers sign their names but do not give their addresses. Quite often writers who live in cities like New London and Willimantic neglect to put down their street addresses. This sometimes makes it difficult to address the prize books properly. For instance the writer of a prize winning letter might sign himself as John Smith, New London. Now there might be a dozen John Smiths living in New London and the mail man wouldn't know to just what John Smith to deliver the prize book to.

Members of the Wide Awake Circle who send in letters should always make sure that their name is signed, and should wherever possible give the street they live on and the number of their house. They should also make sure that the town or city they live in is also given in the letters.

STORIES WRITTEN BY WIDE-AWAKES

The School Lunch

Dear Uncle Jed: At the Learned school the children have hot lunch at noon. Mr. Floyd, the supervisor loaned the school a three burner oil-stove. Mr. Robbins loaned the school an enamelware kettle, spoons, cup and washboiler.

Cocoa was first bought by the teachers. Later it was paid for by the sale of cocoa. The milk is brought by Sylvester Wade whose father owns a large farm.

The children used canned tomato or vegetable soup. The children did not like the soup so they had it only one week.

Some pupils bring their own cocoa or food from home in tight bottles or jars to be warmed. Water is poured into the wash-boiler until it is three or four inches deep at the bottom, then the jars or bottles are put in and heated.

The price per cup of cocoa is two cents, for the soup three cents.

SOPHIE HOSPOD, Age 12.
Versailles.

The Study of Graphite

Dear Uncle Jed: I am writing you a story on a topic which we study in school. Graphite is a mineral sometimes called black lead which is a wrong title for it contains no lead.

It is steel gray in color and soft and greasy. It contains from ninety to ninety-five per cent carbon and from four to ten per cent iron.

It is used for many purposes such as, linings for small furnaces, polishes for stoves and grates, melting pots, crucibles and it is most important for lead pencils.

We find graphite in the following places, South America, Austria, Ceylon, North Brookfield, Brimfield and Hinsdale, Mass., Brandon, Vt., Germany and France.

The Aardvark

Dear Uncle Jed: I have never written to you or the Wide Awakes so I will tell you about the Aardvark because I though you would be interested in it. Its total length is about five feet of which the tail is about one foot and nine inches long. It has a catching tongue, a piglike nose and a tubular mouth.

On the fore feet are four claws and the hind feet have five claws. They are used in burrowing for ants. When it is chased it can burrow itself out of sight in a few seconds working with such rapidity it is almost impossible to dig it out again.

Its home is a burrow in the ground near the shore line or near the river edge. It is found in the southern part of Africa.

STELLA KONARSKY, Age 12.

Lost in the Wheat Field

Dear Uncle Jed: Once upon a time there lived a kind lady who had two children. Their names were Mary and William. I remember so plain, that one day Mary and William ran away from home without their mother's consent. They wandered here and there looking for a place to hide. William spied a wheatfield near by, and he said, let us go ever there and hide, and so they did. They walked and walked until they got about in the middle of the field, when Mary said, "Let us go home now," and William said, "Yes, let us go."

They walked and walked until their little feet were so tired that they could not go a step farther. They cried for help and their father heard them. He ran where the voice came from. He took the children in his arms and carried them safely home. They never ran away from home again.

A New Year's Ride

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about my trip to Massachusetts. New Year's day we went to my aunt's and had dinner there. At night my sister and I went with my cousin to the show. She also gave me some books and games and a doll. My doll's name is Margaret. She has a pink dress. My cousin is making some dresses for my doll now.

Something About Codfish

Dear Uncle Jed: I want to tell you and the Wide Awakes something about codfish. Today in order to catch large quantities of cod it is necessary to go far from land. Men go out in two masted sailing vessels or schooners. When they leave port they expect to be gone for weeks and to travel many hundreds of miles. They carry either salt or ice with which to keep the fish. Among the most important fishing grounds are those off the north eastern coast of North America. They are called the Banks of Newfoundland.

Instead of hooks and lines used long nets are often used and so many fish are sometimes caught in these nets that the boats are soon filled with them. The regular period of fishing does not commence before April on account of the storms, ice, and fogs. The season lasts till the end of June, when the cod begin their migrations.

Codfish are very useful to man both fresh and salted.

I hope the Wide Awakes will enjoy my story.

Has Big Doll

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about my doll I received for Christmas. It has black hair and black eyes. It is a big doll too.

My cousin gave it to me for Christmas. She also gave me some books and games. I love my doll.

THELMA NEWMAN, Age 6.

A False Fright

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have ever written you. I am going to tell you a real true story. One day my mother came down stairs early. Bing (our dog) got out of his basket and came toward her. His head and tail were all covered with what looked like foam. She thought he had hydrophobia. In the hall and in the living and dining rooms feathers were tracked all over. Then my mother knew that what she thought was foam was feathers from Bing's pillows in his bed.

The Christmas Package

Dear Uncle Jed: I have received the book you sent me and I am thanking you very much for it. I have started reading it and find it very interesting. I am writing another story entitled, The Christmas Package and An Imported Letter.

There once lived a little girl who was very poor. She lived in a log cabin with her mother. They lived far from any other house. This little girl's name was Marion.

FREDERICK L. RAY

Mr. Ray whose home is in East Haddam not only feeds the birds in winter when ice and snow make it difficult for them to find food but also makes friends with the feathered folk. The picture shows one of Mr. Ray's many bird friends voluntarily standing on his hand. How does Mr. Ray do it. In his own words he gains their confidence and never abuses it. Kindness will accomplish more than a trainload of clubs with such little pets, he says. Mr. Ray has also made friends with the squirrels that live near his home. They are so friendly with him that they climb all over him and sit on his shoulders.

Every morning Marian had to go out and get some wood. It was now nearly winter. She was poor and of course had not any warm clothes. She received a Christmas package. When they opened it they found some presents. It was just what Marian wanted, a dress, and a coat and everything nice for her mother and her. "This must come from a fairy," said her mother. "I should think so," said Marian. All of a sudden Marian spied something white at the bottom of the box. She took it out and found it was a letter. The letter was addressed to Marian.

Quickly she opened it. This is what it read. Just presents from somebody you have forgotten. You will soon find out who. "I wonder from who," said Marian.

Two weeks later Marian was still wondering who had sent it. One day as she was coming from the woods she saw a large car coming along the road. Where do you think it stopped? Right in front of Marians house. Marian ran. In the car was a rich lady. She got out and went into the house. Marians mother was surprised when she told them it was their aunt and she was the one that sent the package. They didn't know what to say. Later the rich lady took them to Paris where she lived and gave them a house to live in.

Wants to Be a Doctor

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about the study I like best in school. I like physiology the best. I like it because it tells about all parts of the body and how it works. It tells about the muscles and the delicate organs of the body. It tells about how one should exercise daily and what foods they can eat to keep well. I like this study very much and hope to be a doctor some day.

Books I Have Read

Dear Uncle Jed: I have not written to you before. I am going to tell you what our supervisor told us. He asked us how many books we had all read this school year. Then he told us what we could do. He said that we could make a book and write the names of all the books, with the authors we had read during the school year. Our teacher is going to show us how to make a booklet. In this booklet we are going to write what we like best about these books.

The Slide

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to you. I am going to tell you about the slide I had. When I was running in the school yard I slipped on the ice and thought it was funny. Tuesday I slipped the same way only there was water on the ice and I got wet.

In the school yard there is a mound made from the plowing which had been done there. When the snow covers this and it freezes we have a lot of fun sliding.

Kitten On the Keys.

Dear Uncle Jed: I have been very interested in reading the Wide Awake circle. I am going to tell you about my angora kitten. She is white and I call her Daisy. She is not one year old yet. But she is very smart. She can open the doors as fast as you can shut them. She runs and jumps up in the chair when the telephone rings.

She runs across the keys on the piano and makes it play. Everybody that sees her try to pet her but she will not let any one pet her. She is very angry.

I had one once before and she was drowned in a well. I am in the third grade.

Dorothea Dix

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I've written to you and I hope the Wide Awakes will enjoy reading my story.

Dorothea Dix, an American patriot, was born April 4, 1802 at Hampden, Maine. Her father was very poor. At twelve years of age she ran away from home and went to her grandmothers, where she attended school until she was nineteen. Then she became a teacher. Finally her health failed her. She then went to England for her health. When she came back from England she made her home in Washington. After that she went to prison and asylums and had the people released from the great heavy chains. She devoted her life to the sick, poor and unfortunate.

The Sheep and The Wolf

Dear Uncle Jed: I am seven years old and I am in the second grade. I love my teacher very much.

The other day she told us a story about the sheep and the wolf. The sheep went to the brook to drink. A wolk saw him and ran after the sheep. He caught the sheep and ate him all up.

Christmas Day

Dear Uncle Jed: I do not know how it was but Christmas morning I woke at four oclock. I ran downstairs and lo and behold the tree was covered with presents. We had 14 to dinner and we had turkey which I enjoyed very much.

Santa remembered us all very generously and we had a very Merry Christmas. This is my first letter to you.

Her First Letter

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to you. Once I went to Pachaug fair and I rode on a pony, and a billy goat. I go to school every day and I am in the third grade I like to read your letters and the little Jack Rabbit stories.

ARLEN E. DOWNING, Age 7.

Lost in the Hayloft

Dear Uncle Jed: I thought you would probably like to hear my story, "Lost in the Hayloft." One bright summer day I went over to my chums' house. I played with them for a long time outdoors. Finally Doris said, "Come on in the barn." We went and looked at the horse and then we went up in the hayloft. I got upon a large beam and jumped into the hay. I played some games with Doris, Dorothy, Harry and Howard. Finally I got on a high beam and jumped, landing with great force in hay. I went in farther than I expected and the hay was all over me. It struck in my face and in my clothing. When I did not come up Dorothy shouted, "Mildred, where are you." "I am over here," I answered. At length she found me and helped me out of the hay. We jumped in the hay some more. We played that we were, "rabbits," and some of us were hawks. We played with the kittens and dolls afterwards. We played, "house," and, "tea." Finally it was half past four and I went home. I have gone to Doris' many times but I didn't jump in the hay again. Many times we went blackberrying. I hope you like my story, Uncle Jed.

MILDRED TUBBS, Age 10.
Fort Point.

Sewing School

Dear Uncle Jed: Every Saturday afternoon a friend and myself go to sewing school. We make all sorts of useful things and have a nice time too.

When Christmas came my father and mother gave me a sewing cabinet with all kinds of sewing things in it.

MILDRED BRODEUR, Age 10.
Norwich.

The Ovenbird

Dear Uncle Jed: I thought I would write and tell you about the ovenbird. The Ovenbird often called Golden-crowned Thrush on account of its thrush-like appearance, is really a warbler, though in color and habits it is very different from the brightly colored arboreal species. The Ovenbird feeds on the ground where it walks about, prettily bobbing its head at each step. Its song resembles the word "teacher" repeated about eight times in rapid succession, each "teacher" louderthan the preceding. In May and June this song may be heard in every woodland, for the ovenbird is very generally distributed. It has also a much more musical flight song, given usually above the tree tops. The nest is a domed structure of grass and leaves, placed on the ground. It is from the fancied resemblance of the nest to an old-fashioned Dutch oven that the name ovenbird is derived.

As I have not written for some time I though it was about time I wrote. I hope many enjoyed sliding this last ice storm and will see the coming eclipse. Hoping all the Wide Awakes are well.

MARY LOTTA MAYNARD, Age 13.
Norwich Town.

Cornelia's Jewels

Dear Uncle Jed: In the Capitoline Museum at Rome, is the base of a statue bearing this inscription, Cornelia, Mother of the Gracchi. This base is a part of a monument erected to the memory of the celebrated Roman matron, Cornelia daughter of Scipio Africanus the Younger, and mother of the two distinguished Roman patriots, Tiberius and Cainus Graccis. After the death of her husband she refused numerous offers of marriage, including one from King Ptolemy, and devoted herself exclusively to the education of her children. For this her lofty spirits and her efforts produced extraordinary results.

One day a lady visited her and asked to see her jewels. Whereupon Cornelia called her two sons and presenting them said, "Here are my only jewels."

RENA GAUMOND, Age 12.

Looked More Like a Scarecrow

Dear Uncle Jed: One summer day some boys and girls played on the bank of the Shetucket river. I was with them. My cousin found a big grasshopper and he said, I'm going to see if grasshoppers can swim. He ran down the bank and took a big jump and 'splash' he landed in the river. When he came out he looked like a scarecrow. We all laughed.

HEDWIG STRENKOWSKI, Age 11.

Outdoor Sports

Dear Uncle Jed: All week long I was planning on having a good time sliding Saturday. As it had rained Friday and spoiled my sliding I was much disappointed. Seeing a large pond made by the rain in the yard I got a tub and a paddle and sailed around on it and enjoyed myself very much.

FRANCES HIGGINS, Age 10.

How I Earned Money

Dear Uncle Jed: As this is Thrift Week I want to tell you how I have earned money, and what I have done with it. When I was about nine years of age I earned thirty cents a day at a butcher market delivering goods. In winter he gave me two dollars and fifty cents a week. When summer came he gave me five dollars. I put a dollar and fifty in the bank. I kept fifty cents for myself.

After about six months later my brother taught me how to shine shoes. I told my mother that I will play fair and give her the shoe shine money and I keep the tips. After a time I got a job in a barber shop. The barber gave me $6.50 a week. In winter he gave me $3 a week. Last Christmas I started a Christmas Club of 25c a week. Since I have been banking I have about $65 in the bank.

My Pet Cat

Dear Uncle Jed: I thought I would write about my pet cat. My cat is yellow and white and is a male cat. He has yellow eyes too. His name is Rusty. He is very faithful. My pet cat is a very good hunter. He will catch mice and rats and will bring them to me before Rusty will eat the game that he has caught. He came from New London when he was two months old. Rusty's mother was black, yellow and white. She had three other baby kittens besides him. She had one yellow kitten besides Rusty and I do not know what color the other two were. My pet cat will jump upon my father's shoulder and will sit down and will begin to purr. When he stands upon his hind legs he can look over our kitchen table. Sometimes he will stand up and cuff himself. When he hears our cat fighting with neighbors cats Rusty will run for a hiding place. He generally goes on top of the roof of the house and stays. When we let out our hens and chickens he likes to chase them. I think he is a very faithful cat, don't you?

The Hunter is Hunted

By Thornton W. Burgess

As unto others you may do
'Tis well it should be done to you.
—Old Mother Nature

When Shadow the Weasel snapped his wicked little jaws together almost on the tip of the tail of Timmy the Flying Squirrel, he snarled with disappointment. It threw him into a bad temper. "I'm out of luck," muttered Shadow. "I've got no chance of catching that fellow now. He must have heard me. It is provoking to come so near catching a dinner and then missing it. I'll have a look inside his house anyway."

Shadow was dodging for his life

So Shadow popped in through the little round entrance and then wished he hadn't. You see, inside the scent of Timmy the Flying Squirrel was strong, and it made Shadow hungrier than ever and simply increased his disappointment. He had just a wee bit of hope that he might find Mrs. Timmy in there. But he didn't find any one. He found only a nice, soft bed. If he hadn't just had a nap and hadn't been so hungry he might have been tempted to curl up there.

Out he popped as quickly as he had popped in, and started down that tall stump. He was half way down when his always watchful eyes caught sight of something that caused him to dodge around the other side of the stump in quicker time than it takes to tell about it. As it was he was barely in time. Hooty the Owl just missed clutching him in those great curved claws of his.

Now, big as he is and broad as his wings are, Hooty the Owl can turn in the air with surprising quickness. In a flash he had turned and swooped again at Shadow on the other side of that stump. Again Shadow dodged just in time.

Shadow was dodging for his life. Had any of the other little people been in his place they would have been dreadfully frightened. But instead of being filled with fear, Shadow the Weasel was filled with anger. Yes, sir, it made him very angry to be hunted in this way. Around and around that stump he dodged. He couldn't keep that up forever. What should he do? If he jumped down and ran Hooty might catch him before he could reach a hiding place. Then he remembered Timmy's home up above him.

"The very place," muttered Shadow. And as he dodged he began to climb upward. At last he reached the little round entrance to Timmy's home. In he popped once more. He was safe now from Hooty the Owl.

Now wouldn't you suppose he would have been very, very thankful to have escaped? He wasn't thankful. He was angrier than ever. How he did snarl and spit as he peeped out of that doorway! He was a prisoner. He couldn't leave there as long as Hooty the Owl remained around. He hated being a prisoner, even for a short time. He, who was so fond of hunting others, was himself being hunted and he didn't like it. But how the other little people would have rejoiced could they have known about it! It would have done their hearts good.

Burdick, pastor of Pawcatuck Seventh Day Baptist church, Westerly, announced in his service Saturday morning that that day was the 31st anniversary of his taking up the pastorate of the church, he having come to Westerly from the First Hopkinton church in Ashaway. The Westerly Caledonian Society held its annual Burns night observance in Westerly town hall Friday evening with a concert and dance in honor of the 166th anniversary of "Bobbie" Burns. Every seat in the house was taken, the majority of the audience being of Scotch birth or descent.

An added number to the programme was the Irish jig in costume, by the Misses Barr, Mearns and Jack Meldrum, which followed the Sailor's Hornpipe. The Lotus Male Quartette has an enviable reputation and their work Friday night proved it to be justified. They were most generous with encores. Following the entertainment dancing was enjoyed to music by the Sutcliffe and Crandall orchestra.

STONINGTON

The waterfront of Stonington was lashed by the terrific storm at the week end. Boats were torn from their moorings and sunk. A dock and bulkheads were washed away and the high tides filled cellars of houses near the shore.

The tide rose very high under the influence of the northeast wind Friday morning. The sea was so rough that the fishing fleet remained tied up. Streets and sidewalks are coated with ice. Numerous accidents have been reported as a result of the storm.

The power pleasure boat, Eleanor owned by Louis Pontiez, keeper of Stonington light, was torn from her mooring and dashed on the short. The craft was moored just around the point on the east side of the borough. The owner put down a double anchor Thursday evening in view of the high wind, but the craft tore away from her mooring and anchor and was dashed on the shore, being a total loss. It was a motor driven boat about 25 feet long.

Marino Vivever of School street, while on his way to work at the Atwood Machine Co.'s plant Friday morning, fell on the icy sidewalks and got a bad cut on the back of his head.

The fishing boat Nancy C., owned by John Manice, broke away from her moorings at the Berry wharf Thursday night and at the high tide punched a hole in the bottom when she went up on a pile. She sank. The long dock in the rear of the Tillotson property on Main street was washed away by the tide. The tide was so high Friday morning that a number of Wall street families had the cellars and kitchens of their homes flooded. The bulkhead on the west end of the harbor recreation pier was washed away Friday morning.

This bulkhead was built several years ago by the late C. N. Wayland and for a number of years his yacht, Viola was put up in winter quarters there.

Thursday night, the power fishing boat, Annie R, 28 feet long, owned by Manuel Roderick, was in the basin behind the bulkhead and when it let go the boat was smashed and badly scraped by contact with the wall. The large powerboat used for fishing by Philip McCormick was moored on the south side of the Watch Hill Wall. It was torn from its berth Thursday night and was sunk. It now lies against the stone wharf bordering railroad property.

Owing to the bad walking, the borough school only held one session Friday.

People here are beginning to realize that they are to be hard hit by the contemplated rise in water rates by the Mystic Valley Water Co. The hearings held and to be held in Hartford are being watched with interest. The company has not yet put in all its claims to the Connecticut utilities commission. When this is finished the claims of the Mystic fire district and the borough of Stonington will be put in by Judge Charles B. Waller of New London and Attorney B. H. Hewitt of Mystic. The next hearing will be on Monday, Dec. 16th.

JEWETT CITY

Samuel Gardiner, 75, a former Jewett City resident, died suddenly Friday while on a visit to relatives in Westerly. Since his wife's death four years ago, he has lived at the home of his brother, John Gardiner in Griswold. Mr. Gardiner was a native of Rhode Island, but a large part of his life has been spent in Griswold. His is survived by four brothers, John of Griswold, William of Providence, Edwin of Norwood, Charles of Sterling Hill, Ulysses of Hope Valley and a sister, Mrs. Melissa Avery of West Mystic. He leaves two grandchildren, Wilfred Gardiner of Boston and Mrs. J. W. Stephens of Fisher's Island.

F. H. Wyant of Norwich, the traveling agent for the Connecticut Humane society is investigating a case of two stray heifers which have been wandering around on Stone Hill since last summer. They are the property of Harry Green, of Plainfield. He spent Sunday afternoon a week ago trying to catch the cattle, but they are so wild that it was impossible. Humane Agent Dolan was notified from Plainfield and he turned the matter over to Mr Wyant.

Miss Grace Gardiner has returned to her studies at East Greenwich Academy after a short vacation spent at her home.

New Discovery Kills Germs of Catarrh

Spray your nostrils and gargle your throat with Kojene, the new antiseptic which is four times more powerful than carbolic acid, and you will soon be free from vile catarrh.

Although Kojene is the most powerful non-poisonous antiseptic known it will not irritate the tenderest membrane; indeed, one can drink it without any ill effects.

Try it if you want to get rid of every trace of catarrh and be free from bad breath, hawking and spitting. A bottle costs but 60 cents at Lee & Osgood Co. and reliable druggists everywhere and money back if your catarrh isn't gone in a week.

Among the exhibits of especial interest to him were several bales of cloth, of the finest grade, made in W. A. Slater's mills in Jewett City. The finishing of the product of the Slater mills was not completed in Jewett City. Each day bundles of a dozen cuts, of 60 to 70 yards each, were wrapped in burlap, bound with long leather straps, and sent to the Greeneville bleachery where they were sized, reyarded and made ready for the market.

Friday morning all the highways and thoroughfares were glare ice. Pedestrians moved about with difficulty. Many people put sand or ashes on sidewalks, while the borough street department sanded post office square the street corners and grades.

Saturday was the last day of the open season for ice fishing. No one tackled the foot of snow and 18-inch ice that cover the local ponds. It is probable that the eastern fishing grounds of Tadpole pond, just at the entrance to the cedar swamp are frozen nearly to the bottom, as there is scarcely two feet of water on these flats. Now and then a fisherman has tried to cross the big McNicol cedar swamp, but even in the coldest winters, it is a treacherous operation, attended always with the possibility that one may slump into one of the open swamp holes, that may be skimmed over on the surface. These spring openings are all about the swamp and are filled with mud and water as black as ink. Soundings with long poles show depths of 15 and 20 feet with no bottom then. These open places never freeze although the main pond, a hundred yards away may be covered as it is today with 18-inch ice.

Local fish markets did a fine business Friday in frozen cape herring and Nova Scotia smelts.

Mrs. B. W. Albertine, noting in Friday's Bulletin about the image of the ecuipse as seen by Mrs. Gray, reports that she, too, saw the reflected phenomenon as produced through a small hole made in a drop window shade. Mrs. Albertine declares the advance of the moon's shadow was to be seen in the miniature figure as clearly as the view obtained when looking at the sun through smoked glass.

Manager Thomas Barnett of the Finn Opera house announces a fine booking of the new reels for his February attractions, including the wonderful Peter Pan.

In spite of the storm the Christian Endeavorers of the Congregational church spent a pleasant evening in the vestry. Doris Johnson read two humorous selections, Miss Sadie Thompson and Mrs. E. H. Hiscox sang a duet, William Stebbins played a piano solo, and Ruth Ballou sang. Chorus singing of old songs and games of all sorts provided diversion. Refreshments were served by Evelyn Johnson, Ethel Thompson and Mrs. Abraham Zegeer, who were in charge of the social.

A new piano has been installed in the Finn Opera house and was used for the first time for the American Legion musical.

Cards are being received in town from William M. McNicol, registered at the Plaza de Armas, Havana, Cuba. One card said: "I am writing, sitting in the tropical gardens, summer suit on, birds and blossoming flowers all about. A piece of ice the size of a cigar box is worth 75 cents."

OUT IN THE COLD

Being shooed out into the cold and away from the protection of the republican party doesn't please Representative Frear of Wisconsin, who acted as spokesman for his colleagues from that state who were not included in the call for the republican caucus of the house. But just how they could have expected anything different is hard to see.

Of course they were all tangled up in the LaFollette string. They were followers of his leadership and there is no secret about the manner in which they as republicans worked for the defeat of the republican party. They know it and they know that the republicans know it. They were not disposed to carry on their work under a bushel. Even in congress, and before the campaign, they were to be found invariably doing all they could to embarrass the republican policies and the administration. They figured, however, that they could do this and then be treated like prodigals. Representative Frear quotes the Roosevelt instance in belief of such an outcome. They expected the past to be forgotten and the possibility of continued embarrassment in the future to be overlooked, and when they did not develop they were astonished to find themselves dropped from the party.

Should they have felt surprised or grieved? Even though the republican name for [illegible] they could get out of it, they worried the party, the platform and the candidates. If they are out of the party today there is no one to blame for it but themselves. They are in fact where their conduct indicated they wanted to be.

If they want to get back, even as they say Theodore Roosevelt did, they have been made to understand that there can be no such wobbling as they have indulged in in the past. They must not only come as penitents but they must give assurances that as republicans they will be republicans and not the backbone of an insurgent bloc that can be used for blocking the aims and policies of the republican majority.

HOLDING CHAPMAN

When the federal government turns Gerald Chapman over to the Connecticut authorities for trial on the charge of committing murder in New Britain it does not release its hold. If he is found not guilty he will go back to Atlanta and to make sure of that return it keeps a strong hold on him. This is done by making the Connecticut state prison a federal prison for the time being. Connecticut will hold and be responsible for Chapman while he is here but technically the designation of Wethersfield as a federal prison keeps Chapman within federal control. The government could not be expected to release all claim on Chapman in reliance upon conviction for the killing of the New Britain policeman. It is necessary to anticipate the possibility that he will be found not guilty.

But the responsibility during the time Chapman is in Connecticut devolves upon this state. It is not going to be a slight one. Chapman is fully known. His record is such that will justify the exercise of the closest guard at all times, whether in the court room, when being transferred from prison to court room, or vice versa, or in the prison. Desperate and known to be ready to take every advantage and opening Chapman must be closely watched and there is no reason to suppose but what he will be.

Connecticut recognized this responsibility when it sought Chapman for trial, and with the making of Wethersfield a federal prison there is being asked of these officials no more than would be expected if Chapman had been caught in Connecticut.

PROPERLY TREATED

The convictions and sentencing of such men as Means and Forbes are not to be overlooked in the meaning which they must convey on the importance of selecting men of the highest type for places of responsibility, and in seeing that they are properly punished when they take advantage of the trust that is imposed on them.

That they have been brought to the bar of justice and convicted reveals the manner in which they have played fast and loose with their responsibilities. They were not working together but their activities were highly discreditable. They took advantage of the responsible positions they held to benefit themselves and while it is fitting that punishment should be applied in their particular cases and in the cases of accomplices, there is also a salutary effect that will accrue from the demonstration of the fact that those in high places are not immune just because they temporarily have important positions.

There are those who figure that government positions are filled with crafters. Unfortunately there are those who are responsible for spreading this idea, but nothing will do more to remove such an impression than the imposition of proper punishment upon those who indulge in such practice. They have received the treatment they brought upon themselves and deserve.

REDUCING STATE TAXES

A bill that is sure to have much popular support before the general assembly is that which calls for the reduction of the state tax, that is collected from the respective towns, from the $1,800,000 a year which was fixed by the last legislature to a flat million. This would be lopping off the same amount that was done in 1923 when the reduction started.

Tax reduction is the desire throughout the state, and it is the cutting of the state tax on towns that makes it possible for the towns to pass the benefits along to the taxpayers. What the towns pay has to be collected, of course, from the taxpayers. When the demands of the state are lessened it means the towns are relieved from the task of getting this money from the taxpayers, or action which always brings satisfaction from the fellow who has to pay.

When there is talk about tax reduction it must be understood that it is not likely to go hand in hand with a policy of extravagant appropriations. In his recent address Governor Trumbull directed attention to the importance of conducting "the state's affairs on a businesslike basis and living within our means." It is through such a handling of state affairs that tax reductions can be made, while on the other hand it is to be realized that unless there is consideration given to keeping within bounds it only invites the opposite result, or the increasing of taxes sooner or later.

The governor has told us that if a reduction in taxes can be effected through the practice of rigid economy a noteworthy advance will have been made. It imposes a duty upon the legislature. The bill for a reduction sets a definite goal, and one in which all parts of the state are interested.

It is not enough to point to the fact that the state has been brought to the point where it is out of debt. Good financial management and the keeping of expenditures within revenue has done it. Through the continuance of the same it is going to be possible to meet state requirements and still respond to the demands for the continuance of tax reduction.

THE POSTAL BILL

It is an interesting state of affairs into which the postal situation has gotten in congress. By the changes which have taken place in the postal bill it has been evident to the members of the senate that what was asked in the way of increased rates was not justified. The fact that reductions have been sanctioned by the bill that has passed the senate shows that an earlier basis for figuring was considered wrong, but it doesn't appear that the one that has been approved is keeping with the facts except that the reduction has been made. The approval given to the cut after so short a consideration creates the impression that were the whole matter to be carefully sifted there would be a decidedly different view taken of the rate changes.

But the rate changes promise bother from another direction as well. According to the constitution it rests with the house of representatives to originate legislation that provides for revenue. Increased revenue in order to take care of the provisions of the postal bill is provided in the bill. Because of that the house makes the claim that its rights have been usurped, and because they have been it will not receive the senate bill.

The attitude of the house was known before the senate acted, but it did so under the claim that it is not a revenue measure and therefore can originate in the senate. It is this difference of opinions between the two houses that make the next development so interesting. If the house holds to the position taken by its ways and means committee not to receive the bill the time that the senate has been giving to this matter would seem to be lost unless the house can put through at this date a bill that would get the approval of the senate.

It seems to be a case where doctors disagree, but so far as is known the disagreement is over who shall order the medicine rather than the kind and quantity to be given.

The surprise in connection with the reading out of the party by the republicans of the LaFollette followers in the house is not that it was done, but that it displeased the insurgents.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Salt and vinegar remove stains from teacups.

Rugs should be turned around every six months where there is much wear. Constant turning causes them to wear evenly.

A little glycerine rubbed around the glass stoppers of bottles will prevent them from sticking.

Let the meringue cool slowly after it has been browned. If chilled too quickly it is apt to become watery.

Pieces of old velveteen should be washed and used for polishing. They are an excellent substitute for chamois and may be washed as easily as an ordinary duster.

A greasy garment should be soaked awhile in cold water before being washed, as hot water will set the grease.

Save old silk shirts for cleaning cloths. They polish windows better than linen or wool.

To clean blue serge, sponge it with strong indigo water, place it on a board after the water has been allowed to evaporate and press with a warm iron.

A cup of coffee is a good substitute for brandy in dark cake. It gives a good flavor.

When boiling ham, salt beef or tongue to be eaten cold, leave the meat in the liquor until it has cooled. The flavor is much improved.

To remove nut meats whole, pour hot water on the nuts and let them remain over night. Crack and remove meats in the morning.

Instead of always buying steaks and other chops, which are the most expensive of meats, remember that the cheaper cuts may be used for meat pie, loaf, pot rost, hamburger or stew.

Dried beans and peas, pound for pound, are much richer in food value than fresh vegetables, but they require great care in cooking so that the tough skins may be made tender.

VINEGAR

Hot vinegar will remove paint from glass.

A little vinegar will make thick ink usable again.

A cloth wrung out of vinegar and then wrapped around cheese will keep it fresh and moist.

One part vinegar with equal parts of linseed oil and turpentine combined in a furniture polish that can be used on the finest wood with success.

Leather covered furniture can be saved from cracking if polished regularly with a paste made of one part vinegar and two parts linseed oil, bottled and shaken until thick.

WINTER DINNERS

Try to arrange your winter dinners so that the casserole and oven dishes may be cooked frequently. It not only helps to heat your home but if the dinner is carefully planned, many times the whole meal may be cooked in the oven, proving an economy in gas. Try those casserole recipes you have had tucked away so long.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

Chapped hands will respond wonderfully to vinegar applications.

A paste of baking soda and water applied to a burn will take out the fire.

A half teaspoon of baking soda placed on the tongue, then washed down with a drink of cold water will sweeten the sour stomach and take away indigestion.

Lips should always be protected with a lotion or salve to prevent cracking. A powder base and powder will protect the face from winter weather.

When black lines and mottled spots appear on the teeth it is likely the diet is at fault or was at fault when the child's teeth were in the process of formation. These can be taken care of by a dentist who can clean and polish off the black lines and treat them so as to prevent further destruction of the enamel.

INDEX TO CHARACTER

A woman's hair is a sure index to her character, according to one beauty expert, who has made a study of the various styles of coiffure in connection with her screen work.

Frizzled, elaborate masses of artificial curls represents show girls or habitues of dance halls.

Different "bob" styles portray anything from a highbrow to a gum-chewing flapper.

The Mona Lisa hairdress is the keynote to the woman who started to gain a career, but found a soul-mate.

Disheveled hair stamps a woman as the tired mother or the sour-mouthed shrew.

The woman careful of her appearance usually affects the marcel wave.

The unstudied soft waves to frame a woman's face—that speaks of charming purity, sweet hopes and dreams.

STRAW FLOWERS

When our gardens are not a-blooming most of us who love flowers miss them in our homes. Perhaps the substitute that does not mean a florist bill is the perky, cheerful little straw flower. They can be put in a vase or arranged in a holder in a bowl and add a touch of color where needed.

BE CAREFUL

Many persons and particularly children are hurt each year by stepladders. Be sure the legs and steps are sound. Don't stand on the folding shelf, it's only intended to hold a pail. If you lean it against the wall, place it at such an angle that it won't slip. When through using place it out of reach of the children.

MAKE YOUR OWN

When there are two babies in the family and two high chairs are necessary, the purchase of the extra chair may be avoided by buying four wooden door stops and screwing them on the legs of one of the wooden kitchen chairs. The older child can use this comfortably at the table during the short time that a higher chair would be needed.

DICTATES OF FASHION

The small black hat is very much in vogue again. It is of tan plush and frequently the trimmings are silk ribbon.

To be vogue, modern perfume must be elusive, must sneak up on the nostrils rather than strike an unexpected blow.

Little golden tassels, made of heavy silk cord, are sewn all over some of the newer cloaks. They are seen on both the outside and inside of the garments.

Awning striped one-piece frocks of linen, flannel or mercerized cotton fabrics will be conspicuous on many southern golf courses in the next few weeks.

A decided difference in cuts is noticeable between the long and short coats of [illegible] suits. The long coats are shaped at the back and embellished.

Bathing suits of cretonne with knee length coats to match are intended for wear in the south but offer suggestions to the girl who is looking ahead and making plans for her summer wardrobe.

The vogue of long white gloves for evening wear, long fallen into disuse, has been sharply revived in London. Many well-dressed women prefer gloves which come just above the elbow to the longer lengths.

Fans grow more and more gorgeous. A huge affair that is composed of six enormous plumes sows as many different colors. One feather is yellow, another blue, a third rose, while the others are in tones of green, violet and gray.

Marabou clipped so fine that it resembles fur is used to train many of the new coats for southern wear. These are of heavy crepe or satin and are made on the straight lines of a tailored model. The marabou appears as a band around the bottom of the skirt and as a finish to the sleeves.

There are some women who can wear a large hat to perfection, who seem to know how to make it an integral part of their ensemble, but the vast majority put on a hat of considerable size so that one thinks only of the hat and not of the wearer. This perhaps is the reason that for the last three seasons the small hat has reigned supreme. It is not so obvious and its very lack of ornamentation gives it an air of distinction not approached by the elaborately trimmed head gear of a decade ago.

Although it remains small in shape, the hat of the moment changes from month to month. Early in the season the high square crown displaced the bowler crown of the long popular clothes this in turn was supplanted by the high-peaked crown and now comes a crown equally high but dented and twisted to suit each individual wearer. Brims instead of curving downward have taken an upward tilt and add a certain piquancy to the appearance that is undeniably charming.

Thus far in the models for midseason, felt hats hold first place although there are rumors that felt and silk and silk and straw are to play an important role in millinery fashions for the late spring. Pastel shades are favorites and for trimming interesting feather fantasies and flower clusters are used.

A BLOOMER SUGGESTION

A splendid crotch seam for the little girl's bloomers is made by opening an ordinary seam and sewing it flat with bias binding. There is a certain amount of "give" to it that makes for comfort.

LAUNDRY HINTS

Blankets, when they have been washed and thoroughly dried, should be well beaten. This has the effect of making the wool light and soft, and giving the blankets a new and fresh appearance.

To wash eiderdown quilts prepare a suds of warm water and white soap. Souse or knead the quilt in the suds, then use a second suds for rinsing, and hang out to dry by spreading between two lines.

Wipe off the clothesline with a damp cloth before hanging out the clothes, particularly in freezing weather. Otherwise the clothes freeze to the line and take up the soil under each clothespin.

Wet the scorched spots with cold water and put borax into the fabric. Let stand five minutes; then brush off and hang garment in the sun.

CARE OF THE ICE BOX

Refrigerators in winter are often used as a place for storing food, rather than as a place for preserving it. In fact, often ice is never used in the refrigerator at all during cold weather.

When this is the case particular care should be taken to maintain rigid cleanliness throughout the box. The ice and food chambers should be washed and scalded and the drains disinfected regularly.

All the foodstuffs put into the ice box should be covered. There are various kinds of glass containers for this purpose. These fit on the top of one another and utilize but little space in the refrigerator, and are made to use on the table as well.

Many ice boxes contain a large porportion of wood. Some have wooden racks in the ice chamber. Wood absorbs food flavors and odors readily and gives this absorption off with equal readiness.

Therefore food flavors do not remain true when stored in such a box. This is but one reason why every bit of food put away should be covered in some manner.

Jars should be used for liquid food, such as sauces, soups and salad dressing. Meats and vegetables should always be wrapped in oil paper. Free circulation should be maintained when there is no ice in the refrigerator by leaving an upper and lower door unlatched.

When ice boxes do not drain properly be sure the floor on which they are placed is perfectly level.

THE JOYS OF BAKING SODA

A damp cloth dipped in baking soda will remove [illegible] coffee stains from china cups.

A pinch of baking soda in the water with the fowl suspected of being tough will help to make it tender.

A solution of baking soda and water left to stand in baby's bottles after they are washed will keep them sweet.

A pinch of baking soda in with the string beans will make them lovely and tender and keep them a bright green.

CONCERNING WOMEN

China already has a woman suffrage party.

In Mandalay the women of all ages smoke large cigars.

London's only woman stockbroker, Mrs. Gordon Holmes, has a man for a partner.

Miss Herminia Termes, of San Juan, Porto Rico, is the first woman to argue a case before the United States appellate court.

The Woman's Medical college of Pennsylvania, the oldest regular college for women physicians, reaches its seventy-fifth anniversary this year.

A Japanese woman has just won a breach of promise suit—the first case of its kind in the history of Japan.

Occupying a foremost place among American landscape architects is Miss Mary Rutherford Jay, a great-granddaughter of John Jay, the first chief justice of the supreme court of the United States.

CLEANING MATTING

To clean matting, use ammonia and cold water using little soap. To remove spots, spread Fuller's earth, dry starch or whiting on the stain.

FLOOD SINK

If washing soda is used to cut the grease in the sink it should be followed by a flood of hot water, otherwise the grease and soda make a soft soap that congeals in cooling and may close the drain.

RECIPES

Chop one pound of lean mutton fine, add one egg, half a cupful of milk, one teaspoon of salt, a little pepper and a few drops of onion juice. Form into small cakes and either broil or fry them. While this dish is more delicate if the egg and milk is used, it can be made without them. In this case it resembles hamburger steak as it is ordinarily prepared from beef. It may be made with or without onion.

Tournedos of Lamb: Six kidney lamb chops cut two inches thick will be required. Remove the bone and fat and with skewers arrange in six circular pieces. Around each wrap a thin strip of bacon, fastening in place with wooden skewers. Sprinkle with salt and pepper, place on a well greased broiler and broil over a clear fire for about 15 minutes. Remove to a hot platter, garnish with rissole potatoes and mass mint jelly with them.

The potatoes are cooked this way: Peel and wash eight potatoes of uniform size, put them in cold water for 15 minutes, dry them in a towel, then fry until a delicate brown in deep fat. Drain in brown paper, then bake until soft. Remove to a serving platter and pour around them one cupful of rich white or cream sauce, or a cupful of heavy cream scalded and seasoned.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Gardner's Lake Property

Mr. Editor: Would you kindly allow me a small space of your paper to answer the article in your issue of Jan. 28 in regard to unfair taxation in the town of Salem. As everybody knows the property at Gardner's lake is some of the most valuable in the state of Connecticut and the fact that three or four people acquired some of it before it became so popular as a summer place is no reason why their property should not increase in valuation with the property surrounding it. The writer terms the property in question as shacks. I understand that, in 1923, one of these shacks was rented by the week as $25 per week. Two others of these so-called shacks were valued by their owners at $1,100 and $1,000 respectively. The assessor's valuation was $300 and $200 less, but through some mistake the property wasn't all listed. The town of Salem doesn't mean to be unfair with any taxpayer and I do not think they have been. It is very easy for people to cry about taxation, yet if you look the matter over carefully you will find that the ones who do the most kicking are the ones who haven't anything to kick about. The idea of this matter being taken to the legislature and trying to take land from one town and give it to another because three or four think they are overtaxed, seems to me like a lot of boy's play. Just think of taking a part of one town and giving it to another before they know whether the other town will accept it. What proof has this town that they will not try to move this particular piece of land to a third town if they should not like the assessment there. The writer mentions the judgment of the assessors of the town of Salem. How about the judgment of the writer, trying to cart a piece of land around until satisfied with its valuation? Now, Mr. Writer you know where to go with your complaints. There is always the board of relief, who, I believe will give you justice. Don't try to steal our little town, because we don't like it.

YOUR INCOME TAX

Casualty and Theft Losses

Losses arising from "fires, storm, shipwreck, or other casualty or from theft" are deductible whether or not connected with the taxpayer's trade or business. The term "other casualty" within the meaning of the revenue act of 1924, is one arising by the action of a physical force of nature, for example a flood or frost.

If a taxpayer's home or automobile is destroyed by fire, or if his summer bungalow is damaged by a storm he may claim a deduction for the loss sustained. Allowance, of course, must be made for any insurance or other compensation received. In event of a collision between a truck and an automobile used for pleasure or convenience, the owner of the truck may claim a deduction for the damages, provided at the time the truck was being used for business purposes. No deduction is allowed the owner of the automobile because the car was not being used for business purposes, neither is it a "casualty" as defined above.

Loss of property by theft or burglary is an allowable deduction, and need not be incurred in trade or business.

As a general rule deductions for losses are allowed for the year in which sustained. A taxpayer may ascertain the amount of a loss sustained during a prior taxable year which he had not deducted from gross income for that year. He may render an amended return for such preceding year including such amount of loss in the deductions from gross income, and may file with the Bureau of Internal Revenue a claim for refund of the excess tax paid by reason of failure to deduct the loss in his original return. A loss from theft or embezzlement occurring in one year and discovered in another is ordinarily deductible for the year in which sustained.

Losses in illegal transactions are not deductible.

Flagler, Sea Isick and Homesick

After Henry M. Flagler had retired and started in search of health he began a new career at 55 that made him richer and more famous than ever before.

In Canandaigua, N. Y., the place of his birth, he attended the little public school, but his father, a minister with meagre salary, could support him only until he was 14.

Henry then packed his carpet bag, walked nine miles to the nearest town on the Erie canal, traveled by boat to Buffalo and then by ship on Lake Erie to Sandusky, Ohio. The voyage was rough, and the boy became seasick and yearned to be back home again.

Finally he found work as clerk in a general store at Little Republic, at $5 a week. At the end of the year his wage had been tripled. In the next seven years he saved enough money to go to Bellevue and enter the grain commission business. His business grew rapidly and he started a distillery, but gave it up because of religious scruples.

Having accumulated $50,000, he sold out and went to Saginaw, Mich., to do big things. He became a manufacturer of salt and worked desperately, but in three years failed, losing everything and was $50,000 in debt.

Borrowing enough to pay his debts, he went to Cleveland and started in the grain commission business. John D. and William Rockefeller and Samuel Andrews had started in the oil business there and were successful. When it was decided to build a second refinery, Flagler borrowed $100,000 and became a partner in Rockefeller, Andrews and Flagler. Business developed rapidly and when the Standard Oil Company replaced the partnership, Flagler, at 49, was chosen a director. After helping it to achieve its phenomenal success, he retired at 53.

Seeking health in Florida two years later, he built a hotel at St. Augustine, bought a railroad and made successes of both. Within a few years he acquired or built ten hotels, constructed a railroad along the east coast, extended it over the coral reefs to Key West, and made Florida better known than ever.

At the time of his death he was one of the country's richest men.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

"The biggest room in the world is room for improvement." This is the favorite motto of Lord Weir, the British statesman and industrial leader, who has shown his initiative once more in his plans for the erection of factories all over the United Kingdom for the construction of steel houses. Lord Weir is the head of one of the big shipbuilding and engineering firms of Glasgow and was one of the many Scottish business men who came to the aid of Great Britain in the war. After holding the post of Scottish Director of Munitions for a year, he became in 1917 Director-General of Aircraft Production. To such an extent did he speed up the production of airplane engineers and the many accessories required that the end of the war found England easily first in the number of flying squadrons at her disposal. He was still in his thirties when he became a Minister of State and was created a baron in recognition of his services to the empire.

POLICE APPOINTMENTS ARE EXPECTED IN COUNCIL

One of the important matters which is expected to come before the February meeting of the court of common council this (Monday) evening will be the appointment of a police captain to fill the vacancy in the local police department caused by the death of Captain Dennis J. Twomey. The appointment, it is said, will be given to First Sergeant Thomas Murphy. The board of police commissioners met Friday evening and again Saturday evening at police headquarters for the purpose of presenting to the council meeting this evening their recommendations for the various appointments.

Reports were current Saturday and Sunday that a third sergeant is to be nominated this time although these could not be confirmed from the police commissioners. While Sergeant John Casey will be advanced to succeed Sergeant Murphy, the report was that traffic officer Myron Morgan will be named second sergeant and traffic officer Matthew Delaney will be made third sergeant.

Officer Morgan stands second on the list of patrolmen in point of seniority and Officer Delaney is tenth on the list.

Several years ago an amendment to the city charter provided for the appointment of a third sergeant on the police force but the amendment has never been made operative yet.

People Notice It. Drive Them Off with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

A pimply face will not embarrass you much longer if you get a package of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights.

Cleanse the blood, bowels and liver with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel; there's no sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

No one who takes Olive Tablets is ever cursed with a "dark brown taste," a bad breath, a dull, listless, "no good" feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad disposition or pimply face.

Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color.

Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result. Take one or two nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 15c and 30c.

Motives

A little thinking shows us that the deeds of kindness we do are effective in proportion to the love we put into them. More depends upon the motive than upon the gift. If the thought be selfish, if we expect compensation, or are guilty of close calculation, the result will be like the attitude of mind which invited it.—Dresser.

TAXABLE GRAND LIST $22,195,228; GAIN OF $763,143 OVER LAST YEAR

The board of assessors, Arad R. Manning, John B. Oat, and Fred C. Brothero, completed on Saturday the compilation of the grand list of the town of Norwich, showing a total of $28,859,119 in taxable and exempt property, as compared with a corresponding total of $28,102,462 for the preceding year. The exempt property deducts $6,663,891 from the total list, leaving $22,195,228 for the taxable grand list, which is an increase of $763,143 over the taxable grand list as left by the board of relief last year.

Saturday afternoon the members of the board signed their names to the abstract book which had been prepared by Mr. Oat, and they made oath to their signatures before Judge Nelson J. Alying in his capacity as notary of public. The work of the assessors has involved handling a greater number of lists than ever before as there were 537 more than last year and as about the the same increase was shown a year ago, this means that the lists have increased by 1,000 in two years.

FAMILY GROUPS ATTEND CENTRAL BAPTIST SERVICE

The Sunday evening service at the Central Baptist church was observed as Family Sunday, Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., pastor, preaching on The Holy Family.

There was a large attendance at the service, many families being present for this special service. During his sermon Rev. Dr. Pitt mentioned that the presence of families was symbolic of the time when Mary and Joseph took the Christ Child to the temple. Another special feature of the evening was the singing of Home, Sweet Home, by the church choir.

In the family groups attending the service five families were tied for attendance; each having five members present, the parents and three children. The families were those of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Pendleton, Mr. and Mrs. John Hill, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Smith, Mr. and Mrs. William Chapman and Rev. and Mrs. David A. Pitt.

All honors for having the most generations present went to the Brend family, the members present representing four generations as follows: Mrs. Kraufe, mother; Mrs. Augusta Brend, daughter; Mrs. Carl Brend, granddaughter, and Calvin Brend, grandson.

The honored families received carnations from the church, these being presented by James L. Case and Edward Y. Messinger.

PICTURES OF MOSES SHOWN AT Y. M. C. A.

Sunday afternoon all the seats in the large gymnasium were occupied at the showing of moving pictures of the first half of The Life of Moses. The opening exercises consisted of the singing of hymns, scripture reading and prayer, and vocal solos by Hugh Kinder, who pleased the audience by his selections. The films shown included the birth of Moses, his mother hiding him in the flags by the river bank, the discovery of the child by Pharoah's daughter, who adopted him and engaged Moses' own mother, unknowingly, to nurse the child. Moses came to manhood and soon determined to leave the king's court and cast his lot with his own people. The terribly hard treatment by the Egyptians of the Israelites was pictured dramatically, and the pleadings of Moses with Pharoah to let his people go failed until God sent the awful plagues, when finally Pharoah reluctantly gave consent for the Israelites to go from Egypt. The photography was splendid and the pictures very true to the Bible narrative were deeply impressive.

RESULTS OF HEALTH WORK OF MET. INSURANCE CO.

The year 1924 was the healthiest in the history of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, Haley Fiske, the president, told the managers at their annual convention in New York last week. He attributed this largely to the nursing service and health education conducted by the company. He declared that since 1911, the tuberculosis rate among Metropolitan policy holders had improved 50.8 per cent., as against 40 per cent. in the country as a whole.

All children's diseases have been reduced by education methods, he said, with the result that while the general rate for these diseases had improved 29 per cent. the Metropolitan rate had improved 48-8 per cent.

He announced that new business had set a record with $2,515,728,846 for the year, bringing the total on the company's books to $10,532,484,769. He said 3,640,000 new policy holders had been obtained during the year, making 22,750,000 persons insured by the company.

Helen's Promise

Helen had been brought up a strict Congregationalist. Last summer she had heard of the excellent preaching of an Episcopal minister, and she begged that she and her sister be permitted to go and hear him. Her father demurred; whereupon Helen burst forth with: "Oh, papa, if you will only let us go and hear him preach we'll promise not to believe a word he says."

DR. JOSEPH CLARK HOPPIN TO BE BURIED IN POMFRET

(Special to The Bulletin)

Putnam, Feb. 1.—Dr. Joseph Clark Hoppin, 54, of Pomfret, died at 11 o'clock Friday night at Boston at the house of Guy Murchie, 21 Commonwealth avenue, which he had leased for the winter. The body will be brought to Pomfret for burial.

Dr. Hoppin was a distinguished scholar, his work as an archaeologist and Egyptologist having made him internationally known. He was acknowledged to be the leading authority on Grecian pottery, had written several books on the subject, had been professor of Greek languages and literature at the American School of Classical Studies, Athens, and was a member of the Royal Geographic society.

During the past six months he had been in precarious health and he as well as members of his family and friends knew that death was nearing. He faced it courageously and philosophically. Until two months ago he was confined to the house for only a small part of the time and was almost a daily visitor in Putnam. Notwithstanding his physical condition he took a deep and active interest in helping to restore banking facilities to Putnam and vicinity, when the First National bank closed its doors, August 11. As a member of the citizens' committee he attended a meeting August 12 and was the first subscriber to stock for a new bank. He was elected a director of the Citizens' National when it organized and was reelected at its first annual meeting three weeks ago.

Dr. Hoppin was born in Providence, R. I., May 23, 1870, son of Courtland and Mary Frances Clark Hoppin. He received his A. B. from Harvard in 1893 and became a student in classical archaeology in Athens, Berlin and Munich for five years, following his departure for Europe in the same year. In 1896 he received the Ph D. degree at Munich.

He took part in the excavations of the Argive Heraeum, in 1894 and 1895, and was instructor in Greek art in Wellesley for a year. In 1899 he was appointed professor in classical art and archaeology at Bryn Mawr, and later was professor of Greek languages and literature at the American School of Classical Studies in Athens.

Dr. Hoppin took part in the expedition for excavating Cyrene, in Northern Africa in 1910 and 1911. Returning to this country, he was again associated with Bryn Mawr for three years from 1917.

He was a Fellow of the Academy of Arts and Sciences, and the Royal Geographical society, a member of the Archaeological Institute of America, the American Philological Association and the Society for the Promotion of Hellenic Studies. His clubs include the Metropolitan of Washington, D. C., Somerset of Boston, and Bath, in London.

As an author Dr. Hoppin was widely known. Some of the books which he published were "Euthymides, a Study in Attic Vase Painting," issued in 1896; "The Vases and Vase Fragments of the Argive Heraeum," edited by Charles Waldstein; "Euthymides and his Fellows," 1916; "Handbook of Attic Red-Figured Vases," 1918. He was a frequent contributor to magazines and reviews on subjects pertaining to Greek art and archaeology.

Dr. Hoppin is survived by his second wife, who was Eleanor Dennistoun Wood of Islip, New York, whom he married in 1915 and by a son Courtland Hoppin, a student at Pomfret school. His first wife was Dorothy Wondville Rockhill, of Washington, whom he married in 1901. She was the daughter of the U. S. minister to China.

ODD FELLOW ORIENTALS WORK CLASS HERE

A large collection of Junk, as the candidates are called, was escorted across the hot sands to Mecca Saturday evening at Odd Fellows' hall Main street, when Ahad Sanctorum, No. 230, U. O. S. & P., held a ceremonial there. Nearly 100 sheiks and tribesmen from New London, Groton, Mystic and Norwich attended the ceremonial and enjoyed an appetizing moon feast, served at 6 o'clock by members of Hope Rebekah lodge, No. 27, I. O. O. F.

The ceremonial was in charge of the sanctorum officials from Mystic with C. H. S. Doyle in charge and the work was nicely put on for the benefit of the candidates.

The next ceremonial of Ahab Sanctorum is scheduled for February 21st in the desert of Mystic. As this is the day before Washington's birthday a special feature will take place during the ceremonial. Each sheik and tribesman will be called upon to "tell a lie," those failing to do so to be fined for their truthfulness. The member having the most vivid imagination is to receive a prize.

Camels in Norwich and surrounding cities will be kept ready for the pilgrimage to Mystic which is planned as the best in the history of the sanctorum and members will be rewarded for their long journey across the burning sands when the Rebekahs of Mystic serve a chicken supper before the ceremonial starts.

Legislators Use Bus Line

The bus running between Norwich and Colchester and connecting with the bus for Hartford, is proving a great convenience to those having business at the General Assembly. A number of the representatives travel back and forth each day as it enables anyone desiring to attend afternoon hearings and get home at an early hour in the evening. During the trying weather the past week the buses have run very close to schedule and the drivers have been courteous and obliging.

Here Is a Mystery

In passing through a Suharo forest we note that the older plants are dotted with woodpecker holes, and yet few woodpeckers are to be seen, says Nature Magazine. Some of these holes may have been made a century ago, for this cactus protects itself from infection by forming a hard and impervious callous around these nests.

NATIONAL LEAGUE TO HOLD MEETING IN SAME ROOM AS FIFTY YEARS AGO

New York, Feb. 1.—(By The A. P.)—Club owners of the National League, baseball oldest circuit will go back to the cradle of their organization tomorrow to celebrate the start of the fiftieth year in its history.

They will meet in the ancient parlors of the old Broadway Central hotel, where on February 2, 1876, the National League was born with representatives at clubs in Boston, Brooklyn, Philadelphia, Hartford, Conn., Chicago, Cincinnati, Louisville and St. Louis. Hartford and Louisville have been replaced by New York and Pittsburgh in the present circuit, but the other six charter members still hold franchises, although there have been some breaks in their friendship.

Tomorrow's meeting, a prelude to the mid-winter business session of the magnates Tuesday, marks the official opening of the National League's Golden Jubilee and is only one of a series of commemorative events planned. The jubilee celebration will culminate in an elaborate affair in February, 1926, when the semi-centennial date of the league's existence will occur.

Minutes of the first meeting of the old National League shed an interesting light on the aims of the club owners of that day. Two of the objects of the league, as it was formed a half century ago, were "to establish and regulate the baseball championship of the United States," and a provision that "no club shall be admitted from any city whose population is less than 75,000, except by unanimous vote of the league."

Formation of the National League at that time was prompted by a group of baseball men who broke away from the National Association of Professional Baseball clubs. A resolution was adopted lamenting the abuses which have insidiously crept into the exposition of our national game and regretting the unpleasant differences which have arisen among ourselves, coming out of an imperfect and unsystematic code."

The National League, the resolution further sets forth, was formed with a view of "relieving ourselves from the incubus of such abuses, promoting harmony and a good fellowship among ourselves, of elevating and fostering our national sport and protecting the interests of the players."

Morgan G. Bulkeley, former governor of Connecticut, who represented the Hartford Club at the meeting, was elected first president of the National League. Other signatories to the league pact were G. W. Thompson, of the Philadelphia Athletics; N. T. Appolonio, Boston; W. H. Cammeyer, Mutuals of Brooklyn; W. A. Hulbert, of Chicago, who became second president of the league, and C. A. Fowler, the latter two representing the four western clubs.

Representatives of the western clubs previously had met in Louisville and taken the initiative that led to the National League formation here.

President John A. Heydler of the National League has invited many prominent figures in the National League's official and playing history to attend tomorrow's meeting, including John K. Tenary, former governor of Pennsylvania, who first was familiar to the game as a pitcher and later as president of the National League.

Old-Time playing stars expected to attend include John M. Ward, one of the first pitchers to hurl a no-hit game; Amos Russie, famous hurler; Joe Hornung, Bill Dahlen, Jesse Burkett, Huyler Westervelt and Johnny Evers, who has maintain major league connections up to the present time.

Jack Manning, who played right field for Boston in the first National League game on April 22, 1876, also has been invited to attend the meeting. Tommy Bond, old Hartford pitcher; Alonzo Knight and George W. Bradley, both pitchers for the original Philadelphia Athletics, also have been asked to be guest of the league.

SECTIONAL VOLLEYBALL TOURNEY AT NORWICH "Y"

Announcement has just been received at the local "Y" that a sectional tournament of the state volleyball tournament has been assigned to the Norwich association to be played Saturday, March 7th, and teams representing the New London, Willimantic and Norwich associations will compete. The other sectional tournaments will be held on the same day at Stamford, New Britain and Meriden and the winning teams of the sectional tournaments will clash for the finals at New Haven on the following Saturday. Volleyball is making rapid strides in the world of sports and the state and national tournaments indicate its growing popularity.

This is a banner season at the local "Y" for volleyball and some fast players are being developed through the teams that are competing in the senior and business men's groups at the "Y." The squad to represent the locals will be picked shortly and training started with the expectation of having a team that will land a place in the finals of the state tournament.

TWO-MAN TOURNEY GETS UNDER WAY TONIGHT

The two-man tournament of the Eastern Connecticut Bowling Association will get under way this evening with matches at Moosup and Norwich. Fillmore and Foster will roll Morin and Aldi at the Palace alleys here while Bosworth and Sistare will clash with Chartier and MacKenzie at Moosup. On Thursday evening the Moosup bowlers will go to New London and on Wednesday evening the Palace bowlers will be at the Aetna. The entire schedule will be announced this week when Willimantic definitely decides whether to enter a team or not.

Norwich Has a Second Willie Plant

The great showing made by Willie Plant, noted American walker, has aroused some of the younger generation of Norwich to enter this exhilirating game. Jack Murphy, well known soda jerker of a local drug store cowboys' rendevous, has made several wagers that he can walk from Backus hospital to Engler's corner in 15 minutes flat time. Jack was out practicing Sunday night and covered the distance in 16 minutes. He will attempt the feat this evening at 6.30 o'clock and a large crowd of supporters will follow their idol.

NURMI FAILS TO BREAK RECORD AT BOSTON MEET

Boston, Feb. 1.—Although seven thousand fans registered a little sigh of disappointment when Paavo Nurmi, racing two miles in the thirty-sixth annual Boston athletic association indoor track games here last night, failed for the second consecutive time to break a record, they remembered that the amazing Finn had raced three times before in that same week and that his latest assault on a record was made on a difficult, short track, requiring 12 laps to the mile.

Nurmi led by a lap and a half at the finish with 9 minutes, 16 1-5 seconds his time for the distance.

INTERSCHOLASTIC BASKETBALL MEET AT STORRS TO BE HELD NEXT MONTH

Storrs, Ct., Jan. 31—Two interscholastic basketball tournaments will be held at the Connecticut Agricultural College next spring, according to the announcement of the department of physical education at Storrs today.

The first will be held for the high schools of eastern Connecticut, when all teams within the area that is east of the Connecticut River will be invited to Storrs March 13 and 14 to participate in a tournament that will pick the best five within that area. The second tournament will be held one week later, March 20 and 21, when the Class C and D teams of the state will play off for the championship.

This will be the second year that the state college has held a tournament to decide the championship of the high school teams in the eastern part of the state, the first being held last year. So well satisfied were the participants and college authorities over the results of last year's games, that it has been voted to hold another this year. Letters will be sent out Monday to high school within this area, and it is expected that the tournament this year will be much larger than that of a year ago. Invitations will be sent to the following high schools Monday: Windham, Killingly, Putnam, Tourtellotte, Woodstock, Plainfield, Chapman Tech, Bulkeley, East Hartford, South Manchester, Portland, Glastonbury, Stafford Springs, Rockville, Enfield and Stonington.

During the time that the high school teams are at Storrs, the college will act as host to the visiting teams and plans are already under way to provide entertainment for the visitors.

The tournament for the Class C and D teams of the state has formerly been held at Wesleyan, and this is the first year that the Storrs institution has conducted this affair. It is expected that eight or nine teams to be selected on the basis of their season's record, will be the participants of this tournament. The Class C and D teams represent the schools with the 150-300 and under 150 enrollment respectively. In this tournament, all teams will compete on an equal basis, and no distinction will be made between the two classes.

Loving cups, suitably inscribed, will be awarded to the high teams in each of the two tournaments to be conducted.

The met was not without thrills and highlights, however, for two world's indoor records were beaten. One fell when Willie Plant of New York walked to a 3000 meters victory over Ugo Frigerio, Italian and Olympic titleholder. Plant covered the distance 12 minutes 52 4-5 seconds—one and one-fifth seconds faster than his own mark. Frigerio was forced to take third place—behind E. G. Wilson, handicapped Boston starter.

E. E. "Laddie" Meyers of Chicago boosted the record height for indoor pole vaulting on a board floor by two and three-eighths inches by topping the cross bar at 12 feet, 10 5-8 inches.

Mathews Signs Contract.

Duquoin, Ill., Feb. 1.—"Wid" Mathews, outfielder of the world champion Washington Senators, who had been spending the winter at Centralia, announced today that he has come to terms with Manager Buck Harris and forwarded his new contract to Washington. He declined to make public the terms of his contract, but said he would report to the Senators' training camp at Tampa, Fla., in two weeks.

Sweden Wants Webb.

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 1.—H. M. (Spike) Webb, coach of boxing at the United States Naval academy, who handled the championship American Olympic team at Antwerp in 1920 and at Paris last year, has been invited to teach the American style of boxing in schools and athletic clubs in Sweden and Denmark during the coming summer.

Gorbert Beats Borotra.

Paris, Feb. 1.—In the play in the second day of the covered court lawn tennis championship Andre H. Gorbert won a sensational match from the youthful Jean Borotra three sets to two. Gorbert forced the pace in the first two sets, which he won 7-5, 12-10, then he tired and lost two sets, 2-6, 1-6, but took the deciding set, 6-4.

Louis Aslangul, the Armenian player, defeated P. D. Spence, South Africa, 6-2, 7-5, 4-6, 6-2.

U. S. L. T. A. to Have Representatives

New York, Feb. 1.—Recommendation that the United States send an official tennis team of not less than two players to the English and French championships this year and to Australia in 1926 will be made to the United States Lawn Tennis association at its annual meeting next Saturday by Julian S. Myrick, chairman of the Davis cup committee.

Fear Not Instinctive

According to a report of experiments at Columbia university, where a hundred normal young folk were subjected to many tests, children are born without fear, and it is only after they are three that they begin to show signs of fear of such things as snakes, fire, the darkness, and so forth. The investigators claim that fear is the result of mental association rather than instinctive caution.

Bristles on Head

The African crowned crane derives its name from the curious fan-shaped straw-colored crest of wiry bristles that adorns the back of its head, says Nature Magazine. This crest, with the long neck, bare face, and bushy black feathers of the top of the head, give the bird a striking appearance.

Merely Occupy Space

A wise man who does not assist with his counsels, a rich man with his charity and a poor man with his labor are perfectly unnecessary in this world.

Discordant

The man who sings his own praises never gets praised for his singing.—Boston Transcript.

Wisdom of Work

The wise man puts the shoulders of other men to the wheel.

Prince Of Monaco Reported In United States

The Prince of Monaco, Louis, whom reports say is now in America, on an incognito trip. When the S. S. Mauretania docked recently, a mysterious personage was aboard, who refused to answer yes or no in regards to his identity, and who disappeared when the boat docked.

Strength in Calmness

Be calm in arguing; for fierceness makes error a fault, and truth discourtesy.—Herbert.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

WEEKLY FINANCIAL REVIEW

New York, Feb. 1.—Establishment of the highest price by May wheat since the war time above $2.05 a bushel; heavy buying of which attained their highest prices in a year or longer; new financing of almost record-breaking proportions and the continuance of easy money rates despite heavy gold shipments and expanding business, were the high spots of this week's financial and commodity markets.

Speculation in wheat rose to fever pitch as further evidence developed of the world shortage in that commodity. When wheat prices had reached a temporary peak and margin requirements were increased, speculative interest switched to the coarser grains, which also sold at new highs.

Tremendous activity in the oil shares was in direct reflection of decreasing crude production, reduction of surplus stocks and rising crude oil and gasoline prices. Practically all the active issues sold at their highest prices since 1923. The sudden demand for the southwestern rails apparently was in anticipation of a merger of several important properties in that region.

The Shy Bridegroom

One of the strangest marriage customs is that observed by some of the women of Assam. There the bride sometimes takes the initiative. She goes to fetch the bridegroom, and it is etiquette for him to hide and resist until carried off. Women of means are permitted to choose a temporary husband and when tired of him pay him off and take another.

Answer That

"This is a diplodocus, one of those primeval monsters which existed on the earth millions of years before the appearance of man," said the professor. "Diplodocus!" repeated the perplexed student. "Well, if it existed so long before the appearance of man, how do you know that is its right name?"

A Slogan

A butcher in a certain town had read considerable about "Milk From Contented Cows," and wanting to keep up with the times, he placed this sign in his window: "Sausages From Pigs That Died Happy."

The "Mailed Fist" Of Spain

That is the name sometimes given to Captain-General Emilio Barrera, literal Dictator of revolting provinces of Spain. Recently in Barcelona, following a revolt, he made over 900 arrests in his stern campaign of repression, and his work is going on fully as strong and as efficient, subduing all movements with full authority backing him up. Those who are captured receive either of two sentences, execution or court martial, which means life imprisonment.

NEW LONDON FIREMEN FEAST, AT RICHARDS GROVE CLUBHOUSE

(Special to The Bulletin)
New London, Feb. 1.—The annual banquet of the F. L. Allen Hook and Ladder company was held Saturday night at the company's club house, Richards Grove, and was attended by a representative number of members of the company, together with a score of guests, mostly city officials.

William (Whitewash) Ross, who has a domicile on North Bank street, near Douglass, has changed his residence to the county jail by order of Judge Prince. Ross had a party at what he called his home Friday, and the police interrupted the pleasure of the guests. There were three in the group, and all were drunk when the officers called. Ross said they happened in, but when they went out they were so cross-legged that the police called them drunk. Ross said they proposed a "feed" and he said "You buy." They did. He prepared a fire and they went at it, getting a few pounds of pork chops which Ross cooked. They had as a beverage the booze that was sent for and then the party was in such a mood that they didn't care what occurred. They sang and they danced till the neighbors complained. That was what brought the police. In the party was James Stanners and John Hanaway, alias John Brady, a foreman of laborers for the H. Wales Lines company. Hanaway was fined $10 and paid while Stanners was ordered to pay $5 and the costs in the police court Saturday. This he settled. Ross was sent to jail for 30 days.

The police this afternoon were summoned to Crystal avenue, near Main street, where a victim of drink had fallen on the sidewalk and had become unconscious. Before the police arrived there two sailors happened along and finding out the residence of the unfortunate, carried him to his home.

George Leybovitch, proprietor of a shoe repairing establishment, 119 Main street, bids fair to receive severe discipline, if not a jail sentence, when he is presented in the police court Monday morning charged with violation of the liquor law, for the arraignment tomorrow will mark the third time that Leybovitch has been presented in court in less than two years for liquor violation and upon both previous occasions Leybovitch was fined.

Leybovitch was taken into custody Saturday morning by Sergeant Nelson Smith upon information supplied the officer by two men, the men declaring that they had purchased liquor at the store of Leybovitch. They will be used as witnesses against the accused tomorrow. Leybovitch was presented in the police court Saturday forenoon, but a continuance of the trial was granted until Monday. Leybovitch furnishing a surety on his bond of $1,000 in Abraham Rakakowsky.

New London has one less plumbing establishment. Saturday the plumbing shop of John H. Newman, Union street, the oldest established concern of its kind in this city, was closed as a result of Newman filing a petition in bankruptcy in the United States district court at New Haven. Newman placed his liabilities at $15,626, and assets at $5,346.

Henry F. Walker of the Norwich Automatic Feeder company, Fort Trumbull, has lodged complaint with the police because of two boys having taken an automobile from the garage of the company last Sunday without permission of the owner.

Catherine Buckley has sold two building lots on Willetts avenue and Wightman street to Michael D. and Daniel Buckley.

An automobile owned by Anthony C. Leiper, of Waterford, parked by the curb on Bank street, near Pearl street, Saturday afternoon was damaged when struck by a motor truck owned and driven by Charles Christensen. The truck became wedged in the rails of the Connecticut company and skidded, the heavy vehicle continuing across the ice-coated highway and against the pleasure vehicle.

Traffic Officer Frank Linehan was operated upon at Lawrence hospital Saturday for trouble resulting Wednesday last when he assisted in removing an automobile from the course of traffic on Main street, after the machine had become stalled, causing a blockade. Today at the hospital it was stated that the condition of the patient was as comfortable as could be expected.

Supernumerary Police Officer Dennis Murphy Saturday drew a suspension of 30 days, without pay, when City Manager William A. Holt informed Captain Charles A. Pinney of the penalty imposed upon the officer, following Murphy being detected at his home on Jay street, where he remained about an hour last Tuesday night.

Miss Johanna Shea, of Norwich, Millard Teabout, U. S. S. Jouett; Sylvester Cheagnia, Walbach street; Swayne Palmer, U. S. S. Downes, and Martin Cook, Johnson, R. I., patients at Lawrence hospital, were discharged today.

Three intoxicated men were taken into custody by the police late Saturday night and early this morning. Strangely enough, all are members of the United States Coast Guard service, the branch of the federal government that is endeavoring to put an end to the trafficking in liquor in the Sound in this vicinity. William C. Bassett, of the crew of the U. S. S. Red Wing, flagship of the navy's dry squadron, stationed at the state pier, was arrested at a skating rink on Golden street by Patrolman John Clifford. James E. Guthrie, of the U. S. S. Downes, another rum-chaser, was arrested on North Bank street Saturday night, by Patrolman Clarence Martin when the sailor was found in a helpless conditions. At 4 o'clock this morning Patrolman Braxton Hill found Oscar Falkenberg, stationed at the United States Coast Guard reservation, Fort Trumbull, at the corner of State and North Bank streets in such a condition of intoxication that the sailor was arrested. All three obtained surety on their respective bonds of $50 during today and were released, pending their hearing in the police court tomorrow morning.

Joseph R. Schwartz has sold a building lot on Montauk avenue to Michael L. O'Connell.

Walter Johnson, 7, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Johnson, of Latham street, Groton, is a patient at Home Memorial hospital, having sustained laceration of the forehead Saturday, the aid he was using hitting a stone wall. Ten stiches were required to close the wound.

James Booth, 923 Bank street, complained to the police today that while his son's bicycle was by the curb in front of the Hotel Mohican, State street, Saturday, it was struck by an automobile and damaged.

Residents of Montauk avenue, near Thames street, today reported to the police that a dog was in that vicinity apparently suffering from fits. Dog Warden John Sweezey was communicated with and took charge of the animal.

An automobile owned by E. H. Bidwell, 35 Evergreen avenue, was stolen Saturday night while parked on Meridian street. When Bidwell discovered the automobile missing he reported the fact to the police. The state police at Groton and Canterbrook, as well as the authorities of Norwich, Hartford and New Haven were requested to be on the lookout for the stolen machine.

Capt. William Durkee of the Central Vermont line freight steamer New London, whose license was recently suspended following two collisions of the craft, has been summoned to Concord, N. H., by the death of his sister-in-law.

Inquiry by a naval board to determine the cause of the Submarine, S-49, Lieut. Com. Stuart E. Bray, of Thames street, New London, going ashore on Jaffrey's Point, off Portsmouth harbor, several nights ago, was started at the submarine base Saturday afternoon, when the testimony of the first of the witnesses were taken. With the hearing concluded, which will not be for several days, the finding of the board will be forwarded to the war department at Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Quinecy, of State street, left today for St. Petersburg, Fla., where they will remain several weeks.

Jerome D. Seagrave, a student at the Connecticut Agricultural college, Storrs, spent the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William D. Seagrave.

Councillor Malcolm M. Scott, for several years treasurer of Home Memorial hospital, has tendered his resignation to the board of directors of the institution and his resignation has been accepted. The new treasurer of the institution is William T. May, a former State street merchant, who retired from active life, about a year ago. The reason for Mr. Scott's resignation is given as too many matters claiming his attention. It is asserted that the recent trouble between nurses at the institution and the board of directors, which resulted in several of the nurses being relieved from duty, had nothing to do with Mr. Scott's resignation.

The hospital directorate has petitioned the general assembly for an appropriation of $8,000 as a further means of meeting the current expenses of the institution.

Captain of Police Charles A. Pinney has issued new orders pertaining to the unnecessary talking with citizens by traffic officers. The order was handed the traffic officers by the sergeants of the different squads and warns the traffic officers from carrying on idle conversation with their friends, but impresses upon the officers the demand for civility and courteous answers to all questions, especially when propounded by strangers.

P. Leroy Harwood, treasurer of the Mariners Savings bank, has returned to his home on Ocean avenue, having spent ten days at Florida resorts.

Miss Lucy Savage of Williams St., is a patient at Lawrence hospital, where she recently underwent an operation. Her condition is gradually improving.

Alvin E. Vall, 59 Blackhall street, who has frequently complained to the police because of the annoyance caused him by the actions of mischievous youths, lodged complaint with the authorities again this afternoon because of promiscuous throwing of snowballs.

Frank Greenman, a truck driver, was taken into custody on shaw St., this evening by Patrolmen Howard Sloan and Augustus Ray, charged with intoxication. He was "down and out" and had to be carried to and from the police patrol.

Patrolman William Graham late this afternoon reported the existence of deep depressions in the highway on Main street, the holes being sufficiently deep as to damage the springs of automobiles passing over them. One hole is located near the corner of Richards street and the other is located at Hallam street. Both danger spots were reported to the highway department and will be given attention Monday.

A young woman, whose conduct for several days had attracted the attention of the police, particularly so because she consorted with different men, most of whom were sailors, was taken into custody this afternoon by Sergeant John Cavanaugh and Patrolman Frank Philopena. She was turned over to the custody of Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield.

SEES RESENTFUL MOOD IN AMERICA AGAINST CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS

Rev. A. Norwood Foster made the child labor amendment, the twentieth to the constitution of the United States, if it is passed, the subject of his sermon Sunday morning at the Church of the Good Shepherd (Universalist) expressing his approval of the amendment, but pointing out that today there appears to be in America a resentful attitude towards amendments to the constitution, no matter what be the purpose or condition of the amendment may be.

Rev. Mr. Foster spoke from the text, Matt. 18:6, "Whosoever shall offend one of these little ones that believe in me." In substance he said:

Jesus' estimate of the sacredness of life is primary and unfailing in His teachings and of extended and beneficient influence in Christian history. The economic estimate of value sometimes does violence to such and needs to be counteracted by moral or ethical values.

The industrial revolution in England in the early nineteenth century forced the factory legislation which imposed restrictions on labor. The invention of machinery increased the power of production; it also developed certain "dangerous occupations"; restrictions on the labor of women and children were compelled and the many complex problems of housing, sanitation, etc., were later involved. Such restrictions were imposed despite the reluctance and protest of many of the employing class and have been justified by historic development. Mrs. Browning's poem, "The Cry of the Children" and Charles Dickens' stories did much, in England, to arouse public conscience to the correction of the abuses of child labor and to mark new standards for judgment in a new era.

In America, the corresponding forces have been very apparent during the last era. The need of restrictions regarding dangerous occupations and for women and children has been all but universally recognized; indeed, so commonly recognized that states which had such restrictions have chafed under competition with the backward states without such laws on their statute books. The movement to thus safeguard life has also been reinforced by the conservation movement to guard natural resources. While some men showed the need and value of safeguarding and protecting water power and coal and timber and sheep and cattle and birds and soil, other men—no less wise—insisted that it is no less important for the nation to safeguard and protect its children from exploitation and extravagant and wasteful use. Nearly a decade ago, congress passed a federal law to thus protect children and youth. Later, on a technical legal point, by a vote of 5 to 4, the United States supreme court declared the law unconstitutional. Until then, the right of congress to so legislate was hardly questioned by any one.

Today America appears in tempestuous, resentful and reactionary mood and against any and all amendments whatever the purpose or condition. The scope of the amendment is absurdly misrepresented and unselfish public spirited workers of twenty years experience are branded as undesirable aliens. Such present mood reflects the attitude of important classes toward the eighteenth amendment.

They so much misread public opinion some seven or eight years ago that they did not believe the prohibition amendment could possibly be adopted and they now chafe over any determined policy of enforcement.

The proposed twentieth amendment has run the gauntlet by at lease three states and there is no time limit in the resolution thus submitted for later ratification.

The government which abolishes slave labor by amendment and collects a federal income tax through an amendment and even prohibits the liquor traffic through an amendment, will logically regulate child labor amendment if the sacred values of life are to be increasingly protected.

PRICELESS GIFT OF FAITH
FR. REILLY'S SERMON THEME

Rev. John J. Reilly, junior assistant at St. Patrick's church, is beginning a series of sermons on the Apostles' Creed, taking up Sunday at the 5 o'clock mass the topic of Faith. He quoted the question and answer from the catechism which every Catholic child knows by heart, regarding the attainment of salvation by the worship of God, through faith, hope and charity. The grace of faith is primarily necessary, since if we did not have faith in God we could not hope in Him, or love Him.

The preacher devoted attention to the way in which the worthy Catholic treasures his faith, which is all that separates him from the atheists, pagans and faddists, who, vainglorious in their little attainment of learning, pity those who believe, in these so-called enlightened times of the automobile, the radio, the apartment house, et al. These objectors are not even new—merely the twentieth century edition of those who passed and re-passed during the afternoon of the first Good Friday, jeering and mocking the crucified Saviour, defying Him to come down and prove Himself. Their small intellects will not permit them to understand faith—that mysterious grace which bridges the distance between puny man and his infinite Creator. There is mystery in all that is worth while in life—and it is reasonable that God should keep back something, its solution for us to be in eternity.

The speaker paid brief attention to such would-be leaders of thought as H. G. Wells and Bernard Shaw and their near-followers, as well as to those who, while they took on faith the predictions of the scientists regarding the recent eclipse, when it is a matter of belief have to be out with their tape-measure, to try to gauge the teachings of authority. His peroration was, the great wisdom of manifesting practical faith by living closer to Christ—believing, although one's feeble human intellect will not always let one understand. He held out the promise of that happy time when, all doubts cleared away and all perplexing problems finding solution, that friendship with Christ begun in this world will have its full consummation and the Saviour's own voice will welcome the steadfast soul with the consoling assurance, "Thy faith hath made thee whole."

Reading the low mass was Rev. Michael J. Sebel, a member of LaSalette missionary order, Hartford, who assisted the resident priests in the burden of work at the week end, hearing confessions, etc. In giving holy communion Father Sebel was aided by Rev. Myles P. Galvin, the acting pastor. As usual, every pew in the great auditory was crowded, the two galleries being filled with the children of the Sunday school. The day's epistle was Romans 13: 8-10, beginning "Brethren, owe no man anything," and the gospel was Matthew 8: 23-27, the miraculous stilling of the winds and sea.

CAME NEAR DYING
UNDERNEATH AUTOMOBILE

Found unconscious from monoxide gas poisoning under his Essex closed car at his garage on Hunter's avenue Saturday evening about 6.15 o'clock, Alfred Savignac was rushed to the W. W. Backus hospital. He had sufficiently recovered from the effects of the gas Sunday morning to return to his home on Hunters' avenue.

Mr. Savignac went to the garage for the purpose of greasing the machine. To keep out the cold he closed the garage doors placing a bar across the doors on the inside of the garage. Then he crawled beneath the machine the engine of which was running. While engaged in greasing the machine he was overcome by the monoxide gas which rapidly filled the garage.

His plight was discovered in time to save his life. Clarence Larkin, a neighbor, forced the doors of the garage and the unconscious man was removed from beneath the machine and rushed to the hospital.

REV. WILLIAM A. KEEFE TO MAKE PILGRIMAGE TO ROME

At the three masses offered in St. Mary's Memorial church on Sunday morning, Rev. William A. Keefe, the rector, surprised his congregation by the announcement that in their name he had decided to make a pilgrimage to Rome, in keeping with the thousands of Catholic priests and laymen throughout the world who will journey to the Eternal City to pay their respects and be received in audience by His Holiness Pius XI, in this, the Holy Year. Father Keefe has engaged passage on the steamship De Grasse of the Cunard line and will leave New York on Wednesday, Feb. 18th, the first point of calling being the port of Havre in the auth of France. This will be Father Keefe's second visit to Rome. His first visit followed his ordination to the Catholic priesthood at the College of Louvain in Belgium, when he journeyed to Rome, before returning to this country and met in audience and received from the late Pope, Leo XIII, his blessing in the famous Sistine chapel which was in the month of July, 1903. His present trip will consume about two months' time, during which the affairs of St. Mary's parish will be in charge of his able assistant, Rev. Frederick M. Coholan. His parishioners and legion of friends throughout the city and diocese will wish him Godspeed on his visit in a pleasant journey and a safe return. In the building of the new parish memorial church Father Keefe is entitled to a well earned rest.

LOUIS TUCH, OF WESTERLY DIES SUNDAY AFTERNOON

(Special to The Bulletin)

Westerly, Feb. 1.—Louis Tuch, one of the older clothing merchants of Westerly, and well known in Norwich, died Sunday afternoon about 3 o'clock at the Jane Brown Memorial hospital, Providence. About eight weeks ago Mr. Tuch suffered an attack of influenza with bronchitis and later sciatica developed. Recovering from this he was out but a few days when other troubles developed. Thursday by advice of Dr. Henry L. Johnson, he was taken in the ambulance of the Westerly Sanitari corps to Providence and Saturday his right leg was amputated above the knee.

Born in Germany in Aug. 1850, Mr. Tuck came to New York when a young man and interested himself in the clothing business. From New York he went to Stonington, where he conducted a clothing store for five years in the Jesse Brown block. About 40 years ago he opened a clothing store in the Windsor House, Westerly, removing to the O. D. Wells block on Broad street. When the Brown block was built in 1897, Mr. Tuch occupied the North store at which place he has been engaged in the clothing business to the present time, continuing at the same place in spite of two fires which had gutted the building in that time. With him in the clothing store have been associated his two brothers-in-law, Theodore Samuel and later Herman Samuel. Mr. Tuch married in Norwich in 1883, Ernestine Samuel, of that city, where he frequently visited.

Besides his wife he is survived by a daughter, Helen M. Tuch. Their home is at 26 Elm street. An older sister, Mrs. Fanny Levine resides in Haverstraw, N. Y. Burial is to be in Norwich.

NORWICH UNIONS ARE OBSERVING C. E. WEEK

Most of the Christian Endeavor societies in the Norwich union as well as thousands of societies all over the world are observing Christian Endeavor week.

The first society was formed by Rev. Francis E. Clark, D. D., in the parsonage of Williston Congregational church, Portland, Me., on February 2, 1881. It was first organized to give the young people some part in the activities of the church, and it has been fulfilling its mission ever since. It has been called the training school of the church.

Other ministers became interested for they had the same problem as that of Dr. Clark, so other societies were formed in 1883 a society was organized in Honolulu, Hawaii. In 1885, China had its first society. From this beginning it has spread to all corners of the globe. From 1921 to 1923, more than 10,000 new Christian Endeavor societies were organized, which meant more than thirteen every day. Now there are over 80,000 societies, with over 4,000,000 members in 80 countries and in over 50 denominations. It has enrolled about 20,000,000 young people in its ranks in the past forty years.

Christian Endeavor takes in all ages, with junior, intermediate and senior societies, also with alumni councils and fellowships, which keep the older ones in touch with the movement. Besides the societies in the churches and neighborhoods, there are those in colleges and other schools, in prisons, on the sea and in the army. The Christian Endeavor idea is very adaptable to all situations and can be worked out to help all needs. In 1885 Connecticut formed the first state union in the country. There are now over 250 senior societies, 20 intermediates and 50 juniors in the state.

The Norwich union was formed October 12, 1887, and now consists of 22 societies, Congregational, Baptist and Methodist.

The Norwich union is not confined to Christian Endeavor societies, but takes in all young peoples' societies whose constitutions express the same aim and purpose.

Dr. John Mott says: "The young people's society is no longer an experiment in the church. Experience has justified its existence. It is a vital part of church life and organization.'

POETRY

LIFT UP THY GATES.

O restless world! so marred by sin and sorrow,
Through all the ages of this mundane life;
Yet hoping still for some unknown tomorrow,
When peace shall still the clamor and the strife.
There waiteth one whose right it is to enter
And be enthroned; His kingdom to begin:
He is the One of akes all, the Center:
Lift up thy gates, that He may enter in.

O weary world, in doubt and darkness groping!
Among thy sons is none that's strong to lead.
Thine only help, to all thine age-old hoping,
Is found in one who comes to fill thy need.
Lift up thine eyes! "Behold The Lord's Anointed!"
He comes the victory for thee to win!
Thy Saviour: He, by right divine appointed,
Lift up thy gates, and bid Him enter in.

"The Son of Man" is He: of every Nation,
And race and color, tribe and tongue, a part;
His just demand, in one supreme oblation,
Is nothing less than this: "A Contrite Heart."
Prostrate thyself in sackcloth and in ashes;
Show tokens of repentance for thy sin.
Before the lightning of His judgment flashes;
Lift up thy gates, and let Him enter in.

"The Son of Man"—ah, yes; "King of Glory,"
Whose right it is alone to rule the world;
His sword is truth divine; not red and gory;
He leads His hosts with banners bright unfurled.
And comes to banish night and save the lowly,
His reign will every evil disallow.
Awake thy voice in adoration holy,
And lift thy gates, that He may enter now.

—Edgar Cooper Mason, in The Continent.

CANDLEMAS.

O hearken all ye little weeds
That lie beneath the snow
(So low, dear hearts, in poverty so low!)
The sun hath risen for royal deeds,
A valiant wind the vanguard leads;
Now quicken ye, let unborn seeds
Before ye rise and blow.

O furry, living things adream
On winter's drowsy breast
(How rest ye there, how softly, safely rest!)
Arise and follow where a gleam
Of wizard gold unbinds the stream,
And all the woodland windings seem
With sweet expectance blest.

My birds, come back! the hollow sky
Is weary for your note.
(Sweet throat, come back; O liquid mellow throat!)
Ere May's soft minions fareward fly,
Shame on ye, laggards, to deny
The brooding breast, the sunbright eye,
The tawny, shining coat!

KALEIDOSCOPE

The Moros in the Philippine islands are anxious to remain under the American flag, according to Mrs. C. Lorillard Spencer, who has worked among them for fourteen years. Mrs. Spencer has brought to this country a petition signed by the thumb marks of thirty-three Moro chiefs, asking that the islands inhabited by the Moros not be included in the event of Philippine independence.

Disgust with routine work is a fertile mother of inventions. A part of the job of C. B. McFarland, forest ranger, in Oregon, was to keep track of the number of automobiles that traversed the government roads. It was tiresome work, and mechanical. So Mr. McFarland invented a machine to do it. The traffic counter, as he calls his device, is a small platform resting on springs, buried flush with the track in a narrow place in the road. It is connected by levers to a counting machine on a post. Each car depresses the platform one-half inch, enough to work the counting machine but not enough to jolt the car.

The first national forest to be created under the Clarke-McNary forest act, passed by congress in June, 1924, is the Benning National forest, near Columbus, Ga. This new forest embraces 78,500 acres of Ft. Benning military reservation, and all rights to use the area for military purposes are reserved by the war department. An excellent stand of pine timber is expected to yield forest products for military use and for sale to bidders. Including the Benning National forest, three national forests are located in Georgia. The total number of national forests is 148, and they embrace 157,000,000 acres. These areas form a chain of public lands that produce timber on a perpetual supply basis as well as provide recreational grounds. They protect the watersheds of many navigable rivers, and the water supply of many communities. They also serve as refuges for birds and animals.

HOSTILE FACTIONS ASK FOR MARTIAL LAW IN HERRIN, ILL.

State's Attorney Arlie Boswerth, Klansman, Supports Appeal of Sheriff Galligan, Anti-Klansman, For Martial Law—Fears, Unless Troops Are Sent to Herrin, That Sooner or Later Martial Law Will Be Necessary in Entire Williamson County.

Herrin, Ill., Feb. 2.—(By the A. P.)—Nothing but sincere cooperation between all officials in Williamson county can prevent more "butchery in Herrin," Sheriff George Galligan, State's Attorney Arlie Boswell and the county board of supervisors agreed today and they decided to "go down the line together" in one more attempt to restore order in the county.

Attorney Boswell, elected with the endorsement of the Klan, stated that martial law is the only thing that will prevent more shooting unless caution is taken by all factions.

Sheriff Galligan declared "the county is bigger than I am," and offered to arbitrate differences between the board and himself as to the personnel of his staff of deputies if the board agreed to do "everything within its power to influence the justice of the peace not to issue any more permits to carry arms."

Whether the meeting will actually calm the situation is an open question.

The board could give no assurance, having no authority over the justice of the peace, that it could stop the issue of permits to carry arms, and it is not certain that the sheriff and the board can agree on a deputy to replace Adron Smith, who, with the slain Ora Thomas, was under fire for some time.

The meeting did develop a spirit of cooperation between the sheriff and the board, but was largely made up of Klansmen, a fact which had not been apparent up to this time.

MAY INTERVENE IN THE GRAECO-TURKISH DISPUTE

Paris, Feb. 2 (By the A. P.).—The French, British and Italian governments are conferring through their chancelleries with regard to the terms of a possible friendly intervention at Athens and Angora in the Graeco-Turkish dispute over the expulsion of the patriarch Constantinos from Constantinople, it was learned at the French foreign office this evening.

The idea would be to recommend an attitude of conciliation to the two governments. It was suggested a preliminary move might be made to urge the Turkish government to forego its decision to expel the four remaining Greek bishops. Also that Turkey be asked to accept the request of Greece that the dispute be referred to the permanent court of international justice at The Hague.

Reports from Constantinople are said to indicate that Turkey plans to expel thirty-four bishops and clergymen in addition to those whose deportation has already been decided upon. The belief is expressed in some quarters here that the Turks are pursuing the present policy in order the two hundred thousand Greeks still remaining in Constantinople may be induced to leave.

MAGNUS JOHNSON TO CONTEST SENT IN SENATE

Washington, Feb. 2.—Extortion of $75,000 from Minnesota "bootleggers" and "moonshiners" for use in the campaign of Representative Thomas D. Schall for the United States senate is charged in a petition of contest filed with the senate today by Magnus Johnson, the farmer-labor candidate, who was defeated for re-election.

Senator Johnson alleges that this money was used with Schall's "knowledge and consent, as your petitioner is informed and verily believes." He also charges expenditure of other unlawful sums and accuses Scholl of making many installements concerning him and using money illegally in enlisting the aid and support of numerous persons in Minnesota "in the publication and circulation of false and defamatory publications."

While filed with the senate at this time, the petition cannot be considered at this session, but will come up before the new senate elected at the time Johnson was defeated last November.

MEASURES SELECTED FOR ACTION IN THE SENATE

Washington, Feb. 2.—Nine measures were selected by the republican steering committee today for action by the senate before March 4 adjournment. The German commercial treaty headed the list, but legislative recommendations made by the president's agricultural commission were omitted.

The proposal for American adherence to the world court and the Cramton bill for reorganization of prohibition enforcement machinery also were omitted from the list, which was drawn from a great mass of legislation awaiting action in the senate.

The McLean bill authorizing the treasury to reduce interest rates on government loans to railroads whenever the interstate commerce commission regards such changes as necessary, was given second place among the nine which the leaders decided to press.

NO FAITH IN GROUNDHOG AS WEATHER PROPHET

Washington, Feb. 2.—A bad weather tip given here today by the regularly ordained ground hog in the national zoological park was received with skepticism by officials of the weather bureau.

Forecaster Mitchell declared that if any groundhog could predict anything, the weather bureau would haul him in "and feed him on cream puffs."

Anyone who is looking for several varieties of blizzard," he said, "because some innocent little woodchuck ventured out of his hole today and found the sun peeping from behind a cloud, is very likely to be disappointed."

IMPORTER PLEADED GUILTY TO LARCENY INDICTMENTS

New York, Feb. 2.—Cash and securities amounting to $130,000 were turned over to Judge Talley in general sessions court today by Philip Weisenthal, 30, an importer, after he had pleaded guilty to six of seven grand larceny indictments.

Weisenthal was charged with having defrauded the American Express company of $250,000 in connivance with two employes of the company.

Weisenthal promised to go to London and obtain the release of $80,000 impounded there under his control and to make a complete statement naming his accomplices, said Assistant District Attorney Canterphen.

ANOTHER BLIZZARD IN NORTHERN NEW YORK STATE

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 2.—Winter wrapped another heavy mantle of snow about New York state today. The western and southeastern sections of New York state experienced only a reminder of last Friday's record storm, but in the central and northern sections the full force of the second blizzard was felt.

Two deaths occurred just as the storm was beginning in northern New York. In both cases railroad employes slipped in the snow and fell from freight trains to death.

Railroad traffic on the St. Lawrence division of the New York Central was demoralized. A number of trains were cancelled and those that fought their way through the storm were hours late.

Snow plows and shovels, laid aside this morning, when many of the transportation systems and municipalities which believed they had conquered the snow, were in active service again this afternoon. By sundown Auburn had added eight inches to the 42 inches that fell last Thursday and Friday. Eight inches fell at Rome and Gloversville. Oswego reported six inches and Watertown five. Four inches fell at Ithaca and Albany.

New York, Feb. 2.—Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, former National tennis champion and outstanding star of the field, was victorious today in the opening of play in the annual women's indoor invitation tournament at the Heights Casino, triumphing over Miss Jessie Gott of New York, 6-0, 6-1, in a second round match after drawing a bye in the first round.

Other well known players emerging victoriously from the first day's competition included Miss Anna Fuller and Miss Marion Fenno of Boston; Mrs. Lillian Scharman Hester, Mrs. B. F. Stenz, Miss Helen Hooker and Miss Martha Bayard, al of the metropolitan district.

Miss Fuller vanquished Mrs. Theodore Casseboer, 6-1, 6-1, while Miss Fenno won from Mrs. J. F. Taylor by default. Miss Bayard, No. 6 in the National ranking, advanced by default of Mrs. B. F. Briggs; Miss Hooker defeated Mrs. J. E. Bailey, 6-3, 6-1; Mrs. Stenz eliminated Mrs. H. S. Green, 8-6, 7-5; and Mrs. Hester won from Mrs. David C. Mills of Orange, N. J., 6-1, 6-4.

DUNDEE NOTIFIED FRENCH PROMOTERS SAYS FRIEND

Paris, Feb. 2.—(By The A. P.)—New light was shed today upon the "affaire Dundee" when a friend of Johnny Dundee disclosed that the American boxer informed Paris promoters of his intented departure the day before he actually embarked from Havre. Previous, Boyer and Soisl, promoters, have claimed Dundee gave them no warnings of his hasty departure for the United States shortly before he was to have boxed Fred Bretonnel of France.

According to the informant, he acted as interpreter between Dundee and the promoters at a conference lasting far into the night of January 16, the day before the boxer's sailing.

At this time, he said, Dundee asked a postponement of the Bretonnel bout which would have given him time to return to New York but the promoters refused to agree to this. The latter, it was said, at first demanded 180,000 francs damages, later lowering his figure to 100,000 and finally agreeing to accept $5,000.

New Haven, Feb. 2.—Whether or not the price of bread will be changed in price of wheat will be determined by this city as a result of present high the New Haven Master Bakers at their regular meeting a week from tomorrow. Carl Blanchard, president of the association, said tonight that thus far the suggestion to raise the price of bread here had been discussed informally only. It was said that bread prices here are not likely to be raised unless the price of wheat continued to go up.

BORAH INQUIRES ABOUT ITALY'S DEBT TO THE U. S.

Washington, Feb. 2.—Chairman Borah of the senate foreign relations committee, wrote Secretary Mellon today inquiring whether Italy had proposed any plan looking to settlement of its $2,000,000 war debt to the United States.

Senator Borah also asked Mr. Mellon, who is chairman of the American debt commission, the exact amount in principal and interest owed by Italy and how much of the principal was contracted after the armistice.

UNABLE TO RELEASE COLLINS FROM IMPRISONMENT IN CAVE

Cave City, Ky., Feb. 2.—(By the A. P.)—An automatic air compressor an drill and a pick and shovel brigade were pressed into service this afternoon in the endeavor to free Floyd Collins, 35 from his tunnel-prison in Sand Cave, near here.

A subterranean rock, which some of the rescuers estimate weighs as much as eight tons, pinned Collins in a section of the cave only eight inches high Friday morning as he was crawling out after making a lengthy exploration. The slab is believed to have caught Collins' leg in a crevice, wedging it there, while not actually crushing the limb.

Brothers of the victim have offered $500 to any physician who can reach Collins and render aid. Only men of slender stature can pass through some of the crevices to where the imprisoned man lies, with burlap bags stuffed under part of his body and blankets wrapped around the upper part.

All day searchers have explored other caves in the vicinity in hopes of finding a passageway which would permit them to approach Collins from behind and move the rock. Others have endeavored to find a subterranean cavity leading near where the prisoner lies on his back, hoping to drill their way through the underground rock walls into Sand Cave, if that should be necessary.

Eight men, lying on their stomachs, now comprise a relay system of communication from Collins to the outside. George T. Tucker, manager of the Tucker telephone system of Cave City, has gone to the cave prepared to establish a telephone line as far within the passage as possible.

Paris, Feb. 2.—A dispatch to the Havas Agency from Athens says a note protesting against the expulsion of the Patriarch Constantinos from Turkey has been delivered by the Greek charge d'affaires to the Turkish foreign minister at Angora. The note declares that the expulsion of the patriarch was a hostile act against Greece, but that Greece, desirous of proving her conciliatory spirit, proposes that the question be submitted to the court of international justice at The Hague.

Should Turkey refuse arbitration, the despatch quotes the note as saying, the Greek government will request intervention by the league of nations.

Meanwhile a state of ferment continues throughout Greece. A mass meeting was held today under the presidency of the mayor and indignation meetings also were held in the principal provincial cities.

Would Compel Solons Observe Prohibition

Plan Suggested to have System of Espionage [illegible] Members of Congress.

New York, Feb. 2—If members of congress were compelled to abstain from intoxicants for one week, the 18th amendment would be repealed at the week's end, William H. Stayton, head of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, Inc., said tonight at an "enlightenment dinner" at the Hotel Astor under auspices of the citizen's committee of one hundred.

"A group of wealthy men recently called upon President Coolidge, anointed him as a total abstainer and invited all other government officials to come forward and take the pledge," said Mr. Stayton.

"The polls are still open, but not one single vote has been cast. Representative Upshaw has repeated his earnest call that members of congress come to the mourner's bench, but no one has budged.

"These gentlemen who went to see the president unite with reformers of the United States in crying for enforcement. So far the authorities have failed to give us enforcement. Perhaps it is impossible to enforce the law in the whole United States. I suggest that they try a more limited task.

"I recommend that they try to enforce the prohibition law as it concerns members of congress. It ought to be practicable to have a set of watchers to make sure that these 530 men obey this law for one week. At the end of the week the law would be repealed."

Upon the hypothesis that "no fundamentally dishonest law can endure," Representative John Philip Hill of Maryland, predicted a short life for the Volstead act, which he said was "fundamentally crooked" because it "attempts to perpetuate the falsehood that 1-2 of one per cent cider is legal and that 1-2 of one per cent beer is illegal.

Mr. Hill experimented with that act, was arrested for the manufacture of wine, and acquitted, the federal courts in Maryland holding that a beverage, to be of illegal make, must be intoxicating in fact as well as in legal definition.

Representative James A. Gallivan of Massachusetts, expressed doubt that "anyone can make an intelligent guess what this farcical prohibition enforcement is costing the government." At present, he thought, it was about $30,000,000 a year with a prospect of reaching $50,000,000 in the near future.

He attacked efforts in congress to have a prohibition unit established as an independent bureau, saying, "that proposal comes from the anti-saloon league, the source of all this mischievous legislation."

TO PUSH INDICTMENTS AGAINST THE MORSES

New York, Feb. 2—Federal officials announced today they were taking immediate steps to push to trial the indictments against Charles W. Morse, shipbuilder, his three sons and sixteen other defendants charged with having used the mails to defraud.

Plans for an early trial were announced with receipt of word from Washington that the supreme court had affirmed a decision of Federal Judge Winslow upholding the right of the government in its arrest of Benjamin W. and Harry F. Morse, sons of Charles W. Morse, while they were en route to Washington to stand trial on a separate indictment in that district.

The trial will proceed on indictments returned against the Morses and sixteen of their associates April 27, 1922, in connection with sale of securities of the U. S. Steamship Company. In February of last year Benjamin W. and Harry F. Morse left the jurisdiction of the local federal courts to go to trial in Washington. They protested their arrest en route, on the contention that they were immune while proceeding to answer charges against them in another district, but Judge Winslow ruled against them.

SIGHTED WATERSPOUT AND SEVEN SCHOOLS PORPOISES

New York, Feb. 2.—A waterspout and seven school of porpoises, estimated to have numbered about 1,000, were sighted by passengers of the S. S. Victoria, of the Furness-Bermuda line, which arrived today from Bermuda. The porpoises accompanied the vessel yesterday until land was sighted.

The waterspout, according to ship's officers, was sighted exactly 350 miles from this port. Its maximum height, they said, was 250 feet, by the time it reached the ship, however, it had been dissipated, dying entirely about 150 feet from the liner.

FIRE IN THE OLD PLAZA THEATRE, BRIDGEPORT

Bridgeport, Feb. 2.—A fire believed to have been caused by a recently installed self-feeding oil furnace tonight damaged the old Plaza theatre on Fairfield avenue to an extent variously estimated at $5,000 to $10,000. Only efficient and heroic action on the part of the firemen prevented the destruction of the entire building, valued at about $200,000.

The orchestra floor collapsed with several firement who were fighting the stubborn oil-fed flames, but none of them was seriously injured. One firefighter was taken to the St. Vincent hospital overcome by smoke.

Diphtheria Anti-Toxin Reaches Nome

Was Brought There From Nenana, 650 Miles East, by Relays of Dog Teams.

Nome, Alaska, Feb. 2 (By the A. P.)—Three hundred thousand units of diphtheria anti-toxin which left Nenana, 650 miles to the east at 11 o'clock Tuesday night, reached here at 5.30 this morning. It was frozen solid.

Dr. Curtis Welch, representative of the United States Public Health Service, the only physician in Nome, said that the anti-toxin would have to be thawed before he could tell whether it had retained its efficacy.

The final relay of the distance, all of which was covered by dog teams drawing sleds, carrying the twenty-pound package, was run by Gunnar Kasson.

A storm which raged yesterday over Norton Sound, on whose northern side Nome stands, abated in the night, Kasson reported.

The time made from Nenana on the Alaskan railroad, whither the anti-toxin had been hurried from anchorage, 300 miles south of Nenana to Rome, was a little under the best actual running time ever made in the Alaska derbies, formerly run on a 408 miles course from Nome to Candle City and return.

The record for this derby was made by Leonard Seppalla, who, according to reports received here, drove his famous team on a relay in the last 300 miles in bringing the anti-toxin from Nenana. This record was 78 hours, 44 minutes, 57 seconds, but 20 hours and seven minutes of that time had been taken out for rest.

For the actual running time this was slightly more than eight miles an hour.

Not allowing for difference in longitude, the elapsed time from Nenana to Nome was 126 1-2 hours. Adding an hour for the difference in longitude gives 127 1-2 hours. For the 650 miles, estimated, that the anti-toxin traveled from Nenana to Nome, this would be more than five miles per hour.

The best run of the 650 miles was credited to Shannon who made the first 60 miles from Nenana to Tolovana in 14 hours with the mercury 60 degrees below zero. Jim Kalland and his dogs carried it the next 65 miles to Hot Springs.

LITTLE PROGRESS MADE AT OPIUM CONFERENCE

Geneva, Feb. 2 (By the A. P.)—With the Geneva opium parleys now entering their fourth month, the general situation tonight still remains hazy, and, from the standpoint of the American delegation, critical. Representative Stephen G. Porter expressed keen disappointment today when one country, India, rejected, and four others made reservations on, the American proposal that the production of opium be limited to medical and scientific needs.

The Americans seem to feel that they are far from obtaining the results they had hoped for on one of the cardinal items of their program. They made reservations today when the sub-committee was giving final touches to the draft articles for the creations and functioning of an anti-narcotic board.

The object of these reservations was to keep the anti-narcotic board divorced as far as possible from the league of nations as an institution. One point reserved was that the council of the league shall in consultation with the board make all necessary arrangements for its organization and operation, so as to assure technical independence of the board, while providing for control of the staff in administration matters by the secretary-general of the league.

OTTO BRAUN RETIRES AS PREMIER OF PRUSSIA

Berlin, Feb. 2 (By the A. P.).—The retirement of Otto Braun, the socialist premier of Prussia, from the post to which he was re-elected last Friday by the diet still leaves the Prussian government crisis in a badly tangled state. The prospects of finding a successor to Herr Braun in the ranks of the clerical or democratic parties who would be definitely assured the necessary support of the German people's party, is viewed as extremely slender.

Herr Braun resigned the premiership today after having failed to receive assurances of neutrality from the German people's party, without which the present coalition government, comprising socialists, clericals and democrats, would fail to command the necessary majority in the diet. The only alternative suggested in the deadlock is dissolution of the diet.

While the elimination of the socialists from all participation in the Prussian government is the obvious aim of the reactionary parties, a straight bourgeois government is viewed as impossible of realization owing to the determined attitude of both the democrats and the clericals.

VOTE FOR SUPPRESSION OF VATICAN FRENCH EMBASSY

Chamber of Deputies Supported the Contention of Premier Herriot 314 to 250—Premier Herriot Assured His Opponents That a Diplomatic Agent Would Be Maintained at the Vatican to Represent Alsace-Lorraine.

Paris, Feb. 2 (By the A. P.).—Suppression of the French embassy to the Vatican was voted by the chamber of deputies this evening, 314 to 250. It was the realization of part of the program upon which the left groups of radical socialists were elected May 11, and which Premier Herriot has carried through with firm determination "for the interest of France."

The chamber's party lines stood out well defined, the majority following M. Herriot solidly.

The premier pacified the opposition of the Alsace-Lorraine deputies by giving an official notice that a diplomatic agent would be maintained at the Vatican to represent the recovered provinces.

Abbe Lemire, speaking "not as a Catholic priest, but as a radical deputy," begged the premier to reconsider his decision before it was too late.

The measure must be passed by the senate before it becomes final. The vote tonight was not actually obtained on the question of "suppression of the embassy," but came upon the suppression of credits in the foreign affairs budget necessary to maintain a diplomatic mission to the Vatican. The credits needed for the Alsace-Lorraine representative in Rome will be included in the Alsace-Lorraine budget instead of the foreign affairs budget, this technically doing away with any French representation at the Holy See.

WAS NOT THE ANCESTRAL HOME OF JOHN ADAMS

New York, Feb. 2.—The house at Flore, Northamptonshire, England, which the George Washington-Sulgrave Institution purchased in the belief that it was the ancestral home of John Adams, has been placed on the market for sale following the discovery that it was not the Adams home, it was learned today.

John A. Stewart, chairman of the board of governors of the institution, explained the details of the transaction in a letter to W. Lanier Washington, which was made public today through Alton B. Parker. The institution still intends to erect a memorial to the ancestry of John Adams, Mr. Stewart said in his letter.

The supposed Adams ancestral home was purchased, Mr. Stewart said, after Brooks Adams had been convinced by a Mr. Holloway of Northampton, England, that the property was once owned by Mr. Adams' family. Later some doubt arose and subsequent investigations caused the institution to place the property on the market.

STATEMENT ON CANADIAN PULPWOOD EXPORTATIONS

Montreal, Feb. 2.—Edward Beck, secretary of the Canadian Pulp and Paper associatino, today deferred a proposed special tax on all pulpwood exportations and branded as "propaganda" the recent protest filed with Chairman Borah of the senate foreign relations committee at Washington by the National Publishers' association.

The American publishers, he said at a luncheon of the Canadian Pulpwood association, had, with their protest, taken the "initial step to stampede the public of the United States and Canada by brandishing the bogey of international hostility should the Canadian government undertake to restrain the exportation of unmanufactured pulpwood. Dominion paper manufacturers have no ulterior motive in their campaign to have the Canadian government place a tax on all exportations.

SNOW HAMPERS FREIGHT TRAFFIC IN SYRACUSE

Syracuse, N. Y., Feb. 2.—A snowstorm that added six inches to the record snowfall of last Thursday and Friday multiplied the troubles of city and transportation officials today. Conditions had not been completely restored to normal when the new storm came.

Railroad passenger services were little troubled, but freight movements were greatly hampered in the yards.

The fourth death added to the storm toll of the past few days occurred at a hospital when Harold Merrill, 3 years old, died shortly after his father, Fred Merrill, had brought him there from Salina, a suburb, on a hand sled, after a three hour struggle through the drifts.

The father was exhausted when he reached the hospital, too late to save the baby's life.

SEES BRIGHTER OUTLOOK FOR CATTLE INDUSTRY

Washington, Feb. 2.—Initial steps were taken by the house agricultural committee today toward drafting into legislature form the recommendations of President Coolidge's agricultural commission.

Ralph P. Merritt, a member of the commission, explained in detail the benefits which the commission hoped they would carry to the former.

A brighter outlook for the cattle industry was seen by Mr. Merritt. He said he could not endorse the proposal to regulate production as means of increasing prices of farm products and attributed the failure of many cooperative marketing organizations to meet expectations, to lack of definite plans, inadequate financing, defeats in management and failure to organize sufficient numbers of producers.

BANDIT SHOT THE TOWN CONSTABLE IN DUNELLEN, N. J.

Dunellen, N. J., Feb. 2.—Interrupted in his second jewelry store holdup of the afternoon, a bandit shot Borough Marshal Samuel Strickland twice in the head, seriously wounding him, and then forced two men to drive him to Elizabeth, where he disappeared. State troopers and the police force of all the towns in this section of the state are searching tonight for the man. Strickland is not expected to live.

The bandit first held up Peter Bergen, an aged jeweler of Bound Brook, and after beating him over the head with a lead pipe rifled the show cases of jewelry. Crossing the street the bandit asked a taxi drive to take him to Dunellen. On the way the robber sold the driver a watch and asked his opinion of two rings, which are supposed to have been among the loot taken from the Bound Brook store.

Upon reaching Dunellen, the bandit entered the jewlery store of Meyer Allen and ordered Allen to hold up his hands. Strickland, who was off duty at the time, was told by the taxi driver of the actions of the man, and rushed to Allen's store. He arrested the man and took him to a nearby pool room to question him.

As Strickland started to search him the bandit pulled out a gun and shot the marshal twice in the head and then rushed from the building. At the curb he found a car and forced two men in it, and at the point of his revolver, to drive him 15 miles to Elizabeth.

The bandit, after felling Berger with a lead pipe, apologized, saying: "I am sorry I had to hit you so hard."

Office Hours: 9:30 to 12 m.; 1:30 to 5 p. m.

The voters will meet in the town building this (Tuesday) evening to decide the yearly tax levy. The tax rate to be decided upon applies to the grand list and it is expected that many property holders will attend the meeting et sidetrack any possible attempt to levy what they consider any unreasonable figure. A plea will be made by these citizens to continue the plan to lighten the town's indebtedness which was started last year, when a thirteen mill tax was lavied. So far the debt continues the same but the increase in taxation accounts for the handsome balance of $55,274.67 which remains in the treasury and will be used during the current year to offset what it can of the budget of $390,000.

The budget prepared by the selectmen and adopted at the last annual town meeting in October reached $294,100 and to be added to this is about $5,000 as the town's share in building the state road between North Windham and Windham Center. Making allowances for all deductions for complaints and exemptions, the grand list will reach the approximate figure of $17,400,000. Thirteen mills on that would net the sum of $226,000. This would leave a difference to be made up from other sources as follows: balance in treasury $55,274.67; from dog licenses $750; cemetery income $1,500; miscellaneous $3,000; support of schools $37,000 and personal tax, $13,000. There will be those present at the meeting who will follow the usual course and seek to have the tax rate reduced and leave their children to bear the burden of old debts; but they will meet with strong opposition from the more considerate who favor laying something aside for the town's sinking fund, or to pay off musty bills which carry heavy interest.

Chicken pie like mother used to make and speakers from the good old oratorical block will be the attractions for the Chamber of Commerce meeting this (Tuesday) evening. This new way works wonders on cloudy teeth

Modern science, by perfecting a new way of combating the stubborn film that covers teeth, now opens the road to whiter teeth, safely.

THAT cloudy teeth, yellowish, discolored teeth can be made whiter is now an accepted fact. Foremost dentists of the world are widely urging this new method. You can have cleaner, prettier teeth if you will start today.

This is accomplished by combating a viscous film that covers teeth. A stubborn, hard to remove film that old type dentifrices do not fight successfully.

Run your tongue across your teeth and you can feel this film. Under it are the clear, attractive teeth you envy in others. Combat it, and your teeth become many shades whiter—more glistening. This offers you a 10-day test free. Mail the coupon.

The great enemy of teeth

Film is the great enemy of teeth beauty. And a chief cause, according to world's dental authorities, of most tooth troubles. It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays. Germs by the millions breed in it. They, with tartar, are the common cause of pyorrhea. It holds food in contact with teeth, inviting the acid that causes decay.

You can't have prettier, whiter teeth; you can't have healthier teeth unless you combat that film.

Ask your druggist or mail the coupon for Pepsodent. Don't expect the same results from old time dentifrices. Begin beautifying your teeth today.

LETER TO GOVERNOR FROM HERBERT W. BOWEN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Putnam, Feb. 3.—Herbert W. Bowen of Woodstock, counsel for the trustees of Roseland park, has written the following open letter to Gov. John H. Trumbull regarding bathing, boating and fishing in natural lakes and ponds and particularly with reference to Roseland lake, from which the city of Putnam derives its water supply:

"I have the honor to request that you veto any bill that may be passed by the Connecticut legislature that takes away the rights of bathing, boating and fishing from the owners of land bordering on natural lakes and ponds where those rights have been exercised from time immemorial, unless due provision is made in the bill that condemnation proceedings shall be instituted, and shall be completed by compensating the owners for the loss of their said rights and for the damage done to their property by depriving them of said rights.

"The constitution of the United States provides (Art. V., Amendments) that no person shall be deprived of "property without due process of law, nor shall private property be taken for public use without just compensation," and it also provides (Art. VI.) that the judges in every state shall be bound to regard the constitution of the United States as the supreme law of the land, "anything in the constitution or laws of any state to the contrary notwithstanding."

"The clear meaning of the constitution of the United States is that legal proceedings must be taken before, and not afetr, owners of property are deprived of their property rights, and that the owners must be compensated for the loss of their property rights before, and not after, they are deprived of their property. It follows, therefore, that no state can permit its health officers or water companies to treat natural lakes and ponds as reservoirs before they have legally been made reservoirs by condemnation proceedings and by compensating riparian owners for the loss of their property rights.

"During recent years a disposition has been evinced by certain state officials and by certain water companies to override the law, and to ignore the procedure prescribed by the constitution of the United States, under various specious pretexts, the principal one of which has been that bathing, boating and fishing may be suppressed legally by a state just as it may, can, and does suppress offensive smells in cities; but no court would hold that an offensive smell is a valuable property right, while every court would hold that bathing, boating and fishing are very valuable property rights.

"In order that all property holders of this state that are interested in our natural lakes and ponds and all officials may clearly understand their respective rights and duties, I earnestly urge you to recommend to our legislature that it enact a law worded substantially thus:

"No health official or other officer of the state, and no water company, shall attempt to prevent bathing, boating and fishing in any natural lake or pond before condemnation proceedings have been instituted, and duly completed by giving proper compensation to the riparian owners; but fishing shall be continued to be regulated by the state as heretofore, and proper steps shall continue to be taken by the state officials to prevent the pollution of all lakes and ponds so long as those steps do not include prohibiting bathing, boating and fishing on natural lakes and ponds where the right to bathe, boat and fish has been exercised from time immemorial.

"The enactment of a law of that kind would, doubtless, save much expensive litigation and useless litigation, for it is inconceivable that the supreme court at Washington would confirm any decision or judgment of a state court ignoring or overriding any of the mandatory provisions of the constitution of the United States."

DIVORCE EVERY 12 MINUTES GRANTED BY JUDGE HINMAN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Putnam, Feb. 3.—Five uncontested divorce cases were heard in superior court before Judge George E. Hinman Monday, and five decrees were granted. One other case on the docket, Celia Dion vs. Joseph Dion, William H. King of Willimantic, attorney for the [illegible] was continued.

Clovis Racine sought a separation from Emily Racine. He is a resident of Plainfield, an employe of the Lawton mills. He married June 22, 1906, Mar Girard at Taftville. One child was born to them and, according to the plaintiff's story, life was going along smoothly enough until he went home from work one evening and found that his wife had decamped, taking with her the child and her personal possessions.

To his attorney, Charles L. Torrey, and to the court, he said that he did not know why she had gone, that there had been no quarrel or disagreement of any kind, that there was no other man or woman in the case, and that neither had cause for jealousy. She just dropped out of his life. He made no effort to find her. Once, twelve years afterward, he saw her on the street in Baltic; he tried to speak to her and she turned away, and he made no further effort to communicate with her.

The child is now 21 years old, and was brought up in her father's family.

The plaintiff lives alone and does his own cooking and other household work. Two witnesses corroborated his story and he was given a divorce on the grounds of desertion.

Nettie A. Smith of Pomfret married Grove A. Smith in May, 1901. He had the wanderlust and left the household and Nettie several times, coming back after a while to say that he was sorry. In January of last year he again disappeared. He hasn't been back, and the plaintiff doesn't want to see him any more. Divorce granted because of desertion. Arthur G. Bill was attorney for plaintiff.

Ida May Tirschofer wedded Fred R. Tirschofer in Hartford in May, 1914. Her present residence is Sterling. She testified that soon after her marriage her husband became mean to her, abused her repeatedly and threatened to kill her. Also he lost interest in his wife because of another woman. After five years of this kind of life he left her and has not contributed to her support. Other witnesses testified to the correctness of her statements and the court ordered a decree of divorce on the grounds of desertion. Harry E. Back of Danielson was counsel for the plaintiff.

Paul Ovas of Killingly charged his wife with unfaithfulness. His testimony and that of two other witnesses satisfied the court that the accusation was justified and the decree was granted on the grounds of adultery. Fenner Woodward appeared for plaintiff.

Ethel G. McGlynn and Michael Bertram McGlynn were residents of Putnam when they were married. The wife still lives here, but Michael abused her and then deserted her and his present whereabouts are unknown. After hearing her story and the testimony of unbiased witnesses, Judge Hinman ordered a decree on the groundse of cruelty and permitted the plaintiff to assume her malden name of Chadwick.

The hearing of the five cases consumed about an hour, although there was no hurrying of witnesses and the testimony in every one was full and convincing. Judge Hinman does not grant divorce decrees until he is satisfied beyond a reasonable doubt that he is justified. But five decrees at the rate of 12 minutes each is not a bad record!

Given Compensation Award

In a hearing held before Commissioner J. J. Donohue to determine the extent of disability in the workmen's compensation claim of Guiseppe Ferri, 33 Smith street, New London, against Elfisio Bartolucci, New London, it was found that the claimant [illegible] incapacitated. It was ordered that he be paid the lump sum [illegible] for 29 weeks total incapacity at $15.07 and that payments be made him from Jan. 31 at the rate of $3.77 per week, payable every four weeks.

"Daddy, did you bring me anything?"

For that expectant moment when the youngsters start diving into your coat pockets—have handy a few rolls of Life Savers, those deliciously flavored little candy mints with the hole.

These china-hard circles of pure goodness are just the thing for sugar-hungry little tummies so easily upset by sweets that are too rich. And for tiny teeth that fare best with candy very carefully chosen.

The ideal candy for children

The active bodies of growing boys and girls crave sugar. Their blood requires it.

But children's candy should be pure; also you must control overeating. Life Savers answer both problems:

They are nothing but the purest cane sugar, delicately flavored—and moulded china-hard to the distinctive Life Saver shape under 14 tons of machine pressure.

Be generous with them

Rich sweets, hurriedly eaten, upset little stomachs. Not so with Life Savers. Children eat them slowly because they are so hard and because they want to enjoy longer those delicious, delicate flavors.

You may conscientiously be generous with Life Savers; they are so pure and wholesome. It is far better to let children have the right candy regularly. They are less likely to overeat than when they get it only now and then.

Also, Life Savers leave no sticky, sugary debris to start tooth decay. They are safe for children's teeth. Have Life Savers always handy at home when the youngsters call for sweets. There is no candy better for them.—Life Savers, Inc., Port Chester, N. Y.

Six flavors displayed at all good stores so you may help yourself: Pep-o-mint, Wint-o-green, Cinn-o-mon, Lic-o-rice, Cl-o-ve, and Vi-o-let.

Good for little tummies and tiny teeth

Pablo Casals

In presenting Pablo Casals, the world's greatest 'cellist in New London next Monday night, Connecticut College makes an admirable contribution to the musical life of this part of the state. The late James G. Hunneker describes Casals' performance in these words: "He sings so tenderly he melts the heart of you; sings like an angel, either damned or celestial. There is something diabolic in his energy of attack, an attack like the slash of a sabre. What temperament! What surety! What purity of intention! Technically he perilously approaches perfection." Tickets for this concert and the few remaining for Rosa Ponselles' concert Feb. 13th will be offered to the public at starr Bros. Wednesday morning.

Breed Theater

Has a woman the right to spy on her husband? Is it ethical for her to hire a detective to watch him if she thinks he is "wandering?" Or should she disdain to do such things, deeming it unworthy of her love?

This is the problem that confronts Diana Moreland in Wandering Husbands. Her husband has been philandering, but for the sake of their child and because he promised to reform, she forgave him. In spite of his assertions to the contrary, she knows he isn't keeping his promise. She is not a spying suspicious woman, but because she believes that Rosemary's love for her father should not be destroyed she engages a detective to watch her husband and see that he is worthy of her child's love. His reports are not very gratifying to Diana, but she has brains and uses them to preserve her home.

James Kirkwood and Lila Lee have the principal parts.

C. Gardner Sullivan wrote the story of Wandering Husbands, which is the feature attraction at the Breed theater today.

Pictures of Grindell Mathews latest invention, The Death Ray, the Pathe News and a Sunshine comedy make up the remainder of the bill.

Broadway Theatre

There is no vaudeville that can be compared to the B. F. Keith vaudeville acts. This fact is further brought out as you will see when you witness the fine program at the Broadway theatre the first of this week.

A champion with the A. E. F., Sgt. Franklin & Co., presents for the Norwich theatregoers a rare treat with his "Trifles With Rifles". It is a novel as well as interesting exhibition of sharp shooting.

Cornell, Leona and Zippy are seen in Varieties a la Carte, that is Variety as you want it. It is a sure winning offering.

Joy Bros. & Mann are the comedy boys who succeeded in keeping the house in roars of laughter. Their act is further enhanced with songs and dancing.

Harry Long and Bernice Haley in "Who Is Your Boss?" is a riot of laughter. These successful vaudevillians are entertainers par excellence.

The world's famous international athlete, The Great Sautell & Co. closed the bill with a series consisting of science, thrills and laughter. His is the only act of its kind in America.

The photoplay stars Anna Q. Nilsson and a fine cast in "Vanity's Price."

A story jam-packed with dramatic dynamite! A picture that will keep you enthralled from start to finish, with the novelty of its theme, its tense situations and its remarkable acting. See it!

Charity covers a multitude of sins that should be allowed to remain uncovered.

Palace Theater

The sale of seats for the performances to be rendered here by the San Carlo Grand Opera Company, at the Palace theater, Monday, February 9th, begins at the box office tomorrow.

Fortune is sending his brilliant cast of artists which appeared at the New York Jolson theater last fall and which played two-week engagements in the Boston Opera House, and in the Metropolitan Opera House, Philadelphia. Immediately after these eastern successes the company started on its fourteenth annual transcontinental tour, and has visited nearly every city in this country as well as many points in Canada and Mexico.

Fortune is sending his organization in a performance of Il Trovatore. New scenery has been provided for the production and it is evident that the organization and personnel of the company are better than any hitherto sent out by this impresario.

The bringing of the San Carlo to this city will mark a local achievement of no small measure. There have been many who have wished that this company would stop here on its continental tour and many of the local patrons are familiar with the artists calibre of the performances, and there is no question but that there will be considerable response to the engagement this season.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

In his finding relative to the accident in which Emilien Durand of Putnam met death at a grade crossing at West Thompson last month, Coroner Arthur G. Bill sets forth that Mr. Durand's death was not due to the negligence or remission of any other party; that the approaching train that struck the automobile in which Mr. Durand was riding gave the proper and timely signals for the grade crossing and that the automatic signal at the crossing was in working order. It is recalled that the roads were very icy on the morning of the accident. Mr. Durand, a Putnam grocer, was approaching the crossing in his machine and it is believed that when he applied the brakes, the car swerved on the slippery surface of the highway and slid into the train. Mr. Durand was so badly injured that he died while being removed to the Day Kimball hospital at Putnam.

There is a rising demand that borough officials, if they have such authority, issue some sort of prohibitory proclamation against sliding in public streets. Several motorists here have come within inches of running over children recklessly sliding where sliding should not be allowed. There appears to be no some restrictions on the children endangering their lives. It would appear, therefore, that any correction of the danger must be through official sources.

Funeral services for Thomas O. Elliott, 34, who died at his home in Elliott early Saturday morning, were held Monday afternoon.

Mr. Eliott had been one of the most influential citizens of Pomfret, had served six terms as a member of the general assembly and was a member of the constitutional convention of 1902. He was also one of the few remaining Civil war veterans in this community. For three years he was a member of Company K, Seventh Conn. Volunteer infantry, commanded by Jerome Tourtellotte, who still lives in Putnam and came out of the war with the rank of major.

This regiment saw some of the hardest fighting of the war, having been singled out for unusual service because the men were armed with the effective Spencer breech-loading rifles.

Mr. Elliott enlisted as a boy of 19, Sept. 12, 1861. His regiment was a part of the Union forces at the battle of Cold Harber, in which William B. Whittemore, who died in Webster and was buried here Friday, was seriously wounded. Mr. Elliott saw three years of hard service, with the exception of five months he spent in hospital as the result of injuries from being shot in the ankle on July 11, 1863, during the charge on Fort Wagner, near Charleston. His regiment was mustered out at New Haven at the expiration of three years.

He married Dec. 7, 1865, Mary L. Averill of Pomfret, who died in December, 1907. Two years later Mr. Elliot married Miss Cassie McKay of Hyde Park, Mass. By his first wife he had four children, three of whom are living: Robert T. Elliott, a well known educator in New England schools; Joseph H. Elliott, one of the most active and best known citizens of Pomfret, and Mrs. Hannah Peal, wife of Edward Peal of Abingtno.

In 1880 he was elected a representative from the town to the state legislature, and was re-elected in 1882. In 1890 and 1892 and again in 1904 he represented the town. Two years later he was elected to the state senate, where he was made chairman of the committee on agriculture.

His ancestors located in Salem, Mass., in 1686. In 1749 Thomas Elliott purchased a large tract of land in Connecticut, part of which became the town of Elliott, its name being derived from the family. His great-grandfather, Joseph Elliott, was captain of the Killingly company of the Third Connecticut militia, which was at one time the bodyguard of Gen. Israel Putnam in the Revolutionary war.

He was born in Thompson July 26, 1842, his parents being Ira and Sesannah Osgood Elliott.

Tells of the Benefit Received by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Leavenworth, Kansas. — "My work was long-distance operating and supervising, and I got into a very nervous state and was all run-down. I was easily annoyed at trifles, was extremely nervous and always had a tired feeling which made me awfully listless. Through a newspaper I learned of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and thinking it would help me I tried it. It quieted my nerves, I was less annoyed and more lively. It took away that dragging feeling and improved my health in every way. I was able to continue my work with more vigor than before and I recommend the Vegetable Compound to all young girls. I am married now and have a big baby boy and am in the best of health. WESTERLY

Council President Clifford W. Campbell, Councilmen Thomas H. Morrison, George B. Utter, Louis J. Rossi, John D. Nichols and Farquhar Smith were present Monday morning at 9.30, in the council chamber of the Westerly town hall at the February session of the Westerly town council, the only absentee being Councilman Charles S. Fowler. Town Solicitor John Ferguson, Jr., Town Clerk Everett E. Whipple and Overseer of the Poor Oliver P. Crandall were present also.

Dr. John Champlin, M. D., of Westerly for the Rhode Island State Welfare commission, was present and stated that his commission would be pleased to entertain the councilmen, town officials or other citizens at the Rhode Island state institutions, where one-third o fthe state's income is spent. The council is accepting the commission's invitation named next Monday as the day on which they would make their visit and if not then on the Monday following.

Herbert P. Clark, president of the South County Poultry association, asked that the council appropriate $200 for the annual poultry show of the association this year, when it is planned to have an entry of 2,000 birds. The council voted to include this amount in the budget miscellaneous account.

Lewis Stanton, having been recommended, was re-elected a member of the Westerly water works commission. Archie Meikle, having the recommendation of Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown, was appointed a police constable.

Overseer of the Poor Oliver P. Crandall spoke at length to the council, wishing to know why, as he understood, the budget fund was reduced from $6,000 to $5,500. As he was not present at the council budget meeting, he was informed that a balance remained in the fund from the previous year and with the balance and amount named, more money would be available than a year ago. Overseer Crandall said that there was a question about a balance, as Town Treasurer James M. Pendleton would not honor a town order for $603.81 voted on Jan. 5th by the town council. Solicitor Ferguson asked why the order was not honored and Mr. Crandall referred him to Treasurer Pendleton. Mr. Crandall asked for repairs and painting at the town farm, also, since there is a gas main near, for the installation of a hot water heater, at an estimated cost of $100. He was told to see that the repairs and improvements were made and then to bring in his bill which would be paid. The overseer of the poro warned the council that if the amount was reduced he would appear at the town financial meeting and ask for the full amount.

The following building permits were voted: Joseph Sculco, store on Dayton street; John Payne, cottage and garage on Highland avenue; Charles E. Smith, garage on Clark street; David Smith, cottage on Bayberry road, Watch Hill; Frank Holiday, addition to house on Franklin street; D. Alva Crandall, garage at Bradford; W. C. Hiscox Co., building, at corner Main street and Vincent lane, Thomas Chadburn, small building on Post road and to the George C. Moore Co. was granted a permit to erect an addition to their webbing plant on Beach street. The building is to be a continuance of the present one 154 feet along Beach street and 60 feet wide with three stories and a basement.

Permits to Tobert E. Chase for a gasoline station on the Post road and to Angelo Cappuccion for a gas station at Pleasant View were held up.

The petition of Archie A. Sheldon, 50 Clark street for appointment as a police patrolman was read and referred to the police committee. It is stated that others seeking to be a patrolman are Fred Ferraro, of the U. S. navy; Milo M. Champlin, a fire policeman and Leroy H. Norman, an electric carman.

The bill of C. H. Gavitt for burial of deceased soldier was approved. Edward J. Burdick was named a committee of conference on deceased soldiers, to fill the vacancy of Col. Charles H. Ledward, deceased.

Milk dealers' licenses were granted E. D. Myrick, William L. Richmond and James O. Lynch.

Councilman Louis J. Rossi brought to the attention of the town council the action of the Rhode Island State board of public roads in the turning off of the surface water on High street from the residence of Samuel Nardone, which was to be piped back and down Pierce street. On Pierce street the discharge was in a catch basin under the old trolley trestle, which Councilman Rossi said was undoubtedly a source for future trouble as the water would flow out over adjacent lands which are being filled in. It was the opinion of Town Solicitor Ferguson that the state of Rhode Island would be liable for damages if any were claimed.

Dr. Samuel C. Webster, superintendent of health, reported 12 cases of scarlet fever and one case of chicken pox for the past month.

The report of Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown for January showed 10 arrests, classified as follows: operating jitney without license 3, non-support 1, possession of liquor 1, vagrancy 1, assault with a dangereous weapon 1, intoxication 2, shipping explosives 1, passing a bank check 1.

The matter of providing a stepping place for the Watch Hill and Ashaway busses was discussed and it was finally decided to allow the placing signs, designating stopping places, near Goodgeon's store on High street for traffic south bound, and in front of the library building on Broad street for traffic northbound.

The bills voted paid included: J. M. Pendleton, treasurer, to pay water works bills, $1143.71; to pay sewer bills, $142.86; to pay poor department bills, $479.28; to pay hospital bills, $84.

BOARD OF TRADE CHANGES TO CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Westerly, R. I., Feb. 2.—The 17th annual meeting of the Westerly Board of Trade was held at the Colonial club Monday evening when the following dinner was served in the dining room at 6.30 o'clock: Fruit cocktail, tomato bouillon, olives, pickles, roast chicken, mashed potato, peas, buttered rolls, French vanilla ice cream, cake, coffee.

The business session was called to order at 8 o'clock by President Harvey C. Perry and the minutes of the last annual and regular meetings were read by Secretary Wells F. Fowler.

The first business considered was the adoption of the three amendments to the constitution and by-laws proposed at the last regular meeting. The first was to change the name of the Westerly Board of Trade and it was voted, without discussion, to adopt the name, Westerly Chamber of Commerce. The second amendment called for the raising of dues from $3 to $25 annually. This proposition was the cause of considerable discussion.

Secretary Fowler said that he had changed his mind since the previous meeting and thought in place of the present membership of 225, not over 50 would remain in the organization, which is composed primarily of business men. The motion of S. H. Davis for indefinite postponement was lost, as well as the amendment, also the original motion to increase the dues. A motion to make the dues of the Westerly Chamber of Commerce $2 annually, payable in advance, was approved, and will be voted on at the next regular meeting.

The third amendment to raise the initiation fee from $2 to $10 was rejected. A motion met approval to increase the initiation fee from $2 to $5 and this will be voted on at the next meeting.

Secretary Fowler's report showed seven new members, a cleanup campaign, conducted in Pawcatuck by Albert G. Martin; city planning adoption, annual banquet and the successful entertainment of Eclipse Day visitors, for which many letters of appreciation have been received by the board.

The treasurer's report showed: balance brought forward, $142.74; receipts, $761.37; expenditures $458.50, of which $6.80 was for the entertainment of the Eclipse Day visitors, there remaining a balance as shown by Clarence A. Vars' report of $302.87. Both reports were received and placed on file and it was also voted to incorporate appreciation letters of Eclipse Day visitors as a permanent part of the record.

Resolutions were adopted on the death of William D. Hoxie and Louis Tuch, who were active board members.

The nominating committee I. O. Chester, W. C. Hiscox, Andrew W. Fisher, C. J. Butler, C. W. Campbell reported the following nominations and they were elected by the secretary casting one vote: President, Lewis Stanton; first vice president, Arthur M. Cottrell; second, Everett E. Whipple; secretary, Edwin D. Hawke; treasurer, Clarence A. Vars. Members of the executive committee, C. J. Butler, I. O. Chester, W. R. Fowler, A. W. Fisher, C. P. Cottrell.

Dr. Walter J. Grenolds of the Washington Trust building, was elected a member of the chamber.

President Perry asked for a formal or informal discussion of a proposed board of trade of Pawcatuck. Frank L. Furness stated that business men of Pawcatuck felt the need of organization for the benefit of Pawcatuck, saying that the Westerly Chamber of Commerce would lose none of its Pawcatuck members under the proposed new amendment, but if the original ones had been adopted only one member would have remained.

On account of the icy condition of the streets it was found necessary to omit the weekly whist of the Ladies' Auxiliary.

On Elm street extension the cove rose so high that the water came across the main road and washed large cakes of ice which interfered with traffic somewhat. Many automobiles turned around several times on level ground and it was found necessary to sand Fort Hill for the safety of cars.

POETRY

THE POET'S DESTINY.

He was born to be king—he, the poet and fool,
The gods have ordained such to be,
He, the dreamer, unsung, is destined to rule
Over millions by word and decree;
No court will be held, with its trappings of state,
These he leaves to the Herods, who pay
In the semblance of show—he, the darling of Fate,
By his words will the petty destroy.

He was born to be king and his right is divine,
The Father of Thought gave him life,
He breathed in his soul His breath by design
And ever His spirit is rife;
You little men laugh, you sycophant throngs
Who worship the gilt and the brass,
He, the imaging doit, the singer of songs,
Shall trample your kind as the grass.

He was born to be king, and the sceptre called Love
Will be given to him as his own,
His heraldic shield shall boast of a dove
And a child shall with him share the throne;
You deifiers of men, with your unworthy goals,
Who to Bacchus and Mammon now sing,
Shall be banished for aye to the place of damned souls
When the poet, now scorned, shall be king.

ROCKED IN THE CRADLE OF THE DEEP.

Rocked in the cradle of the deep
I lay me down in peace to sleep;
Secure I rest upon the wave,
For thou, O Lord, hast power to save.
I know thou wilt not slight my call,
For thou dost mark the sparrow's fall;
And calm and peaceful shall I sleep,
Rocked in the cradle of the deep.

When in the dead of night I lie
And gaze upon the trackless sky,
The star-bespangled heavenly scroll,
The boundless waters as they roll—
I feel thy wondrous power to save
From perils of the stormy wave;
Rocked in the cradle of the deep,
I calmly rest and soundly sleep.

And such the trust that still were mine,
Though stormy winds swept o'er the brine,
Or though the tempest's fiery breath
Roused me from sleep to wreck and death.
In ocean cave, still safe with Thee,
The germ of immortality!
And calm and peaceful shall I sleep
Rocked in the cradle of the deep.

THE STONE OPPOSITION.

Word comes from Washington to the effect that the opposition to the confirmation of Attorney General Stone as justice of the supreme court is disappearing. Along with it there is the report to the effect that the judiciary committee has ordered a favorable report on the nomination for the second time, and that the opponents see little object in attempting a prolonged fight.

From all that has been presented in opposition, and what has been brought to light as the reason for the objections, there appears to have been no substantial ground for trying to block the confirmation of the president's nomination. The efforts to block have simply served to throw light upon the character of the man now in the attorney general's office and his fitness for the even more important position for which he has been named.

The opposition to the confirmation has fallen of its own weight. It utterly failed to either scare the attorney general or to cause him to back down on his determination to present the facts in the Wheeler case to a federal grand jury. From all that has been brought out there has been shown no basis for opposition. It hasn't acted to the detriment of the attorney general, but it certainly has brought no credit to those who have been responsible for the [illegible].

It has in fact taken too long for those who have been balking to find out that they were making a mistake, that they had a very slim following and that there was no use in prolonging the fight.

They set out on that policy of obstruction which was so thoroughly denounced by the voters last November. There was no merit to their course and they are now forced to admit that it has meant a waste of time in trying to gain an end for which there was absolutely no chance or reason.

WHEAT PRICES.

Some months ago there was much being said about the low price of wheat and the consequent effect upon those who raised it. That isn't heard today. Conditions have changed. Those who planted wheat and raised a big crop reaped a big harvest financially from that much needed commodity which has gone to over $3 a bushel. Conditions beyond the control of the farmer, beyond the control of government, were responsible for this. American wheat was in bigger demand at higher prices because production had fallen off elsewhere.

American wheat raisers were able to recoup some of the losses which they had previously sustained. They have been making the most of the chance to even up, but even so it is a question whether they had any grain in the storehouse to sell at the $3 a bushel quotation or at the $3.05 a bushel. In all probability they disposed of their supply some time ago, at a price well in advance of the much talked of dollar a bushel, but not in keeping with what has since been the quotation. The difference between what they sold it for and what it has since been selling for is considerable. Those who had nothing to do with the raising of wheat are getting the benefit of that, and all that is being added goes to bolster the price which the consumer must pay.

This is but the repetition of what has happened before and what will happen again under present conditions. It may never be possible for the farmer to get the price that is paid by the consumer but it should be possible for him to get much nearer that price and for the consumer to buy much nearer that price than is now possible. Perhaps when the wheat growers and others who depend upon the production of the soil get down to a heart to heart consideration of the marketing conditions and study the present situation with a view to applying the needed remedy there will be a change. Much rests with the farmer not only in the production of various kinds of produce but in the manner in which he markets it. The chance to do something for himself instead of permitting himself to be done isn't a new opening but one that needs attention.

HOTBED OF LAWLESSNESS.

Something more than the killing of the leaders of opposing forces at Herrin is going to be required before the terrorizing of that locality is going to be stopped. Though leaders may be shot down there are others who are ready and waiting to take their place. Lawlessness had obtained a foothold there that is sure to mean continued trouble until it is ended, but just how the end is to be brought is something which the rest of the country, if not Herrin, is anxious to learn.

Certainly the continued indulgence in the mankilling activity is not going to accomplish it. That simply adds more fuel to the fire.

The bringing of state troops to quell disturbances and the recall within a few days hasn't bettered the situation, except temporarily. As the year guard of the militia disappear on the horizon the old spirit is at work again. And as if there were not enough in Herrin to create trouble there are those looking for just such man hunting opportunities to temporarily make Herrin their abode for the gun practice they can get.

Herrin presents a problem that should give more concern to Illinois than it seems to do. There seems to be no chance that Herrin will do anything different than it has been doing for years past. There are feudal conditions there which indicate that little can be expected from Herrin, and Williamson county doesn't appear to be any different. What these are are shown by the massacre that took place during the coal strike for which no one has been punished, and by subsequent shootings which have occurred there, there having been a total of 33 since June 1922.

Herrin is and has been a hotbed for lawlessness for a period of years. It is not a recent development, but because of the conditions existing there it is the magnet for those of similar mind. Herrin has long since been a disgrace to the nation as well as to Illinois.

GROUND HOG DAY.

You are at liberty to decide for yourself whether the fact that the ground hog sees his shadow or not on the second of February has anything to do with the severity of the weather during the next 40 days.

It has long been something to look forward to. Generation after generation has been told the breaking of the backbone of winter depends upon whether the ground hog sees his shadow. Even those who take no stock in it are invariably found giving heed to the possibilities that may develop as the result of Candlemas day weather conditions. They observe and watch the results, and they know from experience that there has been some of the worst winter weather following a cloudy Candlemas day, or some of the mildest winter weather following a cloudless Candlemas day even though the old saw about 40 more days of winter or the breaking up of winter was just the opposite.

Everyone was prepared for a sunshiny day this year because of the predictions that have been made concerning the severity of the latter part of the winter. It is now a tussle between the ground hog and the weather prophets. Both cannot be right.

Whether spring is just around the corner or 40 days away can best be told as the weatherman makes his decisions. Likes and dislikes, ground hogs and prophets will probably make little difference and in all probability they will have little influence upon the ultimate result. The ground hog unquestionably has gained many supporters because he could see no shadow, if in fact he looked for one, but the still greater struggle of making good lies before him.

GREECE AND TURKEY.

It doesn't take very much to stir up ill feeling between the Greeks and the Turks. There is a chip on the shoulder of each which the mere touching by the other is a sufficient signal for trouble. They are not what can be classified as good neighbors, and while there were hopes that the new treaties that have been signed would help to improve the situation the outlook is by no means cloudless.

Just now the Turks have served notice that the Greek patriarch must get out of Constantinople. The supposition was that Turkey had permitted him to stay in that city and that this had been provided for under the treaty of Lausanne. That, according to the Turkish interpretation, is not so.

It is a matter which has been considered by the commission which is supervising the exchange of Greeks and Turks, and that while the commission held that the patriarch could be removed by Turkey it advised that he be permitted to remain.

Apparently this advice was not taken. Seemingly Turkey regards it as a reinforcement of its view and encouraged by it it is determined to remove him whether it pleases the Greeks or is in direct opposition to what the latter country believed had been agreed to.

Whatever the outcome it appears to be the cause for further ill feeling between the nations. Certainly it is not going to encourage more friendly relations between nations where so little is required to open up warlike demonstrations. It furnishes another opportunity for the league of nations to step in and insure peace before anything serious develops.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

It will not be long now before that yearning to get out and start the garden can be appeased.

With only 26 days left February is traveling along rapidly and in a way to arouse no adverse criticism.

How long will it be before Herrin acts in such a sane manner as to get away from first page attention?

One report says that Dr. Sun Yat Sen is dead; another says he is getting well. Perhaps neither is right.

Just because the cross word puzzles make good quilt patterns are you anticipating a revival of the quilting bees?

The longer the opposition continues to the Stone appointment the stronger is the conviction that he is the very man wanted.

While it may not be that the automobile business has reached the saturation point, there is plenty of evidence that too many of the drivers have.

Now that one branch of the North Dakota legislature has voted to repeal the law preventing the sale of cigarettes can it be charged up to the women?

Probably none realizes it more than the members of the legislature the extravagance cannot be permitted if there is to be any response to the demand for tax reduction.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3.—The approaching inauguration of Calvin Coolidge as president of the United States calls to mind that it will be his eighth inaugural ceremony within nine years. During that time Mr. Coolidge has been inaugurated president of the United States; vice president of the United States, twice as governor of Massachusetts and three times as lieutenant-governor of the Bay state.

And in all those ceremonials the weather has been "brite and fair" as Judge Shute aptly put it, in his stories for boys. That a man could be inaugurated into high office eight times without a single mishap in point of weather is notable as another instance of so-called "Coolidge luck."

The Coolidge inaugurations have differed widely in character and surroundings. Once he was inducted into office that was carefully guarded against suspected attack by bomb of dynamite; another time it was up in the dimly lighted room of that little Vermont farmhouse and in the dead of night. But in all instances there was an absence of display and parade that shows beyond question the Coolidge desire for the simple life.

The fourth of the coming March will show President Coolidge still clinging to his old time preference for simplicity. There will be a suitable military escort from the white house to the capitol and a proper amount of dignity and ceremony, but the old time blare of trumpets, the old time parade with thousands upon thousands of marching men will not be a feature of the Coolidge inauguration.

Will there be an extra session of the senate immediately after the 68th congress comes into being at noon March 4th? Until today the question was never raised and it was taken for granted that the custom of former days would be followed and confirmations of the cabinet and diplomats to be named by the president put before the senate at once. Today, however, there is a whisper that the appointments may either be made by the president during this session to become effective the 4th of March, or that he will make them in the form of recess appointments at the close of the present session, to be confirmed by the incoming senate next December. Either way would be entirely within the power of the president. The opinion of republican senators vary as to which is the best way under existing circumstances. President Coolidge, so far as can be ascertained has made no comment as to his intentions. It has been suggested this year, that if the session should be called it might not be easy to adjourn as soon as the confirmations had been made. The president calls the session into being but the senate alone has power to adjourn. That might mean that senators of the opposition party or even republicans who are riding a hobby, could bring before the senate the world court, a league of nations, a disarmament conference, possible tax revision and a thousand and one things the president and party leaders believe should not be touched on till the regular session in December. It is the custom of all cabinet members and diplomats of high standing to resign at the end of a congress and so pave the way for successors without embarrassment, should the president desire to make changes.

The decision of the house republicans to consider the insurgents out of the party so far as calling them into conference goes, meets very general approval here. To be sure the insurgents are kicking up quite a fuss, but as Floor Leader Longworth told them they cannot have their pudding and eat it too. They had a lively row in the house Friday when everybody spoke his mind with unusual freedom. But after Mr. Longworth had quoted from speeches made against the Coolidge ticket, and struck home with all his force, there was not much left to be said on the subject.

The action of the house follows similar action by the senate and both have the full approval of President Coolidge. The insurgents are now regarded as a third party and will get perfectly courteous attention as such, and will receive committee positions in accordance with their quota, just as do the democratic minority according to their quota. But they will not be admitted into the circle of republicanism and cannot be included in caucus or conference. They stated in the open that they were out to defeat the republican party last fall, and now they must stand up and take their medicine as does Victor Berger, the socialist, who is making a lot of fun of the disgruntled insurgents for crying baby over their failure to regain a foothold in the party while still working against the very policies that put that party in power. With a mutinous crew, the party in power could not carry out the Coolidge policies; with the insurgents in a group by themselves, it is quite a different proposition. The democrats do not want to be tied up to the insurgents, and unless the unexpected happens, they must continue to be a third party throughout the 69th congress. According to Longworth it will take a new profession of faith on their part to bring them back into the republican fold "Then they will be welcomed" he added.

Washington has had its second heavy snow fall of the winter and the near zero and near blizzard conditions have made the city one of discomfort, instead of the "sunny south."

The failure of the child labor bill to meet the approval of 13 states, and thereby become a defeated measure meets with very general approval here.

The Capital Yankee Division club is to celebrate the seventh anniversary of the division's entrance into the battle lines of France. There will be a banquet at which there will be many speakers of note. Among them Secretary of War Weeks, General Hines, General Edwards and the members of congress who participated in the war through affiliation with the Y. D.

President Coolidge was invited to attend but has not yet made known whether or not he would do so.

KINDLY ENDEAVORS

"Why, you haven't your wraps on!" cried the surprised young man who had rung the door bell, "Are you sick or anything? Aren't we going out somewhere?"

"No, Archibald," the fair young creature who had opened the front door told him, taking his hat from his nerveless fingers. "I thought—you see, well, I thought we'd just have a nice cozy evening all by ourselves right here."

"Well!" gasped the young man, mechanically following her lead into the living room where the lamps were just right and smoking stands were handy. "Well, I declare! I'll bet you don't feel well, Clorinda, and are concealing it from me. If your head aches I'll amble on home."

"I feel perfectly well," the fair young creature told him brightly "Take that easy chair where you'll be more comfortable. You must be tired after your long hard day in the office. Tell me everything that happened to you."

"Huh?" stuttered the young man stumbling into the chair pushed toward him. "Why, it was just the same old thing.

"Say," the young man continued, "are you sure you didn't expect to go over to the Raspberry Grove to dance as usual? I'm game."

"Why, Archibald!" the pretty girl reproved him with protestingly arched brows, "I dont know where you get the idea that every time you come over you have to take me somewhere. Think of all the money it costs you. I've got two new books from the library and here is a perfect pile of new magazines with the most entertaining articles. I thought we might read aloud."

The young man sat up rather straight and looked worried. "Articles?" he repeated. "Oh, I know — things by wise birds who tell you what kind of pemmican to carry when you ascend the Himalayas. Have we got to read?"

The pretty girl swallowed hard. "Why, you don't have to do a single thing you don't want to, Archibald," she told him sweetly. "I have six new record of operatic solos—"

"Have you?" asked the young man a trifle blankly. "I have often wondered what they did with the records that weren't jazz—so they really sell 'em! Sometime I'd like to have you play 'em for me, but this evening I don't seem to be in the mood for opera. Opera is so serious, like making your will or family dinners, don't you think? Did you know they have enlarged the orchestra over at Raspberry Grove?"

"Really!" the pretty girl commented restlessly. A slight frown was appearing on her brow. "Let's make some fudge——"

"That reminds me!" declared the young man making a break for his overcoat. "I have a box of candy for you."

"Oh, you mustn't!" remonstrated the pretty girl. "Why, you could buy a bond with the money you spend on candy in a year, Archibald. I like to see you just for yourself—"

"Any time!" said the young man opening the box. "I got two sisters and I know the brand of conversation that goes on about male company that arrives empty-handed. Say, isn't it still here, though?"

"Why, I think it is lovely," declared the pretty girl, "So restful and—"

"Look here, Clorinda," the young man interrupted, surveying her attentively, "you are concealing something from me. You are not yourself at all. I fail to understand your strange actions. Are you trying to get rid of me or anything?"

The fair young creature sniffled and burst into tears. "Either you or that woman's magazine is all wrong!" she wept. "I was just trying to be thoughtful kind and con—considerate as it said and you don't seem to like it."

"Whew! Is that all?" gasped the young man in relief, "I began to think you had been reading something How to Make a Man Propose and was kind of worried—c'mon, don't you want to toddle over to Raspberry Grove?"

"I'll say I do!" agreed the pretty girl, springing to her feet. "I guess we've all got used to the bright lights Archibald. I'll bet that magazine article was held over from 1910 and got printed by mistake."—Chicago News.

Barrie's Novel Rejected

As a lad at his mother's knee, James M. Barrie discussed his career as a great writer; years afterward when he submitted his first effort to a publisher the work was rejected.

In his native town of Kirriemuir, Scotland, the quiet and diffident boy was set to writing by his mother.

At 16 he entered Dumfries academy and became absorbed in studies and athletic sports. At 17 he wrote the greater part of a three-volume novel and sent it hopefully to a publisher, who replied that Barrie was a "clever lady," but the only way he would consider publication was for the author to pay him $500—and Barrie had only a few cents.

Determined to succeed, Barrie entered Edinburgh university and wrote a paper on mathematics that was too dull to read. It was his mother's hope that he would be a minister or an instructor, but when he continued to write, she helped him.

After his graduation he answered an advertisement in a newspaper and at 22 obtained a position as writer of small editorial articles for the Nottingham Press, at a guinea a week. Submitting articles about his home town to London newspapers, he met with indifferent success for 18 months. Then an evening newspaper printed his Auld Licht Community, and asked for more. Later he went to London with less than a shilling in his pocket, and obtained a newspaper position there.

Frequently called home by the illness of his mother, who had been an invalid for years, he never knew which trip would be the last. Finally came the death of mother and sister within three days.

At 27 he published Better Dead, which won little recognition as did Auld Licht Idylls, and he had to peddle A Window in Thrums for a long time before he interested a publisher. Then appeared My Lady Nicotine, The Little Minister, and many plays which helped him to fame and fortune.

Married at 33, he adopted four grandchildren of George du Maurier, and for them wrote Peter Pan, which brought still greater fame. Other works added to his success.

Too diffident to try for parliament, he was knighted at 52. Today, at 65, he is one of the world's best beloved and richest authors.

YOUR INCOME TAX

Bad Debts

Bad debts constitute a considerable item in the returns of many taxpayers and may be treated in one of two ways, either by deduction from income in respect of debts ascertained to be worthless in whole or in part, or by a deduction from income of a reasonable addition to a reserve for bad debts.

Taxpayers for the taxable year 1921 were allowed to select either method, the use of which was required for subsequent years and applies to returns under the revenue act of 1924 unless permission to change is obtained from the Commissioner of Internal Revenue. A taxpayer filing for the year 1924 a first return of income may select either method, subject to approval by the commissioner upon examination of the return. If the method selected is approved, it must be followed in returns for subsequent years, except as permission may be granted by the commissioner to change. Permission to adopt the reserve method is restricted to taxpayers having a large number of accounts where credit has been extended to cover a considerable period of time. It is not granted for the purpose of handling one specific debt.

What constitutes "a reasonable addition" to a reserve for bad debts must be determined in light of the facts, and will vary as between classes of business and with conditions of business prosperity. A taxpayer using the reserve method should show in his return the volume of his charge sales (or other business transactions) for the year and the percentage of the reserve to such amount, the total amount of notes and accounts receivable at the beginning and close of the taxable year, and the total amount of debts ascertained to be wholly or partially worthless and charged against the reserve during the taxable year.

Partial deductions are allowed with respect to specific debts only. Before a taxpayer may charge off and deduct a debt in part he must ascertain and be able to demonstrate, with a reasonable degree of certainty, the amount thereof which is uncollectible. Amounts subsequently recovered on account of a bad debt, or on account of a part of such bad debt, previously charged off and allowed as a deduction for income tax purposes, must be included in gross income for the year in which received.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Herbert H. Asquith, who has accepted the offer of an Earldom, was the British prime minister from 1908 through the early period of the war to the advent of the Lloyd George administration. Mr. Asquith could have figured on the honors list before now had he chosen. When the Coalition ministry resigned in 1916 an honor was offered him by the king, but he declined. Like so many others, the former prime minister was a lawyer before he entered politics, and he relinquished a practice worth $75,000 a year to accept Mr. Gladstone's invitation to be Home Secretary. Mr. Gladstone had a wonderful discernment, and he predicted that Mr. Asquith had a brilliant career ahead of him. Previous to the war, the two achievements of Mr. Asquith which will be liable to stand out most distinctly in history were the introduction of Old Age Pensions and it is regarded as unlikely that he will take any further active part in politics.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Refutation of False Prediction.

Mr. Editor: There has appeared recently in different papers an item of news in which it was reported that Seventh Day Adventists prophecied the end of the world and the return of Christ would take place Friday, February 6th. I wish to ask space in your paper for the refutation of this false prediction. For this purpose I will ask you to reprint the following article from the pen of Carlyle B. Haynes, one of our officials and an authoritative writer of the denomination on this subject, of whose books more than a million copies have been sold:

February 6, 1925, has been fixed upon by a group of extremists as the date of the second coming of Jesus Christ and the end of the world. They predict on that date that all temporal things, including the human race, with the exception of themselves, will be destroyed.

This group of religious cranks has hired aeroplanes to soar over cities and drop down leaflets making announcement of the return of Jesus on February 6, 1925, and admonished the people to be prepared.

These people claim to represent Seventh Day Adventists. They are not. They use signboarded autos and megaphones in many cities dishonestly asserting that Seventh Day Adventists are responsible for their message. Seventh Day Adventists are not.

As the responsible officer in charge of the work of Seventh Day Adventists m Greater New York, I disavow any connection whatsoever of the Seventh Day Adventist church with such propaganda. The use of our denominational name as a sanction for this pernicious teaching is manifestly vicious.

Seventh Day Adventists do not set a day for the return of Jesus Christ. They never have set such a date. They stand immovable on the impregnable rock of Scripture which says, "Of that day and hour knoweth no man, no, not the angels of heaven, but My Father only."

The setting of any day, or month, or year is, therefore, anti-Scriptural.

I desire to go on record further as stating that February 6, 1925, will pass without the return of Jesus.

CARLYN B. HAYNES,
President Greater New York Conference of Seventh Day Adventists.

I trust this will fully answer any questions which interested persons may ask, and not cause them to associate such falsehoods with the teachings of the Seventh Day Adventists.

Homeless Timmy

The homeless with nowhere to go
Alone the worth of home may know.
—Timmy the Flying Squirrel.

This is a queer world. Yes, sir, this is a queer world. There was Shadow the Weasel in the home, the nice, snug, warm home of Timmy the Flying Squirrel, and he didn't want to be there at all. And there was Timmy the flying squirrel without any home when all the time he wanted to be in that home where Shadow was. But he knew that that could no longer by his home. He knew that he never could feel safe there again now that Shadow had found it. The only thing for him to do was to find a new home, and it must be found that very night. At least he must find a snug hiding place that very night.

So gentle, little Timmy was a very unhappy squirrel as he went looking for a new home. He didn't mind the dark. You know he loves the dark. He feels very much safer when it is dark than when the sun is shining. But he didn't dare stay anywhere near his old home. He knew that Shadow the Weasel is a tireless hunter. He knew that he would look into every hiding place anywhere near that old stump, hoping to find Timmy.

So gentle little Timmy was a very unhappy Squirrel as he went looking for a new home.

"No, sir," said Timmy, "it won't do to stay around where there is any chance that Shadow will look for me I've got to go some other part of the Green Forest. There is nothing else for me to do. The trouble is, when I get to Another part of the Green Forest I'll have to hunt for a stump or a tree with a hollow in it, and I'll have to find it before daylight. Then I won't know where I can find any food. It would have been bad enough to have had such a thing happen in summer, but it is a lot worse to have it happen now."

All the time that Timmy was talking to himself in this way he was getting farther and farther away from his old home. He would climb a tree, jump from the top of it, and sail just as far as he could to the foot of another tree, and then do it all over again. In this way he traveled quite a distance in a very short time.

When at last he was far enough from his old home to feel sure that he needn't worry about Shadow the Weasel any more that night he began hunting for a tree or stump with a hollow in it. But in that part of the Green Forest there were no old stumps and no dead trees. He climbed tree after tree without finding one with a hole in it. At last he had to stop to rest. He was homesick and discouraged and frightened. He was hungry, too. Never was there a more unhappy Squirrel in all the Green Forest. He felt too miserable to think.

But, without knowing that he was thinking. All of a sudden there popped into his head a memory. It was the memory of where he had spent his winter the year before. "Why didn't I think of it before?" cried Timmy. "I'll go straight over to the Old Orchard. There are plenty of houses over there that the birds are not using in winter. There I will be safe. And there I will be able to find something to eat."

So, after resting a while longer, Timmy started for the Old Orchard. Just as the Black Shadows were leaving the Old Orchard Timmy crept into the little house that Skimmer the Swallow and, Mrs. Skimmer called theirs. With a sigh of relief he curled up in a little ball, wrapped his tail around him and went to sleep. He was no longer homeless.

GAVE SPLENDID RECITAL FOR MUSIC ASSOCIATION

One of the most enjoyable programmes of the season for the Norwich Music association was given Monday evening at Slater hall annex with a piano recital by Henry J. La Fontaine, a young Norwich musician, whose talent is widely recognized in his home city. Assisting in the recital was Chares J. Dyer, soloist, whose appearance on a programme is always a pleasure to his Norwich friends.

The programme was given as follows:

Anticipation of hearing Mr. LaFontaine was more than realized in the splendid rendering of his well chosen programme. Playing with a clear, vibrant tone and admirable command of tempo and technique and felicity in interpretation, he made each number a gem on the programme and was twice obliged to respond to encores. For the first he gave the Chopin Waltz in A flat, playing this after the second group on the programme, and after the final number he responded to the encore demand by repeating the Donnybrook Fair number.

Although under the handicap of a severe cold, Mr. Dyer delighted his audience with his selections, his well schooled voice making his numbers highly enjoyable. After the Manadal number he gave his audience rare pleasure by singing Shelley's Love's Sorrow as an encore and followed this with Tostli's Mattinata.

Both musicians were warmly thanked, after the recital, by many of their audience for the enjoyable evening which they had provided.

PROMOTIONS IN POLICE DEPARTMENT
PROPOSAL TO RAISE MAYOR'S SALARY

On recommendation of the board of police commissioners, Thomas P. Murphy was promoted from first sergeant to captain of the local police department at the February meeting of the court of common council, Monday evening, in the council chamber. The appointment was made to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Captain Dennis J. Twomey. John H. Casey was promoted from second sergeant to first sergeant and Myron O. Morgan and Matthew Delaney were named second and third sergeants respectively. Officer John Dombroski, whose health has been impaired by a shock suffered some months ago, was placed on the retired list for physical disability at a pension of $75 a month, from Feb. 1, 1925. Three new "regulars" and five new supernumeraries were appointed.

A proposed ordinance increasing the salary of the mayor from $1,000 to $2,500 a year was presented. According to the usual procedure action was deferred until the next meeting of the council. Mayor Milo R. Waters called the meeting to order at 8.45 o'clock and in line with custom the minutes of the previous meeting were accepted without reading. Petitions were received and acted on as follows:

From A. M. Pasnik for the installation of an arc light in front of the New Haven road office on Shetucket street. Referred to the police commissioners with power.

From Michael Barbarosa for removal of a tree in front of No. 157 Broad street. Referred to the public works committee and tree warden with power.

Want Traffic Ordinance Change.

From Louis Wheeler and others, merchants and real estate owners on West Main street and Thames street, asking the present traffic ordinances be changed to allow for the parking of automobiles in front of their places of business for a reasonable time. Referred to the traffic committee.

Report on "Zoning" System.

The monthly reports of street commissioner and city treasurer were received and accepted. The committee, headed by Mayor Milo R. Waters, to whom was referred the petition of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce in regard to proposed "zoning" legislation, submitted their report as follows:

Your committee to whom was referred the petition and communication from the Norwich Chamber of Commerce in relation to zoning legislation similar to that contained in Chapter 279, Public Acts of 1923, beg leave to report that they have considered the matter and met with a committee of the chamber of commerce; that your committee has not had time to thoroughly investigate the matter and are not ready to express their opinion as to what zoning legislation would be best for the city; that your committee has had the corporation counsel, at the request of the chamber of commerce, draw a proposed act providing for the zoning of Norwich under provisions practically identical with those of Chapter 279, Public Acts of 1923, which proposed act has been introduced in the legislature of the state. This was done because Friday last was the last day fixed by the legislature for the introduction of new bills. Your committee are of the opinion that zoning powers for Norwich, which would be reasonable and such as not to work any undue hardship or restriction upon any person, would be of advantage to the city, and your committee therefore recommends that they be continued as a committee for the further investigation and consideration of the subject as in their opinion the legislature would make any reasonable changes that the city might request in the proposed bill already introduced that would seem to be for the best interests of the city.

The report was accepted and the committee's recommendation was adopted. The traffic committee to whom was referred the petition of Fred Nowatsky who asked for a five-minute parking limit in front of his place of business on Main street, reported that they had considered the matter and recommended that the petitioner be given leave to withdraw.

Exit Sewer Assessment Hearings.

The public works committee reported the following new sewers completed: Burton avenue sewer, at a cost of $852.06; Roath street sewer at a cost of $2,064.75; Summit and Carpenter street sewer at a cost of $1,715.23. Their reports in each case carried a recommendation that Mayor Waters, Alderman Gebrath, Councilman Lillibridge and Councilman Spellman be named a committee on assessments for those benefited by the new sewers and fixing the date for hearings as March 2, at 7 p. m. The resolutions were adopted.

The auditor's quarterly report on the water department was received, accepted and ordered printed in the council journal.

New Street Lights Granted.

The police committee reported the following petitions granted: United Metal Mfg Co., for a light on Thames street; H. B. Peckwith for an arc light at the entrance to Grant court; petition of the late Dr. Thomas A. Crowley for a light at Williams street and Broadway.

Salary Increase For Mayor.

A proposed ordinance, which, if adopted, will be effective May 16th of this year, fixes the salary of the mayor at $2,500 a year, the city treasurer's salary at $1,800 and the city clerk's salary at $750. This is an increase of $1,500 a year for the mayor but the city treasurer's salary and the salary of the city clerk will remain unchanged, as both are receiving the salaries named. On motion of Alderman Henry Gebrath action on the motion was deferred until the next meeting.

A communication was received from the City of Norwich Gas and Electrical Department calling attention to several places in the city where street lights should be placed or present locations of lights be changed. This matter was referred to the police commissioners.

Recent Appropriations Approved.

The council approved the appropriations voted at the recent city meeting for the water department (Trading Cove Brook pumping station) and for the repair of the Franklin street brook where it runs through the land of Peter Sellas on Franklin square and authorized the borrowing of the money.

A resolution approving various bills relating to the city of Norwich introduced before the general assembly at Hartford was adopted by the council. The resolution read as follows:

Resolved, That this council approves of the following proposed acts relating to the City of Norwich introduced before the legislature now in session, to wit: An act authorizing the city of Norwich to issue bonds, an act concerning the city court of Norwich in relation to the salaries of the officers thereof. An act amending the charter of the city of Norwich in relation to adjournments and bail in the city court of said city. An act changing the territorial limits of the city of Norwich. An act amending the charter of the city of Norwich in relation to vacancies in the office of treasurer, clerk and tax collector. An act concerning the board of gas and electrical commissioners of the city of Norwich and the profits of the gas and electric department of the city of Norwich. An act concerning the collection of forfeitures and penalties on account of bonds or recognizances given for appearance before the city court of Norwich. An act amending the charter of the city of Norwich concerning the hours of voting and notices and warnings of city meetings, and an act amending the charter of the city of Norwich concerning the police commissioners and police department of said city; and be it further resolved that the mayor and corporation counsel be and they hereby are appointed a committee to urge the passage of said acts before the legislature or committees thereof.

Claims Against City Settled.

On recommendation of the finance committee the council authorized the payment of $850 to Emma Marshall Therrien and of $200 to Annie Kay of Plainfield in full settlement of their claims against the city.

A deed of the parcel of land on which is located the Trading Cove Brook pumping station, from Jessie E., and Prudence T. Rogers to the city of Norwich was accepted and ordered printed in the appendix to the journal. The deed has been recorded in the Norwich land records and in the Montville land records.

The resignation of Richard Lewis as a member of the city recreation committee was received and accepted. Mr. Lewis having resigned as he is leaving Norwich and Mayor Waters announced the appointment of Jonathan L. Johnson to succeed Mr. Lewis for his unexpired term.

On the recommendation of Mayor Waters, Alderman Patrick F. Sweeney, Councilman Nicholas J. Spellman and Tax Collector Harold T. Robinson were named city assessors.

New Police Appointments.

The board of police commissioners recommended that Thomas P. Murphy be appointed captain of the police department to fill the vacancy left by the death of Captain Dennis J. Twomey. On motion of Alderman Edward Crooks it was voted where [illegible] one has been mentioned for any of the police appointments that the clerk be instructed to cast one ballot in favor of the nominee.

The elevation of Sergeant Murphy to the rank of captain left a vacancy for first sergeant and on recommendation John H. Casey who has been second sergeant was promoted to be first sergeant. For second sergeant Officer Myron O. Morgan was recommended by the police commissioners and so appointed.

The only contest in the police appointments came when the name of Officer Matthew H. Delaney was presented for third sergeant, this being a new position in the police department. Councilman Lee Clegg nominated Officer Timothy J. Driscoll, stating that he had not been asked to make the nomination but that he made it in fairness to seniority. A ballot vote was taken with the following result:

Total votes cast	13
Necessary for choice	7
For Officer Delaney	10
For Officer Driscoll	3

Mayor Waters announced that Officer Delaney was elected third sergeant.

The appointment of the two new sergeants and the retirement of Officer John Dombroski left three vacancies in the regular force and these appointments were filled on recommendation of the police commissioners by the appointment of Officers Hugh McAvoy, Albert Lamphere and Peter Sullivan, they being the three senior officers on the supernumerary list.

The police commissioners then presented the following five names for appointment to the supernumerary list, all appointments being unanimous: Gene Caulkins, Henry Davis, Joe Gendron, Clark Frasier and Alfred D'Atri.

Suggests City Lease Parking Space

Councilman Lee Clegg brought up the matter of the stopping of the parking of automobiles by the New Haven railroad on their property on Main street. He suggested that the city lease the space formerly used by drivers for the parking of their machines. The councilman said the merchants had requested him to inform the council that they would assist in any way they are able.

Mayor Waters said the stopping of the parking by the railroad is in line with a general order issued by the road and that Norwich was one of the last places where such parking was stopped. The mayor said he understood that there have been three offers to lease the space and that as much as $5,000 has been offered. He had considered the matter of the city taking over the lease but found that it would cost about $10,000 a year to run it, and that he thought this was too much.

Councilman Clegg asked if the matter couldn't be taken up through a committee and made a motion to that effect. At the suggestion of Alderman Crooks the matter was referred to the traffic committee.

Signs for North Main Street

Alderman Crooks called attention to the fact that North Main street between Fourth and Tenth streets is particularly dangerous as far as automobile traffic is concerned. He offered the suggestion that the city limit the speed to 10 miles an hour on that section of the street.

Corporation Counsel Shields said that this couldn't be done by the city.

Alderman Crooks then inquired as to what steps could be taken to cut down the danger of accidents. The corporation counsel said signs could be placed there warning drivers to slow down. After some discussion on the matter it was voted that the police commissioners have two such signs placed on that section of the street.

Councilman Lee Clegg presented the name of George Francis McFarland for appointment as a special constable. On the suggestion of Mayor Waters the nomination was referred to the police commissioners for investigations and report.

On the recommendation of the police commissioners, Stephen J. Woods was appointed a special constable of the city.

Department Bills Approved

The following department bills were approved:

Police department $5,432.90; fire department $5,830.05; finance department $2,119.80; water department $3,118.14; Trading Cove Brook bills, $1,247.20; gas and electric department $36,643.39; cemetery department $851.12; park department $405.62; public works department, permanent street improvement $577.71; public works department, regular bills, $11,609.42.

This completed the business of the meeting and adjournment was taken about 9.30 o'clock.

CAPTAIN MURPHY IS YEARS IN DEPARTMENT

Thomas P. Murphy, appointed captain of the Norwich police department at the February meeting of the court of common council Monday evening, has had 15 years service in the department. He began his police career October 2, 1910 when he was appointed a supernumerary police officer and became a member of the regular force December 4, 1920. May 7, 1923, following the sudden death of the late Sergeant John H. Kane, killed in line of duty by a live wire, Captain Murphy was appointed second sergeant as successor to the late Sergeant Allan Matthews who became first sergeant. Following the death of Sergt. Matthews Captain Murphy was last January appointed first sergeant, being succeeded as second sergeant by John H. Casey, who for some years previous had patrolled the day beat in Greeneville. Since the death of Captain Twomey, Captain Murphy has been acting captain in charge of the night desk at police headquarters, and Sergt. Casey has been acting first sergeant.

Captain Murphy, whose home is at No. 91 Thames street, is a veteran of the world war. For nearly a year he served with the U. S. Engineers and for about six months was overseas with his regiment. He is well and favorably known throughout the city and is popular with the members of the police department. He is efficient and well qualified for the important position to which he has been appointed. Captain Murphy is a nephew of the late Chief John Murphy.

All of the new appointments become effective immediately.

THREE GREAT UNITS FOUND IN SOCIETY

The subject presented at the noon meeting at the Richmond Radiator Co. Monday was The Great Units of Society. The meeting was under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. and the speaker was Rev. Charles H. Ricketts.

The following is an outline of his remarks:

According to the Apostle Paul "none of us liveth to himself." Our living involves others. Strictly speaking living to one's self alone is simply impossible. Every attempt to do so ends in tragedy. This is apparent when we study man's internal structure and his external environment. If a man, otherwise normal, should be armless, he would be a helpless cripple, because all of his organs are more or less dependent on his arms.

In like manner it was shown that "none of us liveth to himself" intellectually. If one has keen intuitions and dull outward perceptions, or had judgment without reason, he would be an intellectual cripple. There is neither bodily organ nor mental attribute that can live to itself alone.

All attempts in history of people trying to live apart from all civilized society have ended in disaster. The man who tries to do it we call an hermit, a picture of whom was drawn by the speaker.

The three great units that must be preserved to save civilization from collapse are, 1, the family, 2, the state, and 3, the church. All other worthy organizations are modifications of these.

A brief statement was then made of each of these:

1. The family. After a long evolutionary process the highest form of animal life began to realize that he was a rational and an accountable being; that nature made him a social being. Therefore he found a companion and reared a family. This was the first social unit. 2. The state. One family found it wise to unite with another family for protection and other reasons. This created the community and at last the nation.

3. The church. This grew out of the religious instinct. First was the rude altar; then this was covered forming the tabernacle; then the synagogue, and eventual the Christian church. All this going to show that "none of us liveth to himself."

NEW ENGLAND AND VIRGINIA IN CO-OPERATION

The first meeting of the New England-Virginia Conference committee, formed last fall for the purpose of co-operation on mutual commercial and industrial problems, has been called for February 10, by Clifford S. Anderson, president of the Associated Industries of Massachusetts and chairman of the committee. The meeting will be held in New Haven. Representatives of the principal commercial organizations in Massachusetts, Connecticut, Virginia, Rhode Island and Maine, are on the committee, and it is understood that New Hampshire and Vermont will be asked to join the organization.

C. S. Andersen, President, Associated Industries of Mass., and chairman, joint Virginia-New England committee on Economic Cooperation.

Coastal trade development is the most important matter that the committee has to consider. New England at the present time obtains a large part of its bituminous coal from Hampton Roads, and New England business men realize that the south today is offering the greatest undeveloped market for their products of any territory in the United States. Cheap water transportation makes this a desirable market for New England, and Virginia is anxious to co-operate because of the great quantity of her raw materials that are used in New England, and the subsequent development of her commerce by economic reciprocity.

Twenty New England commercial officials toured Virginia last fall to study trade possibilities, as the guests of the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce, and the joint conference committee was the result of the trip.

Dr. Joseph H. Smith, president, and Major LeRoy Hodges, managing director of the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce, visited New London, New Haven, Norwich, Providence, Portsmouth, Bridgeport, and Portland, last summer studying port development in these cities and possibilities for an economic union between these states.

RICKARD WILL MATCH DEMPSEY AND GIBBONS; WINNER TO MEET WILLS

New York, Feb. 2.—(By The A. P.)—The heavyweight ballyhoo for 1925 gathered full steam today when Tex Rickard announced he would match Tom Gibbons and Jack Dempsey for a return title bout early in June and then pit the winner against the perennial negro contender, Harry Wills, in September, both bouts will be staged either in the Yankee stadium or Boyle's thirty acres, Jersey City.

Rickard made this announcement after an hour's conference with Gibbons and the latter's manager, Eddie Kane, at which the St. Paul boxer came to definite terms with the promoter. Wills already is under contract with Rickard.

No bidding agreement has yet been reached with Dempsey, but all doubt that he would be seen in action again seemed removed by a prompt declaration in Los Angeles by Jack Kearns, Dempsey's manager, that the champion would give both Gibbons and Wills an opportunity to fight for the title. Rickard said he anticipated no difficulty coming to terms with Dempsey.

The statements by Rickard and Kearns synchronized so well that fight experts jumped at the conclusion that the program of two title fights here this year was as good as clinched.

There was no explanation as to what effect Dempsey's fighting plans would have upon the matrimonial venture which he has announced for May.

Observers concluded, however, that unless there was some hitch in this plan, the champion's finance, Estelle Taylor, motion picture actress, had removed her objection to tuning their wedding bells to the sound of the ring's gong.

Gibbons and Kane informed Rickard they would prefer to box Dempsey in New York, where official decisions are rendered, rather than under the no-decision law prevailing in New Jersey. The promoter, however, refused to indicate what his choice of an arena would be.

No announcement was made as to financial terms, but it was understood that Gibbons will receive at least $100,000 and probably $150,000 for a battle with Dempsey. The St. Paul challenger failed to make even his expenses out of the historic encounter with Dempsey that went the limit of 15 rounds in the little boom town of Shelby, Montana, in July, 1923.

Wills may or may not regard this inclusion in the title plans as a hoodoo. The negro has figured annually for the past several years in mid-winter negotiations but they have fallen through with equal regularity.

CONN. AGGIES BEING PUT THROUGH STIFF PRACTICE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Storrs, Feb. 2.—After a week of inactivity due to the mid-year examinations, the Connecticut Aggies basketball team got back to work today and began intensive work in preparation for the busy week that is ahead.

Two games will be played this week; the first with Springfield at Storrs Wednesday night, and the second with Clark University at Worcester Saturday night. Both contests shape up as tough assignments, and the Aggies will have to be in top form in order to cop both games.

Today's workout was largely devoted to offensive work on the part of Dole's first string five. The Aggie mentor lined his second team up in a five man defense formation, and then instructed his varsity five on breaking through and cutting for the basket. Dole has not been altogether satisfied with the work of his men in some of the earlier contests this season, especially in regard to this phase of the game. Today's practice session was planned with the purpose of correcting this fault, and a noticeable improvement was made by the Blue and White outfit.

Although the Aggies were successful in defeating Springfield 26-16 at Springfield last month, the game Wednesday is not being taken lightly by the athletic authorities at Storrs. Connecticut realizes that the Springfield five has made rapid strides in its development since the setback received at the hands of the Aggies, and a hard fought battle is expected when the two teams meet in their second game of the season.

As yet, the final markings for the first semester have not been announced by the Registrar's office, so it is impossible to state at this time whether or not any of the Aggie regulars will be lost to the team because of deficiency in academic work.

Coach Alexander's freshman team will swing into action in the latter part of the week, when Westminster School of Simsbury will be played on its own court. The frosh have yet to be defeated in basketball, and every effort will be made to keep the record clean when the team plays Saturday night.

The Hudsons copped second place, followed by the Reos and Buicks who tied for third position. The 'auto' league proved to be one of the most exciting contests conducted at the "Y" and almost every game proved to be a real tussel. The players on the victorious "caddies" A. C. Dunbar, H. E. Hobbins, E. L. Bliven, Dr. A. C. Freeman, O. Hargreaves, J. Greenstein, W. R. Frisbie and E. W. Jewett. A new league will begin Thursday afternoon for the members of the afternoon business business men's class.

BULKELEY MAKES GOOD SHOWING AGAINST FORDHAM

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Fordham University, New York City, Feb. 2.—Serving as an appetizer before the big game of the evening, which was to see two rivals, Fordham and Holy Cross play, Bulkeley High school of New London measured up to and beyond expectations in holding the Fordham University's freshmen quintet to a 20 to 8 score.

From all advance "dope" on the Bulkeley team it was thought that the champion freshmen team would romp off with decisive score. But this was not so, with Bulkeley giving fine resistance to a perfectly attuned offense, the frosh players were able to score but ten goals from the field, dispelling any fear for a high score.

Even with the second team which seemed to perform with the consistency of the first quintet, Bulkeley showed up to advantage that will probably make her a permanent fixture on the freshmen schedule in all sports. Ciani caused early trouble for the Bulkeley team, flashing a fine dribbling game and scoring two runs under shots about seven minutes after the opening whistle. Contrary to expectations, Parisi, Bulkeley forward, opened the attack for Bulkeley and not the heralded Huck Taylor. This same Taylor gave another fine exhibition of basketball playing, and he led the visitors in the matter of scoring with four points or half their total.

The second frosh quintet made its appearance on the floor at intervals, entering and re-entering the game. Both the first and second teams seemed as good as each other, but the first team with Ciani had the edge in a particular manner which gave their appearance the needed individual performer to round out a stronger team.

In the major contest of the evening, Fordham, put down Holy Cross after 40 minutes of fast and hard basketball playing by a score of 23 to 16.

CHAPMAN LOSES TO R. I. FRESHMAN FIVE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

South Kingston, R. I., Feb. 2.—Eclipsing all former records both team and individual, the Rhode Island State College freshmen with its "Stumpy" Harre and her wonder freshmen basketball quintet easily found Chapman Tech of New London for her victim. With "Stumpy" Harre breaking an individual record by scoring 37 points all by his lonesome and with the team scoring a total of 62, Chapman Tech could only match that huge total by 21. It was a runaway affair, with the second New London High school five to be swamped by such a large total.

From the opening blast, there was nothing to it with "Stumpy" Harre playing in the role of drum major and leading the parade with fancy and common baskets. He was unstopable and so was the frosh team. Chapman Tech could not match Harre's cleverness with an individual performer and they could not match the four men barring Harre. Even after Harre was taken out with the other four members of the first quintet and the second squad rushed in as reinforcements, Tech was at a loss as to the course to follow out. They were bewildered by the formations of the frosh five used and then of course there was Harre, an ever-ready nemesis, a detriment to any team's success.

The frosh team was composed of players with exceptional court ability, eclipsing any exhibition that has been presented upon the basketball menu this season. Hewitt with nine points led Chapman Tech in the scoring, while the Andrews-Hicks combination had five field goals to their credit. Rosen at center for the frosh was also fast and had six field goals.

FLOWERS OUTPOINTS MOORE IN 12-ROUND BOUT

Newark, N. J., Feb. 2.—Tiger Flowers, Atlanta, negro, decisively outpointed Ted Moore, English middleweight in a 12-round no-decision match in the Armory here tonight, according to a consensus of opinion among newspapermen at the ringside.

The negro opened an old cut on Moore's nose early in the bout, but appeared to have left his knockout punch outside the ring, and the Englishman had no trouble in remaining on his feet. After gaining a long lead in the opening rounds, Flowers apparently was satisfied to receive a newspaper verdict. The Atlantan burlesqued the final round, failing to lay a glove on his opponent during the three minutes.

Tremaine Gets Decision

Philadelphia, Feb. 2.—Carl Tremaine, Cleveland bantamweight, was awarded the judge's decision tonight over Joe Nelson, Philadelphia, at the end of a ten round bout. Tremaine weighed 120 1-4 pounds, 5 1-4 pounds less than Nelson.

Terris submitted to an examination, which showed he had not sustained more than a mild strain. He continued his workout shortly afterward and garden officials announced there was no doubt he would be in shape for this week's contest, which is looked upon as likely to determine the outstanding contender for Benny Leonard's vacated title.

SUB BASE TEAM SPLITS EVEN IN WEEK-END BILL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Newport, R. I., Feb. 2.—Receiving unjust treatment from the referee in the game, the Submarine Base lost to the Newport Training station in the first of two games played over the week end at Newport. The Submarine Base split even, losing Friday night's game with the Training station by the score of 22 to 18, and winning the game with the Newport Torpedo station on Saturday night by a score of 27 to 23.

The best scorer for the Training five in the game played on Friday night was the extra man on the court, who called fouls at frequent intervals and giving the locals the benefit of the contest throughout. However, the Base showed up well but lost by a small margin of 6 points. The visitors failed to keep the Training station's forwards in check in the opening half, but came back strong by outplaying the Newporters by a 11 to 2 margin, after the Training station had a 14 to 2 lead with the termination of half time.

Making a strong comeback in the second half with Murphy leading the assault on the Training basket, the Sub Base came near pulling the unexpected and almost won out. Their rally fell short, however, and the efforts of the referee were gratifying from the local point of view.

Murphy for the visitors played a fine game with Bartz, Keck and O'Hare playing a fine game. Franey and Kneer for the locals were outstanding with the referee, coming in for his share of the glory.

The score for this game follows:

The score:

Sub Base.

Referee, Sullivan of Newport. Umpire, Speers. Timer, Robichan. Time of game, 4 quarters of 10 minutes each.

Although the Sub Base piled up a score of 47 to 17 in the meeting with the Newport Torpedo Station at New London, on Jan. 17, the tars from the Whaling city had a much stiffer time of it in the game on Saturday. Winning by a score of 27 to 23, the unexpected resistence of the Newporters was unlocked for from this quarter. It took consistent basketball playing throughout the game to have the gobs win this contest.

Murphy's fine play of the night before was again outstanding. The home pivot man, Keene, failed to get the jump on Murphy at any one time. Helpmates in the persons of Bartz, O'Hare and Compton helped to make the evening complete.

MURPHY CALLS OFF HIS WALKING STUNT MONDAY NIGHT

A strong feeling of modesty and what he considered undue publicity caused Jack Murphy, popular soda clerk, to abandon his walking stunt which was to have been held Monday evening at 6:30 o'clock. Murphy called off all wagers late Monday afternoon stating that the large audience that was expected to turn out would make him nervous and he could not perform at his best. Jack blushed continually Monday as his friends complimented him on his ability which he kept hidden for a long time.

Lewis to Meet Mondt Tonight

Chicago, Feb. 2.—Ed Strangler Lewis today finished training for his match since he was tossed out of the ring in Kansas City early last month, losing to Wayne "Big" Munn.

Lewis will meet Joe "Toots" Mondt, Colorado heavyweight, in a finish match here tomorrow night. He is satisfied that he has regained his usual form and has fully recovered from injuries to his back that sent him to a hospital.

ENDEES OF MERIDEN CLASH WITH ARMY-NAVY AT TAFTVILLE TONIGHT

With their recent defeat at the hands of the fast Endees of Meriden fresh in their minds the Army-Navy Five of Taftville will stack up against the boys from the Silver City in a return game at Parish Hall tonight.

The hoopsters from the western part of the state are the fast and classiest aggregation that has represented Meriden in many years, and, as aspirants for the state title will present their strongest line-up against the local quintet. The visitors insist that they will take the local boys into camp for the second time when they meet tonight.

The personnel of the Endees includes some of the fastest basketball players in the state. Treading the forward line will be "Bill" Cook, former Insilco star and Jack Atwood, former captain of the Lawrence University team. "Slim" McNamara of the Waterbury Kaceys will do the hopping at center, with "Red" Lingner and Jack Curry doing duty in the back court. Curry is a veteran of the chalk court and is well known in this vicinity, having played with XYZ team of Hartford when this combination defeated the Crescent A. A. several years ago. Jake Gade and Bill Callaher will act in the utility role.

The Army-Navy club will present the same line-up as they did in Meriden last Saturday night. Belair and Jim Murphy will team up in the forward berth while Harry Mills will be assigned to the pivot position with G. Coleman and Jimmy Welch as guards. Welch is popular with the local fans, having caught for the J. B. Martin base ball team on several occasions. Those who saw Saturday's game at Meriden say that Welch and Jimmy Murphy were the only players on the Taftville team outside of Belair that showed any real basketball talent. That, of course, is erroneous as all who have seen the Army-Navy play know. Mills is no amateur at the game and neither is Coleman, both boys being necessary to the team's welfare. Scratch Coleman and Eddie Murphy wil be held on the reserve line.

The management has secured an orchestra and dancing is to follow the game, which starts at 8 o'clock.

NATIONAL LEAGUE STARTS GOLDEN JUBILEE YEAR WITH FEATURE MEETING

New York, Feb. 2 (By the A. P.)—The National Baseball League paused in its scheduled deliberations today, turned back to the first pages of its history and flashed on the screen of today the personalities, trials and triumphs of those who laid the cornerstone of professional baseball.

Emulating a scene enacted 49 years ago at precisely the same hour and on the same day, the magnates of the National League together with those players who have survived the flight of time met in the Broadway Central hotel, the same hostelry which housed the first National league meeting on Feb. 2, 1876. The gathering inaugurated the golden jubilee year.

In the same room in which Morgan G. Bulkeley of Hartford, Conn., was elected the first president of the National league, at high noon, the baseball men who have built upon the foundation of their predecessors, paid tribute to the character and courage of those pioneers of half a century ago.

Five of the seven surviving players who played in the National league in its first year when the catcher caught the ball on the first bound and the umpire rendered his decisions from behind the catcher, attended today's gathering. These include George Washington Bradley of Philadelphia, a pitcher with the St. Louis club; Thomas Bond of Boston, a pitcher with the Hartford club; Alonzo Knight of Philadelphia, who pitched for the old Athletics; John Manning of Boston, outfielder with the Boston club; and Tommy York of New York, old-time Hartford outfielder. George Wright of Boston and Al Reach of Philadelphia, the remaining two, could not attend due to advancing age. Calvin J. Stambough of Chicago, one of the first National league umpires, attended the meeting as did Tommy Foster, the old Detroit shortstop; Sam Crane, former Detroit second baseman and noted sports writer; John K. Dener, former president of the National league and late governor of Pennsylvania; Bill Clarke, old-time Washington catcher; John Ward, New York third baseman; Jim Mutrie, first owner and manager of the New York Giants; Joe Hornung, Boston outfielder and others of prominence. Most of these men have reached the 70 mark in the matter of years.

William A. (Billy) Sunday, former major leaguer and now well known evangelist, sent a letter to President Heydler from Jackson, Miss., where he is holding a revival meeting, expressing his regrets at not being able to attend. He said in part:

"Baseball is a vehicle through which hundreds of names have become household words, names of men who otherwise would have been born to bloom unknown among the sticks in some main street town in the short grass country. The pages of history of American sport are illuminated by hundreds of stars of baseball who have reached the peak in that profession. It is the ladder up which they have climbed to fame."

Telegrams of regret for failure to attend were also read from A. H. Soden, who was president of the Boston National League club for 30 years; George Wright, former Cincinnati Red star; Charles H. Ebbets, the president of the Brooklyn club and senior member of the preent National league.

No business was transacted today, the meeting adjourning until tomorrow when the magnates will set to deliberate over the 1925 schedule.

MORE PLAYERS QUESTIONED IN BRIBERY PROBE

New York, Feb. 2.—Arthur Fletcher, manager of the Philadelphia Nationals; Ross Young, outfielder of the New York Giants, and George Kelly, Giants' first baseman, today were examined by Assistant District Attorney Brothers in the state's investigation into the attempted bribery of Shortstop Heinie Sand of the Phillies before a contest in New York late last season.

District Attorney Banton will receive a full report within a few days and information regarding the testimony must come for him, Mr. Brothers said.

The three men named by Jimmy O'Connell, barred from baseball after his confession to Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis that he had made the proposition to Sand, ave been questioned in the district attorney's office.

O'Connell, who was an outfielder with the Giants at the time, insisted that Frank Frisch, second baseman and captain of the team, Kelly and Young had knowledge of the proposed transaction. Coach Cozy Dolan, whom O'Connell implicated, also was exiled from the organized game after investigation by the commissioner.

Kelly, who came here from his home in California to testify, said that when he arrived he found a telegram stating that his brother had died. He was questioned by Mr. Brothers for half an hour, but all information obtained from him was withheld and the investigator expressed his regret at having brought Kelly all the way from the coast.

Fletcher and Young, also interrogated today, failed to shed new light on the situation, it was announced officially.

A telegram from Panama signed by Commissioner Landis announced the willingness of is office to pay the expenses of an investigator, if the district attorney wished to question O'Connell in California. The banished player has refused to appear here unless he is granted immunity, a proposition which has been denied.

HARTFORD BOWLING DUO AT AETNA THIS EVENING

The team of Gaines and Genovese, of Hartford, comes to the Aetna alleys this evening for the second match of a three match series with Fillmore and Barber, who represent the Aetna Alleys. In the first match at Hartford last week Monday Fillmore and Barber lost their match by 73 pins but are in hopes of evening up the series on the home alleys this evening. Fillmore is in good condition and is hitting the pins with percision and regularity as was shown in his match in the two-man tournament match last evening.

It is expected that the attendance at this match will exceed all records as the Hartford bowlers come here with an enviable reputation throughout the state while the local bowlers are popular and have a large following in the eastern part of the state. The match is scheduled for 8 o'clock.

NEW LONDON THIEF INTERRUPTED WHILE LIFTING FAMILY RADIO SET

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, Feb. 3—Another break of a residence was perpetrated this evening and in the same manner as have been several other of the home entrances of late, and has been the case in most instances, no plunder of value was obtained so far as could be determined.

The residence to receive the attention of the thief tonight was that of EAsworth J. Horton, 193 Pequot avenue. Entrance to the place was gained shortly after 8 o'clock by the crook smashing a rear window during the absence of the Horton family. Going inside the house the crook attempted to steal a radio set, but was prevented from doing so presumably by being scared away. The set was removed from the house and placed on the ground, but was not taken away because the crook was unable to disconnect the wires before his presence beneath the window was detected. The owner of the residence heard the crook and telephoned to the police, but before Patrolman Augustus Ray arrived the fellow had made his escape, leaving the radio set on the ground.

Friends here of Rev. Mother Alphonsa Lathrop, of Rosary Hill Home for Incurable Cancer Patients, on the Hudson, are interested to know that her hospital has been bequeathed $5,000 by Mrs. Maria Monica MacSloy, a wealthy New York woman, who died recently. The various bequests are made available after the death of Mrs. MacSloy's daughter, who receives the income from all real estate during her life. Mother Alphonsa, in the world was Rose Hawthorne, daughter of America's famous writer, Nathaniel Hawthorne, and is the widow of George Parsons Lathrop. She and her husband were at one time residents of New London. Her wonderful charity for the cancerous poor of all creeds has attracted the interest of the New York public to her convent, where important buildings for the care of her appealing charges are now being erected.

James Davidson, 195 Howard street lodged a complaint with the police tonight that the family residing at 96 Green street were harboring a dog that was the property of Davidson. The latter requested the police to recover the animal for him. Patrolman John Clifford was assigned to investigate the complaint and upon going to the house at Green street, the admission was made that the dog was there, but the family claimed ownership of the animal and refused to give it to the custody of the officer. Because of the dispute of ownership of the animal Davidson was advised to confer with Prosecuting Attorney Daniel M. Cronin, Tuesday morning.

Harry McKnight, who claims to have been employed at one of the island forts of the New London Artillery District, was taken into custody tonight by Patrolman Carlos Selesnitsky, when the officer detected McKnight soliciting alms on Bank street. The accused was locked up pending the convening of the police court tomorrow morning. Among other effects found on McKnight was a bottle of Sloan's liniment, which he was "nipping" on, by diluting the strong alcoholic concoction with water or soft drinks. McKnight, it is claimed, has been engaged in soliciting alms about the city a long time, but not until this evening were the police successful in detecting him at his game.

Rev. and Mrs. George R. Atha, of Broad street, Groton, have had with them their son, Henry Atha, a student at Brown university, Providence.

Miss Marjorie Starr, cashier at the Hotel Mohican, who has been ill at the home of her mother, Mrs. Clare Starr of Hempstead street, several days, has been taken to Lawrence hospital, where she will undergo an operation within a day or two.

Mrs. William J. O'Brien is confined to her home, 16 Denison avenue, by a severe attack of grip.

George Maine of North Stonington, was in the Groton town court this morning, charged with operating an automobile without having an operator's license. He pleaded guilty after having made it known that he had complied with all regulations of the motor vehicle department, since his arrest by State Police Officer Henry Albright, Jan. 26th. Judge Cornelius D. Costello imposed a fine of $5 and costs, the latter amounting to $16.05.

Ruth the eight year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Gamber, of Fort street, Groton, is ill with scarlet fever The health authorities have caused the Gamber home to be quarantined.

As a result of Traffic Officer Frank Linehan being a patient at Lawrence hospital and because Supernumerary Police Officer Dennis Murphy has been suspended 30 days for violation of the rules and regulations of the police department. Supernumerary Officers William and Edward Riordan have been assigned to regular duty, until such time as Officer Linehan's condition permits his resuming duty and Supernumerary Officer Murphy's suspension is lifted.

The cottage at 67 Bentley avenue, Ocean Beach, owned by Harry Land of Norwich, was discovered Sunday to have been entered by vandals. Entrance to the place was gained by smashing a window. Mr. Land, who visited the cottage Sunday afternoon, stated that nothing of value had been taken from the place.

George Leybovitch undoubtedly considers himself fortunate, notwithstanding he was fined $400 in the police court this morning, that he is not now serving a term in jail. Twice he has been convicted of selling liquor and twice he has been fined substantially. Today he was charged with the same offense and the liquor he sold to a couple of rum hounds was produced in court to aid in his conviction. But the rum hounds were not there. They were released Saturday, when the arrest was made and when they told such a straightforward story as to how they got the liquor and when they went a second time after the booze to demonstrate that they were reliable, they were believed, when they promised to be in court today and there relate what they had told the arresting officers at the head of whom was Sergeant Nelson Smith. When the men who bought the liquor did not appear this morning Sergeant Smith was sent to their homes with a subpoena to bring them to court, but he was unable to find them and returned and so reported. The men had been to their place of employment, had drawn the money that was due them and had disappeared. They could not be traced so they were unavailable as witnesses. The prosecutor intended to ask for a jail sentence for Leybovitch, as he said he was one of the most difficult of the liquor sellers to catch at the business. He said that a search warrant had been issued and that the place of Leybovitch was searched without finding any liquor. Evidence through such men as the witnesses had proven to be would make it difficult for the prosecuter to secure a conviction before a jury. Judge Prince, in passing judgment, intimated what was in store for Leybovitch when next he should be convicted and then sentenced him to jail for a long term, and to pay a fine of $200 on each of two counts. He then suspended the jail sentence as the limit of fairness to Leybovitch, who under the guise of conducting a shoe repair and sale shop, was selling liquor.

Three sailors in the service of the government were fined for intoxication Saturday night and Sunday morning. Two of them were ordered to pay $5 each and the third, a fellow who was in a row at the skating rink on Golden street, was punished by a $10 fine. Each had the cash to pay the fines and the attending costs.

Frank Greenman was sent to jail for thirty days as a drunk. He has often been before the court for the same offense and was released from jail last week.

Thomas Connelly when arrested on Saturday, gave a bond of $35 as assurance that he would be in court today when his case was called. Tommy didn't keep his promise so he lost his $35, his bond being declared forfeited.

Charles Sullivan and James Devine, who some months ago were charged with annoying a man on the street by calling him "Blooey," were to have appeared today, but the complaint was nolled as they have not been complained against since the time of their apprehension.

John Smith of Groton, driver of a commercial automobile, was charged with overloading his car, having put upon it some 4,000 more pounds than is allowed by law, which is the light weight of the car and the load in pounds. Mr. Smith was an unintentional offender in that he went after a load of chestnut wood and not being able to get it, loaded four cords of hickory upon the truck. A state policeman who was on his job saw Smith and caused him to appear in court. The explanation was also reasonable that the court after imposing a fine of $25, remitted the fine and made Smith pay only the costs. As Smith will lose his license for fifteen days the penalty was quite severe enough. The purpose of the law is to protect the state's roads.

Miss Louise Clements, of Westerly; Louis Richards, Mystic; Fred Hill, New York; Mrs. Edwin Hawke and infant son, Westerly; Mrs. Elvitus Brower, Keeney Lane; Miss Helen Stevenson, Ocean avenue; Mrs. Sarah Curtiss, Connecticut avenue; John Miller, Yantic street, Norwich; and Mrs. Richard Dineen and infant daughter, of Front street, were patients discharged at Lawrence hospital today.

Mrs. Joseph Corcoran, 21 Brooks street, complained to the police this morning that her dog had been struck by an automobile owned and driven by S. Scienkowski, grocer, at 86 Winthrop street and that the dog was dying. Mrs. Corcoran stated that the driver of the machine drove away without stopping to discover whether the animal was badly hurt. The police queried Scienkowski relative to the accident and he declared that after the machine struck the dog, the animal ran away. He, however, stated that he would confer with the owner of the dog relative to the accident during the day.

An automobile owned by Giam B. Musante, 385 Williams street, was left parked in front of the Musante residence last night, the car being parked about midnight. When the machine was about to be driven away this morning at 7.30 o'clock the owner discovered that it had been struck and damaged by another machine. Mr. Musante lodged a complaint with the police.

An automobile operated by Mrs. Grace H. Lougee, 249 West Main St., Norwich, was damaged this morning when struck by a five-ton automobile truck, owned by Michael J. Doyle, Blydenburg avenue contractor. The pleasure car sustained among other damage, a disfigured left rear fender. Mrs. Lougee estimated the damage to her car at $25. Mrs. Lougee was operating her car on Williams street, near Gallows Lane and was headed in a southerly direction. The truck was headed in the opposite direction, and it is claimed the wheels became wedged in snow tracks, with the result that the driver was unable to guide the truck from the ruts, so a collision followed.

The funeral of Mrs. Sara Brown, widow of Thomas Brown, formerly of Morgan court, Groton, was held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock at 48 Shapley street. The services were conducted by Rev. George R. Atha, pastor of Groton Heights Baptist church. Burial was in Groton cemetery

A Ford delivery automobile owned by B. H. Bidwell, 35 Evergreen avenue, which was stolen Saturday night from Meridian street where it had been parked several hours, was found abandoned on Water street early this morning by Patrolman Augustus Ray. The machine was taken to the police station where it was later turned over to the owner.

Mrs. Leonard Gibson, 293 Pequot avenue, complained to the police this morning that a sharpie belonging to her and which had been moored off Pequot avenue, had been stolen during Sunday. Mrs. Gibson stated that she suspected that the sharpie was aboard one of the barges of the Merritt-Chapman-Scott Co., Inc., which is at anchor in the lower harbor.

Friday's high wind got under a load of hay being carted to town and overturned it, near the home of Jabez H. Bailey. It swung the wagon against one of the trolley poles and knocked both horses down, blowing the hay in all directions. It was some task for the driver to reassemble his freight.

Several windows were blown in in houses in the village caused by slamming blinds, signs were torn from their moorings and one inventive small boy hoisted a sail on his sled and managed to get over the level places without walking.

Coasting is great and Mansion House Hill is a favorite section. Never an automobile goes over it—but the curves are a bit dangerous.

State road men were busy all Sunday with the snow plow clearing off the slush and opening culverts. A great amount of water rushed into the lowered canals and rivers hereabouts.

Springs and wells in the village have behaved miraculously well during the draughty season, very few householders having to go long distances for water.

Willard Manning, a freshman at Trinity college, Hartford, has been spending the past week with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Manning during the mid-year examination holidays.

During the eclipse, one of the best vantage points proved to be the quaint grounds on the M. J. Shea farm known as The Towers.

Elisha Lathrop, veteran milkman, covered his route Thursday morning, although he was celebrating his 83rd birthday.

Although Mr. Lathrop has accumulated more of worldly goods than the average farmer, he does not believe in sitting down and letting the rest of the world go by.

Never has a storm affected the village as did the one that swept over it Thursday night, bringing a fall of the heaviest, stickiest snow of the winter—all sorts of plows and shovels were working overtime as a result.

Road Supervisor Henry T. Gorman kept the state road plow out all night and kept the Colchester-Hartford turnpike in a passable condition. The automobile drivers appreciate it most were the ones on the omnibus route between here and Colchester, as they did not miss a trip.

W. W. Bentley has one of his icehouses filled and expects to fill the other the first good freeze that comes. The ice put in was as clear as crystal.

Rev. Robert B. Day, rector of Grace church sails February 7th from New York on S. S. Berengaria for London, to spend a month with relatives there, returning on the Mauretania, March 21. This is the first vacation he has had since coming to this parish.

Grip Left You All Run Down?

BACK home and ashy? Sharp pains stab you at every sudden move? Nerves "all unstrung?"

Then look to your kidneys! Winter, you know, is danger time for the kidneys. That's because grips, colds and chills are apt to weaken the kidneys and allow body poisons to upset the whole bodily machinery. Then is apt to come lameness, soreness and stiffness; constant backache, rheumatic pains, headaches, dizziness and irregular or painful passage of the kidney secretions.

Don't risk serious kidney sickness! Use Doan's Pills before it is too late. Doan's have helped thousands. They should help you. Ask your neighbor!

Here Is Norwich Proof:

HIRAM U. NEFF, 405 E. Main St., says: "I have used Doan's Pills off and on for attacks of kidney trouble and rheumatic pains. The pains seem to settle mostly in my back and across my kidneys. I am hardly able to stoop or straighten on account of the pain. Doan's Pills always remove the pains and my kidneys become regular in action."

NORWICH DOINGS 75 YEARS AGO

The Cold Spring Iron Company was offered for sale three quarters of a century ago, an advertisement in the Courier placing the day of sale at March 1st, 1850. During the same week the big explosion at the Chelsea Company's paper mill occurred, an 8 ton boiler being hurled 600 feet away, a house destroyed and windows in that section of Greeneville smashed in by the force of the explosion.

Items of general interest of 75 years ago, taken in part from the Courier of 1850, are as follows.

Tuesday, January 22, 1850—A notice from Hartford informs us that a copper mine has been opened in the town of Glastonbury, near the Manchester line, which is probable the equal if not superior to any other in the state. It has been examined by one of the first geologists in the country and pronounced very superior and extensive.

We are now able to announce the opening of a new line of direct telegraphic communication between Norwich and New York in one direction and Boston in the other. The line is established and operated on Bain's principle and passes through New Haven, Middletown, Norwich and Providence and thence to Boston. The Norwich office of this line, which is the best in all New England, is located in the basement of the Merchant's bank.

Mail transportation in Connecticut in the year 1849 cost the government $46,737 while the revenue derived from this government enterprise was $64,127.

The Norwich and New London Steamboat company is offering their three propellors for sale, provided a good price may be given. It is expected that new propellors will be purchased for the river trade.

Thursday, January 31, 1850—About 11.30 o'clock Tuesday night people of Greeneville were aroused from their slumber by a loud rumbling explosion which shook the houses to their foundations. Looking out the windows they saw clouds of smoke rising from in back of the Chelsea company's paper mill. When they ran to the mill, the boiler house, which stood 50 feet back of the mill, was nowhere to be seen and only one of the two 16 foot boilers was in the yard, the other 8 ton boiler being missing. Word was soon received from the watchman at the Shetucket company's cotton mill, that he had seen something like a balloon sail by, several hundred feet in the air, then heard a crash far up the road. The boiler was finally found in the west side of the Norwich and Worcester tracks, over 600 feet in a straight line from its starting place.

Besides the boiler house, the windows on the river side of the mill were all smashed in, sashes and all, sections of the wall damaged and nearby houses also had windows smashed in by the force of the explosion or by flying debris.

Ebenezer Learned, Jr., of this city has received the appointment of commissioner for the state of Indiana, to take depositions, acknowledgments, deeds, etc.

Saturday, February 2, 1850—At the whig meeting last evening called for the purpose of appointing delegates to the approaching state convention, the following gentlemen were chosen; George Perkins, L. F. S. Foster, George Bliss, Serenus S. Stocking. Those appointed to attend the senatorial convention for this district were; Jedediah Leavens, Thomas L. Stedman, William E. Park and Daniel Connell, J.

The New London railroad has been completed as far north as Stafford Springs, a distance of 48 miles. Work is progressing rapidly on this road and it is hoped that more than twice that distance will be completed within the year.

Julius Clark of Lebanon was nominated for lieutenant governor and Joseph W. White of Hebron, for secretary, at the state convention of the free soil party held in Hartford Wednesday last. John Boyd of Winchester was nominated for governor.

The legislature of New York has furnished her $2000 for the block of marble for the Washington monument. Connecticut will undoubtedly furnish her specimen soon after the meeting of the legislature.

The Cold Spring Iron company was offered for sale through the columns of the Courier in 1850, the advertisement being signed by Franklin Nichols, assignee. The articles for sale mentioned in the advertisement include one rolling mill, one blacksmith shop, seven dwelling houses, store and barn, also, all machinery in the shops, sundry notes and accounts, one gold watch, three tons of spike and many other articles too numerous to mention.

NORWICH TOWN

There was an attendance of 75 at the Congregational Young People's Christian Endeavor service Sunday evening. The attendance contest under the direction of the Lookout committee, Miss Elizabeth Avery, chairman, is arousing much enthusiasm among the members, as each week shows a gain over the preceding Sunday. The society during the contest is in two divisions, designated by the Christian Endeavor colors, red and white. At the meeting Sunday evening it developed that the reds and whites are tied.

The topic assigned to this meeting was Christian Endeavor as an Expression of Friendliness. Phil. 2:1-11. (C. E. Day.) Miss Jessie E. Hyde was the leader.

At the First Congregational church Sunday morning worship, the pastor, Rev. Gurdon P. Bailey preached from Zechariah 4-10. For who hath despised the day of small things? for they shall rejoice and shall see the plummet in the hand of Zerubbabel with those seven; they are the eyes of the Lord, which run to and fro through the whole earth.

What D I Believe About Sin? Romans 3:1-31, will be the theme of the Congregational mid-week prayer service Thursday evening.

In his Sunday morning service at the First Methodist Episcopal church, Rev. James B. Aldrich preached from Luke 10-20. Notwithstanding, in this rejoice not that the spirits are subject unto you but rather rejoice, because your names are written in Heaven.

The Young People's Christian Endeavor service in the evening was in charge of Mrs. Richard Carter. The topic was, Christian Endeavor as an Expression of Friendliness.

This was followed by the evening sermon by Rev. Mr. Aldrich, who gave a talk on the Lord's Prayer. The text used was from the eleventh chapter of Luke, beginning with the second verse.

Monday, the Feast of the Purification or Candlemas day, mass was read at the Sacred Heart church at 7.30, by the pastor, Rev. Charles W. Brennan, after which the candles were blessed and distributed. Today (Tuesday) the Feast of St. Blais there will be mass at 7.30, followed by the blessing of throats. In the evening the throats will also be blessed and there will be benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament.

At this church Friday, the first Friday of the month, there will be mass at 7 o'clock Friday evening at 7.30, there will be benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament in honor of the Sacred Heart of Jesus.

The Home Missionary Sewing society of the First Congregational church is to meet at the home of Mrs. Clyde M. Beebe, of East Town street Friday afternoon.

REFERENDUM IS AGAINST CHILD LABOR AMENDMENT

A referendum of the 1200 members of the Connecticut chamber of commerce shows—according to results received thus far—that the members are against the ratification of the so-called child labor amendment to the Constitution of the United States by a vote of over 32 to 1. Thus far the chamber's child labor referendum has shown 509 votes against ratification as compared with 16 in favor of ratification.

At the top of the chamber's referendum appeared the following sentence: "Do you believe that the state of Connecticut should ratify the proposed amendment to the Constitution of the United States vesting in congress, the power to limit, regulate and prohibit the labor of persons under eighteen years of age?"

The chamber's referendum of the proposed 20th amendment to the Constitution of the United States has brought forth one of the most decisive results ever achieved in any of its previous referenda on important public questions in past years.

You just KNOW she's well
Your child, free, sure to be gay, cheerful and Nature knows!
You just know she's NOT well
There is no reason for her to look or feel this way.

CONSTIPATION means SICKNESS

More human suffering, physical and mental, has resulted from constipation than from any other source. The entire future life of a child can be ruined by lack of attention to the proper daily movement of the bowels. If the bowels do not act at least twice daily it means constipation—that means the bowels are clogged up with the accumulated residue of five to fifteen meals or more with consequent pollution, poison and disease.

Dr. Caldwell's

MARKET WAS IRREGULAR

New York, Feb. 2—Confused price movements took place in today's stock market, strength and activity to the oil and railroad shares being counteracted by irregularity in other sections of the list. Trading was again on a broad scale, the day's total transactions running well over one and a half million shares. A further upward readjustment of crude oil and gasoline prices stimulated the buying of the oil shares, net gains of one to nearly three points being recorded by the Pan-American issues. Louisiana Oil, Independent Oil and Gas, Skelly Oil, Indian Refining and Pierce Oil preferred. Early gains in several other popular issues were materially reduced or cancelled by profit-taking. Tidewater closing four points lower at 144 1-2.

Buying orders in the rail group were influenced by favorable earnings reports and merger prospects. Colorado and Southern was one of the outstanding features, rising four points to 54, on reports showing that 1924 earnings were at the rate of $9.86 a share on the common as against $4.01 in 1923.

Gulf, Mobile and Northern Common and preferred, Frisco common, Omaha preferred and Western Pacific each showed net gains of two points or more, while Baltimore and Ohio, Chicago Northwestern, Rock Island seven per cent. preferred, Louisville and Nashville, Frisco preferred, Seaboard Air Line common and preferred, Texas and Pacific, Wabash preferred A, and Chicago and Eastern Illinois preferred all closed a point or more higher.

Several specialties developed marked buoyancy. Sloss-Sheffield Steel was run up nearly ten points to 96 on rumors of an early increase in the dividend. Mack trucks soared seven points to 139 1-2 and then slipped back to 137. General Electric, selling minus the new electric bond and share stock dividend, closed at 247 after fluctuating between 242 1-3 and 249. Associated Dry Goods closed nearly 5 points higher at 160 3-4.

Mallinson Silk broke nearly six points to 27 on reports that the new market sponsor for the stock was seriously ill. International Shoe dropped 7 1-2 points to 108 on a few sales. Renewed weakness also developed in the Commercial Solvents issues, the A stock closing 2 1-4 points lower at 159 and the B stock showing a loss of 3 points at the same price. Wilson and Company preferred fell back more than two points in reflection of a default in bond interest.

Call money held steady at 3 1-2 per cent. time money rates were slightly firmer. Maturities of 2 to 5 months were quoted at 3 3-4 per cent. with the longer dates commanding 4 per cent. Commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchange rates were slightly easier. Demand sterling ruled 1-2 cent lower around $4.79 and French francs were quoted 1 1-2 points lower at 5.41 cents. Other European rates showed nominal recessions

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

During the month of January there were 17 permits issued at the office of Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton which is several less than for the month of January last year, when 21 permits were issued. Even though January does not come up to the record of previous years contractors are optimistic and claim that 1925 will be equally as good a year as 1924. The 17 building permits include four for new frame dwelling houses, seven for new garages, one for a frame barn and five for alterations to present buildings. The valuation put on the new building by the owners is $31,085.

During the past week five building applications were granted, one for a dwelling house in Thamesville being erected by Michael Abearn and a barn off Tyler avenue, being built by Simon Siemak, both of which have been described in these columns before. The other three permits were for minor building operations.

There has been good progress made on buildings in the various parts of the city during the past week and many are practically at the completion stage. The Sellas block in Franklin square is well along and Contractor P. F. Sweeney expects to have the building ready for occupation some time in March.

The building permits granted during the past week are as follows:

To Jacob Thomashen of 9 Forest street to erect a two story veranda to his house at 78 High street. The veranda will be 4x30 feet and 24 feet high. It will be of wood and composition roofing. Mr. Thomahen has also been granted a permit to make the same additions to his other house at 76 High street.

To Christian C. Meyer to erect a frame veranda on his house at 23 High street. The veranda will be 5x18 feet.

The applications of Michael Ahearn and Simon Siemak recorded in these columns last week have been granted.

New London

A store and tenement building is to be erected at the corner of Squire street and Ocean avenue for Antonio Banci, Garfield avenue. The building will be of brick and concrete construction, two stories high. The front of the first floor will be arranged for a store and the rear and the second floor for one tenement with the usual conveniences.

Bids are being received for a store and garage building to be erected for Sidney Sulman, 8 Shapley street, on a site near State street. The building will be 76x100 feet, containing 19 single stalls, one large repair garage and two stores or offices in the front. It will be of brick and steel construction, one story high, with tar and gravel roof. There will be steam heat and other conveniences.

The permit has been issued to J. A. St. Germain, 900 Bank street, for a gasoline filling station at the corner of Jefferson and Garfield avenues. The building will be 20x30 feet, of frame construction.

An addition and alterations to the dwelling of Alfred Benoit on the Willimantic road are being made by Robert Tetrault, 182 Ocean avenue. The addition will be 21x14 feet of frame construction and will be designed for a living room with a fireplace. There will be new electric wiring and oak floors.

Building Permits

L. W. Beebe, frame garage, Mohegan avenue, $100.
H. R. Griswold, dwelling, Ledyard street, $6,500.
Noble Bradshaw, garage, West Pleasant street, $200.
Number of permits issued for the week, 3; estimated cost of buildings, $6,800.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

There were 14 sales or real estate in Norwich during the past week as compared to 9 sales for the corresponding week in 1924. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $21,000 and $23,100.

In New London there were 12 sales of real estate, exactly the same number as during the same week a year ago. The mortgage loans were $44,668 and $47,450, for the respective weeks.

State Building Permits

The current week seems to have been an off one in the granting of new building permits. The total permits issued in the larger towns in the week was 115, for buildings costing $384,663. Compared with this record was 154 permits granted in the like week of 1924 for buildings costing $768,430, and 72 permits issued in the last week of January, 1923, when the buildings cost $210,687.

N. E. LIVESTOCK REDUCED DURING THE PAST YEAR

According to the bureau of agricultural economics numbers of horses, milk cows, other cattle, and swine in New England were reduced during 1924. Sheep, under the influence of favorable prices for wool, gained a little both in numbers and values. For the United States as a whole numbers of both milk cows and sheep gained 2.2 per cent. during 1924, while other cattle were reduced 5.1 per cent; horses 2.6 per cent. and swine 18.0 per cent.

Farm horses show small reductions in numbers in all states except Maine and New Hampshire where the total remains unchanged. Horses are now reported at 88,000 in Maine; 34,000 in New Hampshire; 73,000 in Vermont; 44,000 in Massachusetts; 5,000 in Rhode Island and 34,000 in Connecticut. A total of 278,000 head for New England compares with 284,000 a year ago. Prices per head are somewhat lower in all the New England states.

Milk cows one year of age and over show 1.0 per cent. decrease for New England as a whole. Maine reports this class of livestock at 206,000 head compared with 210,000 a year ago; New Hampshire 121,000 the same as last year; Vermont 377,000 compared with 385,000; Massachusetts 178,000 compared with 180,000; Rhode Island 27,000 the same as last year; and Connecticut 144,000 compared with 141,000. Prices per head for New England average $2.00 lower than a year ago. Low prices for dairy products and higher prices asked for grain are largely responsible for this decline in numbers and values of milk cows. Milk cows for the United States have increased from 24,786,000 last year to 25,319,000 now.

Other meat cattle in New England show much the same trend in both numbers and values as do milk cows discussed before above. In both of these classes of livestock, increases in numbers are shown in Connecticut where 1924 fluid milk prices have been better than elsewhere in New England.

Numbers of sheep remain unchanged at 16,000 in New Hampshire; 14,000 in Massachusetts; 3,000 in Rhode Island and 8,000 in Connecticut. In Vermont the numbers of sheep increased from 45,000 a year ago to 48,000 now and in Maine from 91,000 to 94,000. Prices in all states are also considerably higher than a year ago.

Numbers of swine have declined 15.5 per cent for New England as a whole and 18.0 per cent. in the United States compared with a year ago. Returns from many farms indicate a decline from 70,000 last year to 63,000 at present in Maine; 31,000 to 28,000 in New Hampshire; 62,000 to 50,000 in Vermont; 65,000 to 55,000 in Massachusetts; 11,000 to 8,000 in Rhode Island; 44,000 to 35,000 in Connecticut. Prices in New England are somewhat better than a year ago. Shortage of corn is causing heavy marketings of hogs in the corn belt states.

TAFTVILLE

Monday being the Feast of the Purification of the Blessed Virgin Mary commemorating the Presentation of Christ in the Temple, there were special services at Sacred Heart church, at which the candles which are to be used at the church throughout the year, were consecrated.

Post Office Hill, which for the past few days has been practically impassable, was sanded Monday morning by the outside men of the Ponemah company.

An out of town automobile went into the gutter over the running boards on North Third avenue Sunday. The gutter had been covered with a thin coating of ice ,which the driver thought was solid, but which broke under the weight of the car. It took several hours before the machine could be brought back to the road again.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Gural and family have given up their house on Norwich avenue.

The regular weekly meeting of the Community Sewing class was held Monday evening in the Red Cross rooms in the Ponemah building.

The report of the fox hunt of last Saturday in Monday's Bulletin was incorrect in reporting that there were no kills. George Kinder, Jr., of North Third avenue bagged a good sized fox in Lisbon, this being his ninth fox for the season. The animal is on exhibition in the store of George W. Weller.

President Allan Bogle was in the chair at the regular monthly meeting of the Taftville Football & Social club held Monday evening in the club rooms at the Ponemah house. Various committee reports were heard and routine business was transacted.

The regular monthly meeting of Branch 98 ,Polish Workers Sick Mutual Aid association was held Sunday afternoon at the Clubrooms on Norwich avenue, with President Walter Wucjik presiding.

The Artisans met Monday evening in their rooms in St. Louis Hall on Dion street for the transaction of mutual business.

Roland Langlis has resigned his position with the No. 4 weaving department of the Ponemah company.

Coasting proved to be the premier sport over the week end, most of the youngsters of the town enjoying the slide in the lot north of North B street.

Miss Louis White entertained at cards at her home on South A street Saturday evening.

Henry Bernard of the Ponemah house has returned from a few days stay in Natick, R. I.

Mrs. Alfred Haffner and daughter of Norwich Town were callers in town Sunday.

Miss Mary Arthur of Mechanicsville, was a recent guest of Miss Louise White of South A street.

Miss Florence Lake of New London was a week-end guest of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew White of South A street.

Adolph Heinrich is confined to his home in Lisbon by an injury to his hand.

Harold Cady of South B street has resigned his position wiht the Ponemah company.

A number of young men of the village enjoyed a thrill Sunday when they got a touring car on the ice of the Shetucket River and spent the afternoon driving it up and down from the island to the dam. The thrill came when the driver suddenly put on his brakes, and the car would turn around several times and skid all over the surface of the pond. At times there were about 20 hanging on to the running boards and fenders of the machine.

Samuel Kinder of Pittsburgh, Pa., a former Taftville resident has been visiting relatives in town.

Rev. U. O. Bellerose, pastor of Sacred Heart church, has returned from Three Rivers, Canada, where he has been spending several weeks.

NORWICH MUST OVERCOME ADVERSE REPORT ON THAMES RIVER CHANNEL

An adverse report by Colonel Newcomer, division engineer, makes the problem that the Norwich Chamber of Commerce and other interests must overcome when the Norwich representations appear in Washington before the army engineers to advocate the deepening of the Thames river from Allyn's Point to this city.

Colonel Newcomer's Report

Following is the report of the division engineer, Colonel Newcomer:

1. I consider it doubtful whether the work can be done for the amounts estimated in the above report. I would not be surprised to see it run from 50 to 75 per cent. higher than these estimates.

2. I am informed by the office of the Thames River Line, which operates two boats between New York and Norwich, that it is giving daily service between these two points and is handling promptly all business offered to it. Through this service Norwich enjoys better rates than New London on the Sound steamers belonging to the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. There is, apparently, no urgent reason for greater depth to accommodate this service.

3. There are understood to be two paper board factories on the Thames river, one at Montville, below Allyn's Point, where a depth of 20 feet is available, and the other at Thamesville, where the channel depth is 14 feet, but the depth at the factory wharf is only 11 feet, and the Uncas Paper Board Company, which operates this factory, apparently considers this depth sufficient for its business.

4. The largest lumber concern on the upper Thames is that of H. F. and A. J. Dawley, at Fort Point, about half way between Allyn's Point and Norwich. It is understood that this company specializes in large size timbers which it distributes over a large territory in competition with similar dealers at other New England ports. This company is forced to lighter portions of its cargoes of lumber at a cost of from $3,000 to $6,000 per year, which would be saved with a channel of adequate depth.

5. The coal trade on the river consists of anthracite and bituminous coal brought from the New Jersey ports in box barges, and bituminous coal from Hampton Roads, brought in seagoing barges. The depth on the upper Thames is adequate for the box barge trade. It is not sufficient for the seagoing barge trade, except for a limited number of small barges that are available in this trade. The rates from Norfolk to Allyn's Point are about 5 cents per ton more than to New London. There would also be a towage charge of about 5 cents per ton from Allyn's Point to Norwich for barges proceeding to the latter point. The rail rates on coal from Allyn's Point to Norwich and its immediate vicinity are 70 cents per ton. The rates for truck delivery at Norwich within trucking limits of 5 to 8 miles are about the same as the rail rates from Allyn's Point. This would indicate that for the larger coal users having direct rail connections to their coal yards there would be practically no saving by barging the coal to Norwich rather than to Allyn's Point. There are, however, said to be quite a number of mills within trucking limits at Norwich which have no plant facilities for rail delivery of coal, and which must, therefore, truck the coal from a rail siding to the mill. In such instances it is claimed that by eliminating this extra handling there would be a saving of at least 50 cents per ton by truck delivery from the wharf at Norwich to the factory. Beyond the trucking limits of Norwich, in northeastern Connecticut, there would be no saving, as the rail rates on coal from Norwich to such points are the same as from Allyn's Point.

6. Rates per ton on coal from Norfolk were quoted to me by a dealer in this trade on May 28, 1924, for cargoes of various sizes as follows:

To Allyn's Point—
Over 3000 tons	$1.00
2500 to 3000 tons	1.05
2000 to 2500 tons	1.10
To Sound Points —
1500 to 2000 tons	$1.25
1300 to 1500 tons	1.35
Under 1300 tons	1.40

This dealer also informed me, that there are now in this trade many so-called Shipping Board barges, these being wooden hulls of wartime construction which have a substantial tonnage capacity of 2500 to 3000 tons on draft of not exceeding 16 feet.

7. It appears from the above summary that the benefits to be derived from the proposed increase in depth from 14 to 18 feet between Allyn's Point and Norwich would be quite limited in character and, in my opinion, they are not sufficient to warrant the comparatively large cost of providing the greater depth. The interest on this sum at 5 per cent. assuming the estimate of $283,000, to be sufficient, amounts to about $14,000 and the increased cost of annual maintenance, is about $10,000 making a total charge of about $24,000 a year for the additional improvement. Local interests advocating the improvement say there is no chance of securing local co-operation towards the cost of the improvement, so that this change would rest entirely upon the public funds I see no prospect of sufficiently widespread benefit to justify such federal expenses, and I accordingly recommend that the improvement be not undertaken at this time.

Norwich Committee Replies.

The reply of the local committee follows:

Colonel H. C. Newcomer, Corps of Engineers, Division Engineer, 28 Whitehall Street, New York City.

Dear Sir:

Replying to the tentative draft of your views dated May 31st expressed in your enclosure to Mr. Lucius Briggs of the committee of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce all with reference to the Thames river project and an increased depth of the channel from Allyn's Point to Norwich, we thank you for the opportunity offered us to submit most respectfully some further facts and figures as well as our views and conclusions of the proposition.

May we attempt to answer seriatim of your views?

1. We have not seen the report of the district engineer, nor are we familiar with its details or the quantities necessary to be removed upon which we suppose the figures are based as the result of an actual survey of the about six miles covered. Judging, however, from the amount of money that has been spent annually for a long period of years to maintain a fourteen feet depth we would assume in the absence of a more detailed criticism and analysis of cost that we have now before us that the conclusion of the district engineer who spent with his force some considerable time in actual surveys and soundings were approximately correct.

2. The service rendered by the Thames River Line can be greatly improved in many respects. It is the hope of the different manufacturing and commercial organizations advocating and conducting this project that with an increase of depth in the channel a larger boat, more frequent and dependable service will result. Some of the history of the maintenance and operation of this boat line and some of its predecessors would show conclusively that the character of the service resulted in many shippers using other ways of getting their merchandise. To an extent the Thames River Line have contended that the insufficient depth of the channel from Allyn's Point to Norwich is the reason for their inadequate service. The inadequate service has discouraged shippers from using the Thames River Line. It is difficult to secure boats unless of a specially constructed type as on the Connecticut river, of a draft that can navigate the Thames at all times. We enclose herewith a letter from the general manager of the Thames River Line, Inc., to the secretary of the Chamber of Commerce dated June 6th, 1924, which is the latest expression we have knowledge of as to the attitude of this line. The project contemplated is larger than the Thames River Line and with a service that inspires confidence in the shippers and receivers of merchandise the opportunity will be open and we believe accepted by other operators of freight carrying boats engaged in river and sound traffic.

3. We enclose, herewith, letter from Mr. Frank W. Browning, secretary of the Uncas Paperboard Company dated March 14, 1924, upon which we base our conclusions as to the necessity for this improvement from his corporation's viewpoint. We realize that this letter does not square with one you referred to from Mr. Eliers, the superintendent of this company but on calling the letter you referred to, to the attention of Mr. Smith, the president and controlling owner of the corporation, he disclaimed all knowledge of such a letter and stated to the secretary of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce that it did not correctly state the position of his corporation.

4. Our recollection of Mr. Dawley's testimony is that this lighterage charge is increasing each year and that it is becoming more and more difficult to secure charters from the Gulf ports where nearly all the yellow pine is loaded.

5 and 6. The letter from Mr. Lucius Briggs dated June 7th, 1924, on the general coal situation in this locality from the standpoint of the wholesale distribution is intended to be comprehensive and not merely the expression of one concern. $993,-989.99 was spent by the state alone in the last year in improving the highways of New London and Windham counties.

7. The credit of the government is such that it can borrow money at a lower rate than five per cent. It recently borrowed a large sum at two and three-quarters per cent. Letters are also enclosed from the president of The Eastern Connecticut Manufacturers' Association, dated May 3, 1923 and from The American Thermos Bottle Company, dated June 6, 1924. You have I believe already received a letter from Mr. Frank B. Ricketson, the agent of The Ponemah Company, at Taftville, four miles from the Norwich harbor, signed as president of the Norwich Manufacturers' Association. The latter letter is dated June 7th, 1924 and The Ponemah Company is one of the largest textile manufacturers in the world. Accompanying this statement you will please find a combination of the different industries all within reasonable trucking distance from Norwich docks and a further statement in part showing the coal and other freight both in and out which is handled annually by some of the local mills. The enclosed pamphlet entitled "Industrial Norwich" furnishes some idea of the extent and diversity of Norwich's industries.

The proposed improvement is larger than Norwich. Of the textile mills alone operating in the northern half of New London county and in Windham county raw cotton to the extent of 130,000 bales of 500 pounds to the bale is used annually, of raw wool and shoddy approximately 2,060,000 pounds. These mills use about 134,000 tons of bituminous coal per annum.

Carefully prepared figures collected from responsible sources, compiled for a twelve months period ending December 31, 1923 and published by a responsible corporation other than any of the commercial or trade organizations show that in Windham and New London counties alone the value of their manufactured product amounted in the year 1923 to $136,-393,967, that the bank clearings in that period amounted to $1,240,673,-938.

Norwich is the natural receiving and shipping point by boat for an area comparatively quite small but containing about 300,000 people engaged almost exclusively in manufacturing widely diversified products which have a country and in some instances a world wide market. Most of the raw material must come from distant points.

We believe that there is more than a local necessity and submit there is more than a local demand for the project.

Respectfully,
LUCIUS BRIGGS,
EDWIN W. HIGGINS,
H. M. LEROU,
Committee of The Norwich
Chamber of Commerce.

C. B. LEE WRITES OF FLORIDA CITY'S PROGRESS

Norwich friends of Charles B. Lee, of 23 Williams street, who is now in St. Petersburg, Florida, with his wife, have received letters from him which tell of interesting happenings in the southland.

One interesting item concerns a St. Petersburg paper which is given away free of charge every time it rains. Mr. Lee writes that he received two free copies in January. The owner of the paper is judged a real sportsman to take a chance on sunshine and give away his papers when it rains or there is a "Gray Day." However great this chance may be, it is noted that in 11½ years only 81 papers have been given away, an average of 5⅞ times a year.

Mr. Lee told of leaving New London on a cold night and of getting off the Everglades Special after turning on the electric fan and changing to Palm Beach suit, the temperature being 80 degrees. Roses, flame plants, and many flowers in bloom greeted the eye soon after arriving at St. Petersburg, quite a change over snow and ice in Norwich.

A novel way of keeping cool is mentioned by Mr. Lee, when he describes reading The Bulletin concerning the snow storm of last week and that Commissioner Donovan is working snow plows. He reads this item when he feels too warm and claims that it helps make him feel cool.

In another section of his leter Mr. Lee mentions work on the $50,000,000 improvement fund, being used in St. Petersburg on the Gulf of Mexico side. Central avenue, he writes, runs from Tampa Bay to the Gulf, a street seven miles long. The project calls for the building of 40 miles of streets, laying 80 miles of cement sidewalks and lighting 7 miles of highway for a white way. He also mentions Gandy bridge, constructed of cement and six miles long, the approaches being three miles at either end of the bridge, with a beautiful road leading to it, making 19 miles from center to center of St. Petersburg and Tampa. Thousands of autos use this highway daily as it shortens 51 miles of poor roads between the cities. Within a month of his present writing, according to Mr. Lee, they promise 11 miles of white way on Gandy bridge and its approaches.

The whole affair is in proportions undreamed of a few years ago and serves to show how fast St. Petersburg is coming along at the present time, among the cities of Florida.

FEEDING THE BIRDS IN WINTER SEASON

Now is the time to think of the birds and put out food to tide them over while their natural feeding places are snowed under, reads a plea for the birds issued by the Connecticut Humane society. Under the loose snow is a layer of ice coating, an earlier snow fall which makes it impossible for our little feathered friends to break through to their feeding grounds. There are many ways of helping birds in the winter. It is suggested that a feeding table may be easily attached to the sill just outside the window where crumbs may be spread. If there is any doubt about the success of trying to reach the birds in this way, there will be a surprise in store for those who try it. The birds have a way of finding out all about such places, and soon a friendly household will attract the neighborhood birds who will come regularly for meals. Some advocate attaching a piece of bacon or suet to the trees in winter to both feed and attract the birds. It seems to be generally known that the blue jays and the huskier birds are particularly found of certain kinds of nuts.

IN JAIL FOR DASTARDLY ATTACK ON GIRL

Ward Young, 25, of Lebanon, a paper mill employe, is in jail in this city to await trial in the superior court on the charge of making a dastardly attack upon Elsie Alice Demas, 14, of Lebanon, after he had induced her to get into his automobile Sunday night between 8 and 9 o'clock.

The frightened and abused girl did not appear at her home until after daylight Monday morning, having been hiding in the barn for two or three hours, she said, before she got up courage to leave the barn and go into the house. Here County Detective William Lewis and Constable George Hoxie after having made several trips to the house before she reached home and when they heard her story they arrested Young and took him before Justice of the Peace John Kenard of Lebanon. Probable cause was found and Young was bound over to the criminal superior court. He was unable to furnish bonds of $2,000 and was taken to the Norwich jail by Constable Hoxie.

The girl left her home about 8 o'clock Sunday evening to get some medicine and cigars for her brother at the store at Bozrah. When she had not returned by 10.30 o'clock her brother, Michael, started out to look for her, driving his motor truck. On a side road he came across a Maxwell touring car in which he saw his sister and recognized the car as belonging to Young. Demas gave chase after the touring car, which drove off in a hurry and Demas was distanced in the pursuit when his car ran into a ditch and broke a wheel. Demas then made his way to Young's home and found him there, but he denied knowing anything about the girl. Demas continued his search for his sister until 1 o'clock Monday morning when he called in Constable Hoxie and the latter got County Detective Lewis of this city to join him in the search for the girl. They made another trip to Young's house and this time he said he had left her in Bozrah.

Further search by the officers was fruitless until they went again to the girl's home and found her there. She said she had been hiding for two or three hours in the barn.

Telling the story of the attack, she said that as she was walking back home, Young drove past her in his machine several times and invited her to ride, taking her into his machine where he attacked her. After the chase by her brother's truck, she said, that Young drove off in a direction away from her home, put her out and left her to walk.

SENATE REJECTS FEDERAL CHILD LABOR AMENDMENT

Effectually Bars Ratification From This Session by Refusing to Reconsider Its Vote—The Connecticut Chamber of Commerce Has Issued a Legislature Manual Listing 481 Bills Out of About 2,000 Measures Presented—John J. Egan is to Act as Legislative Committee of the C. F. of L.

Hartford, Feb. 3—With but a single vote to the contrary the state senate today voted against ratification of the proposed federal constitutional amendment concerning child labor and in order that the matter may not come before it again the body refused to reconsider its vote. No matter what the house may do with the matter on February 11, Connecticut through act of the present general assembly cannot be placed on the affirmative side of ratification. The house may refer the matter to a committee in order that public hearings may be given on it in response to some public demand but, in the opinion of parliamentarians at the capitol, the amendment with a committee report attached to it may not be returned to the senate. The forecast is that the house will refuse to ratify, which would not be surprising as this state has many times refused to ratify federal constitutional amendments. In recent years it did not ratify the 16th amendment relating to the income tax nor the 18th amendment on prohibition but did ratify the 19th or equal rights and the 18th amendments.

In the senate today a full hour was taken over to discussion which was opened after two proposed amendments had been ruled out by Acting Lieutenant Governor Brainard and Senator Cronin, the republican leader, had made a negative motion which was "to refuse to ratify." In the gathering were many old-time legislators who afterwards expressed opinion that Senator Cronin had done the unusual thing in making a negative motion. It was, however, understood that a canvass had determined that no republican senator was likely to move "to ratify" and as the only parliamentary recourse, Mr. Cronin was to make the motion which if voted on would require a "yes" vote. Senator Tone, democrat, and the only member to vote for ratification, later made a motion "to ratify" and at once Senator Cronin withdrew his motion. When the roll call came each member in opposition to ratification simply voted "no."

The first day's session after the close of new business would have been brief had not the senate discussion lengthened it. The governor sent in three judgeship nominations, and both branches finished up reference introduced into the other branch on Friday. There were few committees of conference on disagreeing action needed.

Committee hearings got under way this afternoon but in the main the bills before each were of minor importance.

The New Haven county meeting received the county budget for two years and unlike most meetings instead of the members asking the commissioners who were present questions about this item and that, adjournment was taken until February 18 to permit a committee to look over the items.

It was said later that the commissionership contest mainly between members from the 12th and 14th senatorial districts was marking time and the delay on the budget gave more time. The budget estimated expenses for the next two years at $865,885 while the income in view is $395,853 leaving $470,000 to be raised among

ORGANIZATION TO COMBAT ATTEMPTS AT CENSORSHIP

New York, Feb. 3.—Organization of a body to carry on intensive warfare against all attempts at censorship of public prints, literature, motion pictures or any of the arts was announced today.

The new body, known as the National Council for the Protection of Literature and Arts, represents American authors, books, newspapers and periodicals, publishers, various organizations of artists, screen writers and motion picture producers. Its object, its platform says, will be to oppose censorship—all legislation—local, state or national—tending toward the political control of those influences in our national life that establish public opinion.

"At each successive meeting of legislative bodies" the platform adds, "we are faced with the threatening activities of professional reformers, who seek to impose upon the public restrictive legislation, empowering the right of specially appointed censors to limit that freedom guaranteed to all of us under the first amendment of the constitution.

"Ignoring the rights of others in their own individual opinion in art, literature, and religion, and failing to accept the established principle that there shall be freedom of expression, a certain well-organized minority have now reached the point where their activities seriously threaten the constitutional guarantees of our government."

It was only through the wisdom of legislators and the liberality of the courts, the council's platform maintains, that there was saved to this and other generations such literary works as Payne's edition of "The Arabian Nights," Fielding's novels, the work of Rabelais, Ovid's "Art of Love," the works of Boccaccio, "The Heptameron of Margaret of Navarre," Rousseau's "Confessions," the works of Shakespeare, Chaucer and Laurence Sterne and "Tales From the Arabic."

Books the platform adds, were challenged and recommended for suppression because of assertions that certain of their passages, judged by the standards of the day when they were attacked, were immortal.

DIPHTHERIA EPIDEMIC IN NOME UNDER CONTROL

Seattle, Wash., Feb. 3.—A diphtheria epidemic in Nome, Alaska, was under control today, 29 cases having been treated with a portion of 300,000 units of anti-toxin, which arrived yesterday from Nenana, Dr. Curtiss Welch, acting assistant surgeon at Nome, telegraphed Dr. G. M. Magruder, in charge of the thirteenth district, United States health service, Seattle.

A million units of anti-toxin, to supplement 1,100,000 units shipped from here Saturday on the steamship Alaska, are to be sent tomorrow to Nome via Seward and Nenana on the steamship Admiral Watson. Part of the shipment now en route to Nenana is to be sent to Nome by airplane. Dr. Magruder said 500,000 units are to be placed aboard the plane and the remainder on dog teams.

"I am not worried about the situation," Dr. Welch's message said. "I have used 30,000 units of anti-toxin. There are 29 typical cases, 35 suspects and five deaths to date. Send no nurses. There are four in the hospital here and five others who can be called in for emergency service."

LEVIATHAN IN BOSTON HARBOR TO BE DRYDOCKED

Boston, Feb. 3.—The Leviathan, the largest of American steamships, arrived in outer Boston harbor tonight and will go to New York to be drydocked. An extensive overhauling programme which has been in progress for six months will be completed. Two of the huge propellers will be replaced, one being the last of those originally installed in Germany 13 years ago. It will be the sixth time the ship enters the big drydock in South Boston. According to plans, the Leviathan will sail from Boston February 19 to re-enter the trans-Atlantic service from New York February 21.

FAVORABLE FOR GERMAN COMMERCIAL TREATY

Washington, Feb. 3.—The German commercial treaty was favorably reported today by the senate foreign relations committee with reservations approved by the state department, which fail, however, to remove the objection which has prevented ratification of the convention for more than a year.

Under the reservations, the state department's policy against discrimination in favor of American shipping would remain in full force for at least a year, but thereafter it could be changed upon ninety days' notice to Germany.

After the committee had acted, Chairman Borah said the reservations left the matter of policy with congress, but opponents of the treaty made it plain they would launch a fight in the senate for a specific statement that the determination of future policy should rest with congress and not with the executive department.

Members of the committee disclosed that when Secretaries Hughes and Hoover appeared yesterday to urge ratification three sets of reservations were proposed; the one reported today, another leaving the declaration of policy to congress, and the third embodying the favored nation clause of some existing treaties.

Besides the reservations with respect to the merchant marine, the committee approved another under which the treaty could not be construed to affect existing statutes of either country in relation to the immigration of aliens or the right of either to enact such statutes. This reservation was made necessary, it was explained, by the enactment of the permanent immigration restriction law since the negotiation of the treaty in 1923.

HEROIC RESCUES BY FIREMEN IN NEW YORK

New York, Feb. 3.—A Fifth avenue shopping crowd this afternoon watched firemen climb five stories to rescue six hysterical women marooned on window ledges of a building at 56th street filled with smoke from a basement fire.

The women, employes of a dressmaking establishment, were treated for shock at an emergency hospital established on the sidewalk before St. Patrick's Cathedral, just across the avenue. Police reserves were called to handle the crowds. Two firemen were overcome by smoke. The loss was estimated at $25,000.

MORE ANTI-TOXIN IS BADLY NEEDED IN NOME

San Francisco, Feb. 3—More diphtheria anti-toxin is badly needed in Nome if the epidemic there is to be prevented from spreading along the Alaska Peninsula, according to a cable message received by American Red Cross headquarters here today from Charles W. Thornton, head of the Nome Red Cross chapter.

Thornton said that the 300,000 anti-toxin units taken into the little Alaska City yesterday by dog team would only take care of the emergency in Nome.

"Make sure that a larger supply reaches Nome at the earliest possible moment," Thornton said in his cablegram. "The present supply will cover only our immediate needs."

AMUNDSEN TO ATTEMPT FLIGHT TO NORTH POLE

New York, Feb. 3—Captain Roald Amundsen, discoverer of the South Pole, sailed today on the steamship Muenchen for Norway where he will complete preparations for his attempt to cross the icy wastes from Spitzenberger to the North Pole by airplane.

Two airplanes specially built in Italy and manned by six men, will be used in the effort to traverse the 750 miles between the Norwegian town and the polar regions. The expedition is to be equipped with the latest scientific instruments with which observations will be made when the goal is reached.

If no suitable landing place is found at the pole, the explorers will return without attempting a landing

FAIL TO DRILL HOLE TO SAVE IMPRISONED MAN

Cave City, Ky., Feb. 3.—Experienced drillers from the Kentucky Asphalt company plant at Kyroe, Ky., tonight began an attempt to sink a hole directly through the hillside at a point estimated to be above where Floyd Collins has been imprisoned in a narrow passage for four days.

Soundings made in the vicinity have convinced the drillers that there is a cavern between the surface and where Collins is lying. The possibility of reaching the victim through such a shaft previously had been discounted, cave experts expressing fear that the jarring would cause the narrow passageway to collapse.

The drillers gave up the attempt to open a new passage when it was found that the vibrations would dislodge huge rocks above Collins and crush him to death.

Rescuers then resumed their tedious work of trying to enlarge the passageway.

COLLINS HAS HAD HOBBY FOR EXPLORING CAVES

Cave City, Ky., Feb. 3.—(By the A. P.)—"A kind of feeling in the blood—like the thrill that Columbus got when he discovered America" comes with the exploration of underground caverns where men have never been before, Lee Collins, 65 years old, father of Floyd Collins, who has been imprisoned more than 100 hours in Sand Cave near here, declared today.

"I can understand what made my boy get in such a fix because I have been in many tight squeezes myself," the elder Collins said. "Floyd has been exploring caves all his life and I believe he will come out of this one. He'll manage to get out, just like he did once before when he was caught in Crystal cave."

The elder Collins was a cave explorer for more than 40 years and is one of the most faithful watchers at the mouth of Sand cave.

"I have lived in this part of the country 40 years and when I first moved here I dug a hole on my farm where I though a cave would be found. My wife, Martha Jane, told me to give it up because she was afraid I would get hurt. I quit digging.

"In 1917, I set a ground hog trap at the same place and when I went back it was gone. That boy Floyd of mine got busy and started digging in the sinkhole for the trap and the first thing you know he discovered Crystal cave.

"Ever since that time we have been running Crystal cave and that is the reason Floyd was trying to discover another cave here.

"There is a kind of a feeling in the blood that gets into a fellow when he is discovering things in a cave. It makes him go anywhere. It must be the thrill that Columbus felt when he discovered America."

STORRS FILLS QUOTA FOR A NEW CHURCH PLANT

Hartford, Feb. 3.—Storrs is the first community in the state to subscribe its quota in the state campaign to raise $300,000 for a new church plant and community house to serve the students, faculty members and their families and employes at the Connecticut agricultural college, Rev. Morris E. Alling, director of the campaign and acting pastor of the Storrs church announced tonight.

Storrs set out to raise $5,000 and has already raised $8,500 with twenty additional pledges yet to be tallied, which will probably increase the community's total by several hundred dollars. President Charles L. Beach gave $1,000 on condition that the community gave an additional $4,000.

"This showing of Storrs is an indication of the degree of interest the community has in the Storrs church and community house project," said Mr. Alling. "The people of the community have responded very generously."

MANY RAIDS OVER "BOOTLEG TRAIL" IN NEW YORK STATE

Plattsburgh, N. Y., Feb. 3.—A band of federal prohibition agents, 55 in all, led by Division Chief R. Q. Merrick, of New York, today swept over the "bootleg trail," from Albany to Plattsburgh, arresting 19 men charged with violations of the dry law and confiscating liquor and alcohol estimated to be worth more than $50,000. Arrests were made in Glens Falls, Chestertown, Ticonderoga, Elizabethtown and Plattsburgh.

LAMAR ADJUDGED IN CONTEMPT OF COURT

Pittsfield, Mass., Feb. 3—David Lamar, Wall street operator, had been adjudged in contempt of court by Judge Arthur M. Robinson of the probate court here for failure to pay a stipulated allowance to his wife, Mrs. Marie Lamar, while she is living apart from him. Mrs. Lamar was granted a divorce from her husband here on the ground of desertion but the final decree has been delayed at the request of Lamar that he might be heard.

STEAMER LOST PROPELLER; HELPLESS IN ROUGH SEA

Norfolk, Va., Feb. 3.—An SOS message from the American steamship Delecto, picked up here tonight, reported the steamer had lost her propeller and was helpless in a rough sea about 100 miles off Diamond Shoals. The coast guard cutter Gresham was dispatched immediately to the assistance of the craft but cannot reach her before morning.

JEAN ACKER VALENTINO REGAINS CITIZENSHIP

Drafting Postal Salary Rate Bill

House Committee Planning to Bring It to a Vote Before the End of the Week.

Washington, Feb. 3.—By a vote of 225 to 153, the house today sent back to the senate the postal pay and rate increase bill on the ground that the measure infringed on its exclusive right to originate revenue legislation.

The house postoffice committee immediately set out to draft a salary rate bill of its own, with republican leaders planning to bring it to a vote before the end of the week if agreement can be obtained as to its provisions.

The committee went into executive session today with members predicting that a measure similar in its main provisions to the senate bill, as it was reported from committee, would receive approval. In this event, leaders are pledged to give it right of way under a rule limiting debate and shutting off amendments from the floor.

Joining with Chairman Green of the ways and means committee, and Representative Merritt, the democratic leader, in urging passage of the passage of the resolution which returned the postal bill to the senate, Representative Longworth, the republican leader, said such action would pave the way for final action at this session on a salary and rate measure. He declared he favored bringing a bill to a house vote, but insisted it would have to provide more revenue than it was estimated the senate bill would raise.

"There's no use passing a bill," he told the house, "that the president won't sign."

At the White House, it was made known that President Coolidge felt that rate provisions of the senate bill would yield insufficient revenue and was looking to the house to take care of this angle of the problem. The bill used by the house postoffice committee as a basis for its deliberations carries the same pay increases as proposed in the bill vetoed last year by the president, with the rate provisions drafted in accordance with recommendations of the postoffice department.

When word was conveyed to the senate that the house had declined to accept the postal bill, Senator Moses, republican, New Hampshire, presiding, referred the proposal back to the postoffice committee. There, it was predicted, the measure will remain, although there was some talk of an effort to put it through the senate minus its rates provisions, leaving it to the house to insert them.

Party lines in the house were broken in the roll call vote on the resolution to turn back the senate bill, even the Wisconsin delegation, which usually votes solidly, splitting on this issue.

LIQUOR VALUED AT $270,000 POURED INTO DANBURY SEWER

Danbury, Feb. 3.—Contraband liquor valued at $270,000 found its way into Long Island sound today after it had been poured into a sewer here. The liquor was seized by state policemen in a raid on a farm on the outskirts of this city a week ago Friday and has remained unclaimed under guard in a warehouse here since then. It was destroyed today upon court order.

State policemen were at work three hours in disposing of the liquor and at times the street, in a residential section, was red with whiskey as barrel after barrel, valued at $1,500 each, was opened. There were 150 fifty-gallon barrels and 328 cases of liquor in the seizure, making a total of 35,736 quarts poured into the sewer today. Samples were taken from each barrel and were bottled, sealed, labeled and carried away by the officers as evidence.

A large crowd gathered to witness the disposal of the liquor.

CONVICTION OF DIAMOND BROTHERS AFFIRMED

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 3.—Conviction of Joseph and Morris Diamond, brothers, and Joseph Farini, for the murder in November, 1923, of two bank messengers in Brooklyn, was affirmed today by the court of appeals. A new trial was ordered for Anthony Pantano, charged with being implicated in the same crime, on the grounds that doubt remained as to whether his confession had been wrung from him by threats of violence on the part of the police. All four were convicted of first degree murder.

The appeal in the case of the Diamond brothers was based upon an alleged general prejudicial atmosphere in the court room at the time of their trial. Relatives of the brothers, who were ordered from the court by James C. Cropsey, presiding justice, contended that his action indicated prejudice against the defendants.

WORLD COURT RESOLUTION DEBATED IN THE HOUSE

Washington, Feb. 3.—The attention of the house was directed twice today to the foreign affairs of the nation, with the approval by the foreign affairs committee of a resolution favoring adherence to the world court; a discussion [illegible] on the floor by Representative Burton, of Ohio, a republican member of the committee, and Representative Wingo, of Arkansas, and Representative Connally, of Texas, both democrats.

SEC'Y WEEKS TO ASK GEN. MITCHELL EXPLAIN

Washington, Feb. 3—Brigadier General William Mitchell, who has become the stormy petrel of a row among army and navy officers over the relative importance of aircraft in warfare, must explain to Secretary Weeks some of his reported statements about the prowess of the airplane.

The secretary revealed today until an explanation is received, he will defer decision on the reappointment of General Mitchell as assistant chief of the army air service. If the decision is against reappointment, the officer will lose his temporary rank as a brigadier general and revert to the grade of Colonel. His term at his present post expires March 26.

Mr. Weeks would not go into detail about the statements of General Mitchell. He wants to have explained, but it was indicated that the war department's chief concern was not so much directed to expressions of personal opinion, as to what the general has been quoted as saying in relating supposed facts to a house committee.

Something of a stir was created by the general a few days ago when he declared that recent air bombing experiments had so badly jarred a battleship a mile and a half away from the explosion that she had to limp into port. Secretary Wilbur promptly presented the committee a statement by the commander of the ship in question flatly denying the story.

Later General Mitchell told the committee that officers were afraid to tell the real truth about the efficiency of aircraft and that officers who gave testimony contrary to the views of superiors were likely to be disciplined, "indirectly." He was appearing in ation of a unified air service, a measfavor of the Curry bill proposing creasure opposed by both Secretary Weeks and Secretary Wilbur.

DECLARE LIQUOR LAW PENALTIES INADEQUATE

Washington, Feb. 3.—Federal penalties for prohibition violations are inadequate, a sub-committee of the house committee on alcoholic liquor traffic declared in a preliminary report today of its investigation into the subject.

Views were sought by mail from governors, attorneys general, United States attorneys, district judges and county prosecuting officers regulating to the sources of liquor supply, means of enforcement and court conditions and penalties.

Ten states have laws carrying heavier penalties than the Volstead act, Representative Hudson, republican, Michigan, a member of the committee declared. Dissatisfaction is caused in these states, he said, because "a state court is often obliged to impose a penitentiary sentence where a federal court would impose a fine.

An additional report will be made covering the course of liquor supply.

REPARATIONS ARGUMENT AN EXECUTIVE PREROGATIVE

Senate Was So Informed Yesterday by Secretary of State Hughes With the Approval of President Coolidge—Informed the Senate That Negotiations Were Conducted Under a Long Recognized Authority of the Executive to Deal With Settlements of Claims of the United States and Its Nationals.

Washington, Feb. 3.—The senate was informed today by Secretary Hughes with the approval of President Coolidge that the much discussed Paris reparations argument was negotiated under a long recognized authority of the executive to deal with the settlement of claims of the United States and its nationals.

Responding to a resolution sponsored by the senate irreconcilables in the Versailles treaty fight, the retiring secretary of state took no cognizance of their informal request for information as to whether at any time during the conversations or negotiations at Paris the incoming secretary of state, Ambassador Kellogg, proposed any reservations to the agreement.

Likewise he gave no details regarding negotiations, but did he state that American representatives abroad were directed to participate in the conference because "it was important that the payments expected under the Dawes plan should not be distributed without appropriate recognition of the claims of the United States and its participation in these payments."

Specifically the senate, in a resolution proposed by Senator Johnson, republican, California, and modified by Senator Pepper, Pennsylvania, asked for "such information regarding circumstances surrounding the negotiations and execution of the agreement as may be revelant to a full understanding of its terms."

Senator Johnson read the secretary's letter immediately after it had been received by the senate with a formal covering letter from President Coolidge and a copy of the text of the agreement itself. He offered no comment, nor did the other irreconcilables make any statement in advance of a study of the document, which referred in the usual course to the foreign relations committee.

HOUSE CONCURS IN SENATE DISARMAMENT AMENDMENT

Washington, Feb. 3.—The house concurred late today in the senate disarmament to the navy appropriation bill but insisted on a slight modification of its language.

The amendment, originally proposed by Senator King, democrat, Utah, was changed to read that the president be "requested," to invite other nations into conference for discussion of further limitation of land and sea armaments, instead of "authorized and requested."

This alteration, made at the suggestion of Representative French, republican, Idaho, in charge of the bill, prevented complete adoption by the house of the conference report already approved by the senate. Senate concurrence on the modified provision is necessary before the bill can go to the president.

The house accepted the armament section by a viva voca vote, Representative Byrnes, democrat, South Carolina, author of a similar rider attached to last year's navy bill, joining Mr. French in urging the modification.

Prior to this action the house accepted a number of senate amendments to the bill, among them one appropriating $180,000 for a submarine base extension at Key West, Fla.; $20,000 for improvement to building 138 at the Portsmouth, N. H., navy yard; another alloting $751,000 for additional naval or marine corps officer while on leave of absence from receiving pay or allowances for a period in excess of that for which he is entitled to full pay unless the president otherwise directs.

If they are a failure, Teachers college will inform the strap-hanger who pours over the puzzles on his way to and from business that his efforts are a sheer waste of time and brain power; that solving cross word puzzles will never develop his mentality, and that he had better give them up and pay more attention to business.

NEW HAVEN ROAD SUIT AGAINST PULLMAN CO.

New Haven, Feb. 3.—That there has been a gradual change in the trend of thought and opinion as to the attitude of the public of the United States to trusts and combinations was the opinion expressed in the United States district court here today by Attorney George D. Watrous in his argument for the New Haven railroad in the $500,000 suit against the Pullman Company, of Chicago. The hearing before the court was on motion by the Pullman Company to dismiss the suit. Judge Thomas reserved his decision.

The attitude of the government towards trusts and combines, Attorney Watrous said, is not the same today, under the recent attorney-generals, as it was in the days of Attorney-Generals Wickersham and Bonaparte.

Attorney Arthur W. Marsh, of Bridgeport, representing the Pullman Company, took issue with opposing counsel, declaring that the Sherman anti-trust law in just as much in affect today as it was when it was enacted years ago.

"If it means anything," he declared. "it means that the very control of the New Haven road of the Boston and Maine Central railroads from 1914 to 1922 was illegal from start to finish."

The suit was brought by the New Haven railroad when the Pullman company, which had signed a twenty years contract with the New Haven road, declined to extend the service to the Boston and Maine Central under the same terms when the latter railroads were taken over by the New Haven. It was claimed by the New Haven road that the two other lines were a part of the New Haven system but the Pullman company countered with the cifaim that the contract called for the New Haven road lines only.

GREECE MAY PROTEST TO THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS

Geneva, Feb. 3.—(By The A. P.)—M. Dendramis, Grecian delegate to the League of Nations, declared today that unless the Angora government agreed to submit the controversy over the expulsion from Constantinople of Patriarch Constantinos to adjudication by the world court of justice, Greece was certain to appeal to the League of Nations for action under the provisions of the covenant.

M. Dendramis insisted that the mixed commission which supervises the exchange of populations between Greece and Turkey did not vite for the deportation of the patriarch but merely had decided six to four that technically Constantinos was exchangeable.

The Greek commission, however, M. Dendramis asserted, refused to provide the necessary passports to the patriarch, thus telling Turkey that Constantinos should be allowed to remain in Constantinople.

M. Dendramis alleged that in deporting Constantinos Turkey was violating the Lausane garement to kep the patriarchate as an institution. Because the patriarch is elected by the Holy Synod of the Greek church for life, and that while the present patriarch lives the institution as such is attacked by Turkey.

WILLIMANTIC

NORWICH BULLETIN
Willimantic Office, 771 Main Street
Telephone 1121
Office Hours: 9:30 to 12 m.; 1:30 to 6 p. m.

Frederick R. Noble, principal of Windham Street Model school, was the speaker at the weekly meeting and luncheon of the Willimantic Rotary club held in the Y. M. C. A. on Tuesday noon. His subject, Changing Ideas of Education was discussed from every angle in a most interesting manner. He outlined the changes which school plans are steadily undergoing, mainly due to new economic and social conditions brought about by the World war. Teachers of the present are endeavoring to have the school curriculum harmonize with the child, rather than have the child fit with a difficult program. Where once the child was made to cut an intelligent figure in his seat, the seat is being made to fit the child mentally and materially.

The life history of John R. Pickett, as given by that individual, was another feature of the meeting. The speaker sketched his boyhood days in colorful words and told of his experiences as a member of the famous Thread City Quartet and his career as a theatre manager.

The meeting next week will be held jointly with the Exchange club, when that body will entertain the Rotarians at the Congregational church house. The week following Albert B. Smith will tell the secrets of his life. Dr. R. Bullock Jones distributed song books which he had arranged and the members started rehearsing several of the numbers. President Harry W. Standish designated Professor Richard E. Dodge and James P. Mustard as representatives from the club to assist Mayor Hickey in arranging a Boys 'Week program for the last week in April.

At St. Joseph's church Tuesday morning, Miss Laura Armes and Leroy Robarge were united in marriage by the pastor, Rev. Henry Quinn, who also sang the nuptial high mass. Her maid of honor was attired in lemon-colored georgette trimmed with silver lace. She carried carnations. Going away, the bride wore a gown of black silk. A breakfast was served at the home of the bride, 112 Jackson street, to a large number of friends and relatives. Mr. and Mrs. Robarge are in Providence and vicinity. Upon returning here they will make their home at 31 North street.

Over one hundred and fifty public spirited men will co-operate in putting over the plan for a new and modern hotel in Willimantic. The executive committee has agreed to dispose of 50 per cent of the total stock issue. The other half is to be sold by the sales groups, headed by General Sales Manager James B. Fullerton. There are 12 groups subdivided into other bodies. The managers of the groups are: Group No. 1, P. D. Donohue; No. 2, Harry S. Goucher; No. 3, J. E. Sullivan; No. 4, Otto B. Robinson; No. 5, J. P. Mustard; No. 6, Walter R. King; No. 7, Louis H. Arnold; No. 8, Raymond A. Parker; No. 9, Joseph B. Riordan; No. 10, Raymond C. Comins; No. 11, Albert J. Piche; No. 12, Dixon VanZandt. It is planned to have the work of organization completed by Monday, Feb. 9.

Public notice has been given that in the future the state armory will not be available as a court for basketball games by independent teams unless the games are played under the auspices of the local military company. Further than this the state armory board has made a ruling that the company must receive at least 50 and as high as 75 per cent of the gross box office receipts. Promoters naturally consider this amount out of practical figures. None would care to play a game on that basis and in a sense the armory becomes eliminated as a possible basketball court.

A smoker and chowder followed the regular weekly drill of Company C, 169th Infantry, Connecticut National Guard. The bi-monthly meeting of Willimantic Woman's club was held at the club rooms on Main street Monday afternoon with a very good attendance. An afternoon with the Drama, with Mrs. Edna C. Tryon as chairman, was delightfully given by the State Players from Connecticut Agricultural college under the direction of Prof. H. A. Seckerson of the English department of the college. The play was a tragedy of sea life in one act. The cast included Mr. Seckerson, Irene Ellis, Rudolph Bilipp, Phyllis Smith and Martin O'Neil. The play itself, from the standpoint of art is an almost perfect bit of tragedy. The audience paid the tribute of almost unbroken silence from the moment the curtains parted.

Following the play Mr. Seckerson spoke briefly of the life of the playwright and the things for which the players are being increasingly known around the state.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE HAS LIVELY MEETING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, Feb. 3.—Based on attendance, the February meeting of the Chamber of Commerce held here Tuesday evening was one of the most successful of the season. About 90 members enjoyed a fine chicken pie supper served preliminary to the business meeting and the social hour. President James P. Bath presided at the business session. Secretary Channing H. Morrill read the minutes of the previous meeting. Announcement was made that as the result of a campaign among the members a radio set had been installed by the chamber in the home of Dewey A. Griggs, a hopeless cripple. Dixon VanZandt stated that in March Frank Riley is to give a talk at the Congregational church house under the auspices of the Brotherhood, the proceeds to be applied to the church redecorating fund. The speakers for the evening were led by John C. Loomis, president of the New Britain Chamber of Commerce. He was followed by Henry T. Burr of New Britain, a former local man, who entertained with humorous anecdotes. The last speaker on the list, T. H. Keltner, in charge of the local hotel movement, predicted that within 30 days Willimantic will have financed a new hotel, and he urged the co-operation of every loyal citizen. The talks were of an informal nature. Adjournment was taken at 8.20 o'clock.

REV. A. A. GATES RESIGNS AS PASTOR AT HAMPTON

Parishioners of the Hampton Congregational church were surprised Sunday when Rev. William M. Brown of Windham, who had charge of the services, read the resignation of the pastro, Rev. A. Avery Gates, to take effect the last day of April. No reasons for this step were given and Rev. Mr. Gates did not make any announcement as to his plans. He was absent from the pulpit Sunday. Mr. Gates served his congregation in a most successful manner and assisted in bringing about many notable improvements on the property of the church. Mrs. Frederick W. Davis and Mrs. James L. Goodwin, both of Hartford, donated a marble baptismal font. Two flags, the national flag and the Christian flag, both of grosgrain silk and gold bullion, were placed upon the platform; a memorial organ with electric motor, given in memory of several people, was installed; two memorial windows, The Good Shepherd and Christ Blessing Little Children, were donated and unveiled by Mrs. Miranda C. Robinson of Hudson, N. Y.; the parish house was painted outside and redecorated and remodeled inside; the parsonage was repaired and repainted; the horse sheds were reconditioned as well as the parsonage barn, at a total cost of $400. A local paper was published monthly and sent out to farmers of Hampton; Judge Ray P. Fuller organized a choir three years ago; Sunday school exercises were added to the day's program and during the summer months open air services were conducted. Rev. Mr. Gates was superintendent of the church school for two years. During two summers he filled the pulpit fo the Howard Valley Baptist church, also supplying for the Scotland Congregational church for three months. He was a president of the Windham County Religious Education Council for two years and for that same period had charge of the program of the Ministers' union of Willimantic and vicinity. He has been a lecturer of the local grange and had lectured before clubs and church gatherings at various points in the county.

TOWN TAX IS LOWERED TO 12 MILLS, FROM 13

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, Feb. 3.—A handful of taxpayers of the town of Windham voted to lower the 13 mill tax on the grand list to 12 mills, at a meeting held in the town building Tuesday evening. There were about 50 present. First Selectman Russell A. Andrews was moderator and Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton secretary. The 13 mill tax has been retained since 1922 and it was recommended again by a number who were interested in lowering the town indebtedness. Lyman Maine moved for a 13 mill tax but an amendment for 12 mills as offered by John Regan was adopted by verbal vote. Eugene J. Randall appeared as another champion for the 13 mills, naming that amount as the only logical course to follow.

The tax as voted will not approximately $204,200. The budget is a shade under $300,000, leaving about $90,000 to be raised from the various sources of income. With all expenses paid and a sum applied toward paying off the $100,000 debt due on Oct. 1, 1925, there will be little if any balance in the treasury. Shaving off one mill from the tax rate lessens the tax receipts by $17,000. Of this amount the man assessed at $10,000 or under benefits by a total of $3,000. Large taxpayers such as owners of business blocks and the manufacturing concerns retain the remaining $14,000. It is thus shown that while the average taxpayer will pay about $2.50 less, the larger corporations will have their taxes decreased by amounts as high as $5,000. It was voted to make the tax payable on the 31st day of March.

COLUMBIA

Benny Kozen, 6, Thursday left the Old Hop River schoolhouse with two other boys for his home. After a while the other boys left Benny and returned to the schoolhouse, so he wandered along the road and among the bushes and finally lost his way. Becoming tired, he said that he took off his sheepskin-lined coat, making a pillow of it and, lying down, went to sleep. Meanwhile, as he had not returned to his home, searching parties were sent out looking for him. A party of 15 men had been collected on the Green to look for the child when at 8.30 p. m. word was received that he had been found asleep in Green's swamp. The following day he appeared to be well and none the worse for his escapade.

William M. Wolff, president of the Columbia Dramatic club; Raymond E. Clarke, vice president, and Mrs. Ethel F. Blakeley attended as a committee of the club a meeting in Willimantic of representatives of the dramatic clubs of neighboring towns to form a temporary organization of the Dramatic League of Eastern Connecticut. Raymond E. Clarke was chosen treasurer of the league, which has for its object that each of the eight clubs forming the league present their plays in all of the other towns, thus securing frequent performances and new plays in each town.

Friday evening, although the traveling on and about the Green was dangerously slippery, the Christian Endeavor gave one of the best entertainments of the season at Yeomans hall, which was greatly appreciated by a good sized audience. The entertainment consisted of vocal and instrumental music, a play and individual presentations. Prof. A. E. Lyman and his orchestra, with Mrs. F. A. Abel at the piano, furnished popular music, Mrs. Abel playing a fine piano solo. In the play, The Real Thing, John Demesko as the proprietor of an employment agency; Mrs. Ethel F. Blakeley, a cook seeking employment, and Mrs. William Wolff, a lady wanting a cook, acted with much ability. A character sketch, Abe Goldstein in Against Peace and Propriety, was given by Clayton Hunt; a monologue by Miss Ruth Wilson, vocal solos by Misses Lila Seeley and Helen Field, a vocal duet by Mrs. Clayton Hunt and Miss Lila Seeley, also humorous selections by the orchestra, followed by dancing, concluded a very delightful entertainment. Candy was on sale. The proceeds of the entertainment are to be devoted by the society to the refurnishing of the chapel.

Saturday William Bertsch visited Mrs. Bertsch at the Norwich tuberculosis sanatorium, where she has been a patient for some time. He states that her condition is satisfactory, but that she was not so well during the past week as during the preceding weeks that she had been in the sanatorium.

A well patronized dance given by Bert Green was held at Utley's hall Saturday evening. A large number of the patrons came from Willimantic and other towns. It is intended to hold another dance in two weeks.

Miss Madeline Holmes was operated on for appendicitis Friday and is doing well, her physicians saying that she is now out of danger.

The car which Charles Palmer of Chestnut Hill, accompanied by A. A. Latham, was driving on Sunday afternoon, skidded on the icy road when near Katzman's filling station and ran into a fence. Neither was hurt, the fence was soon repaired and the car was damaged only a little.

Rev. Mr. Stark, a student at Hartford Theological seminary, preached at the Sunday morning service on Faith. The Christian Endeavor service in the evening was led by Miss Elizabeth Bertsch, the topic being Christian Endeavor Being an Expression of Friendliness.

Many of the roads in town have been so completely coated with ice as to make traveling very difficult, if not absolutely dangerous, for the past few days. Few persons have ventured far from home as it was almost impossible to get safely from the house to the road, where the ice had been somewhat broken up by the very few vehicles that found it necessary to travel. Sunday conditions began to improve somewhat.

MANSFIELD CENTER

Rev. T. Hawthorne Jones preached at the Center and Spring Hill church Sunday morning, Mrs. Jones being unable to attend. His subject here was Spiritual Failures. A letter was granted from the First Congregational church of Mansfield to Miss Mildred L. Stone to the church at Abington. The Christian Endeavor meeting here was led by Miss Lois Cole.

The postponed meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society is to be held this (Wednesday) afternoon, if conditions permit, at the parsonage with Rev. Mrs. Jones.

The mid-week prayer meeting is to be held at the church this (Wednesday evening, with Deacon H. S. Brown as leader, and will be followed by the entertainment by the South Willington minstrels.

The community gathering last week Wednesday evening was arranged by the men of the community, with R. E. Stearns chairman. The prayer meeting was led by G. S. Little. The social hour was opened with a tenor solo by James Martin, of East Hartford. Games were directed by Harold James and R. L. Hahn. An oyster stew was served by T. B. Wilcox, R. E. Stearns and E. B. Inman. The closing number was a group of songs by Mrs. R. L. Hahn and Mr. Martin. Next week's program is to be in charge of Jesse Inman and will be a Valentine party.

4 Forms

They mean convenience, safety and a joyful pocketbook

When your grandmother used Ivory Soap for her face and hands and laundry and dishes, she bought it in the big size you still see on your grocer's shelves.

But you are even more fortunate. Ivory is just as pure as it was forty-five years ago—its quality couldn't be improved. But today you can get it in four different forms, each with its special convenience for certain special purposes.

HERE is the dainty new cake of Guest Ivory, all dressed up in its fresh, blue wrapper, that nestles into slim feminine fingers just as if it was made for them—which it was! Think of having as fine a soap as can be made, to protect your precious complexion, for only five cents!

Guest IVORY

THE special task of Ivory Flakes is cleaning and protecting fragile silks and fluffy woolens. But it will make a delicously sudsy bath, or a rich lathery shampoo, or a panful of beautiful suds for quick dishwashing—oh, it does scores of things.

Ivory FLAKES

THEN we have the medium-sized cake of Ivory, often called the bath-size, because it bobs up like a cheerful disposition in millions of bathtubs everywhere, saving time and tempers and keeping a whole nation clean, from Mother and Dad down to the last and tiniest baby.

Bath IVORY

FINALLY, here is the old familiar BIG cake—the "head" of the Ivory Family. Its special province is the laundry tub, where it gently but thoroughly does the family washing and leaves everything snowy-white and sweet-smelling as a clover-field. It does a lot of work in the kitchen, too.

Laundry IVORY

NOW—is there any purpose in the world which deserves a good soap, which Ivory in one of its forms won't fit? Not one we can think of. And what happens when you use Ivory for everything? You never again will be embarrassed by "laundry and dishpan hands." Everything you wash will be safe. Your baths will be exquisite luxuries. Your skin will be lovely and soft.

And your pocketbook will be so grateful that it will fairly jingle with joy. Will you adopt the Ivory Family?

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

The passing of the so-called kiddie cars on the local branch of the N. Y. N. H. and H. R. R. through Danielson is forecasted through the announcement that express messenger service is to be restored on trains No. 710 and No. 719 which trains respectively are due here at 9.39 a. m. northbound and at about 2.00 p. m., southbound. It was noted that the trains ran Monday and again Tuesday, but little was thought of this as significant, the runs of the little cars have been so irregular, until it was stated during the afternoon that express company representatives here had been notified that the express messenger service on the trains mentioned was to be restored.

The loss of the express on days when the small cars ran was made the basis of a protest to the railroad company by the Danielson Chamber of Commerce because it was felt that the loss of this express service was detrimental to Danielson and its business and manufacturing interests. The likely was a consideration with the railroad on its decision to restore the service and through the restoration of this service the train service is automatically restored, for the small cars have no provision for handling express matter.

For a number of weeks the little cars driven by a gasoline engine, have run a [illegible] but not at all regularly [illegible] They have altered [illegible] runs upon no apparent [illegible] schedule and one never knew [illegible] whether to expect a [illegible] especially on the [illegible] trip in the morning.

The freezing [illegible] of Monday night added a new [illegible] to the icy surfaces of highways [illegible] much of the good achieved [illegible] the thawing weather of Saturday [illegible] Sunday.

Forward looking citizens are giving consideration to a need of the future for Danielson—more building lots in desirable areas. The available house lots in the borough are few in number just now. It may be necessary in the not distant future to open more new streets. This was forecasted in the recent action of the town in accepting the layout of L'Homme street, leading eastward from Broad near the head of Cottage street. Much of the land east of Broad street would make good locations for residential sections if opened up and developed, and that is likely to happen more quickly than many imagine.

Reminders that St. Valentine's day is just ahead are seen in favors and tokens that are being brought out for that date.

In the spring work of completing the grading of the area fronting the graded school on School street will be undertaken. A considerable amount of this project was accomplished during the late fall and early winter period.

John A. Esch of New Bedford was in Danielson Tuesday on a business trip.

Amateur photographers hereabouts find interest in comparing the pictures they obtained of the recent total eclipse. Some of the pictures obtained were surprisingly good.

Tuesday evening the choir of St. Alban's church attended a dinner served in the choir room of the church.

To date this winter the town has not become very heavily involved for snow removal, though this account in some years has run as high as $5,000.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Gallup are to leave Thursday for a trip to California.

Probably to demonstrate what a wonderful weather prophet the ground hog is, the temperature dropped to 4 above zero here Tuesday morning. Not so bad for a winter with a supposedly broken back.

It is commented upon with satisfaction by many people that although this winter has been steadily cold and more or less rough that there have been fewer deaths than usual during corresponding periods of other years.

At the Orpheum theatre Monday and Tuesday the audiences got more than the usual amount of merriment that goes with a picture entertainment out of the showing of The Perfect Flapper, as clever a screen conception as has been shown here in a long time.

Something of the importance of the Paco Manufacturing company to Danielson as a manufacturing enterprise is indicated by the fact that the concern's payroll now approximates $30,000 a month, as much as ever was paid in a like period by the Danielson Cotton company, and that in its day in the same plant was considered a keystone industry here.

Many a motorist has indulged in picturesque language while trying to negotiate the bumps and humps and ribs of ice in Main street, but the situation cannot be relieved until warm weather comes to clear away the barriers or a heavy snow fills in the ruts.

PUTNAM

There is general interest in the story of the opposition to the reappointment of Frank H. Foss and Samuel B. Harvey as judge and prosecuting attorney of the Willimantic police court. There is also general resentment over the use of the name of Charles E. Searls, state's attorney, in the implication, however slight, that two years ago he aided Mr. Harvey, without due justification, in having the sentence of a violator of the liquor laws changed from imprisonment to a fine.

Mr. Searls is nearing his 60th year. For the past 30 years he has been state attorney for Windham county, and his record has been beyond criticism. No one has been more zealous than he in upholding the courts, or in preserving the respect for and dignity of the law. When he had been called upon to recommend what punishment should be meted out to an admitted or proved violator of the law, Mr. Searls has sought to see that justice was done and, when he deemed it wise, to temper that justice with mercy.

Every judge of the superior court in Connecticut will join in the declaration that Mr. Searls administration of his office has always been for the best interests of the state and the community and that he needs neither defense nor encomium.

Report for January of Ralph C. Jenkins, superintendent of schools, as presented to the school committee at the regular meeting Monday evening follows:

High school: During the past week mid-year examinations have been going on at the high school. The high school principal has secured from each pupil in school who expects to enter some higher institution of learning after graduation, data concerning the kind of course he or she expects to pursue. Not all pupils will be able to attend the schools or colleges they hope to, but many will be led nearer a definite goal by means of the information collected. A directory of the alumni of the school is being compiled.

A state phyhical ability contest in being conducted in the higher grades of the Israel Putnam and Smith Street schools. Chinning pole and balancing beam exercises are a part of the program. Miss Maud Keator of the department of special education of the state board of education will give special mental examinations to four children Tuesday of next week.

Health department—There is very little sickness in the schools at present. The experiment is being tried of sending a special request to parents to be present at the annual physical examination of their children. The response thus far has been excellent. By being present at the examination, parents can learn directly from the school physician what their children's defects are, and take steps to remedy them.

Attendance Department—Families moving to Putnam are often surprised at the quickness with which cases of absence from school are investigated by the nurse and attendance officer. The Putnam schools have maintained for several years a high percentage of attendance. Truancy has been reduced to a minimum. This record can only be maintained by prompt action on the part of attendance officials. Our local attendance officer has been faithful to his duties and we have the co-operation of Mrs. A. W. Buchanan of the attendance department of the state board of education. Very few prosecutions have been necessary. Parents should remember that the law gives school officials no discretion to excuse absence from school for any cause except illness.

The monthly meetings for elementary school teachers has been devoted to a discussion of the teaching of arithmetic. The new state course of study of arithmetic will be considered carefully and recommendations for its adoption or such parts of it as can be adapted to our needs, will be made later in the year.

Mrs. Elmira Bennor of South Main street, slipped and fell on the ice this morning and broke her wrist. She was taken to the Day Kimball hospital where the fracture was reduced.

Midyears were celebrated over a period of seven days at the high school this year. A new requirement was that no one leave an examination until the end of the two and one-half hours. In order that those takings exams be distracted as little as possible, no playing was allowed in the gymnasium nor loitering about the building. No lunch was served during midyears, but that did not stop the "underweights" from getting their box of ice cream every day.

Allen Thayer has passed successfully the mid-year examinations at West Point Military Academy, which he entered on certificate last July, and now ranks in the middle of his class. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Thayer of remont street.

Henry Brousseau, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Brousseau, was one of six members of the class of 1925, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, to complete the required class work in December.

Since the highways have been covered with snow, with a heavy top coating of ice, numerous sleds have made their appearance and a few sleighs, but the jingle of the sleighbell has not been heard. Not many years ago the bells heralded the first snowfall and were in constant use as long as runners would glide easily over the road. The need of them was to give warning to pedestrians as the approaching team made no noise. The automobile horn is supposed to serve the same purpose, but a constant shrieking of these would not be tolerated, it would defeat the end it would be intended to serve. The question arises is, what has become of the manufacture of these bells. The same answer would probably apply to the firms which made piano-top buggies and oil chromos and bootjacks and the blacking polish which had a label on the can with the reflection of a dog in the mirror-like surface of the high boot.

W. E. Jackson, county investigator for the district attorney, was in Putnam Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Otto E. Wulf spent Sunday with Norwich friends.

Because of conflicting dates it has been found necessary to change the date of the Junior Prom from the 13th to the 20th of February. This affair is one of the most important social function of the class. The juniors this year apparently have no intention that there shall be any shadows cast upon their abilities as hosts, and efficient committees have been selected. Five invitation will be given each junior, besides those assigned to the seniors, faculty, school board and other guests. An orchestra from Webster will furnish the music.

POETRY

THE HOUSEKEEPER.

The frugal snail, with forecast of sages,
Carries his house with him where'er he goes;
Peeks out,—and if there comes a shower of rain,
Retreat to his small domicile again.
Touch but a tip of him, a horn, he's well,
He curls up in his sanctuary shell.
He's his own landlord, his own tenant; stay
Long as he will, he dreads no Quarter Day,
Himself he boards and lodges; both invites
And feasts himself; sleeps with himself o'nights.
He spares the upholsterer trouble to procure
Chattels; himself is his own furniture,
And his sole riches. Whereso'er he roams,—
Knock when you will,—he's sure to be at home.

—From the Latin of Vincent Bourne, by Charles Lamb.

THE WILLOW.

O willow, why forever weep,
As one who mourns an endless wrong?
What hidden woe can lie so deep?
What utter grief can last so long?

The Spring makes haste with step elate
Your life and beauty to renew;
She even bids the roses wait
And gives her first sweet care to you.

The welcome redbreast folds his wing,
To pour for you his freshest strain;
To you the earliest bluebirds sing,
Till all your light stems thrill again.

The sunshine drapes your limbs with light,
The rain braids diamonds in your hair,
The breeze makes love to you at night
But still you droop, and still despair

Beneath your boughs, at fall of dew,
By lovers' lips is softly told
The tale that, all the ages through,
Has kept the world from growing old

But still, though April's buds unfold,
Or Summer sets the earth aleaf,
Or Autumn pranks your robes with gold
You sway and sigh in graceful grief.

Mourn on forever, unconsoled.
And keep your secret, faithful tree;
No heart in all the world can hold
A sweeter grace than constancy.

—Elizabeth Akers.

Eleven years ago Captain J. R. Moore, the landlord of a hotel at Falmouth, England, was in charge of the motor ketch Ft. Churchill when the vessel was caught in a blizzard at Fort Perrique bay, on the Labrador coast. After he had done this it was found possible to beach the vessel, and all lives were saved. Captain Moore has been washed up on an island at Labrador.

Professional astronomers do not realize the importance of observations of meteors, and they should make an effort to learn more about them is the opinion of Professor S. P. Olivier, of the Leander McCormick Observatory at Charlottesville, Va. He urges that two special observatories be established in different parts of the country to photograph meteors simultaneously. By comparison of the plates, many facts could be learned about their height and motion, he said. Credit was given to the members of the American Meteor Society, a group of amateur astronomers who have made many meteoric observations and have helped greatly in augmenting our knowledge of these fiery visitors.

COASTING ACCIDENTS.

It is an impressive record which the motor vehicle department has kept concerning the coasting accidents in this state during the month of January. If the department learned of them all there were 40 cases where death or injury befell children while sliding on the public highways. According to the department nearly all the accidents were caused by sleds carrying children running into or under the wheels of automobiles.

The dangers of the highways have been steadily increasing. This has been due to the increase in the number of automobiles which move more rapidly than other vehicles and with less noise, so that there is less warning and less chance of escaping the collision which threatens those who dodge or run into the street while at play. The situation is equally bad concerning the use of streets for coasting unless it is possible to restrict the streets to that and no other use during limited periods.

Collision with vehicles on streets which intersect the hill has been the cause of many tragic accidents. The conditions were bad enough with slowly moving vehicles but with the automobiles they have been made much worse, and when coasters and vehicular traffic undertake to use the same hill there is invited the collision which comes from the inability of certain ones to steer away from oncoming danger.

The danger to the coasters is by no means being magnified by the motor vehicle report. Forty accidents in a month with such precautions as are being observed direct attention to a condition which speaks for itself.

Proper protection of life and limb lies in the curbing of coasting to the point where accidents which involve vehicles can be eliminated. Hills which can be reserved for sliding, where there are no cross streets and where vehicular traffic can use other streets, may well be authorized for that use, but where it is not possible to do so the restricting of coasting at such points is in the interest of safety.

HORSESHOE NEEDS.

When a subsidiary of the United States Steel corporation throws up its hands and decides to go out of the business of making horseshoes it reflects the tendency of the times. It is not to be supposed that this concern is the only one making horseshoes, and it doesn't mean that there are no more horses. The horse hasn't been crowded out quite yet even though he is disappearing from the streets. There are statistics which tend to show that as the result of breeding activity there are more horses today than there were a decade ago, but this doesn't jibe with the observations of the ordinary individual who judges by what he sees on the highways.

Horses are not to be found where they were ten years ago. They have been seriously crowded to one side by the automobile and that crowding promises to continue. What the change has been can be easily seen by trying to find a livery stable today where a dozen would have been available a score of years ago. It is almost the same with the blacksmith shop. They haven't all gone because there is other work than horseshoeing but the blacksmith shop of today isn't what it was a generation ago. At this season of the year such establishments would have such volumes of business, sharpening shoes and replacing them, that night work would be necessary. Blacksmith shops today close up soon after the middle of the afternoon, and they are not numerous.

The decision to stop the making of horseshoes is but another sign of the times. It gives recognition to the fact that there is reason to expect a dwindling demand in that direction and rather than wait until the bottom has entirely fallen out of the business there is a desire to anticipate it and turn the attention in other directions. It is a change which many manufacturers have been forced to reckon with and meet.

It will be a long time before the horse disappears. He is too valuable in many lines even now but the change is coming and conditions are showing the effect. What will those who attach so much good fortune to the finding of a horseshoe do in the years to come?

OUR GOVERNMENT SHIPS.

According to the chairman of the shipping board that organization has not gone out of business and it has not lost contact with the shipping industry. There had been no false announcement in this connection but the shipping board has not been quite as conspicuous as it was at one time and lest the impression be gained that it had folded its tent and silently stole away it was considered well to prevent the formation of any wrong notions.

The shipping board is still doing business but it doesn't appear that it has experienced a great boom or that it is unable to meet all demands that are made upon it. In fact it would appear that it was equipped to handle a volume of business much in excess of what it can get, which gives the impression that the fleet of vessels will never be put into operation under the board's direction.

When it is shown that the board has under its control 1243 vessels it looks impressive until it is disclosed that there are only 358 of them in operation. This represents an increase of 47 for the year. For small favors we should perhaps be thankful, but when it is realized that there are 885 vessels tied up, a constant expense and undergoing deterioration it is easily seen that at the rate they are being put into use that it will be 20 years or so before the whole fleet will become active, and by that time of course those on the long waiting list would be overdue at the junkpile.

From the statement by the shipping board's chairman it does not appear that the government is making very rapid progress in getting out of the shipping business, putting its ships into use or disposing of them to private owners. It may well be regarded as a good sized job but not one in which very much progress is being made. Uncle Sam has ships to sell but he cannot get rid of them at a fair price. In deciding between disposing of them for a song or letting them remain idle the board adopts the latter.

DEALING WITH RIDERS.

Congress is getting to the point in the present session, limited to the fourth of next March, where there must be an elimination of the disposition to waste time and block legislation, or some of the measures slated for passage will remain untouched.

There is opposition to the passage of the bill for the purchase of the Cape Cod canal but it is not of sufficient strength to prevent the passage, it is believed, provided it can be brought to a vote and be stripped of its entanglements. But like other measures where there is opposition, there are those who seek to load it down with outside provisions for no other purpose than to accomplish its defeat. Too often they succeed.

The question concerning the Cape Cod canal bill now is as to whether it will be permitted to stand on its own feet. Already there has been tacked on a rider which calls for the purchase of Dismal swamp canal, a project which probably has no chance whatever standing by itself but it is dragged in under that custom of insisting upon getting something in return for the supporting of a worthy measure.

There is of course reason for relying upon the belief that President Coolidge will not stand for any such tactics that he will be disposed to affix his veto to a bill which calls for unwarranted outlay in the effort to get something which is needed. That he favors the Cape Cod canal is known, but that doesn't mean that he is willing to upset his programme of economy by sanctioning anything and everything to bring it about. Those who are affixing riders are probably aware of that fact, but those who can eliminate them should be alert to their responsibility.

NOME'S PLIGHT.

Nome, Alaska, isn't any farther away than it ever has been. In fact the railroad facilities and the developments along various lines have really brought it much nearer in the matter of time required to reach it. And yet with this elimination of distance that community of a thousand persons has been in the midst of a serious epidemic without the modern means of fighting it.

Apparently the dog teams have been able to push through the frozen north and carry the much needed antitoxin. If it has gotten there in a condition which permits of effective use there will be satisfaction felt for the sacrifice that has been made in covering the trail at this season under forced speed. Even though it is unfit there can be no withholding of credit for the effort that was made.

But even with the cutting of distance through time saving devices there is brought to attention the grave danger that is involved in failing to stock up such a community against just such an emergency.

In the days to come the airplane is going to do what the dog team has just done and do it in much less time but flying into the frozen north with its storms and blizzards has its handicaps, and unless we are greatly mistaken Nome in the future will take good care to see that due provision is made for fighting any epidemic that the uncertain future may produce. Furthermore it will not only make provision but take the wise precaution to see that its supply of antitoxins are fresh and fit. Nome is still far enough away so that it must look to the provision of adequate supplies well in advance of possible need and the handicaps which wtiner impose.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The man on the corner says: No one will be injured by what people don't know if they keep it to themselves.

If the 1925 ground hog is up to date in all respects his interest in moon shine may have totally eclipsed his concern about sunshine.

When the supreme court of Massachusetts says dead men cannot be elected to office, it is not talking figuratively but means what it says.

The New Jersey association which is going to try to get the term "hot dog" pried loose from frankfurters has as hard a job as fighting mosquitoes.

Perhaps another aid to road building might be obtained by requiring the bus lines, like the trolley roads, to pave between the tracks, or the equivalent.

When the state wants to collect something or some more on gasoline it takes some time, but when the oil companies want an increase the price changes over night.

While three and a third billion was spent last year for new automobiles think what a lot in addition was spent for the upkeep, the running expenses and the accessories.

We seem to have gotten back to the point where French spokesmen feel certain that the war debt will be paid. But that doesn't display much progress toward an adjustment.

HER ARTFUL WAYS

"It's outrageous!" the Hyde Park man declared hotly. "And I have to stand by, witness the slaughter and give first aid to the wounded and not say one word to put them next! I refer to the doings of Algeria Applesauce, Imogene's niece, who is visiting us this fall. She is the sort of girl who has a fatal fascination for the boys!"

"Oh, I know!" agreed the Woodlawn man sagely, shaking his head.

"But you don't," his friend from Hyde Park tartly informed him. "Doubtless you picture Algeria as a cross between a movie queen and toothpaste ad, but let me tell you that girl isn't even pretty. The first night she arrived I said to myself that anyhow there was something bright and trickily interesting about the poor girl. The next day I observed that she at least did have a sort of knack about wearing her clothes and that I liked to watch her laugh. And after that she was surrounded by such a constant mob of young men I could not get near enough to continue my observations.

"Since then whenever I see a crowd of young men in any direction I am positive that the center of the group is Algeria. The boys seem crazy about her. I have known raving beauties in my day and not one of them could boast such a collection. It seemed uncanny and I made inquiry of Imogene.

"Imogene said Algeria had confided the whole thing to her. Up to a year ago she had clung to more walls at parties than would go clear around China if placed end to end. It was utterly immaterial whether she put on a Paris gown, made up a face or threw bricks at a passing populace, nobody would waste a glance on her.

"Algeria's soul had seethed and bubbled in horrible crises like these until she realized she had to change things or lose her mind. She resolved to do something to cause young men to look at her and really see her.

"Don't tell me that girl isn't a genius—what she figured out as being a lambasting knockout was to be engaged. Somehow the news got around that Algeria was engaged to a man down east and then events happened exactly as she had decided they would.

"The unattached male populace stopped short in its race past her, said 'Holy smoke, have I been missing something? There must be something about this girl I've passed by.' And there was, for when once she was given half a chance Algeria became what she is today.

"She was so hungry at having attention that it did a lot for her facial expression, and now that she had something to laugh at her really clever laugh got in its work. And all her other good points had been right there all the time only nobody had taken time to observe them.

"You see, the fellows also feel so secure with an engaged girl. She's a perfectly safe bet to play around with because they think being engaged she never will take them seriously if they don't mean to be serious. So they have time to consider whether or not they hate the unknown fiance enough to pitch in and cut him out. Men always dislike another man if he is invisible and engaged to a girl close at hand. They resent him.

"Since Algeria arrived at our house a constant procession of delivery boys has raced up the front steps and there isn't a spot on table or whatnot that is not laden with caloric candy boxes, baskets of fruit, piles of new books, bursting bouquets, buds and blossoms from the hothouse and such. And several of these young men are taking it very hard that she insists on treating them as though she was a sister.

"I pointed out to her that they were very nice boys and that she ultimately would marry somebody and not to be too choosy—but Algeria only looked a trifle grim and reminded me that she had several years of boredom to make up for and if some male got hurt in the process she should worry! It's too bad she can't get her grand idea patented!"

"Huh! Women don't need any patented ideas to get us coming and going!" growled the Woodlawn man, who had just got the bill for his wife's new fur coat and was feeling very low.—Exchange.

YOUR INCOME TAX

Deducting Bad Debts

Bad debts may be deducted from gross income in computing net income only for the year in which they are ascertained to be worthless and charged off the books of the taxpayer. The necessity for this provision of the law is obvious. If a bad debt were allowed as a deduction without requirement that it be charged off the books, the certainty of its worthlessness would be left open to question. If a bad debt were allowed as a deduction in the year in which charged off, without regard to when it was ascertained to be worthless, such charges could be unduly accumulated.

The taxpayer should attach to his return a statement showing the propriety of any deduction claimed for a bad debt. Where the surrounding circumstances show that a debt is worthless and uncollectible, and that legal action, in all probability, would not avail, proof of these facts is sufficient evidence of its worthlessness.

The difference between the face value of a note and the amount received in compromise is an allowable deduction, provided the debtor has no assets out of which the entire amount may be collected by suit. However, where the debt is compromised, the debtor having assets out of which the entire amount could have been collected through legal action, the difference between the amount received in compromise and the amount claimed, whether admitted or disputed, is not an allowable deduction as a bad debt.

Unpaid loans made to needy relatives with little or no expectation of their return are not deductible, but are regarded as gifts. Where a creditor continues to extend credit to a debtor, a debt may not be charged off as worthless. If a debt is forgiven it can not be claimed, as it is then regarded as a gift, which it not an allowable deduction. A valid debt proved to be worthless is not always a proper deduction. For example, unpaid amounts representing wages, salaries, rentals, or similar items of taxable income are not allowed as deductions unless included in the creditor's return for the year in which such deduction is sought or in a previous year. The fact that expected income was not recieved does not decrease the amount of taxable income.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Two Kinds of Holdups

Mr. Editor: Being a constant reader of your valuable paper I noted in the issue of Saturday, January 17, an editorial on crimes and holdups and deploring the fact that such crimes were on the increase.

It is an old saying there are two ways to skin a cat, there are also two ways to stage a holdup, one is the old fashioned way to wear a mask and carry a gun. The modern way is to corner some commodity the people must use such as flour and boom, the price.

The old fashioned holdup man is a criminal, the modern method holdup man is one of our most respected citizens.

Another matter which causes unrest among the working people is the report which is sent out from time to time from the department of labor, one of which you printed in your issue of Jan. 19th, 1925, where it was stated the textile mills were on a full time schedule and some of the woolen mills working overtime. Those reports are pure bunk, as the saying is, as the writer traveled into 15 towns in search of work and found there was not a mill in the state of a full time schedule. The overtime bugaboo might be like what happened in the neighboring village of Baltic, where they worked a few hours overtime getting out some samples and when samples were finished the mill shut down tight. That is a sample of the overtime work.

Another matter which tends to create a feeling of unrest among the workers is the wholesale reduction of wages of the workers which reduction according to the claim of the workers is unwarranted. If those who are in a position to help their fellow men would hold out a helping hand instead of giving them a push or follow the golden rule, there would be far less crimes in the world today.

Verity Could Not Go to College

Both George M. Verity and his father desired that the boy have a higher education, but after grasping what knowledge he could as he moved about the country he had to go to work.

Born in East Liberty, Ohio, the lad rarely lived in one place more than a year because his father's duties as clergyman called him to different pulpits. The income of the head of the family was never more than $900 a year and times in Southern Ohio just after the Civil war were trying. After attending 14 different schools, George was graduated from the high school at Georgetown, Ohio, at 19.

Giving up hopes of attending college because of lack of funds, he attended business school a year, then was made manager of a feeble grocery business in Cincinnati. He swept out, slept in the back of the store and kept it open for business 16 hours a day. His salary was small, he did not like the work and at the end of three years persuaded his relative who owned the business to sell out. He had been married two years before, and now he was out of a job.

Grasping the only opening he could find, he took charge of the Sagendorph Iron Roofing & Corrugating Company, which had gone into the hands of the receiver and was practically defunct. As bookkeeper, general manager and all-around handy man, he learned the roofing and pipe business and brought the concern out of its troubles.

After two years of hard work, he borrowed $500 and bought a substantial interest in the business. Then he changed the name to the American Steel Roofing Company, bought the rights to a special twisted rain conductor, borrowed more money for machinery, and began making the specialty. The business grew rapidly.

After years of effort he perfected a special process for making iron for commercial purposes. Combining several interests under the name of the American Rolling Mill Company, he was made its president at 44. Today it has more than 5,000 employes and Verity at 59, is still president, is interested in many other business concerns and is rich.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Antonio Salandra, who seems likely to be the one man in Italy strong enough to meet Mussolini on equal terms, is well advanced in years, being now nearly 72. Like so many other successful Continental statesmen, he began his career as a lawyer, entered Parliament as soon as he had reached the legal age—thirty years—and attained a place in the cabinet in 1899. He had the credit of being at the head of the government which brought Italy into the war, but his administration was criticized and he fell in 1917, though later he was one of Italy's representatives at Versailles and also her representative at the Genoa conference, where the Greco-Italian dispute came up for settlement. Physically Signor Salandra is a small, somewhat portly man—not particularly impressive at first sight. His manners, however, are courtly and distinguished, and he has the winning personality, open-hearted and free from stiffness or condescension, that makes friends.

Stories That Recall Others

Why He Did It

They were discussing taxes and delinquents when one of the group volunteered that Jim Jones, who had been in arrears for ten years, had paid up.

Knowing that he could have done it some time ago one of the party said, "How's that, did he get religion?"

"No," was the reply of the knowing one. "He got an automobile and it was possible of course to levy on that."

No Chance for an Argument

Sleeping past the alarm and then having to rush to catch the bus permitted no time for a final glance in the mirror. As she climbed on the bus she nodded her usual cheery good morning to the driver, although she noticed that he looked at her rather hard, as did two or three women passengers. All the way into town she rode before she finally noticed that her green petticoat showed only six inches. So that was why they were looking! And the bus driver—the one she had ridden with for weeks—knew all about it, and all he had done to help the situation was to give her a keen glance.

Well, if that was the way he wished to act she certainly had a right to tell him what she thought; and so, with a sense of humor, as well as a sense of appearance she waited for all the other passengers to get off. Then going up to him she said: "Do you think any gentleman would let a lady ride as far as I did without telling her that her petticoat was showing half a foot?" The driver heartily admitted that he did not.

BOSTON SALESMAN CHARGED WITH ATTEMPTED BURGLARY

New York, Feb. 3.—Charged with attempted burglary, Joseph Beman, 50, who says he is a salesman from Boston, was held in $5,000 bail this afternoon in West Side court.

Beman was found in a West Side apartment house, according to Raymond Braton, superintendent of the building, who said he discovered the salesman taking a suit of clothes from one of the apartments.

As Braton, holding Beman, was looking for a policeman, it was alleged, Beman escaped, and pursued by a crowd ran several blocks before he was arrested on Fifth avenue.

Don't be foolish and run yourself down when your neighbors are only too glad to do it for you.

The Thrift of Happy Jack

Who is content to simply drift
Will never know the joy of thrift.
—Happy Jack Squirrel.

Peter Rabbit was lean and hungry. He was lean all the time these days and hungry most of the time. You see snow covered the Green Meadows and lay all through the Green Forest, Peter could get little to eat, excepting bark and such young twigs and buds as he could reach. These were not very filling. They kept him from starving, but they didn't put any fat on him and they seldom satisfied his hunger. Winter is sometimes very hard on Peter Rabbit.

He was sitting in a ramble-tangle on the edge of the Green Forest. A little way from him Happy Jack the

"What isn't fair?" demanded Happy Jack.

Gray Squirrel was running about on the snow. Now and then he stopped to dig clear down to the ground. Then he would pop up with an acorn or a nut and eat it. Happy Jack was sleek. He looked well fed. He was well fed.

"It isn't fair," said Peter, talking to himself. "There is Happy Jack fat, comfortable, with plenty to eat. Here am I thin, hungary all the time and always having to hunt for enough to keep me alive. It isn't fair."

"What isn't fair?" demanded Happy Jack, who had come near enough to overhear Peter's last remark.

"It isn't fair that some people should have plenty, while others never know where the next meal is coming from," retorted Peter.

"Who says it isn't fair?" demanded Happy Jack.

"I say it isn't fair," replied Peter.

Happy Jack finished the nut he was eating, licked his lips and grinned at Peter. "If there is any unfairness whose fault is it?" he asked.

Peter hesitated. Happy Jack didn't wait for him to answer. "The reason I have plenty to eat now is because I worked hard last fall and stored away enough food to last me all winter. Thrifty people seldom go hungry. I don't want to boast, but I don't care how much snow and cold weather we have. You don't find me going hungry. No, sir, you won't find me going hungry. I can get a good meal from my storehouse whenever I need it."

"If you've got so much in your storehouse what are you trying to find nuts buried under the snow for?" demanded Peter. "If I had a full storehouse I certainly wouldn't waste my time hunting for food the way you do."

Happy Jack chuckled. "It is thrift, Peter. Of course you can't understand it because you don't know the meaning of thrift. Only those who are truly thrifty understand what real thrift is. It is true that I have plenty of food in my storehouse. But while I can find food outside of that storehouse I don't touch the food that is in it. Then I know that I've always got it. Then I know that if the winter should be extra long there will be nothing to worry about. When I can't find anything outside it is time to take food from the storehouse. But the truly thrifty never use up what they have when they can find more. It is only the lazy and thriftless who would do that."

"Huh!" sniffed Peter. "If I had a storehouse full of food I wouldn't waste my time hunting for food."

"No, I don't believe you would," chuckled Happy Jack.

FAMILY MARKET

Norwich, Feb. 3, 1925—The potato market has taken a firm outlet, due to extreme coldweather at shipping points and generally good quality stock commands the confidence of the trade. The information given out by The State Board of Agriculture shows that Massachusetts had 800 cars of onions on January 1st, 1925, compared to 1,100 cars a year ago. The shipments before January 1st. were heavier than during the corresponding period of the preceding season. This has added strength to the onion markets in Connecticut.

There is still a tendency to keep up the prices on a firm level, for cabbages, celery, potatoes, onions and fancy apples. Butter markets are reported a little firmer, although markets remain about steady here. Markets are holding about steady for lamb. Native eggs are about the same as the previous week, the tendency is to command higher prices.

Stamping Out Locust

After three months' absence in the Kalahart desert wastes the South African government locust expedition has returned to civilization. The only natives seen were tiny bushmen, leading carefree lives, shooting buck with bows and arrows and carrying fire-sticks to produce flame for cooking. Col. Williams, the leader of the expedition, says that the explorations have been of considerable value in tackling South Africa's greatest curse. The breeding grounds of untold millions of locust were discovered near the great Maksalahari salt lake, where watchers in future will report locust swarms by wireless.

Hyenas in England

Beneath a stalagmite floor in the caves at Torbryan, near Newton Abbot Devon, England, remains of hyenas and footprints and pottery indicating human occupation have been found. In previous explorations of the caves prehistoric remains of men and animals have been discovered and also the tooth of a hippopotamus. The present explorers have failed to discover any further trace of the hippopotamus.

For Deep, Heavy Colds

Here is the best way to get rid of a bad cold. First apply hot wet towels over throat and chest to open the pores of the skin.

Then massage briskly with Vicks for five minutes, spread on thickly and cover with two thicknesses of hot flannel cloths. Leave the bedclothing loose about the neck so that the vapors arising may be freely inhaled. These vapors, inhaled with each breath, carry the medication directly to the affected parts.

At the same time Vicks is absorbed through and stimulates the skin, helping the vapors inhaled to relieve tightness and soreness.

CITY'S BOND ISSUE APPLICATION IS SUBJECTED TO SHARP SCRUTINY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Hartford, Feb. 3.—The hearing on senate bill No. 86, authorizing the city of Norwich to issue refunding bonds to the amount of $350,000, was held today by the committee on finance in the legislature. Besides taking care of a bond issue falling due on June 1, 1925, amounting to $165,000, the contemplated issue takes care of a floating debt that dates its beginning as far back as 1916.

Included in the items is the sum of $76,221 for notes given to raise money for purposes for which no appropriations had been made, these including street improvements 1916, 1917, street repairs 1917, street lighting 1917, the Maie Richmond settlement of $14,500, temporary loans 1920-1923 and North street sewer.

Replying to questions from the committee Corporation Counsel William H. Shields Jr., stated that the total debt of the city was $2,045,121.92, less sinking funds of $113,633.92. Tax Commissioner Blodgett, who attended the hearing, severely criticised the valuation methods used in Norwich and wanted to know if this issue would increase the tax rate. If it would, he said he wanted to oppose it.

Mr. Blodgett was assured by Mayor Milo R. Waters that it would not increase but on the contrary it would decrease the tax rate in interest charges. The bill, he said, calls for several bonds which compel the city to clean up this accumulation of old deficits.

Senator Walcott, chairman of the finance committee, wanted a more definite statement of the financial condition of the city, and also criticised the way the bill was drawn. He also wanted the city to send to his committee the last trial balance sheet as well as a statement as to the bonded indebtedness of the town. Corporation Counsel Shields said that these figures would be sent to the committee.

The following shows the accumulation of $76,221 in loans on notes made by the city:

MISCHA ELMAN TO WED SAN FRANCISCO GIRL

Mischa Elman, violin virtuoso of world-wide repute, has at last decided to alter the pattern of his life, devoted solely and completely to the violin since the day when his fingers were first able to press the strings. He announced Monday at New York that Miss Helen Catten, of San Francisco, would shortly become his wife.

It had always been thought by his friends that this master of sobbing strings was a confirmed bachelor, wedded for all time only to his muse. But, according to the violinist, he gains a new love without losing the old. To all intents neither his fiancee nor his Stradavarius will play "second fiddle."

The engagement is the result of a shipboard romand, Mr. Elman said, although his intended bride is not a musician. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Simon Catten and her cousin is the mayor of Sacramento.

Special local interest is added to the announcement because the young lady is a cousin of the Cadden family of this city and Hartford.

WILL INVITE CONFERENCE OF COMMUNITY ASSOCIATIONS

At the regular monthly business meeting of the West End Community Association Tuesday evening at the Elizabeth Street school house, the people of the West Side were congratulated on the community spirit they are showing, by Edward J. Graham, superintendent of schools, in a talk which he gave before the large audience. The meeting opened at 7.30 o'clock with President Paul A. Brown in the chair.

John D. McWilliams, reporting for the board of control, announced the names of six new members and they were admitted to membership. Mr. McWilliams also reported the public skating pond at East Great Plain in good condition. He said the pond is very popular. Less than half of the fund provided by the city recreation commission to keep the pond in first class shape has been used.

Mr. McWilliams announced that the Eastern Connecticut Power Company had offered to secure gratis an educational moving picture film to be shown by the association. This film shows the manufacture of electricity from the time a river is dammed for power until the electricity reaches the home of the consumer. The offer was accepted by the association and the picture will probably be shown on the evening of Friday, February 13th. It was voted to extend an invitation to the general public to attend especially the children of the public schools and the students of the Academy. No admission will be charged for the picture.

President Brown announced that the community orchestra is rehearsing weekly and that they expect to entertain the members of the association at a concert soon. Mr. Brown also spoke of the association's plan to have a minstrel show some time this month or next month as a means of raising money for the treasury. Money is needed for several projects which the association has in mind, such as the recreation or athletic field, the activities of the welfare committee and the sidewalk committee. He announced that a card party is being planned for next week when it is hoped there will be at least 25 tables.

Regarding the proposed recreational field, Mr. Brown said it is not to be a playground, but an athletic field, with a baseball diamond, a tennis court and a croquet ground, for the children to keep them off the street.

Mr. Brown said that at the last board meeting it was suggested that a conference of community associations throughout the country be called for Norwich next summer. Since the suggestion had been made a letter had been received from a community association in Des Moines, Iowa, making a similar suggestion for a conference in that city. It would be a great thing for Norwich, he said, if it could be the birthplace of a national community body. The expense of holding the conference would not be great and the delegates could be entertained in Norwich homes.

A motion was passed that the various community organisaitons throughout the country be asked to meet in Norwich for the purpose of forming a national organization.

Mr. Brown spoke of the advisability of holding a membership campaign and all members of the association were urged to bring in two new members before the next meeting. The present membership is 157, including the six new members taken in Tuesday evening.

A suggestion was offered that a flag pole be provided for the Elizabeth St. school. Edward J. Graham, superintendent of schools, announced that a flag pole has already been purchased for the school and will be erected on the school lawn as soon as the ice and snow is gone. This announcement was greeted with applause.

President Brown asked the lookout committee, board of control, welfare committee, nuisance committee, sidewalk committee, recreational committee and the theatrical committee to meet Friday evening at the school building.

Following the singing of a verse of Home Sweet Home, President Brown presented as a surprise the Riverview Serenaders, a string orchestra of local colored players. The orchestra entertained the meeting for over a half hour with a splendid concert program featured by vocal numbers by Al Perrin.

Following the concert Superintendent of Schools Edward J. Graham addressed the meeting. In his talk he congratulated the people of the West Side on the splendid community spirit they are showing. He spoke of the handsome school building in which the association enjoys the privilege of holding meetings and said he hoped the time will come when more fine school buildings will be erected in other sections of the city.

Miss Mary Henderson, art instructor in the local schools, gave a splendid talk on art. She spoke of the need of instruction in art for all lines of business and said the air was not so much to make artists of the school children but to teach them the part art plays in business in general.

On the walls about the hall appear a number of pictures, this being an art exhibit loaned by the American Art Association. The letter association has sent out the exhibit through the department of education at Washington and it has been loaned to Connecticut to be shown in the different Connecticut communities during the present school year.

GOLD SALT IS USED IN PHTHISIS CURE

At a meeting of the Danish Medical Society, in Copenhagen, Dr. Poellgaard, professor of physiology at the Agricultural High School lectured on his treatment of tuberculosis.

He stated that his preparation, sanocrysia, was a gold salt made in such a chemical combination that it avoided the risk of metal poisoning, even when given in very large doses. It originated from the discovery of the German doctor, Robert Koch, who proved that gold, salt could act as a poison to the bacilli of tuberculosis, and in the development of this discovery he (Prof. Moellgaard) had produced a gold combination which could be injected either into the veins or the muscles, and killed the bacilli in the organism. Sanocrysia was the first combination that attained this end, but there was the risk that the disintegration of the dead bacilli could set up a poisonous substance, and to counteract this risk a serum was also injected. The treatment was liable to give rise to several reactions, such as fever, skin rash, nausea and sickness, but those reactions gradually disappear, and the [illeg

ARMY-NAVY TEAM WINS EASY GAME FROM FAST ENDEES OF MERIDEN

The Army-Navy team atoned for their defeat last Saturday evening at Meriden at the hands of the Endees, when Tuesday evening they turned the tables on the Meriden five and won by an overwhelming score of 44 to 28.

The Army-Navy team took the lead at the start and held it throughout the game, although hard pressed in the first half, which ended with the score 19 to 12 in favor of the locals. In the second half the local team played brilliant basketball and when the final whistle blew they were far out in front. The Army-Navy boys played a well organized passing game and also played a close five-man defense which forced the Endees to shoot from mid-floor. Many of the baskets caged by the visitors came as a result of being forced to shoot from a long distance. Cook and Lingner featuring with several of this variety. Cronin, left forward for the Endees, was high scorer for his team and played a brilliant floor game.

For the locals Joe Belair and Jimmy Welch were the star performers, Belair's dashing floor work marking him as the star of the evening. He caged five baskets and two fouls besides assisting materially in the defense work. Welch ran him a close second with five baskets, and Mills also played a nice game in the center position.

In the preliminary game the Army-Navy Seconds won from Battery B, 28 to 12, in a one-sided game, the winners playing a fast snappy game that the soldiers could not follow.

AGGIES CLASH WITH SPRINGFIELD FIVE TONIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Storrs, Conn., Feb. 3.—The Connecticut Aggie five will play its first game in a week and a half tomorrow, when the Springfield College quintet is met on the Hawley armory court at Storrs. Slight changes have been made in the lineup of the Physical Directors since they suffered defeat at the hands of the Aggies last month, and it is expected that Coach Mann's team will give the Aggies much more opposition in what will be their second meeting of the season.

Coach Dole topped off his final preparations for the game with a light workout for his varsity squad this afternoon, and announcement has been made that his regular lineup of Baleck, Schofield, Eddy, Allard and Makofski will start the game.

Springfield has played seven games to date, winning four and losing three. Decisions were won over St. Francis, St. John's, Boston College and Boston university. Games were lost to Connecticut Aggies, Rhode Island State and Manhattan College. The Aggies are the only team that have turned back the Physical Directors on their own floor.

The Storrs outfit has played five games to date, defeating Trinity, New Hampshire and Springfield, and losing games to Wesleyan and the Army, the latter by a one point margin.

On the basis of the past showing of the two teams, it would seem as though the Aggies have a slight edge of the Springfield five, but in view of the great improvement shown in the last few contests by the Bay Staters, the advantage is by no means a large one.

Leslie Mann, outfielder for the Boston Braves, is coaching the Springfield team, which this year has employed the western style of play. This involves a large amount of dribbling, deceptive passes, and more personal contact. Last month this type of play bothered the Aggies not at all, as they had little difficulty in penetrating the Springfield defense, and at the same time the Storrs team kept Springfield's offense well covered.

This contest is of further interest to Connecticut followers because of the face that "Bob" Berry, former Aggie star in basketball and football, is expected to start in a forward berth for the Springfield team. Berry transferred to the Y. M. C. A. college during his sophomore year at Storrs.

The lineup:

Springfield—Loebs (capt.) rf; Berry, lf; Crawley, Parkhurst c; Banks rg; Ericson, lg.

Connecticut—Balock (capt.); Schofield, lf, Eddy c, Makofski rg, Allard lg.

Referee, Dillon of Hartford.

Game called at 8 p. m.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE SENDS HEYDLER CONGRATULATIONS

New York, Feb. 3.—(By the A. P.)—President Calvin Coolidge, in a letter to John A. Heydler, president of the National League, congratulating the league on the celebration of its 50th anniversary, declared that baseball was a "real moral and physical benefit to the nation."

The letter follows:

"My dear Mr. Heydler:

"Your letter, which has just come to my hand, telling me of the 50th anniversary of the National Baseball League, has been read with much interest. Not only because of the nation-wide devotion to this splendid game, but because of my own conviction that it has been of real moral and physical benefit to the nation, I send my congratulations for this occasion.

"Very truly yours,

"CALVIN COOLIDGE."

SIXTEEN SELECTED FOR LIGHTWEIGHT CONTENDERS

New York, Feb. 3—(By the A. P.)—The New York State Athletic commission today announced the selection of sixteen lightweight boxers to compete for the title vacated by Benny Leonard in an elimination tournament starting Feb. 23.

The outstanding contenders on the list include Sid Terris of New York and Sammy Mendell of Rockford, Ills., who met in a 12 round bout at Madison Square Garden Friday; Sid Barsarian, Detroit; Jack Bernstein, Yonkers, N. Y., Johnny Dundee, New York, former featherweight champion, and Jimmy Goodrich of Buffalo.

The others selected are K. O. Clyde Lajoie, Columbus, Ohio; Tommy O'Brien, Milwaukee; Eddie (Kid) Wagner and Alex Hart, both of Philadelphia; Joe Dundee and K. O. George Chaney, both of Baltimore; Charley O'Connell, Cleveland; Jack Silvers, Camerons; Basil Galiano, New Orleans and Benny Velger, New York.

These selections represent the pick of American talent among contenders for the crown Leonard has resigned. The winner of the tournament among boxers will be pitted against the best foreign contender to determine which is entitled to championship recognition.

Four ten-round matches will be held February 23 at Madison Square Garden to inaugurate the tournament, according to the commission's plan. Four other matches, completing the first round of the tournament, will be held the same week as headline bouts at smaller Metropolitan Clubs. The second round of eliminations among the eight survivors of the first round is scheduled for the week of March 9.

Two alternates were named to take the place of any of the regular selections unable to go into the tournament for any reason. They are Joe Benjamin of California and Solly Seaman of New York.

The commission also announced that in the event no reply is received from the South American Boxing Federation, naming a South American representative, Luis Vicentini of Chile will be designated by the commission to represent that continent. If the governing board of boxing in Canada also fails to nominate an entry, Clonie Tait, Canadian lightweight champion, will be selected to wear the colors of Canada in the tournament.

This assures the commission of at least five foreign representatives. The foreigners will fight it out among themselves and by the process of elimination select the best lightweight to meet the American who survives the ordeal in the American bracket, making the finale or title round an international affair.

The draw for pairings in the American bracket will be held at the commission office Friday when representatives of the 16 boxers selected today will meet to draw for opponents.

NATIONAL LEAGUE OPENS SEASON ON APRIL 14TH

New York, Feb. 3—(By the A. P.)—The National League will open its 1925 pennant race on Tuesday, April 14, and close its campaign on October 4, a week later than in 1924, according to the schedule officially adopted at today's midwinter meeting. There is no change in the corresponding time of opening the season, which last year was on April 15.

A variety of reasons, including the presidential election campaign, figured in the earlier ending last year but it was decided to go back to the longer season again in 1925.

The New York Giants, four-time champions, will start their attempt to make it five straight on a foreign battlefield, opposing the Braves at Boston in the first game on April 14. Brooklyn's 1924 runner up outfit will be fired at Cincinnati, with St. Louis as the visiting combination, and at Chicago, with Pittsburgh as the invader.

The apportionment of holiday and week-end dates at home finds Brooklyn at the head of the list with 33, including 19 Sundays, 12 Saturdays, July 4 and Labor Day. Cincinnati ranks next with 29 while Chicago and New York have 27 each, Boston and Philadelphia, where no Sunday ball is permitted, have the fewest, 14.

LITTLE INTEREST IN WOMEN'S TENNIS YESTERDAY

New York, Feb. 3—With the outstanding two entries, Mrs. Molla Mallory and Miss Martha Bayard, on the side-lines, due to heavy colds, play in the women's indoor tennis tournament at the Heights Casino today developed little interest. Both are expected to resume competition tomorrow.

Mrs. John D. Corbiere of Boston made the most notable advance of the day when she won her way to the fourth round by disposing of Mrs. Theodore Shost of New York, 6-1, 6-0, in the second round, and then eliminating Miss Marion Fenno of Boston, 6-2, 6-2, in the third round.

Another Boston entrant, Miss Isabelle Mumford, was put out in the third round after a hard-fought match with Mrs. W. M. Shedden, of New York, that went to extra sets. The scores were 6-2, 3-6, 6-4.

Miss Helen Hooker and Mrs. Lillian Scharman Hester were among the Metropolitan district stars who advanced, the former eliminating Mrs. W. V. Kaltenborn, 11-9, 6-0, while Mrs. Hester disposed of Mrs. DeForest Candee, 6-2, 6-3.

NURMI WILL ATTEMPT TO LOWER 2-MILE MARK

New York, Feb. 3—Paavo Nurmi will attempt to erase the only remaining world's indoor record held outright by Joie Ray when the phantom Finn competes in a two-mile race featuring the Wilco A. A. games next Saturday night. On the same track where Ray set his mark of 9 minutes 8 2-5 seconds for two miles, Nurmi will endeavor to cover the distance in 9 minutes flat, in addition to attempting to set three other new records at intermediate distances, one mile and three quarters, 3,000 metres and one mile and seven-eighths.

The latter records are now held by the Abo Antelope.

Nurmi's failure to set any new records in two races last week was not due to sickness, as reported, according to Hugo Quist, the Finn's trainer and adviser, but to a desire to conserve his energies. Paavo, he said, has had a cold for a week but it is no worse than during the Millrose Carnival, when Nurmi set three world's records.

BABE RUTH AT HOT SPRINGS TO GET INTO CONDITION

Hot Springs, Ark., Feb. 3—Babe Ruth arrived in Hot Springs today and immediately launched the annual war on his worst enemy—obesity.

Ruth's first act was to step on the scales at his hotel and ruefully watch the indicator spin around to 230 pounds. Babe then got down to serious business by donning his golf togs and hurrying to the Hot Springs Country Club, where he entered the South Central open tournament which began today. Ruth soon was well on his way around the course.

He plans to take off between ten and fifteen pounds through a combination of golf and hot mineral baths. He hopes to be down to playing weight when he reports at the Yankee training camp next month.

Firpo to Start Training

Paris, Feb. 3—Luis Angel Firpo announced today that he was leaving for Nice tomorrow to begin training. He declared he would be ready to meet any heavyweight in the world upon three weeks' notice, after March 1.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Feb. 3.—Basketbal on a more extensive scale will find williams Memorial Institute girls engaging in a schedule which will surpass any previous attempt made to keep the sextet busy during the winter. With three games already played, and these at New London, four more games are definitely scheduled while three more are pending. In the schedule below, several strong teams will oppose W. M. I. among these are Storrs college varsity five at Storrs, George Washington High of Meriden in a home and home series, Westerly, Plainfield, Stonington High, and New Haven high, last named team is pending.

Although a strong attempt was made to bring a home schedule to the front in basketball with the advent of indoor sport to its ever increasing popularity, has been encountered with difficulty. Games with some of the leading high school girls teams in the state were arranged, but circumstances caused the postponement of the original schedule and a new one had to be substituted in its place. This year will be the first season that the W. M. I. girls will oppose more than three or four teams which composed the entire schedule of the previous programs for the sextet.

The complete schedule for the season of 1925 follows:

Saturday, Feb. 7—Connecticut Agricultural varsity five at Storrs.

BARBER-FILLMORE TEAM OVER WHELMS GAINES-GENOVESE IN FAST MATCH

Roy Fillmore and Frankie Barber evened up the bowling series with Ray Gaines and Joe Genovese of Hartford Tuesday evening at the Aetna alleys when they turned back the invaders by a total score of 2306 to 2175, winning by a margin of 131 pins. The match was one of the best seen on the local alleys in many seasons and the alleys were thronged with a crowd of rooters that were backing the local team.

Roy Fillmore was in top form, hitting a total of 1175 for ten strings for an average of 117-5 and maintaining his stride throughout the match. His partner, Barber, was also in fine form, getting a total of 1131 for an average of 113-1. Genovese was third high man with 1111, he also rolling high single with 144. Genovese was not the finished bowler that the other three men in the match were, as he continually lobbed the ball, a feature which marred the game to some extent.

The scores:

After the match Barber accepted, on behalf of his team, the challenge issued by Chartier of Moosup for a series of matches to be rolled between the team of McKenzie and Dugas against Barber and Fillmore for a purse of $400 a match, $200 a side. Mr. Barber posted a forfeit of $50 with the sporting editor of The Bulletin to show his good faith. Mr. Barber is now waiting to hear from Mr. Chartier in regard to making the arrangements for the matches.

NATIONAL LEAGUE TO KEEP ON WITH PLAYER AWARD

New York, Feb. 3—(By the A. P.)—Continuation of the most valuable player award in its present state, the adoption of the 1925 playing schedule, selection of golden jubilee celebration dates in each league city and the appointment of umpires for the coming season were the major matters of business transacted by the clubowners of the National League at a special meeting here today.

The magnates elected to continue the most valuable player award without altering its provisions, although there was some discussion concerning a similar award for which pitchers alone will be eligible and barring pitchers from the original award. A player will be eligible to win the award any number of seasons in succession. The league's purse of $1,000 which goes with the award also will be continued.

The schedule was adopted without discussion and the following dates were announced for the respective cities to hold golden jubilee celebrations in commemoration of the 50th anniversary of the founding of the National League; Chicago at Boston, May 8; Cincinnati at New York, May 13; St. Louis at Philadelphia, May 14; Pittsburgh at Brooklyn, May 19; Philadelphia at Pittsburgh, June 6; New York at Chicago, June 9; Brooklyn at Cincinnati, June 12 and Boston at St. Louis, June 16.

The first celebration will be held at Boston during the first visit of the Chicago Cub owing to the fact that the Chicago and Boston Clubs are the only charter members of the league.

The following umpires were appointed: Bob Emslie, chief of staff and instructor; Henry O'Day, William J. Klem, Ernest C. Quigley, Charles Moran, W. J. McCormick, Robert Hart, Charles Pfirman, James M. Sweeney, Charles Rigler, Frank Wilson and Peter J. McLaughlin.

The magnates also voted to raise the umpire fees for world's series assignments from $2,000 to $2,500 and for city series umpires from $500 to $750. The fourth place club will also receive a cut in the world's series receipts according to a resolution unanimously adopted. These two matters were adopted by the joint session of the two leagues but ratification by each league is necessary before they can become effective.

The league also went on record as favoring Charles H. Ebbets' plan to promulgate a definite playing schedule for world's series games. According to Ebbets' plan the first and second games and seventh, if necessary, will be played in the National League City winning the pennant and the third, fourth and fifth in the American League title city. This order shall reverse annually.

The suggestion was brought before the magnates during the joint meeting but was tabled to allow each league to vote in favor or against the resolution.

MURCHISON TO MAKE FAREWELL AT NEWARK

New York, Feb. 3—Loren Murchison, blonde flier of the Newark Athletic club, will make his farewell indoor appearance of the season next Saturday at the Wilco games. He leaves next week for the Pacific Coast to join Charley Paddock, Californian sprinter, for a world tour by way of the Orient.

Murchison will compete Saturday in a spring series at 50, 100 and 125 yards with Jackson Scholz, Louis Clarke, George Hill, Harold Lever and George Mittlesdorf as the other star contenders.

WOULD MAKE BRIBERY A STATE'S PRISON OFFENSE

New York, Feb. 3—Organized baseball took a definite step today to curtail the evil of gambling within its ball parks by adopting a resolution, vice president of the Boston National introduced by Judge Emil E. Fuchs, League club, requesting legislation making such an offense punishable by a prison term.

The resolution asks each club owner to submit to a legislator in his state, a draft of a law which would make second offenders liable to prison sentence and to employ every means possible to bring about the adoption of the law by the various states in which major league baseball is played. First offenders are now punishable by a fine but the clubowners think a prison term for a second offense will stamp out the gambling evil.

THREE CHAPMAN TECH PLAYERS SUSPENDED FOR PRANK

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Feb. 3.—A lighted firecracker thrown into the school auditorium, while Principal Frederick S. Hitchcock was inspecting the building with a visitor, and the explosion which followed caused the expulsion of three members of the Chapman Technichal High school basketball squad by the Tech principal yesterday. The suspended are: E. Bernard Hewitt, center and captain of the quintet, Noble C. Hicks, regular forward and Charles A. White, substitute center. Their suspension is for a period of one month dating from Monday, and their future activities on the court under the colors of the Red and Black is doubtful.

It was but a school prank and the three suspended from school were all implicated in the shooting off of the giant cracker. It was disclosed that White brought the firecracker to school, Hicks applied the match and Hewitt flung it into the auditorium where Principal Hitchcock was in deep conversation with a visitor. At first it was expected that all future athletic sports would be abolished, but at the second assembly of the students, Principal Hitchcock stated that if the perpetrators were not discovered or if they did not give in of their own accord the basketball schedule would be dropped for the present season. However the trio named above confessed to to the prank on Friday night and the fact that they were allowed to participate in the game with Rhode Island State College freshmen game showed that it would have been excused with the shrug of the shoulders.

But the matter got beyond the control of the school principal and the natural alternative of the trustees to whom the matter was referred, was suspension to the individuals who were the cause of the exploding of the giant pyrotechnic. Their suspension from school for a month followed, with an admonition that they would not probably be able to play basketball this season for Chapman Tech.

What the suspension of both Hewitt and Hicks means to Chapman Tech's chances to the Eastern Connecticut title and her welfare in the games scheduled for this month will be decided in the games which will be played by Tech. It seems that both Hicks and White received the ragged end of the deal, for their participation in the breach of school conduct was slight. White it is sure brought the fire cracker to school but it didn't mean that Hewitt had to send it through the door when it was lit on the outside of the building.

NEW LONDON PLEASED WITH MURRAY'S COACHING JOB

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Feb. 3.—The appointment of William A. Murray as coach of the Williams College baseball team for the coming season is of special interest to New London. Mr. Murray who made his permanent home in this city three months ago intends to take up law study as his permanent occupation, although the calling of the national pastime was apparently too strong for his to resist the temptation to guide the destinies of the Purple team this year. He is expected to return to this city after the season is over, and may take up a permanent practice of law with his passing of bar examinations in this state.

Previously as William Murray had planned he was to help round out the Bulkeley nine this season. But his appointment which was not surprising due to his fine major league record and coaching record at Boston university where he developed Gordon "Kid" Cochrane, the most recent baseball sensation. Cochrane it will be remembered was bought by Connie Mack for a cash consideration of $50,000 and five players. With the announcement yesterday that Mr. Murray was selected to supplant Jack Coombs as baseball coach, he immediately made preparations to leave for Williamstown, Mass., this week where he will call out cage practice for the battery candidates. His leaving New London will mean that Bulkeley will not be able to secure the services of an ex-major leaguer in their early training for the coming season.

William Murray's personal record as a ball player at college and later in the majors is as follows.

Murray, a graduate of Brown university, was captain of the team in his senior year. He was also a sprinter of note, holding the sprinting record with Donald Lippincott, coming in two dead heats with the former sprint champion and Olympic runner.

FIVE WORLD'S RECORDS ARE SMASHED

New York, Feb. 3 (By the A. P.).—Five world's records were established and two were missed by one-fifth of a second at the Western Union A. A. track meet in Madison Square Garden tonight.

Paavo Nurmi of Finland, greatest of middle distance runners, returned to his record-breaking form and cut 14 2-5 seconds from the indoor mark for 2 1-4 miles. Only a fraction separated him from new two-mile figures. Nurmi outstepped the field as usual, although Verne Booth, former star at Johns Hopkins university, refused to be lapped, taking second place over Ilmar Prim of the Finnish-American A. C.

Returned to the Garden track, where he amassed the major portion of his 16 world records, Nurmi appeared to feel at home and took the lead at the start, running steadily and without sprinting at the end.

Willie Plant and Willie Ritola were the other athletes to set records. Plant eclipsing both indoor and outdoor times for the 5,000 meter walk, finishing two-thirds of a lap ahead of Ugo Frigerio of Italy, the Olympic champion, in 21.50 3-5. The outdoor figures held by Rasmussen of Denmark were 21.59 3-10, and the indoor mark was 22.06 3-5, made by himself.

Ritola, running an exceptional 5,000 meter race, in which he lapped John Bell of Syracuse three times and Gunnar Nilson of the Finnish-American A. C. twice, sprinted the last lap and crossed the tape 3 2-5 seconds ahead of the best indoor time, which he had produced himself. He added two more records when he reduced his own mark for 2 3-4 miles to 12.56 3-5, and his record for 2 1-2 miles to 11.45 2-5. He missed new three-mile figures by three-fifths of a second.

Frigerio, suffering his third defeat at the hands of the American walking champion, Plant, won tremendous applause by beating out Philip Granville of Canada in 5,000 meters of plodding.

Little Joie Ray of the Illinois A. C. captured the golden victory mile just one-fifth of a second slower than the time recently made by Nurmi. Willie Goodwin of the New York A. C. was second in this event and Jimmy Connolly of Washington, D. C., third.

Verne Ascher of Georgetown defeated his teammate, Jimmy Burgress, in an invitation 500 yard run. Ascher's time was 60 1-5 seconds. Loren Murchison of the Newark A. C. captured the medley sprint, winning the 50-yard final from a field comprising Jackson Scholz, Harold Lever and Larry Rawlings. Lever was second and Scholz third. Murchison's time was 5 3-5 seconds.

FABER'S RECORD COMPARES FAVORABLY WITH BOLEY'S

The batting and field averages of the New York-Pennsylvania league just published show that Joe Faber, local boy, played in 117 games last season and batted for an average of .293. His fielding average was .935. He had 248 putouts, 257 assists and 35 errors. In batting Faber was at bat 426 times, made 125 hits, scored 64 runs, made 25 doubles, 5 triples and 3 home runs. He was walked 31 times, stole 17 bases and fanned 32 times.

Faber is the property of the Baltimore club of the International league and an aspirant for the berth now held by Joe Boley. To compare the two Boley had a batting average of .291. He played in 157 games, was at bat 574 times, scored 110 runs, made 167 hits of which 32 were dougles, 9 triples and 5 homers. He was passed 52 times stole 16 bases and fanned 30 times. Taken all in all the two compare very favorably. Faber is recognized as being every bit as good on the defense as Boley and covers just as much if not more ground.

OIL AND RAILS STRONG.

New York, Feb. 3.—Divergent price movements characterized today's stock market with the oil and railroad shares again developing several points of strength. Standard industrials were reactionary although the losses in most cases were held to fractions. The day's sales again approximated about one and one-half million shares.

Another series of gasoline price advances brought fresh buying into the oil shares, particularly the low priced issues; Texas and Pacific Coal and Oil were an outstanding feature, rising three points to 21 -2, the highest price in nearly two years. Independent Oil and Gas moved up nearly two points to a new top at 26 1-4. The Pan-American issues, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Skelly and a few others also sold at their highest prices in a year or more, but some of the gains were cancelled on profit taking.

United States Steel fluctuated within a range of one point, closing 1 1-8 lower at 125 1-2. American Can showed a net loss of one point at 166 3-4 and Baldwin yielded 1-4 to 131 3-4. Studebaker was in active demand, closing 1 1-2 points higher at 45 1-2 on reports of large current earnings.

Strength of the railroad shares, particularly the non-dividend paying issues, reflected the continuance of heavy car loadings, large current earnings and favorable merger and dividend prospects. Denver and Rio Grande Western preferred climbed four points to 43 while gains of a point or so were recorded by Frisco common, Wabash preferred T, Chicago Great Western common and preferred, Western Maryland common and second preferred.

Shipping, rubber and leather issues were firm on reports of trade improvement. United States Rubber closed nearly two points higher at 43 3-8 points while gains of a point or more were recorded by Ajax Rubber, American International Corporation, Atlantic, Gulf and West Indies common and preferred, Endicott-Johnson, Fisk Rubber first preferred, Goodrich and International Shoe preferred. Brown Shoe and American Hide and Leather preferred were heavy.

Nash Motors and Pacific Telephone and Telegraph each broke six points and Superior Steel 6 weakness also was shown by White Motors, National Cloak and Suit, Commercial Solvents B, Inland Steel, Pressed Steel Car and Sloss-Sheffield.

Call money again ruled at 3 1-2 per cent. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

FEW BILLS CONSIDERED ON FIRST DAY OF BUSINESS IN THE LEGISLATURE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Hartford, Feb. 3.—The house was called to order at 11.30 by Speaker Darbie and prayer was offered by Chaplain Lewis.

Business transacted in the senate of Friday was received and referred to committees in concurrence with the senate. Among these was one that would allow municipalities owning gas and electric plants or water supplies, to sell to some other corporation. This will be a general bill and will not make it necessary to come to the assembly for permission to act. The bill was introduced by Senator Hill of the Sixth district.

A large number of proposed acts valked issuance of certificates by the Connecticut medical examining board. A recess was taken at 12 noon to permit the members of the house to visit the senate and listen to the debate on the child labor amendment.

A resolution expressing sorrow and regret concerning the late Fred L. Hutchins, a representative from Thompson, was passed as well as one directing the comptroller to pay the salary to his wife.

Child Labor Amendment.

The action of the senate on the child labor amendment came into the house and on motion of Mr. Ailing of New Britian it was made the order of day for Wednesday, Feb. 11, at 12 o'clock, noon. Several house bills from the senate were back on disagreeing action in reference to committees. The house in all cases, reconsidered and concurrence was voted with the senate. The claim of Abraham Edgurion for damage done by deer, on report of claims committee, was rejected and the petitioner was given leave to withdraw.

From the calendar was taken and passed resolutions appointing the following judges of town courts: Henry A. Adams, judge of the town court of Sprague; John W. Crofts, deputy judge of the town court of Sprague; William H. Heald, judge of the borough court of Stafford Springs, and Ernest K. Taft, deputy judge of the borough court of Stafford Springs.

The house adjourned at 12.25 till Wednesday at 11.30.

1,486 Bills Before Assembly

The assembly opened upon the fifth of the sessions with a long array of business to digest.

Nine hundred and forty-four bills for enactment have been introduced in the house and 542 in the senate, making a total of 1486. This does not include numerous petitions, house and joint resolutions.

Among the proposed acts received from the senate were 42 that validated licenses that were issued by the Connecticut Eclectic Medical examining board and which had been revoked for irregularities. These bills will all be heard before the judiciary committee. After Clerk Hickey had finished reading the list, Speaker Darbie remarked that we ought "surely be killed or cured."

The hearing that was to have been held before the cities and boroughs committee concerning the Gardner Lake section of Salem to the town of Montville was postponed as it was thought that sufficient notice had not been given.

A recess was taken by the house to allow the members to listen to the debate on the child labor amendment in the senate. Senator Tone of New Haven was the lone champion for its ratification. No address during the debate elicited more attention than that of Mrs. Merritt, senator from the 2nd district.

After adjournment she was warmly congratulated on this the first address of a woman senator in this state.

Notes

Mrs. Helen E. Lewis, representative from Stamford appeared in the house this morning on crutches. She had the misfortune last Saturday to fall on the ice and broke an ankle bone.

THE SENATE.

The greater part of the day's session of the senate was devoted to the child labor amendment, and the action is reported on another page of this paper.

The following resolutions for the appointment of judges were taken from the calendar and referred to the committee on the judiciary: Thomas P. Noonan and Willard H. Drake, judges of the town court of Windsor Locks, and Thomas W. Farrell, deputy judge; Walter M. Pickett to be a judge of the court of common pleas of New Haven county; and Elbert B. Hamlin of Litchfield to be judge of the court of common pleas of Litchfield county.

On the favorable report of the committee on senate appointments the senate appointed the following trustees of the Connecticut school for boys, each for a term of four years from July 1, 1925: Frank L. Wilcox of Berlin, William T. May of New London, C. Milton Fessenden of Stamford, Edward E. King of East Hartford, Charles F. Rockwell of Meriden and Bernard M. Donnelly of Thompson.

the towns. The income column includes $30,000 in admission taxes and the forecast in legislative circles is that this will be abolished.

The Connecticut chamber of commerce had a legislative manual ready for members' information. Unlike the official manual which will come out later, the more important measures are grouped into subjects which are of interest to chamber members. Something like 481 bills are listed out of the total of about 2,000 measures.

The list follows: Agriculture 22; appointment of new state commissions, officials and employes, 93; appropriations, 26; banking and insurance, 27; billboards, 15; courts, 32; education, 24; general assembly, 17; general welfare, 36; health, 37; highways, 38; hunting, 40; itinerant vendors, 42; labor, 43; licenses, 44; military, 45; miscellaneous, 46; motor vehicles, 49; mu-52; public utilities, 54; public utilities commission, 54; salary increases, 55; nicipalities, 56; pollution of streams, state institutions, 57; state parks, 59; taxation, 60; and workmen's compensation, 31.

The Connecticut Federation of Labor will be represented this session by John J. Egan, of Bridgeport, as its legislative committee. The federation, it is understood, has no anti-picketing or intimidation of workman bills in and has direct interest in only a few labor measures, chief of these being amendments to the compensation law, a 48-hour employment bill for women and minors, and a proposed uniform code to regulate plumbing in all towns of the state. There are labor bills which have gone to the judiciary committee. The federation is expected to oppose two bills put in "by request" last Friday, one providing in brief that if two or more workmen are shown to have agreed to go on strike or take part in a lockout they may be charged with conspiracy and given jail sentences, and the other providing a heavy penalty for anyone convicted of interfering with another person who is seeking employment.

The trolley men have a bill which would require one-man cars to have a second door for exit in case of emergency and also requiring a crew of two on all cars having a certain carrying capacity.

One of the hard worked committees this session is expected to be that on cities and boroughs which has more bills in hand than two years ago.

MATTERS AT HEARING OF HOUSE FINANCE COMMITTEE

Hartford, Feb. 3.—State Treasurer Ernest E. Rogers appeared before the finance committee this afternoon to oppose house bill number 17 which provides that the state treasurer shall not deposit state money in any bank in which or an employe of his department is an officer, director, or stockholder. He said that the bill was the only one affecting the treasurer's office before the general assembly which had not been introduced at the request of the treasurer's department in its program to safeguard itself. He maintained that the proposed bill would not "lock the doors" of the treasury as the state had seen a violation of the law regarding the amount of state money to be deposited in any bank.

Treasurer Rogers favored passage of a senate bill, raising the bond of the treasurer from $50,000 to $200,000 as a substitute measure, saying this bond would cover violations of all laws affecting the state treasurer. It was brought out by Chairman Wolcott that the state pays for the treasurer's bond.

"You would like to have us reject this bill as a vote of confidence in state officials," a query from Senator Keeney, was answered in the affirmative by Treasurer Rogers.

It developed that the bill which Treasurer Rogers opposed had been introduced by request by Judge Ailing of New Britain and he did not remember who had asked him to present it.

The bill to repeal the present tax on unincorporated business also proved fatherless, Senator Ford, of New Haven explaining that he had introduced the bill by request, but had no personal interest in it. No one appeared for it and Tax Commissioner Blodgett, confined his argument against the bill to saying that none appeared to be needed.

The driver when he saw the train turned sharply and caused his truck to skid and head for a stone wall. The train hitting the hub cap of the right rear wheel.

This is an unprotected railroad crossing and all motorists in this section stop before crossing. Tuesday's driver was simply lucky and after calming down a little went on his way.

Henrietta Burby is ill with a severe cold.

NEW LONDON COUNCIL TO INSIST ON OWNERS SAFEGUARDING WALKS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Feb. 3.—There seems now a prospect that the city of New London will have an ordinance that will result in the snow and ice being removed from the sidewalks. The matter was brought up in the council this week, when it was the expressed opinion of several councilors that conditions as they exist now must be changed, or the city would have a crop of lawsuits for damages for injuries sustained. Finally the director of law was requested to prepare and submit an ordinance covering the matter. It was the opinion of Councilor Scott that the city now had such an ordinance as was asked for and that it provides for the city entering upon property and clearing walks that are neglected, the cost of such work to be charged up against the owner of the property where the snow is removed. Such an ordinance is on the law books of the city and a case in which it was put into execution occurred a few winters ago, when property on Montauk avenue was cleared and the owner was assessed the costs. The cost in that case was such that the owner did not show neglect thereafter. The city has spent thousands of dollars in claims of the sort referred to. In recent years the director of law has fought such cases, instead of effecting a compromise in them and that stopped some of the claims. A suit brought for injuries sustained by a fall on the walk at the public library was decided in favor of the city because it was clearly proven that the city's employes had done all that could be done to remove the snow and ice and that, beside, sand had been placed on the walk to avert accidents. Where no effort is made to clear the walks, cases would not have a leg to stand on, it is believed, if suit was brought.

Councilor Streeter made an effort at the meeting to have the ordinances of the city codified, and in that he has the moral support of citizens generally, for few of them can consult ordinances and know whether they are in effect or whether they are obsolete and have been repealed. The ordinances were published in the old form of charter and again they were codified and published in the charter from October, 1921, to Sept. 30, 1922, but there have been scores of ordinances published since then that are not accessible to the citizens and few, if any, lawyers can find the ordinances printed that are in effect. It is said that Councilor Streeter does not propose to allow the matter to rest until such time as the ordinances are printed in complete and compact form. The sale of such a codified list of ordinances would probably be sufficient to pay for the printing of them.

Mayor Clark told the councilors that steps should be taken to secure a zoning ordinance for the city—that such an ordinance was badly needed and that the council should proceed to place such an ordinance in the charter of the city. He favors securing the services of an expert, if that be necessary to bring about a change that is manifestly a proper one to make in the way of doing things in this city. There have been cases where property owners have had to purchase land adjoining their premises in order to prevent the erection of unsightly structures adjoining handsome residential property.

On Montauk avenue of late land has been forced upon an adjacent owner in order to prevent the avowed purpose of an owner from erecting a single story building that was to be used for a store.

The city is not hereafter to allow its fire apparatus to go out of the city unless it is practically insured to come back in as good condition as when it left. That is the substance of an ordinance introduced at the meeting wherein the town securing the use of the apparatus must be responsible for the apparatus from the time it leaves its station here until it returns. A rental shall be charged for the use of the apparatus, but more than that any injury it sustains or any damage that may be done by its use during its absence must be at the cost of the borrower.

The ordinance was in substance satisfactory to the council, but minor changes and corrections that will put more "teeth" in it are to be made. The town of Montville recently, through its selectmen, refused to pay for the services of apparatus sent there, and was right in so doing, perhaps, but the parties who asked for the apparatus will undoubtedly settle the bill for services. That is taken for granted by the officials of the city.

Patrolman Thomas Lyden has recovered from illness and has resumed patrol duty.

An automobile owned and operated by John Clarence Lay, Station 10 1-2, Waterford, was in collision this evening, corner of Ocean avenue and Bank street, with a machine bearing Connecticut registration, 1732. Both cars were damaged.

The special committee of the city council, Councilors Edward L. Streeter, Jr., John F. Murray and Lucius E. Whiton and City Manager William A. Holt, resumed its probe to determine the efficiency of the police department tonight. There were but two witnesses, Policewoman Jane Cassidy and Patrolman Carlos Selesnitsky.

Isadore S. Machol, Main street, is in New York on business for a month of six weeks.

Mrs. Jacob Eidelshien and infant daughter, of Mystic; Benjamin Krassoms, Chesterfield; Mrs. Charles Towne and infant son, 272 Willetta avenue; Mrs. Max Goldstein, Jefferson avenue; Mrs. Benjamin Kaplan, Blackhall street, and Walter Johnson, Groton, patients at Home Memorial hospital, were dismissed today.

Angelo Capozza, 8, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Capozza, 29 Truman street, is reported as resting comfortably at the private hospital. The child sustained a fractured skull Saturday while coasting.

Postmaster Walter Slocum has caused the mail boxes at the corner of State and Bank streets and in front of the post office to be supplanted by the larger type of box and a combination one, the type that has separate compartments for letters and newspapers and periodicals.

Henry McKnight endeavored to convince Judge Crandall in the police court this morning that he was a victim of a cold and hard luck, but he did not succeed and a result he is in the county jail, which is termed the "workhouse" for a stay of about three weeks. The accused said he sought to cure a cold with a concoction of Sloan's liniment and Jamaica ginger and Konomoc. They didn't cure him, but they seem to have imbued him with the idea that he could get money by begging for it in the street. He encountered a fur dealer, named Harris, who advised Mac to get his money where he got his rum. Then complaint was made to a policeman who followed the accused a couple of blocks in which brief time he held up two men who were passing. That was conclusive evidence that he was a beggar, who begged in the highways of this city and he was charged with vagrancy. He said he was willing to plead guilty, but didn't do that, so the story the officer told was necessary to send him to comfortable lodgings till better weather comes.

Sam Corsets, claiming Norwich as his residence, and the vocation of a laborer as his occupation, was found drunk here. Sam had never been in the court on a previous occasion so he was allowed to make his way to Norwich with the warning that he was on the way to jail if he came along again. He had plenty of money to get home with, so he was advised to head that way.

Auto and taxi drivers declare that Brooks street, a steep hill from Williams street to that section known as Post Hill, is in a most dangerous condition because it is ice-covered and no vehicle can get a hold on the icy surface that will prevent it from slipping and getting out of control of the man at the wheel. They have asked in the public press for a few loads of sand or dirt on the street to make the going safe.

George J. Kiley has sold a building lot on Norwood avenue to Walter V. and Grace Louise Thompson.

S. D. Tulin, 82 Windsor avenue, Hartford, lessee of the residence, 1158 Ocean avenue, which he occupies during the summer, this afternoon reported to the police that someone was using the garage on the premises, evidently believing that the garage was a part of the property leased to him. It developed when the police made inquiry so that the occupant of the garage could be made known to Mr. Tulin, that the agent of the property had rented the garage and declared that the rental of the garage was not included in the lease of the residence to Tulin, the garage being leased separate from the house.

Silas Overton, of U. S. S. Camden, and Mrs. Harry Dugan of Union street, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were discharged today.

It is evident that the thief who gained entrance to the home of Ellsworth J. Horton, 197 Howard street, last night by smashing a rear window and who attempted to steal a radio set, was seeking possession of the radio set only, for several articles of jewelry, including diamonds, were in a bureau in one of the sleeping rooms, but these were not disturbed. The crook evidently entered the room where the radio was kept and in his hurry to make a get-away, failed to disconnect the wires with the result that the machine was dropped and the noise it made caused the police to be summoned by an occupant of the upper part of the house.

Within a short time it is said, several new names will be added to the supernumerary list of the police force, for it became known today that several young men are seeking appointment for police duty. Among these is James Guardacosta, of Shaw street a swimming instructor at Ocean Beach during the summer. Mr. Guardacosta has already submitted to the physical examination.

Clifford Rogers of East Lyme, was arrested yesterday afternoon by State Police Officer Giles Watson, of Groton barracks, charged with violation of the automobile law in operating a machine bearing 1924 markers. Rogers was later presented before Justice of the Peace Richmond, at East Lyme, and received a fine of $3 and costs. The arrest of Rogers resulted from repeated complaints being lodged with the state police since January 1st, that Rogers persisted in operating his automobile without having procured 1925 markers. When the last complaint was received yesterday Officer Watson was assigned to investigate the matter and Rogers' arrest followed.

PROPOSE ZONING SYSTEM FOR NORWICH DEVELOPMENT

The January membership letter of the Norwich chamber of commerce contains the following:

Zoning

The civic affairs committee of the chamber and a committee from the city council held a conference recently regarding the question of zoning Norwich. Request was made to the city government to petition the legislature for permission to create a zoning or city planning commission. The city officials approved the request and a bill has been filed by Representative Engler of Norwich.

Zoning is nothing more or less than planning a city for future growth and welfare of the community. No radical change in the existing order of things is contemplated. Safeguards will be established and enforced for future developments. These safeguards usually consist in establishing building lines; regulations prohibiting unscrupulous owners from making use of their holdings in such a manner as to greatly depreciate the values of neighboring properties; planning for additional traffic avenues to relieve congestions; guarding the general health and cleanliness of the community; and planning ways and means to develop the city along progressive lines. The courts have upheld zoning ordinances, so that the legality of zoning regulations is unquestioned.

Over 260 cities in this country have already adopted zoning regulations. A number of Connecticut cities are in the list. The Norwich bill will grant the city officials permission to appoint and confirm a zoning commission which will function when the city adopts the plan.

Eastern Connecticut Civic Association

This association, fostered by the Norwich Commercial travelers and supported by civic organizations throughout eastern Connecticut, has submitted several bills to the legislature calling for various public improvements in this section of the state. These include the addition of several connecting roads to the state highway system; widening narrow bridges located on state highways, to the width maintained on the highway; providing adequate safeguards by the state, at railroad crossings on the trunk state highways. Two of the narrow bridges mentioned are located at Bean Hill and Franklin at the entrance to Norwich, both over the Yantic river.

Thames River

A second hearing has been granted by the United States board of army engineers on the proposed deepening of the river channel. The hearing was set for Tuesday, February 3rd. Because of the necessity of being properly represented, and the inability of all the chamber's representatives to attend on the date specified by the board, a request for postponement was made and granted. The new date has not yet been announced but will probably be made for the latter part of February or the first of March.

Mayor Waters has expressed the interest of the city government in this project, and the desire to cooperate in every way possible to have this matter brought to a successful issue.

General Harry Taylor is now chief of the board of army engineers. He is thoroughly familiar with the Thames river, having had charge of this district in the past.

The last hearing on this project was held in Washington on May 5th, 1923 and was successful, because it secured the detailed survey to determine the cost of deepening the channel.

There are some who believe that the deepening of the channel is for the sole purpose of assisting one or two large business interests located on the banks of the river in Norwich. This is not true. The sole purpose is to advance the interests of Norwich, not any individual or individuals. There is no selfish motive in this activity of the chamber save that for Norwich Remove the boat line, permit the river to become unnavigable for freight, and there is but one result—Norwich becomes rated as an inland city with the consequent inland freight rates. The factor of service also enters the proposition. Competition is created not only as regards freight rates, but likewise as regards service. Rates and service mean much to an industrial community.

State Park

A bill has been prepared and submitted to this session of the legislature for the appropriation of a sufficient sum of money to purchase the site of the proposed state park in Montville, near Norwich. This tract of land is ideally situated for park purposes and has great historical value of the colonial period.

A conference on this project was recently held in the chamber's offices attended by State Central Committeemen George H. Bradford and Albert J. Bailey; Senator Lee Roy Robbins; Representatives Charles W. Cassidy, George G. Engler and Ambrose Sullivan of Montville. The bill was presented by Representative Sullivan and has the support of our local representatives and also of all eastern Connecticut legislators.

Parking Space

Consternation fell upon local business men and those interested in the welfare of our city when it became known that the New Haven railroad officials enforced an order prohibiting public parking adjacent to the railroad station. This is the largest public parking space convenient to our business section. Approximately one hundred automobiles can be accommodated on that area. Therefore the loss of this privilege is a most serious blow to the parking situation in Norwich. The order to prohibit parking at railroad stations of the New Haven company is general.

The reasons given are the abuse of the privilege by the public in some cities; and the opportunities offered the company for added income by leasing their properties for parking purposes. The officials of the company stated that the Norwich public did not abuse the privilege to the same extent as that committed in other communities. Consequently Norwich is the last place to have this order enforced.

Several offers have been made by private concerns to the company for leasing the local space at the station. Charges would be made for the privilege of parking under a leasing arrangement. Whether or not the officials will sanction a lease is unknown at present.

When it became known that the order was being enforced here, Mayor Waters and the chamber became active in the matter. A conference was recently held in the chamber's offices with the officials having charge of this section and the mayor. The matter was discussed fully and freely. It is possible that the city officials will consider leasing this space in order to preserve, for the benefit of the public and the general welfare of the city, the largest parking area that the city enjoys. In all fairness to the railroad, especially in these days of financial troubles, one can not deny the right or the justice due the company to obtain every financial assistance that can fairly be secured.

Parking spaces are essential to the welfare of the community. Especially is this true of Norwich, the banking and business center of eastern Connecticut. The business of Norwich should not be restricted.

Earl Carrol, theatrical producer now in Baltimore with his show Vanities, was removed to Johns Hopkins hospital. He is in a serious condition following a heart attack.

PUT "GREEN" DRIVERS THROUGH INTELLIGENCE TEST

An intelligence test would be given to persons applying for their first license to operate motor vehicles on the public highways, under a plan which the state motor vehicle department of Connecticut has evolved in connection with an effort to secure uniformity in the operators' license systems of thickly populated states of the east. A movement to educate the public to the need of such uniformity in this respect has been under way for some time, in connection with which the Connecticut department has published a pamphlet giving the laws and regulations of nearly all the states on the subject, which includes the following outline of what the examination of "green" applicants should be:

"The examination into fitness is, in itself, a great safeguard for life and property. Its proper administration makes it possible for a competent examiner to immediately discover any obvious defect which the applicant may have, to inquire into his mental processes, his general intelligence, his ability to read and write and, lastly, his actual ability to run a motor vehicle properly and with safety to himself and others. All of these elements must enter into any examination.

"A. INTELLIGENCE TEST. In actual practice an examination of this kind means that the examiner has (1) to form a rough and ready opinion of the general intelligence of an applicant. This is done as a matter of course. The applicant who presents himself before an examiner can be met in a friendly and interested manner and ordinary subjects talked about in connection with the examination which is to come. Any one who responds readily and quickly to questions and who acts and looks normal should, in the absence of anything in his appearance to put the examiner on his guard, be passed as to this section of the examination.

"(2) In most examinations the applicant has to fill a blank which applies for a license. He ought to fill this himself and strictly correct answers should be required. In some instances the blank which is presented has in the past been unfair, in the sense that the questions do not suggest the answer required, but any imperfection of this nature in the administrative practices of the license issuing authority will demonstrate itself quickly for correction.

"B. THE LAW TEST. The next procedure should be an examination into knowledge of driving law and practices. The examination into the law might be a written examination and be given on the basis of the issuance in each state of a list of large number of questions, at least a hundred—on the motor vehicle law of that state, from which number certain ones will be asked. These questions could be given wide publicity. It would follow that any applicant would learn the answers to the whole list. A test on one or two would then be sufficient to demonstrate his knowledge because it follows that if he knows the answers to one hundred questions on the law, he knows the law.

"C. THE DRIVING TEST. The examiner must give a road test. It must be severe. Anyone who cannot actually operate a motor vehicle correctly and well must not be passed for, while it is a fact that a beginner is usually cautious, yet the issuance of a license is a privilege to go anywhere under any conditions of traffic. So the examination must test out the proficiency of the applicant in traffic. He should be able to do any of the ordinary things which he will be required to do again and again in actual driving. The examiner should reject him on the very first slip of importance. Here the judgment and discretion of the examiner will be invaluable, and each case will be handled by him as an individual proposition. He should be willing to assist and instruct an applicant who has made a slight slip through nervousness, but, in a general way, the time of the examiner ought not be spent in teaching people to drive. He is there to discover whether they can drive or not and, if they cannot, in his judgment, they must not waste his time but be forthwith rejected.

"D. DEFECTS. The details of an examination go into all sorts of determinations. Can the applicant read direction signs? Can he drive hand and horn signals? Is he considerate in passing others? Can he properly use his brakes? his spot light? Mainly, is he observing and cautious? There are people who are entirely deaf; others who cannot hear in one ear; still others who have one leg only, or one arm only. For each of these cases the test is bound to be whether, notwithstanding the physical infirmity from which the intending operator suffers, he can operate the car as well, by compensation of senses or adjustment of machinery, as he could if he had the sense unimpaired or the member which is gone.

"In making an examination the examining authority must always remember that traffic conditions are getting steadily worse, that a defective is more apt to be a bad driver than one who is not defective, and he must draw the line strictly, without fear or favor, to cut out any one who will be a danger.

"The license having once been issued, it has proven a safe proceeding to continue to renew it from year to year as a formality, up to a period of three years.

WILL FAVOR PAYING BACK NORWICH MAN'S MONEY

Hartford, Feb. 3.—Two favorable and two unfavorable reports are due in the house tomorrow from committees, the fish and game committee rejecting bills repealing all laws protecting wild quadrupeds feeding on privately owned land, repealing all laws prohibiting snares and snaring at the request of Representative Bugbee of Old Lyme who introduced them by request. The claims committee will report favorably on a bill providing a pension of $30 a month for two years from May of this year for David A. Howard and Sarah Howard, of Greenwich, parents of the first member of the Connecticut National Guard to die after the militia was called out during the war. The claims committee will also favorably report a bill paying Henry T. Couchman of Norwich $200 collected by the state after he had been convicted of driving while drunk. The case was later re-opened, when it was found that he was trying to crank his car and was not driving and nolled on terms, but he was unable to secure reimbursement at that time from the state.

The fish and game committee at an executive session this afternoon followed hearings on a number of bills voted to report favorably on a bill introduced by Mrs. Woodward of Bolton, which provides for closing Bolton lake to fishing through the ice from February 1, 1926 to April 30, 1926.

HOW TWO WOMEN AVOIDED OPERATIONS

The Following Letters of Mrs. Thurston and Mrs. Beard Carry an Encouraging Message to Other Sick Women

MRS. ETHEL THURSTON
824 N. PINE STREET, LIMA, OHIO

Lima, Ohio.—"I want to tell you how your medicine has helped me. For weeks I suffered with awful pains from inflammation and I was in such misery that I had to bend double to get relief. I could not be touched or jarred, had awful pain all over my abdomen and could not touch my feet to the floor. It was impossible for me to straighten up and the pains never ceased. I took treatments for some time and finally was told I would have to have an operation. I do not believe in operations, and I had read so much about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that I told my husband I would try it before I gave up. I soon began to feel that it was doing me good. The awful misery began to leave me, also the backache. I have a good appetite and am gaining in weight. Taking the medicine was the best thing I ever did. I feel like it has saved my life and I do not hesitate to say so to my friends. At least it saved me from a dreaded operation and I am still taking it. I am willing to answer letters from women asking about the medicine."—Mrs. ETHEL THURSTON, 824 North Pine Street, Lima, Ohio.

Mrs. Beard's Letter

Eddy, Texas:—"I will write you a few words, thinking it will do some one else good. Two doctors said I would have to be operated on because for nearly twelve months I suffered from a weakness from which I could get no relief. I was restless and nervous and was not able to walk across the house. They said it was the Change of Life. I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised in the newspapers, and as I could not get any help from doctors I thought I would give that a trial. I began with the liquid and it helped me some, then you advised me to take the tablet form and I began to improve rapidly. I have gained in weight from 106 to 170 pounds. I recommend it to all women with this trouble."—Mrs. M. E. BEARD, R. No. 1, Box 143, Eddy, Texas.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Lyceum Theatre, New London

Michael Mindlin rose quickly to theatrical fame when he startled Broadway with his sensational mystery play, "The Last Warning" at the Klaw theatre two seasons ago. From that initial success he has moved cautiously and now again produces what he calls a great love drama in "Houses of Sand" by Marion Burton. It will be seen and heard at the Lyceum theatre, New London on Friday and Saturday of this week, with a popular priced matinee on Saturday.

To stimulate interest and fasten on the memory the salient characteristics of the play Mindlin is offering a substantial cash prize for the best solution of a cross word puzzle envolved from "Houses of Sand" by Miss Margaret Petherbridge one of the inventors of the game for the New York Sunday World. All details may be had from the folder at the box office of the Capitol or Lyceum theatres.

Mindlin already has stamped his individuality on the theatre. He is the champion of the composite cast of best actors hireable. He will not unbalance a performance with a star in a star part. "The Four Horsemen of Notre Dame" he said the other day will go down into history as the best back field, together not individually in football history, and any company I organize will be noted for the total whole of their acting.

Daniel V. Arthur has coached the eleven players in the cast of "Houses of Sand." And here is the list of this team on which Mindlin will stake his reputation. Vivienne Osborn the lovely Climene of Sabatini's own dramatization of "Scaramouche" and formerly leading woman for William Faversham and William Courtney; Paul Kelly schooled under David Belasco and Robert Mantell as a youngster and recently the dashing, handsome Capt. Barry McGill in "Whispering Wires;" Gladys Hanson starred by David Belasco in "The Governor's Lady" and was Sherazada in "Mecca"; Ethelbert Hales, leading man with Jane Cowl, Fay Bainter, Mary Nash and Viola Allen; Elsie Bartlett, the beautiful wife of Joseph Schildkraut and his leading woman in "Lilion"; George Probert the renowned Japanese prince of the drama and Edith Shayne, leading woman with John Drew.

FINANCIAL TOWN MEETING DEALS WITH BUDGET FIGURES

(Special to the Bulletin)

Westerly, Feb. 3—Over an hour was taken by the Westerly financial town meeting Tuesday night in the Westerly town hall for the passage of the town budget figure, as recommended by the budget meeting of the Westerly Town Council Thursday last. It was the item of $100,000 appropriation for highways and bridges for the year 1925. John J. Dunn sought to have the amount raised from $100,000 to $110,000 and it was only after a stubborn contest that the $100,000 appropriation prevailed.

The meeting was called to order by Town Clerk Everett E. Whipple who stated that owing to the death of Eugene B. Pendleton there was a vacancy in the office of town moderator. Samuel H. Davis named Lewis Stanton as moderator and he was elected and sworn to his duties by the town clerk.

Richard J. Butler read the report of the Westerly town auditors. Dr. M. H. Scanlon inquired as to how much time was spent and what was checked up of the $300,000 which the books and vouchers showed. He said that he was not complaining of the auditors' work, but thought it high time that the town started a system of proper bookkeeping. The report was approved and ordered filed.

James M Pendleton read the report of the sinking fund commissioners and it was approved For the town treasurer's report, Mr. Pendleton, the treasurer, said that the printed book had not been received but that the debt statement was the most satisfactory in years, the $126,410.81 increase was for the erection of schools, $140,-197.50 spent on schools, $14,373.32 increase in sewer construction, making a total of $155,171.42 If it had not been for these the indebtedness would have been reduced actually $30,000. Extra income figures were $4,109 for the sale of one school and $2000 from the Shore Line railway for the removal of rails on High and Canal streets. The report was approved and placed on file.

Lewis Stanton for the Westerly Water Commissioners said that the greatest change in figures was an increase in cash on hand of $7,000 and the expenditure of $23,000 for new construction, out of revenue from the water works. This report was approved and filed.

For overseer of the poor Oliver P. Crandall, the report was read by the moderator showing expenditures of $4,016.66 and $1,738 for outside poor with a balance on hand of $291.70 out of an appropriation of $6,000. In the hospital account no charge was made for ambulance services by the Westerly Sanitary Corps.

The report of the highway commission in the absence of chairman Charles J. Butler was presented by Engineer Adolph L. Leon. The reading being omitted as voted and the report was received and approved. Thomas Ferry for the Westerly school committee was the only department to present a printed report which was approved.

This brought the meeting to the point of approval of the budget which Town Clerk Whipple stated was the one passed by the town council and which he read as follows: Highways and bridges, $100,000; support of the chools, $133,500; evening schools, $700; grading, etc., for new schools, $65,000; police, $14,500; town hall, $6,000; town officers, $12,500; street lights, $14,000; printing and advertising, $12,000; trees $250; support of poor, $6,000 (the council budget figure having been $5,500); poor in hospitals $500; interest on notes, $28,000; state tax $21,-000; assessors plats $500. The miscellaneous amount was for books and supplies for public libraries, $200; Budlong Post, D. A. R., $150; Robert Brucker, Spanish War Veterans, $25; Band Concert, $100; county agricultural agency $200; and South County Poultry Association, $200; payment of bonds for schools $20,000; city planning $1,100 and town advertising $1,-000.

With this amount a committee consisting of Lewis Stanton, S. H. Davis, Howard Thorp, Walter C. Hiscox and Raymond A. Vars was named to have charge of the disbursement, if authority was granted by the Rhode Island Legislature to use the above amount and to prepare an itemized statement of expenditure.

Attorney John J. Dunn inquired, when the budget figures were taken up item by item, where the $100,000 was to be expended; Engineer A. J. Leon reviewed the work of the previous year showing a $23,000 use for part of this amount and the balance to be spent on the streets rcommended in the report of the highway commission. Mr. Dunn moved that Tower street between Granite and Oak streets be added to the schedule and the $100,000 appropriation be increased to $110,000, saying that the street was in a horrible condition (with holders, rocks and stones to upset automobiles and carriages) and that the expenditure there would save the town future lawsuits.

Town Treasurer James M. Pendleton warned the taxpayers that if this amount was appropriated to keep the total amount within the debt limit, $10,000 would have to be taken from the school, police, or light appropriations. A lengthy argument followed participated in by John J. Dunn, George B. Utter, Walter S. Price, A. J. Cappuccio, Frank Lynch, Frank G. Booth, Charles F. Barry and Engineer Leon as well s S. H. Davis, who questioned the statement of a former speaker, George Dolan. During the discussion there were somewhat personal remarks and heated arguments.

At length the appropriation amounting to $110,000 came to a vote and Moderator Lewis Stanton made the count by a rising vote with the close result, 57 no, 63 yes. Mr. Stanton said that the result was so close and he would require a paper ballot, using a check list of qualified taxpaying voters, Mr. Dunn questioning the accuracy of the check list produced by Town Clerk Whipple. After a half hour's balloting the result was announced 70 no, 62 yes and the motion declared lost. Mr. Dunn moved an amendment that $5,000 of the $100,-000 be expended on Tower street. This amendment was lost following the motion to appropriate the original amount. The remainder of the budget figures were voted approved as read.

Charles Perry was voted a member of the sinking fund commission for a three year term.

Dec. 31, 1924, the outstanding debt of the town of Westerly as showed by the audited accounts, amounted to $1,252,648.70.

The meeting adjourned shortly before 10 o'clock.

Greene of Tucson, whose flock was the high producer for the month, with an average production per bird of 16.4 eggs. Regarding this excellent showing, Mr. Boggs says: 'The outstanding feature of B. I. Greene's high production of 16.4 eggs per bird is that he has the greatest number of birds of any co-operator. At present he has 910. Only proper feeding and good management of good stock can bring such results. Congratulations, Mr. Greene.'"

DISCOVERY OF SKULL THAT RESEMBLES MISSING LINK

Capetown, Feb. 3.—A fossilized skull, whose owner is believed to have been probably nearer the missing link than the broken hill or Java specimens, has been discovered at Taungs, Bechuanaland, by Professor Dart of the Withwatersrand university. He ascribes the greatest importance to this find.

Professor Dart said that the skull, which was buried in limestone at a depth of 50 feet, represents something midway between man and the great apes and is much finer than the previously discovered prehistoric skulls. Its owner, he said, was not human, but was yet more intelligent than the gorilla or chimpanzee. The creature was unable to talk, it was explained, but his mind had advanced in the direction of one whose offspring ultimately attained the faculty of speech. According to the professor, he must be regarded rather as a man-like ape than as an ape-like man.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theater

Candy chairs, human chocolate drops and peppermint sticks, candy stickpins—candy, candy, candy, hundreds of pounds of it in decoration to make a setting for a ball in which the hero, risen to wealth, is dashed to ruin—such is the striking "spectacle" of Cecil B. De Mille's new Paramount picture, The Golden Bed, which opens at the Broadway on Sunday.

In the case of The Golden Bed, screenplay by Jeanie MacPherson from Wallace Irwin's novel, this unusual "candy ball," comparable in its size and magnificence to the Cinderella "plate glass" ball in Forbidden Fruit, marks the climax of the affair between Admah Hoke, "poor white trash" risen to wealth, and proud Flora Lee Peake, who despises him but loves his money. Rod La Rocque is Admah and Lillian Rich, De Mille's new "find," plays Flora Lee. Others featured in leading roles are Vera Reynolds, Warner Baxter, Theodore Kosloff and Julia Faye.

Palace

In the opera Il Trovatore, which the San Carlo Grand Opera Company will present at the Palace, February 9th, Verdi has been perhaps more lavish with his melodious outpouring than in any other of his works. Music lovers who know the work find aesthetic enjoyment in such well-known airs as The Night Peacefully Reposing, in Act 1, following which the graceful and engaging soprano aria for Leonora. Of such a Love How Vainly, while the familiar romanza, Lonely on Earth Abiding is later heard to the accompaniment of a lute.

A trio seething with passion and hate is sung by the man later in the act: Fires of Jealous, Despised Affection—and the opening chorus of Act 2, is so well known as hardly to need quotation here—the famous Anvil Chorus in which the gypsies working at their forges swing their hammers in rhythm with the music. Azucena's equally famous aria, Upward the Flames Roll follows. It is in this scene that the members of the San Carlo Company sing their best. In the convent cloister the count sings of his love for Leonora, The Radiant Gleams of Her Smile; while he air, Oh, Fatal Hour, is later heard realized by those music lovers who went to opera. There are choruses for the nuns, and also one for Ferrando, and the soldiers, while Manrico's air, See the Fyre Blazing; oh, Sight of Horror, is famous the world over. The line All Else Failing, I Die With Thee, contains the famous high C, which, however, was not written by Verdi, but by a tenor who later sang in the work.

The Miserere, chorus will find many reminiscent friends and Manrico's celebrated air, Ah, How Death Still Delays, is one of the many beauties of Il Trovatore. This opera is regarded the world over as one of the most tuneful in the entire Italian repertoire.

At the Palace

Much enthusiasm is being circulated about the city over the forthcoming American Legion show Bimbo which is to be presented next Tuesday and Wednesday evenings at the Palace theater with a cast of local amateur performers numbering over one hundred and fifty. Rehearsals have been steadily progressing under the direction of Samuel B. Wiener the professional coach in charge of the artistic endeavors of the local thespians. The chorus groups are rapidly perfecting the spectacular and dance numbers in the show and Norwich can well be proud of the undeniably fine talent that has been assembled for the Legions annual production. The Bimbo Maids, Toddle Dancers, Bandits, Models, Tourist, and Dwarfs represent a small portion of the huge cast and these groups are presenting some new and novel dance interpretations.

News that George Madden, comedian of well known ability, would be seen in one of the principal comedy roles was received with a great deal of interest in amateur theatrical circles. Mr. Madden has appeared in many home talents and his appearance has always been greeted with the best kind of enthusiasm for his performances have been among the high spots of amateur theatrical history. Mr. Madden will be remembered as the Sheriff in Kathleen last season and this years role offers a much broader scope for this well known comedians abilities. He will take the part of no less a person than the General of the Army of 'Bimbo.'

There has been a great demand for reserved seat tickets, and those holding tickets can exchange them at Engler's Broadway Pharmacy Saturday morning at 9 o'clock.

College Concert

Spain, that romantic land of the past, rich in tradition and poetic beauty, has produced many great men. Among these, Pablo Casals, the 'cellist who will appear at Bulkeley Auditorium under the auspices of Connecticut college, Monday evening, February 9, holds a very high place. Born in Vendrell, Spain, not the least of the encouraging influences in his career was his own family. His father, an organist of some note, began the musical education of his son at the age of three. He gave the boy Pablo, instructions in solfege, piano and organ; later in composition, which was to be his real vocation. Casals, however, after he had taken his first lesson on the 'cello dispelled that idea.

When he was about nine, he heard his violin teacher play on the 'cello. It was the first time he had heard the instrument and he was enchanted. It seemed to combine something of all the other instruments with a quality of its own still finer than any of them, he thought. He was determined to study it at once, and he did.

At eleven or twelve, he was already a dnished musician, capable of making his own way in the world. He was sent to Barcelona, then as now a musical center of no mean repute, to study under Garcia. There he played the organ in church, as did Bach in his early youth,—of whom Casals now stands acknowledged the greatest living interpreter. Soon he joined the orchestra of the opera and played the 'cello in one of the largest cafes. But by that, it must not be understood that he played the part that the Jazz bands play in our cabarets. The Spanish cafe music is like that of our best concerts. Casals was soon recognised as a prodigy and the cafe where he played was thronged. His fame attracted from all over the country. Musicians came to hear the marvelous Spanish boy, among them the famous Arbos and Albeniz. The latter gave him a letter to Count Morphy, a great patron of the arts, the secretary of Queen Maria Christiana, and musical guide to both Casals and the present King. This letter was not delivered for three years, for Casals was unable to leave Barcelona because his parents objected on the ground of his extreme youth. Meanwhile the Queen to whom knowledge of his extraordinary promise had penetrated, granted him a pension which enabled him to devote himself more fully to his studies.

The more explaining a man does the less use the world has for him.

TAFTVILLE

Wilfred Desmarais, a student at St. Mary's Seminary, Baltimore, Md., is the guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Desmarais of South A street.

Ladies Auxiliary, A. O. H. held their regular monthly meeting Tuesday evening in their rooms in Parish hall.

Thomas L. Sharples of Lynn, Mass., spent the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Sharples of South Second avenue.

New signs have been placed on posts near the Taftville entrance of the Lisbon bridge.

William Wolfenden of South B street has resigned his position with the Ponemah company.

The monthly meeting of the Ponemah Wheel club was held Tuesday evening at the clubhouse on Norwich avenue, with a large attendance.

Clarence Whitman of New York, who is listed as one of those donating $1000 to the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, is remembered by local people, as he presented the Taftville Congregational church a piano a number of years ago.

Andrew Zilnska of Central Falls, R. I., a former Taftville resident writes friends here that he is sailing from New York for Danzig February 14th for a visit with relatives in Poland.

Income tax blanks continue to arrive in large quantities at the Taftville Postoffice, and many of those who are liable for the filing of a return, are busy accumulating the necessary information.

Amede Demers who has been spending the past three weeks in the village has left town.

The flock of crows which spends the winter each year in the woods north of the village is noticeable less in numbers this year. For the past six or seven years, with the exception of one, when they wintered in the hemlock trees in Lisbon, these birds have been spending the cold weather in the same spot. At times the flock has been so large that they were a nuisance to the villagers, as several hundred crows can make considerable noise. The birds begin to gather late in the fall, and new groups continue to arrive until February, when they begin to disperse.

Those interested in hunting and trapping were agreeable surprised in the sudden rise in the value of muskrat pelts last week. Although northern skins invariably bring higher prices because the quality of the fur is higher, New England skins are now bringing the highest prices of the season. Muskrat when properly treated is made into a high priced article and is sold under the name of Hudson seal.

A Taftville man was greatly surprised Tuesday when he opened an envelope received by mail and found therein a certificate for 20 shares of stock of a well known industrial corporation, registered in the name of a person who he had never heard of. The broker sending out the stock evidently made a mistake in the address as the local man never placed an order for it, or even asked about it, or even asked about it. He will return the certificate to the brokerage house whose address appears on the envelope, although no letter accompanied the certificate.

Frank Volkman of Boston, was a business caller in the village Tuesday.

CORNS

Lift Off—No Pain!

Doesn't hurt one bit! Drop a little "Freezone" on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers.

Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the foot calluses, without soreness or irritation.

INJUNCTION TO PREVENT STOPPING ICE HARVEST

Richmond in his ice harvesting operations on a pond which divides property of both parties in the town of Stonington, in a temporary injunction granted by Judge Allyn L. Brown in the superior court at New London Tuesday morning. Attorney Morris B. Lubchansky, counsel for Richmond, brought the action for the injunction.

Both parties claim half ownership of the pond and Richmond claimed that he was being interfered with and prevented from harvesting on it.

TRYING AUTOMOBILE SUIT FOR DAMAGES OF $10,000

The February session of the New London county civil court convened in New London at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning with Judge Allyn L. Brown presiding. Four cases were assigned for trial Tuesday, but two, those of Isham Beckwith vs Lillian Beckwith, administratrix, and Sistare against the Connecticut Co., went off, and a third, that of Pelton, admr., against Saxton et al., was settled out of court. The fourth case, that of Mrs. Hilda Kallstrom of New London, against William E. Caulkins of Lyme, went on trial before a jury at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

Judge S. Victor Prince appeared for the plaintiff, who claims damages of $10,000, as a result of personal injuries, received when, in crossing Ocean avenue, New London, on June 29, last, she was struck by the automobile operated by Caulkins. The injuries, according to the bill of complaint, confined her to a hospital for four months, and has left her permanently crippled. Attorney George C. Morgan represents the defendant.

Most of the morning session was spent in drawing jurors. Thirty-five were summoned, but 16 were excused, the remaining 19 being held for duty. Those retained were Almarin T. Hale, Claude W. Cheeseman, Herbert N. Avery and Albert G. Ayer, New London; Carroll H. Bliven, George B. Lewis and Allyn Ecclestone of Groton; Frederic Morey, Cornelius Crandall and George E. Leonard of Stonington; William A. Ritchie, Dwight O. Kelsey and James F. Bingham of Montville; Austin S. Lamb of Ledyard; Herbert Leland of Waterford, and John Sharp, Elvin A. Stanton, J. Lee Beebe and Harrison W. Bond.

CHARGED WITH FIGHTING AT DEW DROP INN

Twice in two days has Anthony Cini of Old Mystic run afoul of the state police and been booked for breach of the peace. Linked with him the first time was Charles Vinai of Mystic, for a disturbance in Ledyard, and the second time Arthur Weich of Mystic, with whom he staged a fistic combat at a dance in Dew Drop Inn, North Stonington on the night of Jan. 23rd.

Oscar Main of Ledyard complained to the state police at 12.30 Sunday morning that Cini and Vinai were in the home of his sister creating a disturbance. State Policeman Henry J. Albright placed the men under arrest and they appeared before Justice of the Peace Buckingham of Ledyard Monday evening where they paid $1 and costs each.

A subsequent investigation by State Policeman Giles Watson into a brawl which took place in Dew Drop Inn more than a week ago, linked the name of Cini with that of Weich. Cini was therefore held in $50 bond for hearing in North Stonington, directly after the hearing Monday evening, and Weich was placed under arrest and released under a similar bond, pending their arraignment on breach of peace charges.

PLAY GIVEN AT ROUND TABLE BANQUET

The annual banquet of the Norwich Round Table was held Tuesday evening in the Sunday school room of the Universalist church, where the ladies of the church catered, serving the following menu: fruit cocktail, chicken pie, peas, rolls, Waldorf salad, ice cream, cake and coffee.

Music was furnished during the banquet hour by an orchestra of ten pieces, led by Robert Otis and including Douglas Hunt, James Bradlaw, Stephen Peckham, Benjamin Palmer, Theodore Moore, Donald Gildersleeve, Reginald Laubin, Donald Grieco and Everett Smith.

The roll call was answered by funny stories. President E. A. Tracy and Mrs. Tracy, who are spending some time in Florida, sent greetings from there.

A play entitled An Economical Boomerang, was cleverly given by a cast that included Mr. and Mrs. William H. Collins, John E. Vaughn, Mrs. C. C. Gildersleeve, Miss Susie Whittlesey and Miss Mary Avery. The men of the Round Table sang some old songs pleasingly in the program of the evening, which was in charge of Mrs. C. C. Gildersleeve and Mrs. W. H. Collins.

DRAWING TEACHER SPEAKS TO PRIMARY COUNCIL

The January meeting of the Primary Council was held Tuesday evening at the Broadway school with supper served at 6 o'clock in charge of Miss Lillian Stetson. In the absence of Miss Jennie Congdon, the president, the meeting was called to order by Miss Sarah Shereshevsky and matters of a routine nature were transacted.

Miss Mary G. Henderson, the drawing supervisor, gave a very instructive talk on paper cutting in the lower grades and explained to the teachers what she liked to have accomplished in the way of paper cutting. In connection with her talk she showed samples made by the children in the local schools.

Second Birthday Party

A pretty party for the second birthday of her daughter, Phyllis was given on Monday afternoon from 3 to 5 by Mrs. James Cundy of Union street. The dining room was prettily decorated in pink and white and the favors were pink Valentine hearts. A birthday cake and a large Valentine occupied the center of the table. Mrs. Cundy served dainty refreshments after which the children enjoyed games. The children present were Alice and Dorothy Brinkman, Phyllis and Ellen Cundy, Rita Donnelly, James Cundy, John Spicer, Edward Lewis and Henry Brinkman.

Fortune-telling is neither a trade nor a profession—it's a cinch.

FOUR BREEDS FIGHT FOR HONORS AT STORRS

All the principal breeds in the contest, namely, Rocks, Reds, Wyandottes and Leghorns, vied with each other for honorable mention in the thirteenth week of the Storrs laying contest. D. Hart Horton's pen of Rhode Island Reds from Farmingdale, L. I., that finished first last week was again at the top with a score of 47 eggs. Another pen of the same breed owned by F. H. Sampson of Springfield, Mass., ran a close second with a total of 46 eggs. Hobart E. Rice's pen of White Leghorns from Barre, Mass., was in third place with a record of 45 eggs. Ellen Day Ranken's pen of White Rocks from Huntington, L. I., and Louis T. Ayotte's pen of White Wyandottes from Waterbury, Conn., tied for fourth place with 43 eggs. Out of the 140 pens entered in the contest these were the only five that were able to lay 40 eggs or better. Continued snow and ice storms plus subnormal temperature ranging to ten degrees below zero have held the hens in check. The total production for all pens for the thirteenth week was 3,247 eggs or a yield of a little over thirty-three per cent., a loss of 134 eggs as compared with the production for the previous week.

On the 15th of December state officials declared an embargo against shipments of live poultry from outside the state. This order prohibited shipments of extra or reserve birds intended for the laying contest unless the owner lived in Connecticut. To make the arrangement perfectly fair and equitable for all concerned the management of the contest at once suggested to Connecticut breeders that they voluntarily accept the same regulations that applied to all fellow breeders beyond the borders of the state. In other words the college did not wish to take any possible chance of jeopardizing the success of the entire enterprise. It is now expected that arrangements will shortly be made with the commissioner of domestic animals whereby reserve birds can be sent in to bring the pens up to their full quota of ten birds. The management of the contest will in all probability demand some sort of health certificate and in addition new birds will, of course, be quarantined before being placed in the competing pens.

The leading pens in each of the principal varieties are as follows:

White Rocks.

Ellen Day Ranken, Huntington, L. I., N. Y.	487

The Employed Boys Brotherhood of the Y. M. C. A. met Tuesday evening at 6.30 o'clock with 18 attending. The club started a year ago with a membership of three and within three months the membership increased to 30 boys. The leadership of the club is under the direction of Emery Davis and Mr. Block who have made a success in helping the boys select their occupations for the future.

Future meetings of the brotherhood are planned on a more elaborate scale as an entertainment committee has been selected. In two weeks the members will go to Hartford to attend the boys' conference.

NEW POSTAL PAY AND RATE TO REPLACE SENATE BILL

Whipped Into Shape by House Postoffice Committee—Measure Would Raise Within $7,000,000 of Total Necessary to Meet Pay Increases and Almost Double the Amount Estimated in the Senate Bill—House Leaders Expect to Bring It to a Vote Tuesday.

Washington, Feb. 4—Whipping its measure into shape overnight, a new postal pay and rate increase bill, to replace that passed by the senate, was brought out today by the house post office committee. Leaders said they expected to bring it to a vote next Tuesday.

Representative Kelly of Pennsylvania, republican member of the committee, and officials of the post office department, estimated that the measure would raise approximately $61,000,000, within $7,000,000 of the total necessary to meet the pay increases and almost double the amount the deparement estimated was provided in the senate bill, which the house refused to consider on the ground that it was revenue producing legislation.

The committee report, presented to the house late today by Representative Moore, republican, Ohio, estimated the increases as follows:

First class mail, $10,000,000; second class—publications $2,998,282; transient, $1,000,000; third class, $18,000,000; fourth class, parcel post, $13,600,000; third and fourth class insured service, $2,058,147; C. O. D. service, $1,103,879; money orders, $3,583,490; registry, $3,930,000, and special delivery $900,000.

Final class mail, picture souvenir postal cards, two cents instead of the present one; letters and ordinary postal cards, unchanged.

Second class: Three zones instead of eight as now, with rates of 3 cents a pound in the first zone, embracing the present first, second and third zones; six cents in the new second zone, embracing the present fourth, fifth and sixth; and nine cents in the new third zone, embracing the present seventh and eighth zones. The rates on scientific, fraternal, and similar publications would be raised from 1 1-4 to 1 1-2 cents a pound in all zones, and the transient rate, for occasional mailing of publications would be one cent an ounce.

Second class: Three zones instead of eight as now, rates 2 cents a pound in the first zone, embracing the present first, second and third zones; six cents in the new second zone, embracing the present fourth, fifth and sixth, and nine cents in the new third zone, embracing the present seventh and eighth zones. The rates on scientific, fraternal, and similar publications would be raised from 1 1-4 to 1 1-2 cents a pound in all zones, and the transient rate, for occasional mailing of publications would be one cent an ounce.

Third class: With an eight ounce limit; 1 1-2 cents per two ounces, except for books, catalogues, seeds, plants, etc., where one cent for two ounces would be charged.

Fourth class, (parcel post): Two cents service charge on all parcels, except those originating on rural routes, and a new special expedition charge for 25 cents for parcel post.

HEARING BEFORE HOUSE AIR CRAFT COMMITTEE

Washington, Feb. 4—A flood of information on the condition of the army and navy air services was turned loose today with unexpected suddenness before the house committee investigating the air craft industry, and before the committee adjourned the subject had spread to the army and navy departments and the floor of the house.

The committee members aroused by charges that army and navy officers had been "muzzled" to prevent their telling the truth about the efficiency of aircraft in war, shifted rapidly at today's hearing from one phase of the situation to another, and announced their intention to sift the matter to the bottom.

The committee obtained and made public a "confidential letter," in which Secretary Weeks asked that "General Mitchell furnish all facts on which he based recently statements seriously reflecting," on the army air service and its administration in his testimony supporting unified control of the government's air services.

It also considered in executive session a resolution to place it on record as regarding removal of General Mitchell from his present position as detrimental to the army air service, but action on it went over until tomorrow. Such a change in General Mitchell's status would return him to the rank of Colonel.

Representative Perkins, republican, New Jersey, the committee examiner, announced that three naval officers had asked not to be summoned for testimony, as they could not give their honest views for fear of being disciplined, and he stated later that he had been informed unofficially that Rear Admiral Moffett, chief of the bureau of aeronautics of the navy department and Brigadier General Mitchell, assistant chief of the army air service, were to be transferred from their present assignments.

Secretary Wilbur denied that the navy department attempted to exercise any censorship over the testimony of naval officers testifying before congressional committees. He refused, however, to comment on the subject although he indicated that when General Mitchell's reply is before him he will make a public statement announcing his decision and setting forth reasons for it.

SAYS THICK TONGUE IS NO PROOF OF DRUNKENNESS

London, Feb. 4.—Tongue twister tests as applied by the English police to persons arrested on suspicion of having imbibed too freely are not fair, in the opinion of Sir Purves-Stewart, senior physician at Westminster hospital.

Speaking before the society for the study of inebriety, he declared that such catch phrases as "terminological inexactitudes," or the "Leith police dismisseth us," were all right in the cases of elocutionists, school masters, lawyers or others of the learned professions, but would not do for the ordinary man in the street who comes into the hands of the police.

There was only one infallible proof of drunkenness, said Sir James, and that was in the finding of alcohol in the system by scientific tests.

Montreal, Feb. 4.—Rene Francois De Vleeschouwer, known at the Huberleau orphanage as Brother Usmar, who is charged with manslaughter in connection with the death of Hector Dallarineau, 8, as the result of an alleged scalding, was unable tonight to furnish the $5,000 bail demanded and was taken to Bordeaux jail.

Brother Usmar was accused before a coroner's jury today of administering a hot bath to the boy, who died last Saturday from the effects of the alleged scalding. Brother Usmar was arraigned before Judge Monet in chambers this afternoon, where bail of $5,000 was set.

BODIES OF TWO CHILDREN FOUND IN BRUSH PILE

Los Angeles, Feb. 4—Indications that May and Dina Martin, aged 12, and 8 respectively, who disappeared from their home here August 23 last and whose bodies were found today in a shallow brush pile grave in one of the suburbs, had been attacked and then slain, were revealed by deputy sheriffs working on the case.

First examination of the bodies did not disclose any marks of violence, but the clothing of both had been considerably torn and a shoe was missing from the smaller girl's foot.

The bodies lay face downward, badly decomposed, in a ravine covered by hastily gathered brush. County autopsy surgeon Wagner will hold a post mortem examination to determine, if possible the cause of death.

In the meantime, squads of deputies from the sheriff's office are taking up the thread of the search for the two little girls that began last summer and ended today at the grave in the gulch.

The new hunt, however, is directed about clues which may reveal the identity of the person or persons believed to have done away with the two children.

BELIEVE POISON CAUSED DEATH OF TWO STUDENTS

Columbus, Ohio, Feb. 4.—Belief that poison and not cerebro-meningitis was the cause of death of two Ohio State university students was further strengthened late today when a preliminary anaylsis of the organs of David Pusken, of Canton, Ohio, who died suddenly Sunday morning, revealed traces of poison.

The analysis was made by Dr. Clayton S. Smtih, of the College of Medicine.

Physicians earlier had credited Pusken's death to cerebro-meningitis.

TRUTH, STRIPPED OF BIAS, BASIS O FNEWSPAPER SUCCESS

Columbus, Ohio, Feb. 4—A service of truth, coupled with an idealism, is responsible for the prosperity of newspapers of the world, Kent Coope of New York, assistant general manager of the Associated Press, told newspaper publishers and editors at a meeting of the Associated Ohio Dailies here tonight.

Describing the material side of the newspaper, he said that truth stripped of bias had made the newspaper the tremendous practical success that it is today.

"Far more important that these evidences of the magnitude possible," he said.

The newspaper had its inception in human passions—the desire for gain, the desire to lampoon and brand an enemy, the yearning for power as well as the wish to curb it, but finally it strove to aid in the incorporation of right and justice into the appraisal of human endeavor, he said.

"From that stage of inception it passed into an era where inventive genius created machinery and greatly magnified its opportunity. At the same time compulsory primary school education created almost a universal ability to read. A literate public brought about the enormous demands for newspapers, and inventive genius supplied the machinery to supply the demand at an infinitesimal cost to the individual reader."

He reviewed briefly the customs of some of the old time editors and said they dreamed an idealism and were able to clothe that idealism with a practicality that made it a substantial force in the business of collecting domestic and foreign news.

"With fortitude they embarked upon a cooperative endeavor to obtain this news and opposed themselves to a privately-owned organization which sold the news that comes from afar. These men have brought down to us of today the importance of accurate reporting. Their idealism made this business great, and it is our opportunity to follow them and keep it great."

SCOVILL COMPANY WOULD INCREASE CAPITAL STOCK

Hartford, Feb. 4.—Authority to increase its capital stock from time to time by any amount within the net worth of the company without further permission from the general assembly is requested by the Scovill Manufacturing company, of Waterbury in a bill which was before the legislative committee on incorporations today. The present capital of the company is $25,000,000. Permission is also requested to increase the number of directors from the present board of nine members to a number which may be deemed advisable for competent handling of the business. William J. Arking, of Waterbury represented the company at the hearing.

The request for permission to issue additional stock also provides that the company be allowed to change the par value of its stock from the present valuation of $10 a share. The question of whether an issue of stock of no par value would enable correct competition of the state tax on authorized capital stock was raised by Senator Joseph B. Griffin. Mr. Larkin explained that permission from the secretary of the state would be necessary for each issue, under the provisions of the bill, and the amount of stock issue and net worth of the company would be stated at that time which would allow the treasury department knowledge of the amount of taxable stock.

Leominster, Mass., Feb. 4—General Manager Henry C. Page of the Worcester oConsolidated Street Railway Company announced today (your) Division Superintendent George E. Bus lines are being operated on the lines affected by the new proposition and competition has been keen.

Fa[illegible] Against Collins, Imprisoned in Cave

Covered by Another Cave-In Just As Rescuers Were About to Effect His Release

Cave City, Ky., Feb. 4—(By the A. P.)—Without the slightest warning a section of the side wall and roof of Sand Cave fell today and sealed Floyd Collins, 35 year old cavern explorer, in his underground prison just as rescuers felt they were about to effect his release.

Tonight Collins lies in exactly the same place where a boulder caught his leg at 10 o'clock Friday morning as he was crawling toward the entrance. But volunteer workers are pecking away from the other side and hope to reach him within a few hours with a chisel and an acetylene torch. The torch will be used to heat the rock which holds his legs, if the legs are still fast. Collins, himself, was unable to say definitely whether he was footfree or not, having told cave men first that he could move both legs and later that he could move neither.

After heat has dried the rock, the smallest member of the party will chip away with his chisel until a hole is made large enough to permit Collins to withdraw his foot, or others to withdraw it for him. Only one man can approach the cave prisoner at a time. Whatever work he does must be limited to what force he puts behind short strokes, as the passageway will not permit freedom of arm movement.

If this slow method is successful and Collins' feet are freed, it probably will be necessary to place the leather harness about his waist again and drag him from the point of imprisonment. Collins is so enfeebled that his own efforts in all likelihood will be fruitless under most favorable circumstances.

All members of the party agreed, however, that further timbering was essential before they should venture toward Collins. The debris of the slide has been somewhat cleared and small stones and sand which caved in during the afternoon while several men were working in the channel also have been cleared. The afternoon cavein was a minor affair, it was said. Small rock fell behind one of the rescuers but he squirmed out safely.

For three hours this afternoon all work was devoted to bracing the ceiling with short props. Timber around the cave was cut and men with saws dotted the hills turning out short logs.

At two tents near the cave entrance coffee and food are served to men who emerge, weakened and cold, from Sand Cave. It is a strenuous task to reach Collins and return, regardless of whether any other work is done enroute.

One way passage requires 20 minutes to half an hour and several men have collapsed when reaching the surface.

A group of national guardsmen, some from Bowling Green and some from Smith's Grove, have roped off the entrance to the cavern and onlookers are kept at a distance.

Dr. William Hazlett arrived today from Chicago, where Mrs. Emmons Blaine commissioned him with funds and necessary equipment to perform an amputation operation, if necessary, to liberate Collins. The Collins family, however, will agree to amputation only as a last resort. Considerable doubt has been expressed as to whether a man of Dr. Hazlett's size could proceed far enough in the narrow passage to reach the prisoner.

Dr. Hazlett left his train at Louisville and flew to Cave City by plane. An accompanying plane with a newspaper man as the only passenger became lost in the clouds and landed at Horse cave, some distance away.

REPORT LATEST CAVE-IN HAS BEEN CLEARED

TO TRY BURN ROCKS WITH ACETYLENE TORCH

Sand Cave, Cave City, Ky.—(By the A. P.)—William B. Miller, staff correspondent of the Courier-Journal, Louisville, tonight entered Sand cave at the head of a dozen men, who will make a determined effort to remove several feet of earth which fell during the day, blocking the passage to for almost six days.

where Floyd Collins had been trapped

The undertaking is generally admitted to be the most perilous one made so far in an effort to release Collins' foot, pinioned down by a huge boulder Firday morning as he was leaving the cave after an exploration trip.

Miller took with him an acetylene torch with which to try to burn away the rocks which now bar the way.

Riot Gun Wounds Fatal to "Big Mike"

Shot by Chief of Police Nichols and Patrolman Flanagan in Stratford.

Flanagan while he was attempting to shoot the officers, died in Bridgeport hospital two hours afterward. The Stratford officers used riot guns, and three of the shots took effect, but his clothing was riddled with many more.

He was wanted for the shooting of Patrolman Edward Manchester, of Stratford, after holding up a Davey brothers grocery store on November 15, and for many other robberies and hod-ups in this part of the state. He had twice been released from state prison on paroe.

UNRAVELLING DETAILS OF MYSTERIOUS PISTOL DUEL

Lexington, Mass., Feb. 4.—Only further complications of evidence today rewarded the efforts of police investigators seeking to unravel divergent clues and conflicting stories surrounding a mysterious pistol duel in North Lexington last Monday night in which George Travelene, known as a crack shot and amateur detective, was killed and Joseph Statsky, brilliant high school student and athlete, was dangerously wounded.

Statsky is under police guard in an Arlington hospital, charged with murder. His father, questioned today, admitted being on the road about 200 feet from the youths when the shooting occurred and told of taking his son home.

An autopsy today on the body of Travelene disclosed two bullets in his brain which, doctors said, might be similar in calibre to those fired from a pistol in Statsky's possession after the shooting, the authorities were awaiting the extraction of the bullet in Statsky's shoulder in the hope of gleaning [illegible] of the events of Monday night through comparison with the calibre of four revolvers which had come into possession of investigators tonight.

Investigators leaned to the theory of a collision between a correspondence school detective and a high school senior who spent his evenings in the role of bootlegger in seeking to establish a record of events on Monday night.

With Statsky's original version of the affair in their hands in which he charged that Travelene had held him up and shot him and that he had fired upon Travelene in return, the police obtained from Statsky a somewhat revised version of the shooting last night, they said. Today they obtained from George Statsky, father of the wounded boy, who admitted being nearby at the time of the shooting, a story which differs in several respects from that of his son, it was disclosed tonight.

ENDORSED FOR JUDGE OF THE SUPERIOR COURT

Hartford, Feb. 4.—Delegations from Tolland county alternately waited upon Governor Trumbull today to urge the nomination of State's Attorney Thomas F. Noone, of Rockville, or United States Referee in Bankruptcy Edward M. Yeomans, of Andover, both democrats, for judge of the superior court. The injection of Noone's name was a new development, arising from the attitude of the Tolland county bar, which, it is understood, favors the nomination of either him or Mr. Yeomans. The latter has been the subject of many letters sent to the governor and he has the endorsement of many republicans as well as democrats, who understand that the governor intends to put one democrat on the bench. Mr. Noone also has the endorsement of members of both parties, including Representative Charles Allen, of Vernon, but present indications favor Mr. Yeomans.

PRESIDENT OF CONSUMERS' LEAGUE OF CONNECTICUT

Hartford, Feb. 4.—Mrs. Rockwell Harmon Potter, of Hartford, was re-elected president of the Consumers' League of Connecticut at the 17th annual meeting this afternoon at the Y. W. C. A.

Professor Wesley A. Sturges, of Yale university, speaking on "a general treatment of the position of labor," said it was the workers' duty to advertise their problems and conditions, educating the community and enlisting the sympathy of employers.

Guy D. Gold, executive secretary of the charity organization if Hartford, on the topic, "The conditions of labor as relating to women in industry," declared something will have to be done in the future about the influx of negro women in the north, especially in Hartford. They demand a place in industry, he said, but all cannot be employed. If they will support women's rights bills they deserve the attention of women's organizations, he said.

SENATOR BRAINARD IS ACTING GOVERNOR

Hartford, Feb. 4.—Senator Brainard, who was elected to the senate by the twelfth senatorial district, became acting governor of Connecticut about midnight tonight when Governor Trumbull went out of the state for the first time since he succeeded Senator Bingham in the governorship. The senator, being president, pro tem of the senate, will act as governor until Saturday morning when Governor Trumbull will return from Washington.

PARIS AGREEMENT ALARMS IRRECONCILABLE JOHNSON

Senator From California Questions the Authority of President Coolidg to Negotiate the Agreement Without Sanction of Congress—Contends That We Have Exchanged Good Will and Friendliness For Ill Will and Hostility; For 2 1-4 Per Cent. of Something That Probably Never Will Be Paid.

Washington, Feb. 4.—The authority of President Coolidge to negotiate the Paris reparations settlement without the sanction of congress was challenged today in the senate by Senator Johnson, republican, California, one of the irreconcilables in the Versailles treaty fight.

Moreover, Senator Johnson predicted that in the years to come foreign statesmen would insist on their view that the agreement carried the United States back into European affairs despite the statement of Secretary Hughes that it bound this country neither legally nor morally to take steps for the collection of the German debt.

"And when they do," he added, "we have exchanged amity, good will, and friendliness for perplexity, confusion, ill will and hostility.

"That is what we got at Paris for 2 1-4 per cent. of something that may not, probably never will, be paid. That is the price we got for altering the policy of America, if we did alter it then, as these European claim. That is the price that we got for changing the policy of America which had been America's policy ever since the United States has been a nation."

With characteristic vigor and ardor, Senator Johnson pleaded with the senate to make a positive declaration that the Paris agreement did not bind this country to "go back 'over there'" or to become in any way embroiled in European affairs.

Such a declaration, he asserted, would be necessary to remove the possibilities that might flow in the future from the Paris conference, in which the incoming secretary of state, Frank B. Kellogg, was the principa American representative.

DECISION IN STONEHAM CASE TO BE GIVEN TODAY

New York, Feb. 4—A decision on motions for a direction of acquittal of Charles A. Stoneham, baseball magnate, Elmore D. Dier, and four others on trial for using the mails to defraud will be given by Federal Judge Winslow tomorrow.

During argument on the motion late today Judge Winslow declared that the brokerage firms of both Stoneham and Dier had "bucketed outrageously" and that they should have been prosecuted for this in the state courts.

The argument disclosed the fact that different interpretations of the indictment under which the men are being tried are held by the government and the defense attorneys.

The entire case against Stoneham, according to the government, is based on the transfer of accounts of his customers to Dier without the stocks which the customers were listed as owning. This is at variance with a previous motion on the case written by Federal Judge Hand.

While the trial was in progress today a civil suit for $11,500 was brought against Stoneham by William Helgedag, who alleges he paid for stock which Stoneham's firm never brought.

DROPPING OF LETTER LED TO CAPTURE OF MURDERER

New York, Feb. 4.—A short swarthy fellow slipped up to the general delivery window at Postal Station W, today, and slipped away again bearing a letter.

Someone bumped him and he dropped the letter.

"Butter fingers," muttered the man. "Beg pardon," spoke two detectives behind him, and they stooped over to recover the missive. As they picked it up they saw the name penned on the envelope. Together the detectives straightened with a jerk.

"Ricco Digini!" they asked.

"Well, come with us, Butter Fingers."

But Digini bolted across Bridge Plaza at top speed. It was some minutes before he was captured.

County Judge McLaughlin later remanded Digini or trial on an indictment and bench warrant for murder, issued against him in September 1923, after a hallway battle in which William Gulia was slain.

ANOTHER BLAST AGAINST END OF WORLD PROPHECIES

Washington, Feb. 4.—Another blast aimed at those members or former members of the denomination who have been predicting the end of the world on February 6, was delivered here today from headquarters of the Seventh Day Adventist organization.

Several prophecies are yet to be fulfilled before the coming of Christ, the organization adventists hold, and Mrs. Margaret W. Rowen, leader of those who have fixed the date for next Friday, have been denounced by the church leadehs.

Before the end of the world, a church statement said, "the seven last plagues must fall, and as far as we can see, not one has yet fallen. Think of men being afflicted with grievous sores, of the sea becoming as the blood of a dead man, of rivers and fountains turning into blood, of the sun having power to scorch men, of men gnawing their tongues with pain, and you have an idea of what some of these plagues will be. None of them has yet appeared.

Washington, Feb. 4.—A lamp shade costume worn by Anne Case, Metropolitan opera star, at a masquerade ball, given last night by Prince Caetain, the retiring Italian ambassador, caused her "discovery" at the height of the party when a fringe of electric light bulbs shining radiantly 'neath the hem of her skirt suddenly exploded, startled guests looked up to see the mask drop from the singer's face while she investigated the trouble, several ejaculating: "Why, it's Anne Case, the Metropolitan soprano!"

Miss Case returned to the ball in a moment or two quite unflustered, if her costume had lost something in realism.

A CARLOAD OF HIGH PROOF BEER IN CEDAR HILL YARDS

New Haven, Feb. 4.—Dominic Manochi and Guiseppe Belbrusta, both of the Belbrusta Coal company, of this city and Raymond Smith, manager of the Florio Trucking company, are expected to be arraigned before United States Commissioner Bernard E. Lynch tomorrow for alleged participation in the shipping of a carload of high proof beer found in a freight car in the Cedar Hill yards of the New Haven road yesterday. Anthony Florio, head of the trucking company, gave himself up to the federal authorities today when he learned he was wanted by them and was released in bonds of $3,000 by the commissioner.

Announce[illegible] The seizure of the carload of liquor was made today by the federa[illegible] who kept the matter a secret until they had traced the movements of the car and secured evidence to be used against those for whom warrants were issued.

John A. Morse, head of the local prohibition squad, declared tonight that the beer found in the car was worth approximately $10,000, there being 200 barrels of which he termed "high power" beer worth about $50 a barrel.

The liquor, which tested 4.86 per cent. was in a freight car being sent to the Standard Supply company, of North McKee Rock, Pa., from the "Hamilton Supply company" of this city. No such firm as the latter could be found, according to the officials.

The seizue is the largest of beer ever made here and it was disguised as barrels of glucose, the officials said.

EXPLORER ANDREWS TO ENTER THE GOBI DESERT

New York, Feb. 4.—Roy Chapman Andrews, leader of the Asiatic expedition of the American Museum of Natural History, which returned in 1923 with specimens of dinosaur eggs, plans to enter the Gobi desert and nearby regions about April 15 to continue his work, according to a letter received here yesterday from Mr. Andrews who is now in Peking.

Mr. Andrews wrote that he had secured permission from the Mongolian government to make the expedition, which will be split into three separate divisions with Mr. Andrews directing the work of each. A camel train of 100 animals, five specially built towing cars and two trucks designed for desert work will be part of the equipment. A caterpillar tractor, he wrote, had been found impractical for use in the rough country and would not be used.

Mr. Andrews wrote that the main purpose of the new expedition would be to seek material on the earliest history of man, especially as bearing on the theories of the migrations of the human race. Fossil remains, in fields already examined, also will be sought for more complete data. Mr. Andrews expressed himself as highly optimistic of the outlook for the expedition.

Anthony Carroll

New Haven, Feb. 4.—The funeral of Anthony Carroll, who died at a local hospital here last night at the age of 77, will be held Friday morning. Hardly an aldermanic committee meeting or public gathering was held that he did not attend and he usually took part in the discussions. He had not been at the meetings of late because of his age and failing health. He is survived by two brothers, the Rev. John Carroll, of Wallingford and Patrick Carroll of New York, and one sister, Mary Carroll, of this city.

The sum of $100 has been added to the Julia M. Peck fund by Thomas F. Somers, of New York. This fund was established ten years ago by Mr. Somers with a gift of $200 for the benefit of pupils in the school of the town of Windham. For the last nine years a part of the income from this fund has been used for awards for excellence in work in the eighth grade at Natchaug school, where Miss Peck, in whose memory the fund was established, was a teacher for a number of years.

Mr. Somers was born in Hampton, but the family moved during his early boyhood to Willimantic, where his father was the firm of M. Somers and Sons, drygoods, occupying a store where R. J. Galligan is now located. As a young man, Mr. Somers entered business in New York city, with the Birdsay-Somers company, manufacturers, with which he still is associated.

The check was received by Allen B Lincoln, a former schoolmate and was turned over by him to William P Jordan, treasurer of the alumni funds.

Concerning the other school funds, of which there are two, the larger is the John B. Welch fund, established in 1925 by the "Old Natchaugers." This was in honor of the principal at the Natchaug for the twelve years between 1872 and 1884, and started in 25 with about $400. Ten years later, at the time of Old School and Home Week, the fund was advanced by another several hundred dollars, and in 1920, when Colonel Welch was again in Willimantic, it was boosted to $1,-300. The income is used for awards for excellence in high school work, or for special apparatus for the high school.

The third fund is generally known as the fund of the graduating classes of Windham High school, established in 1905, with the plan that each member of the graduating class contribute one dollar from year to year. The fund grew to $435 in 1918, when the World war interfered with it so seriously that no donations have since been made.

Plans for the celebration of Old School, Old Home and Old Church Week to be held this June are to be brought forward, it is understood at a meeting of the chamber of commerce in the early spring, and it is expected that Colonel Welch, 82, of Columbia, Mo., retired principal of the Natchaug school, will be present again to welcome his old pupils and friends in Willimantic. Among the other Old Natchaugers D. P. Corbin died many years ago in Hartford and Thomas Hart Fuller died about two years ago. Frank H. Beede is still going strong as superintendent of schools in New Haven.

The case of Stephen Kucharski, postponed since last Thursday came up again in police court Wednesday morning. The charge was made by Archibald W. Buanchanan, of the state board of education, that Kucharski has been wilfully keeping his son from school after the boy had arrived at the compulsory school age. Mr. Bunchanan claims that the boy was born December 23, 1917, and the father claims it was one year later. The case was continued until Saturday morning to allow for the collection of evidence on both sides.

A meeting of the women of St. Paul's parish was held at the church, Tuesday evening, to discuss the proposed combination of all the women's organizations in the church into one. The present women's societies include the Woman's society, the Girls' Friendly, the Daughters of the King, and the Woman's Auxiliary. Under the proposed amalgamation, there would be only one church organization, with the detailed work carried out by committees, as a missionary committee to do the work of the auxiliary; an altar committee to do the work handled at present by the Daughters; a girls' work committee for the work of the Girls' Friendly and a committee for the work of the Woman's Guild. The last named organization, as well as the Woman's Auxiliary has already voted to combine, and the combination will be presented to the Daughters at their meeting Friday afternoon and to the Girls' Friendly society Monday evening. Another suggestion in connection with this centralized church women's society is that a number of neighborhood circles be formed throughout the parish. It was suggested that two regular monthly meetings, one in the afternoon and one in the evening, be held, the missionary committee to have charge of one programme every month. In the case of the plans adoption by the church clubs which have not already endorsed it, another meeting is to be held within two weeks, when a constitution will be adopted.

The assembly Wednesday morning at the normal-training school was given over to a discussion of the arrangement in choirs of the musical instruments in an orchestra, by Morgan H. St. John, the teacher of music at the training school. Mr. St. John quoted Theodore Thomas in saying that "Familiar tunes is popular music" and illustrated the different kinds of tone produced by orchestral choirs with records on the victrola. He played Edouard Grieg's "Morning" as an example of tone produced by the wood wind instruments, which he explained are the oboe, the English horn, flute, piccolo and bassoon. The English horn is really not a horn at all, but a reed instrument invented by the man for whom it was named, John Horn. Illustrating the tone of the string choir, he played Bach's Aria for G String" and the "Dance of the Tumblers" to illustrate the combination of the two choirs in orchestral music. In connection with the brasses, he described the marvelous effect produced in the tower of the Moravian church, where, early Easter morning, a choir of sixteen trombones plays the old German hymn tones and chorales. He illustrated the choir of brasses by playing the part of the first act of "Carmen" which includes the Torendor song.

George Lyman Lyon, 82, veteran of the Civil war, died at his home in West Willington, Tuesday. He was a member of Company F, 11th Connecticut Volunteers and until its disbanding a few years ago he was a member of Elisha Johnson Post, G. A. R., of Willington. Surviving him is his widow, and four children, Mrs. Charles Korner and Charles Lyon of West Willington and Mrs. Robert White and Edwin Lyon of Plainville. Gaudreau and the mass was sung by the St. Cecelia Requiem quartet. The discovery of the body of a beagle hound caught in a wire snare under a shed on the old Nelson Hammond place, in Ashford has been the cause of considerable unfavorable comment since its discovery there on Tuesday by Arthur Tanner. A round of applause greeted the motion of Allen B. Lincoln, "the gentleman from Ashford," just before the adjournment of the house Tuesday, when he voiced a protest against the use on the assembly hall for any form of commercial advertising. In referring to the bottles which had been placed on the desks containing samples of some kind of mineral water, Mr. Lincoln said, "The present instance cannot be excepted even though it looks like a temperance drink."

He was also a member of the Connecticut Historical Society and attended the Congregational church. During his lifetime he had made liberal contributions for the support of that denomination.

CHILD SLIPS ON THE ICE FALLS INTO 20-FOOT WELL

(Special to The Bulletin)

Colchester, Feb. 4.—Lillie Hankin, the eight-year old daughter of Harry Hankin on Lebanon avenue, met with a peculiar accident while coasting with her brother. The brother took the sled away from the child and she ran after him to recover the sled, slipping on the ice and falling into a 20-foot deep well. There was about three feet of water in the well. Her brother thought that she had run into the house when she disappeared so suddenly. The father heard the dog bark and ran toward the well. He thought that a cat or some other animal had fallen into the water, went over to the well and looked in. The little girl cried to her father to take her out. The father got a ladder, descended into the well and brought the girl out. The water was nearly up to her chin. The father took her into the house and called a physician who found no injury had been done her, except the wetting and cold.

METHOD OF TRANSPORTING ANTI-TOXIN TO NOME

Seattle, Wash., Feb. 4 (By the A. P.)—Of 2,100,000 units of anti-toxin on the way to Nome, Alaska, where an epidemic of diphtheria was reported January 27, 620,000 will be taken there by airplane and the remainder by United States mail, Dr. G. C. Magruder, in charge here for the United States Public Health Service, announced today.

The mail is carried by dog team down the Yukon river from Nenana, on the Alaska railroad and across the ice of Norton sound to the Seward peninsula; on which Nome is situated. The plane is to be flown from Fairbanks, 50 miles east of Nenana, by Roy Darling, former navy aviator, and is to pick up the anti-toxin at Nenana.

One million units of the serum shipped from Seattle to Seward on the Pacific Steamship company's steamer, Admiral Watson, today, was wrapped in cotton, cork, waterproof paper and adhesive tape to keep it from freezing. One hundred thousand units carried by relay dog teams from Nenana to Nome last week arrived frozen.

In a cablegram received by Dr. Magruder from Dr. Curtis Welch, representative of the United States health service in Nome, Dr. Welch said:

"If airplane shipments get through, Nome will be amply provided with anti-toxin. Subsequent shipments can follow by ordinary mail. No new cases reported yesterday. All other conditions remain same, hence very favorable."

SUBMARINE S-48 IS PRACTICALLY AFLOAT

Portsmouth, N. H., Feb. 4.—The naval submarine S-48 was practically afloat tonight on the mud bank near the entrance of Portsmouth harbor where she lodged after drifting from the nearby rocks into which she had piled in the blizzard of last Thursday night. Naval workers continued today to fill the hulls of the stranded craft with compressed air in an effort to lift her from the mud. Patches applied to the rents in the hull have made the ship virtually watertight.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

An [illegible] rutted highway brought trouble to John Trincho, public service car operator, of Ballouville, when his machine shot of the road and hit a tree standing beside the state highway, above Stone's garage at Attawaugan, Wednesday morning. It was at first believed that Trincho, riding alone, was seriously injured. Hurry calls were sent for a physician and Dr. W. A. Tanner responded from Danielson. It developed that Trincho was not at all seriously hurt. The car was quite badly damaged.

Miss Marjorie I. Gaffney, C. Clinton Cleveland and Norman Reeves, representing Killingly High School Alumni association, held an informal conference Tuesday evening with some of the members of the town school committee, relative to the association's proposal for the construction of an addition to Killingly High school, this addition to include, among other things, a gymnasium, a domestic science department and an auditorium.

Consideration was given to the advisibility of calling a special town meeting to see what action the electors might take as to making an appropriation for the addition, in view of the fact that students of the school and the Alumni association have accumulated between $5,000 and $6,000 as a nucleus for the building fund.

From what was given out about the conference Wednesday it would appear that no definite plan of action was decided upon. The project probably will be the subject of further conferences between the town school committee and representatives of the Alumni association in the near future.

In view of the fact that the estimated cost of such an addition as is under consideration is in the vicinity of $75,000, more than the cost of the high school when it was built in 1907, it will be immediately evident that the proposed undertaking is an important one and will receive careful scrutiny of the electors of the town.

Because of his lawless acts in this county and the fact that he spent a considerable time in Brooklyn jail while awaiting trial, following his arrest, there is special interest here in the affirmation by the New York court of appeals of the death sentence imposed upon Maurice ("Whitey") Diamond about a year ago, for being involved in the murder of two Brooklyn, N. Y., bank messengers, November 14, 1923, and the theft from them of about $40,000, which they were transferring from one bank to another.

Diamond's arrest here had no connection with the affair for which he, his brother Joseph, and two other young men were sentenced to death, after trial in New York in February of last year. It was on Labor Day, in 1922, that Diamond, with a companion came into this territory in what afterwards proved to be a stolen Cadillac touring car. Attention was attracted to them when they shot at a farmer who ordered them away from an orchard in which they were stealing his apples in Woodstock—at the Gardner Sumner place.

An alarm for their arrest was spread as they raced off in the car and they were subsequently arrested by a Willimantic police officer while passing through that city. Diamond as the master conspirator, later was given in the superior court at Putnam a jail sentence that he served out at Brooklyn. Nothing more was heard of him in this section until he was arrested for the crime for which he later was tried and sentenced to death. It was indicated Wednesday that Diamond's life may pay the forfeit for his crime within the next five weeks.

The car with which Diamond came into this territory was held at the police barracks here for months. In the meantime it was estiblished that it had been stolen in New York, Diamond's home city, and that it was the property of one of the officials of a coal company there.

No announcement had been made up to Wednesday as to the awarding of the contract for the proposed St. James' parochial school for which bids were opened the past month. Building of this structure will involve removal of St. Joseph's convent now located on the Franklin street frontage of St. James' church property and between the church and the present school building.

The proposed school will have a frontage of 111 feet and will be 134 feet in depth. On account of these dimensions it will be necessary to relocate the convent, which also likely will be enlarged to furnish accommodations for additional Sisters of St. Joseph, in charge of the parish school since it was established here nearly 40 years ago.

Wednesday morning, the funeral of Mrs. Teresa Colletti was held from her home in Oneco, with funeral services conducted by Rev. Oscar Normand, of All Hallows' church, of Moosup, at St. Joseph's church in Sterling. Numbers of relatives and friends attended the services. Burial was in St. Anne's cemetery at Clayton, R. I. The bearers were D. Perrin, S. Grosul, C. Charone and P. Colletti. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the arrangements.

Sanding of Main street Wednesday morning contributed in some degree to making driving over its hills and runs a little better proposition, but driving there continues to be an experience.

Harry E. Back, jr., student at Yale University, is spending a brief vacation with his parents, Attorney and Mrs. Harry E. Back.

Members of the board of relief were in town West Woodstock their room in the town hall building. To date there has been little business to engage the attention of the board.

A big snow train running out of Worcester into this territory, got tangled up at the corner of Water and Cottage streets Wednesday morning when it skewed on the ice, but no material damage was caused.

HERBERT J. BARNETT BUYS PLOT FROM FRANK A. DAVIS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Danielson, Feb. 4.—The first large real estate deal of the year in Danielson was announced Wednesday evening when Herbert J. Barnett stated that he had purchased from Frank A. Davis the entire plot of land running through from Railroad square to Water street. Mr. Barnett, who is proprietor of the Danielson garage and operates bus lines out of this place to Providence and Willimantic, said that he is not ready just now to give out a statement as to what he intends to do with the property, but that he has plans for its development. The property, very centrally located, was purchased a few years ago by Mr. Davis from William A. Burrows. Since that time Mr. Davis has done a great deal of excavating there, one dwelling that was on the property has been removed and another one remodeled for a garage rapair shop. The property will very readily lend itself as a site for such a large modern structure as Mr. Barnett requires in his business operations. Mr. Barnett would not say Wednesday night whether he would undertake construction work this year.

PUTNAM

By a unanimous vote, the members of the city council at their meeting Tuesday night passed two resolutions asking the general assembly to amend the charter of the city so as to permit the payment of salaries to the mayor and councilmen, and to increase the salaries of the officials of the city court. The resolutions were prepared by a special committee which recommended their adoption. There was no discussion of the motion to adopt either among the members of the body, and no one appeared outside the railing to favor or oppose it.

The resolutions, if enacted as part of the charter, will provide a salary of $500 for the mayor, $5 to each of the eight ward aldermen for every session of the monthly sessions that they attend, $10 for the alderman-at-large, and authority to pay the chairman of the highway committee a salary of not more than $200 a year.

The salary which the judge of the city court would receive would be $750 instead of $500, the prosecuting attorney the same, the deputy judge, who is also the clerk of the court, $450, and the assistant prosecutor, which is the same that would be paid now if there were an assistant.

Archibald Macdonald, jr., city tax collector, presented his annual report showing the collection of $57,621.76 which he has turned over to the city treasurer, Charles H. Brown. Taxes for 1924, which Mr. Macdonald has not yet been able to collect amount to $4321.97. Sprinkling taxes uncollected $105.06. Property taxes to the amount of $106.56 have been abated. Funds of the city in the First National bank total $353.27. Mr. Macdonald also reported that he had collected $1,622.53 during the past year of taxes that were due in 1923.

Fire Chief R. E. Thurston called the attention of the members of the council to some undesirable conditions that exist in the fire department. He said that there was not a general response on the part of firemen to alarms and that the right amount of care was not being given to the fire stations or the apparatus. "It is imperative," he said, "that during these cold nights station houses be kept fairly well heated so that there will be no delay in starting trucks when a fire alarm is sounded. It is also just as necessary that the apparatus be kept in condition to be available at a minute's notice."

A motion was adopted directing the fire committee to take what action may be necessary in order to correct the conditions of which the fire chief complained: It was also voted that the committee take up with Providence agents their grievances as to the ladders on the hook and ladder truck.

Layouts for a number of new streets were presented by the city engineer and the council ordered the printing of them before any action is taken for their acceptance. The streets additions to Church, Cottage, Nichols, Alpha, Morse, Mill, Powhattan, Gilman and Maples streets.

Captain of Police Jarvis made the following report for January: Sixteen arrests, 13 of them for drunkenness and 3 for violation of the traffic or motor laws. Twelve were sent to jail, one fos bound over and three paid fines and costs amounting to $452.59.

A petition was read from Charles Bove asking to have curbing laid on the north side of Richmond street. Referred to the highway committee.

A petition for the installation of three lights on Van den Noort stree: was referred to the street lighting committee.

Three building permits were asked for, one from the Child Lumber Corporation to build a garage near the corner of Church and Providence streets, one from Harry Burgess for a garage on Walnut street, one from Napoleon Lapoint for a two-story house on Gilman street. Referred to highway committee with power to act.

Meeting adjourned until next Tuesday evening when the annual budget will be prepared.

Ulric St. Marie and George Bernier have protected rights on a kneeling board, such as is used in Catholic and Episcopalian churches. Hundreds have seen the patent and wonder how so little could be used and accomplish so much.

The kneeling board operates on its own weight, is easily put down with the knee when kneeling; when not in use it swings upright.

It is noiseless, always out of the way when worshippers are entering or leaving the pew. Many good points have been adjusted. Arrangements are now being made to manufacture the boards soon.

Putnam, Feb. 4.—George M. Coffin, receiver of the First National bank, has announced that there are about $40,000 of unproven claims still at the bank. He is urging the holders of theso claims to call at the bank or communicate with him, so that the necessary steps be taken to have them proved. There is also a considerable number who have had their claims proven who have not yet received the first dividend of forty per cent. and they are likewise urged to communicate with the receiver.

The girls' basketball team accompanied the boys to Woodstock Friday evening. They clearly outplayed their opponents from the start, the forwards, Zercie and Generous, constantly succeeded in eluding their guards, while the Plainfield guards, Bakanowsky and Dudkowski, had little trouble in keeping the ball out of their territory. The centers on the visiting team were wide awake also, making the victory a comparatively easy one, although the Woodstock girls were in the game every minute. The final score was 24 to 2. The two teams were accompanied by Mr. Emery and Misses Hallock, Collins and Violette of P. H. S. faculty.

Never Kiss
A person with a cold

Colds are spread by kissing, by sneezing and by coughs. Beware of those germs. Be careful if you have them—avoid them if you haven't.

A cold means danger and discomfort. Nobody knows what the end will be. Millionsare wrecked by colds.

Yet a cold can be broken in 24 hours. The fever and headache will end, and La Grippe can be stopped in 3 days. It is folly to suffer colds, and compel others to avoid you.

The way is with Hill's Cascara-Bromide-Quinine. It is so sure that every druggist guarantees it. So reliable that millions of homes have adopted it. So perfect that 25 years have developed no way to improve it.

It does all that is necessary. It checks the cold. It removes the poisons caused by colds. It tones the entire system with two tonics of high order. It restores vitality.

This is the best way to do it. Your own neighbors know it. Millions have come to laugh at colds, because they know what Hill's does.

Once you use Hill's tablets you will always use them to fight colds. You will insist on the genuine, and won't delay. Every hour lost at the start means more hours of discomfort.

Until the world finds something better, use Hill's to check colds.

CONNECTICUT ACTS.

When the Connecticut senate refused to ratify the child labor amendment to the federal constitution by a vote of 33 to 1, it unquestionably acted in keeping with the sentiment of the great majority of the people of the state. It is needless to say that the action was in keeping with expectations, and while this insures the defeat of the resolution in this state there is no doubt but what similar action will be taken by the lower house of the general assembly when its time for action comes.

Connecticut acts to preserve its control over its own children instead of turning that control over to bureaucratic control to be administered from Washington.

Connecticut preserves for itself the right to say what regulation there shall be of the labor of its children and whether there shall be restrictions placed on persons up to 18 years of age as to work and whether there shall be laws which give encouragement to idleness among young people.

Connecticut is acting against the centralization of such activities under the belief that it is a matter which should be handled by the respective states.

Connecticut has acted in a manner which shows that it is unwilling to take any chances with what congress might do if given the authority to apply restrictions upon all under 18 throughout the nations. And when Connecticut expresses its belief that it is unwise to change the Constitution in this manner it acts in concord with 14 other states scattered throughout the country.

Connecticut has given careful consideration to the protection of its children. It has guarded against the labor of those "little children" to which such widespread reference is made and it believes that every other state should have at least as good laws for the protection of children, but it doesn't believe that the whole country should be put under the control of a Washington bureau in order to reach conditions in a few states.

SNOW REMOVAL.

Expenditures of cities for the removal of snow vary according to the amount and frequency of the snowfalls. The light precipitation requires little or no attention aside from clearing crosswalks and sidewalks in front of city property, but the heavy falls must be removed and in the removal there is much expense.

Before spring actually gets here it is figured that it will cost New York the sum of $10,000,000 for snow removal. That is a sizeable figure even for the metropolis. It could put it to fine use in many directions such as schoolhouse building, subway construction or salary raising. More than half of that sum, or $6,000,000, has already been used in removing snow. And what devolves upon New York in this direction is faced by other cities to a certain degree, depending upon the conditions.

Snow removal expense has always had to be faced but it has grown much larger in recent years because of the need of providing for present day transportation. It has even gotten to the point where the country roads as well as the city streets are cleared so that the automobiles can be used. In the days gone by it was necessary for the horses to break their way through if they could, with such assistance as a comparatively few might give them, or wait until there was an improvement and progress could be made. That isn't the case today. If there is too much snow for the operation of the autos the snow must be removed, and streets are practically cleared, not only in the center of cities but throughout almost the entire community even to the outskirts, for autos use all streets.

There is the advantage of having the aid of auto trucks in such work but it means expense nevertheless for the equipment and for the employes that go with it. Modern conditions thus require more snow removal and the giving of attention to this work over a larger area, regardless of the size of the community. The snow removal bill is therefore not only large but it can be expected that it will continue to be large and there need be no surprise if it continues to grow larger when there are numerous heavy falls.

OUR COMMERCIAL TREATIES.

In perfecting the programme for the remainder of the session the senate steering committee has starred certain measures and sidetracked others. It has listed for action certain ones which seem certain of approval while some which are bound to require more time and which will encounter opposition have been set back. That they will be reached is most improbable.

The trade treaty with Germany has been placed at the head of the list of things to be done while the Isle of Pines treaty has gone to the foot of the list. Even though the latter has been awaiting action for over a score of years it is apparent that the senate feels the need of further discussion.

But the German pact is deserving of early attention. This is a new commercial understanding with Germany required by post-war conditions. It is important that there should be such an agreement and the need of getting it out of the way at this session of congress, and without further delay, can be appreciated. Our present day relations with Germany are such that there should be a commercial treaty in existence.

Especial interest is bound to be taken concerning the treatment of this past because of the bearing it will have upon our policy in this respect. It will indicate whether the senate is going to adhere to the trade policy that is set forth in the merchant marine act adopted five years ago, whereby a decided change was required in our trade policies, even to the remaking of existing treaties, or whether the wisdom of abandoning such an effort has been recognized. The senate well knows that the presidents, Wilson, Harding and Coolidge, have refrained from carrying out the provision for the changing of commercial treaties so that favored nations trade agreements would be eliminated in the interest of more business for American vessels. The German trade agreement holds to the old form of trade policy and action upon it will disclose where the senate stands on that point.

THE POSTAL PAY BILL.

The house of representatives has insisted that the postal pay bill as passed by the senate is a revenue bill and therefore a measure which it is unconstitutional for the senate to initiate. Its refusal to accept it makes it necessary for the house to produce and put through a bill that will accomplish the same object if such is to be done at this session. The time is short, so short in fact that were it not so that the matter has been under consideration for so long it would stand little chance.

How close the house will follow the senate measure should be disclosed this week. Whether its product will find favor with the senate, all circumstances considered, whets the interest. And over and above it all there is the question as to whether the bill, which may be adopted by congress, will so meet the requirements revenuewise as to get the approval of the president, who favors such a bill but who vetoed one bill because revenue was not provided to meet the raise in pay that was authorized and who has not, so far as known, changed his mind on that point.

In the next four weeks there is time if there were not other matters of pressing importance. The task lies in being able to wedge it in amongst other bills or to get preferred attention for it when certain ones are willing to stop all other business unless their pet schemes can be given preferred places on the list. That the house will find a way to move it along is probable. How the senate will react to the situation no one would dare to attempt to predict.

GREECE AND TURKEY.

The countries of Europe cannot be unmindful of the desirability of dispelling any war cloud that may seem to be gathering over the Balkans before it develops to unmanageable proportions. It cannot be believed that there is an actual desire for war, and yet the manner in which Turkey has acted in the expulsion of the Greek patriarch, and the interpretation which Greece has placed upon it portends nothing but trouble. It is sufficient to cause all kinds of serious complications unless early and adequate steps are taken to forestall it.

Turkey takes the position that Greece should have known better than to select as patriarch a man who could not remain under the transfer agreement at Constantinople. That might have been accepted by Greece had there been the disposition on the part of Turkey to call Greece's attention to the situation through proper channels, instead of proceeding to throw the patriarch out and then tell Greece that it should have known better than select him with the expectation of having him remain on Turkish soil.

Much will depend on the outcome as to the manner in which the respective countries, which of course have no love for each other, respond to the efforts to effect an adjustment. If Turkey is right it should have no objection to the whole matter being submitted to the world court. By its indicated unwillingness to agree to such action it creates an unfavorable impression. That the powers of Europe should be displaying concern over the situation is inevitable. The chance for the league to put another feather in its cap should not be lost.

FROM LUCILLE'S DIARY

Every once in a while, no matter what the season of the year, I feel that I simply must get into the country and invite my soul with a few quiet days and long views across field and meadows. There is no place more convenient for such a little outing than Cousin Mary Goodno's beautiful place in Naperville, where the windows of her charming home look out over the broad acres of her farm. Although she is a cousin only by courtesy I consider myself free to go there.

"Well, Lucille, this is kind of you," said Cousin Mary when on last Wednesday I dropped in at Heathergate, which is the name of her place. "How did you know that I was housed with a sprained ankle and longing for company?"

"That's telling," I answered merrily as I kissed her. I deemed it quite unnecessary to confess that I did not happen to know of her accident. "I'm going to do all I can, dear, to help you while away part of your interment at least. We shall be as jolly as crickets."

It was most gratifying to see how touched she was by my devoted attention all that first afternoon and evening that I was at Heathergate. When the maid and I were helping her to bed she said that she wished to do something for me in return for all my goodness to her.

"Oh, Cousin Mary, darling, you mustn't think of that," I protested. "You know I am all for service. It's my great pleasure to do what little I can for your comfort. I feel so dreadfully sorry that you are missing all your pleasant activities. Have you season tickets to the symphony concerts this season? How wonderful it must be to go regularly! What about your Friday tickets? If you wanted to sell—"

"Sell them! Certainly not, Lucille. You're welcome to them. You can take a friend," said Cousin Mary, and of course I could not refuse her loving generosity. Indeed, I showed so much enthusiasm that she laughingly told me to go to her desk and get the tickets so I could have the childlike pleasure of having them in my possession.

The next day was, I must admit, rather dull, for the confinement was beginning to tell on Cousin Mary's disposition. I decided that we both needed a little change, so I told her that I would take a walk, but when I got out it suddenly occurred to me that it would be a lark to have a gallop in the fields on one of the farm horses.

Dan, the stableman, declared there was no real riding horse, but I assured him I could ride any steed and persuaded him to bridle a bay mare for me.

"Are you sure you can handle her?" he asked, anxiously.

"You watch me, Dan," I replied, gayly, and I mounted and rode out the barn — much faster than I intended, for Dolly was "rarin' " to go, and go we did, twice around the house, across the lawns full speed and off into the fields like the wind, with Dan running and hallooing and trying to intercept us. It was wildly exciting and I thought every minute I could get her under control, but I am sure that Dan frightened her, because she ran madly to the pasture fence, which she took at a leap. I don't know how it happened, but the next thing I knew I was rolling on the ground. As I pulled myself together and found I was intact I got up and saw Dolly simply tearing down a lane. Cousin Mary's maid rushed out to see if I were hurt and she told me that Cousin Mary, from her window, had seen me thrown and that she was terribly frightened. I hastened in to reassure her.

"Lucille," she said, crossly, "you have almost given me nervous prostration. I thought you were going to be killed and you've ruined the lawns, and goodness knows when Dan will ever get Dolly back into the stable again. Now, don't say a word, I want to be quiet after all this disturbance, if I can."

I thought it so unfeeling of Cousin Mary to scold me after what I had been through that I decided to let her be quiet as she wished, and I took the first train into the city.

I left a good-by note, thanking her for her hospitality and for the symphony tickets, saying I had taken them for two concerts as I knew that she would not be able to go perhaps for a week or two, and I felt sure that she would not want them wasted.

I do think my little visit did her some good. It broke into her ennui at any rate. Chicago News.

YOUR INCOME TAX

Deductible Taxes

Taxes paid or accrued during the taxable year are deductible within limitations prescribed by the revenue act of 1924. Such items include taxes on personal property and real estate, called taxes assessed against local benefits, such as street paving or drainage, which tend to increase value of the property assessed, are not deductible, since they are considered as constituting the cost of a permanent improvement.

The Federal income taxes may not be deducted. Other Federal taxes, however, are deductible. Examples of miscellaneous occupational taxes are taxes on properties of shooting galleries, pool rooms, bowling alleys, customhouse brokers and stock brokers. The Federal estate tax is deductible from the gross income of the estate of a decedent in ascertaining the net income of the estate subject to tax.

Postage is not a tax. It is a payment for a service. It is not an allowable deduction as a tax or otherwise to a person not engaged in business. To a person engaged in business, it is an allowable deduction as a business expense.

Taxes paid by a tenant to or for a landlord for business property constitute additional rent and may be deducted as such. To the landlord such payments constitute taxable income. Taxes paid by a tenant to or for a landlord for property used by the tenant as a residence are not deductible. In the case, they constitute a personal living expense to the tenant. In either case, if the landlord includes the amount of such taxes in his gross income, he may also take as a deduction the same amount for taxes paid. If, however, the taxes paid by a tenant include an amount for a "local benefit," the landlord must include such amount in his gross income and can not take any deduction therefor.

THE ISLAND THAT UNCLE SAM FORGOT

One of Uncle Sam's tiniest Philippine islands—at least he thinks it is his and is prosecuting his claim to it—is flourishing just now under the Dutch flag. An agreement between the United States and The Netherlands to arbitrate the question of the island's ownership has just been signed. A bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society says:

"It is conceivable that the Old Woman Who Lived in the Shoe might have known nothing about it if one of her offspring had wandered away. When the United States took over the Philippines from Spain in 1898 it acquired so many islands that, like the old woman, it didn't know what to do. The six or seven—or maybe it is eight or nine—thousand islands have never even been accurately counted and more than 4,500 of them have no names. It is not strange, then, that one of the smaller and more remote islands, though it did have a name, Palmas, was neglected for many years.

"Few of the many Philippine islets are so isolated as Palmas. It lies 43 miles off the nearest point of Mindanao, Cape San Augustin, and is the farthest southeastern bit of land claimed to be a part of the Philippines. So neglected has the islet been that many maps do not show it, and most of the gazetteers pass its name by.

"Palmas (it is sometimes called Miangas) is only a little over half the size of Central Park in New York City, being 1 1-2 miles long by 2-3 of a mile wide, a mere speck in the sea when its distance west of the 127th meridian (east longitude) which forms the eastern boundary of the region ceded by Spain to the United States, and about 40 miles north of the parallel 4 degrees 45 minutes (north latitude) which forms the southern boundary. It is therefore well within the area marked out by the treaty for United States ownership.

"There is no record of a visit by any official of the United States or the Philippines to Palmas until 1906 when Leonard Wood, then governor of the adjacent island of Mindanao, while on an inspection through the waters of his province, anchored off the island. To his surprise the little boat that put off from the island village carried a Dutch flag. It was explained to him that the native headman held an appointment from the Dutch, and that for 15 years Dutch ships had called once a year to bring supplies and take away copra. Four hundred and fifty-eight inhabitants [illegible] the islet.

"A report was duly made on this apparent alien occupation of American territory; the state department became interested; and for 17 years the matter has been under the consideration by the diplomats of The Netherlands, Spain and the United States.

"Palmas has had its 'flag incident.' In 1914 a zealous young American official sailed to the island, had the Dutch flag lowered and the Stars and Stripes run up, and then sailed away. Whether Old Glory flew for a matter of minutes or hours is not recorded but on the next American visit some years later it was found of course that Dutch influence and control had in no wise been affected.

"Spain had been asked for an opinion on the ownership of Palmas and has answered that she acquired the island by discovery and that the American title, through Spain, should be good. But The Netherlands take a different view of it. 'How,' that country asks in substance, 'can Spain have sold that which was not hers?' The Netherland's claim is that since the Dutch East India Company first acquired interests in the East, natives of Palmas have acknowledged the suzerainty of native rulers to the south, who in turn have been subject to the Dutch. The northernmost island of undisputed Dutch ownership is Nanoesa, about 60 miles south of Palmas, and farther south lie the Sangirins and Celebes.

"Palmas is probably of volcanic origin like most of the adjacent islands. Encircling it, save for one small break, is a coral reef which tames the waters that beat in from the Pacific. The greater part of the island is low, some five feet above high water, but to the northeast rises a series of hills culminating in one 365 feet high. On lowland and highland alike grow cocoanuts, the source of the vegetable gold of Oceanica—copra.

"It is unlikely that the people of Palmas are greatly concerned over the Dutch-American dispute. Coconut trees require little attention. The fruit from three trees will support a family. The climate is delightful. Life is running along altogether smoothly and easily on the island that Uncle Sam forgot."

Caetani, Prince and Mine Laborer

Descendant of one of the oldest and most influential families in Italy and living in luxury on the extensive family estate in the beautiful Roman Campaign, Don Gelacio Caetani Prince of Sermoneta, chose to make his way in the world and encountered many hardships.

Son of a senator and former mayor of Rome, he was reader at the palatial family home. After he had been graduated from the Royal University of Rome at 24 he resolved to hew out his own career rather than loaf.

Coming to America, he entered Columbia University, School of Mines, at New York. After his graduation at 26 he started to hunt a job—and became a common laborer in Idaho.

First he pushed a dump cart, then shoveled and later drilled for ore. Asked if he could run the Bunker Hill and Sullivan assay office, he said he could, got the job and had to teach himself how to do the work. Later he worked in Alaska and Mexico. Exploring the island of Treadwell and the Gulf of Taku, he with others spent an arctic winter in a hunt while he studied a project for the installation of a hydro-electric plant.

Returning to Idaho, he wholly changed the process of mining metal and reconstructed the entire plant in which he had started his career. Later he formed an engineering firm in San Francisco, and soon it was successful. Then the world war broke out.

Italy was neutral and he helped Herbert Hoover, then head of the American Relief Committee in Belgium. When Italy joined the Allies he, a lieutenant engineer, helped blast Col de Lana, went to Mesopotamia, and after three years of continuous fighting was forced to retire because of ill health.

After the war he attended the Paris Conference. At 43 he was elected Mayor of Rome but because of internal strife declined the office. A year later he was elected a National member of the Chamber of Deputies.

One of the prominent Fascisti in the offensive which led to the rise of Mussolini, he retired at 45 and began an historical work. Then Mussolini ordered him to the United States as ambassador from Italy.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

William E. Humphrey, who has been appointed by President Coolidge to be a member of the Federal Trade Commission, had a long career in Congress as one of the representatives of the state of Washington. He has been active in republican politics in the northwest for many years, but his official life has been confined almost wholly to his membership in congress. Born on a farm in Indiana, in 1862, he received his education at Wabash College and after being admitted to the bar began the practice of law at Crafordsville. In 1892 he decided to seek his fortune in the west and chose the city of Seattle as his place of residence. He speedily rose to prominence in his profession and within five years after his arrival in Seattle he had been made corporation counsel. He was first elected to congress in 1903 and remained a member of that body for more than ten years.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

CHILD TRAINING

CHILDISH FEAR
Edith Leckridge Reid

"You'd better behave for that policeman's looking at you—he grabs little boys that cry." So spoke Donald's mother when her small son was making a scene because she didn't have a penny to let him get some candy from the slot machine while they were watching a street parade. A blue-coated officer attempted to help the child locate his home and parents but Donald was so terrified to have the policeman touch him that he almost had a spasm. The nervous shock of feeling he was in the power of the man he had been taught to fear left him half sick.

One only needs to walk the streets of any city for a day to hear similar remarks by parents. "The conductor will throw you off the car," or, "See that man is watching you—he'll chase you with his cane," these are typical expressions to quiet or frighten children because the parent is too weak in discipline to control them in any other way.

Recently a doctor remarked confidentially in describing the trouble he had encountered with a frightened child, "Some one ought to wake up mothers to the fact that it is very serious to have a child fear the doctor. This child today had been taught that I carry terrible things in my black bag for children that coax for rich desserts and fall out of trees because they disobey. She raised her temperature several degrees fighting me off."

And this is only one of many. I heard a mother say to a child that was impatient about staying in bed for the necessary time after an attack of measles, "If you don't mind I'll send you to the hospital and the nurse will come along and strap you right in bed and not give you any dinner."

How much better to have read to the restless tot or planned surprises for her or to have played a new record on the victrola. She should have willingly stayed in bed because she loved her mother and had been taught to respect authority rather than through fear of being sent to the hospital.

A threat to a child always denotes a weakness in the tie that binds that child to respectful authority. Why does a mother need to tell a child a big black bear will get him if he doesn't shut his eyes and go to sleep? Probably because she has managed his bedtime very erratically. Perhaps one night, he went at seven and the next night if the family wanted to go to a movie he trailed along and was put to bed at nine or later. Now, tonight, because there are guests and Son must be disposed of summarily he is told he must go right to sleep or—then follow the penalties that will come if he disobeys, all of which instill fear into his heart that lasts until he is old enough to become disillusioned.

Can't we aim to have our children do right because it is right, and not because they fear doctors, hospitals, officers and bears? Let us develop caution and judgment but not senseless fear.

Stories That Recall Others

Willing to Oblige.

A young man who is popular among the girls was approached by a young woman who knew him quite well and who desired that he attempt to arrange a "date" with a young friend of hers.

"Well," he confidentially informed her, "I have two girls now, but it might be that I could arrange it later."

"We Can't All Be Good Looking."

One Sunday morning one of the "shieks" was taking his Sunday stroll. The young man, who had always been a great admirer of children, stopped to talk to two little girls who were walking along the street leisurely. The children had not seen this Beau Brummel before and seemed quite interested when he took such a fancy to them.

Mr. Brummel had always known he wouldn't take a prize at a beauty show, but was thoroughly convinced when, on saying goodby to the two children, he heard one little girl remark to the other, "Wasn't that an ugly man?"

"Children tell the truth. Heaven knows they do," remarked the "ugly man." "From now on I'll know where I stand."

WOULD PROHIBIT DEALING IN UNINSPECTED MEAT

Hartford, Feb. 4.—Dealing in uninspecmted meat or meat products is strictly forbidden in a bill proposed as house bill No. 291 and discussed today at the annual meeting of the Connecticut Veterinary Medical society at the Hotel Garde. The bill also provides for local appointment of inspectors by the board of health with removal by the same authorities at any time. But such locally inspected meat or meat products may be sold only within the limits of that city, town or borough and such other localities where the local inspectors may be approved. The department of health, under the provisions of the proposed bill, shall appoint state inspectors who may examine and pass judgment upon meat and meat products within the boundaries of the state. It also provides that meat, so inspected, may be sold and transported anywhere in the state, so long as it remains fit for human consumption.

The veterinarians, representing most of the cities and towns of the state, stood solidly behind fourteen proposed bills to come before the general assembly, all of which deal with animal disease, preventive measure and control.

MISS CLEASON TESTIFIED AGAINST HER FATHER

Newark, N. J., Feb. 4.—Dorothy Gleason, freshman at Mt. Holyoke college, today testified against her father, Albert J. Gleason, head of the Drake Business and Secretarial Colleges established in this and several eastern cities, in a hearing brought by her mother to test Mr. Gleason's sanity. Mrs. Gleason alleges that her husband is no longer capable of managing his affairs and seeks to have his million dollar business college and real estate holdings put in the control of a trustee.

Miss Gleason today testified that her father, who until 18 months ago was courteous, did not use profanity, and was mentally keen, then began to change. She said he became profane, discourteous, complained of being unable to sleep and could not reason normally. She admitted that she had not seen her father but twice since September because of his mental ailment.

SPEAKS TO ROTARIANS ON BILL THAT WOULD SHUT OUT QUACK DOCTORS

An interesting and instructive talk on the medical bill introduced in the legislature last week was given by State Attorney Charles E. Searles of Putnam, Wednesday noon, at the weekly meeting of the Norwich Rotary club at the Wauregan house. Attorney Searles was asked to come to Norwich to speak on the bill by the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce at the request of the doctor members of the Norwich Rotary club who had charge of Wednesday's meeting.

Attorney Searles prefaced his talk with an abundance of wit and humor, telling a number of humorous stories at the expense of the lawyers, doctors and clergymen. In taking up the serious part of his talk Attorney Searles said that the state of Connecticut has passed through a period of scandal caused by the practicing of quack physicians who have had little or no medical training. This has given the state such a bad reputation that there is only one state that will recognize a certificate to a physician issued to a doctor. In all other states the physician must pass a state examination. Everyone knows that Connecticut has just as good physicians as any other state but the bogus doctors have caused the other states to regard all Connecticut physicians with more or less suspicion when applying for right to practice.

A medical bill has been prepared and is now before the legislature, said Mr. Searles, to correct and prevent a further continuance of this evil. This bill is not by any means a "doctors' trust bill," nor is it intended to rule out any physician that is fitted for the profession. It is intended to shut out the unprepared and fraudulent practitioner. The nation's progress depends largely on the health of its people, physically, mentally and morally. We and posterity must have health. We want no bogus physician experimenting on us. If these doctors can experiment on us who is safe? Something must be done to protect the legitimate physician and this bill is to purify the profession and bar out the quacks.

Mr. Searles said he was not advocating this particular bill but that he was urging that some legislative action be taken at the present session.

The speaker was given a hearty vote of appreciation at the conclusion of his talk.

At the business session Dr. Hugh B. Campbell presided and Joseph W. Curtis was the song leader. F. Russell Smith, chairman of the Brown Musical clubs concert, reported that about 450 tickets had been sold and that there was an active demand for them.

Scout Executive F. A. Benton, who was present at the meeting, spoke briefly on scout work and called attention to the annual report, copies of which were given to the Rotarians. Mr. Benton thanked the club for the interest shown in the scout work. He also announced that there would be a stunt night at the Palace theatre on Feb. 18th which would be put on by the scouts.

The speaker on Current Events was Past President Charles A. Saxton who talked on the prevailing habit of caricaturing the chief executive of the land, saying that if the foreigner sees these cartoons in the papers ridiculing the president it is little wonder that he has little respect for the president. Mr. Saxton advocated legislation on this matter, which he considered did not tend to make the foreigner respect our laws.

Following Mr. Searles' talk Senator Park, President Campbell and H. M. Leroy spoke of the medical bill and endorsed Mr. Searles' remarks. Lucius Briggs introduced a motion that the Rotary club go on record as favoring some sort of legislation that would prevent the fraudulent doctor from practicing. The matter was referred to the board of directors.

The meeting closed with the Star Spangled Banner.

MANY STORRS GRADUATES IN AGRICULTURAL WORK

What was, in effect, a reply to Senator Bingham's criticism of the Connecticut Agricultural college in his inaugural address, was embodied in a statement laid before the appropriations committee of the legislature at Hartford Wednesday by officials of the institution.

Whereas, Senator Bingham, on exactly the same date of last month, had warned the legislature that the time had come to determine whether the college was to be permitted to develop into a "first class state university" or "follow the Massachusetts plan of leaving the universities in private hands and maintaining for state purposes a first class, well-equipped agricultural college with the object of preparing young men and women for successful farming," the statement of college authorities said that 91 per cent of the graduates of the college of the past ten years "are engaged in agricultural occupations." It continued:

"A study of the 219 graduates for the past four years in agricultural courses including agricultural science shows that 44 per cent. are in farming, 11.5 per cent. are teaching agriculture, 16.5 per cent. are in technical agricultural work, 11 per cent. are doing graduate work and 18 per cent. are in other vocations or data concerning them is lacking." In another part of the statement, it was said that "for the years 1923-24, 244 students, or 71.2 per cent. were enrolled in agricultural courses; 40, or 8.2 per cent. in mechanical engineering; 80, or 16.5 per cent. in home economics and 20, or 4.1 per cent. were specials or unassigned. Fifty per cent of the total hours of instruction is in vocational agricultural subjects, it was pointed out; 30 per cent. in the agricultural sciences and 20 per cent. in English, history and the languages.

"The training of young men and women for the improvement of agriculture is recognized as the primary purpose of the college," said the statement. "Adequate food production is vital to the state's industrial life. For the college to turn out efficient farmers is not enough; every graduate who returns to the farm should be equipped to exert an influence for improvement throughout the community. The graduate should be a leader.

"The field of agriculture is broad, covering not only the production of food but dealing with food from production to consumption. Many of the graduates of the agricultural college are scientific farmers producing the food without which we cannot live. Others are (1) teachers, (2) research men with experiment stations, (3) connected with national and state departments of agriculture, (4) commercial positions with companies dealing with feeds, fertilizers, milk, farm machinery, etc. (5) men needed for the extension service as county agents, club leaders, experts, supervisors, home demonstration agents, (6) farmers cooperative enterprises and banks call for men agriculturally trained; (7) rural journalism is another vocation (8) dietiations, (9) florists, landscape gardners, foresters, botanists, entomologists, bacteriologists, chemists, etc."

In his new position he enters a much larger field and betters himself. His many friends will be pleased to hear of his promition, although they will regret his leaving Norwich. The local plant employs about 50 hands, while the Arlington plant employs 2,000.

Mr. Welch is a graduate of Yale Law school class of 1918. He is a governor of the Norwich Golf club, a director of the Rotary club and a member of White Cross council, No 13, K. of C. Mr. Welch is a native of Norwich and has a host of friends here who wish him success in his new field.

EFFORT TO PRODUCE MORE POTATOES IN STATE

The application of science on Connecticut farms yielding a $380,261 increase in the state's potato crop last year and an increase amounting to $818,555 in the previous year's crop was described to the appropriations committee of the legislature at Hartford, Wednesday in a statement presented by the Connecticut agricultural college.

More than 1,000,000 buscls of table potatoes are being imported for the use of Connecticut people every year, according to the college authorities, and the institution is undertaking to make Connecticut soil produce a much greater percentage of potatoes used in the state. This it is doing by introducing selected northern grown potato seed, sixty nine carloads of which are known to have been used in 1923 and 65,000 bushels in 1924.

The average increased yield per acre due to the use of certified seed in ninety three tests and demonstrations carried on by the Storrs agricultural experiment station and the farmers and extension service last year was seventy six bushels," said the statement. "The total increase in 1925 was 211,968 bushels and in 1924, 422,513 bushels. At the average wholesale price of $1.71 a bushel in six Connecticut markets the latter part of 1923, potato importation in the state had a value of almost $2,000,000."

President Charles D. Beach, treasurer R. I. Longley, Trustee Joseph W. Alsop and other officials of the college were at the hearing to explain requests for maintenance appropriations aggregating $400,434 for the two years ending June 30, 1927. This was cut to $677,500 by the state board of finance, the chief reduction being one of $200,000 from an appropriation of $150,000 requested for the extension work of the college. An appropriation of $150,000 was provided by the last session of the legislature for this division. Senator Bingham, in his inaugural address, called attention to the fact that this amount was ten times the appropriation allowed for the purpose eight years previously.

CONTROVERSY IN HOUSE ON APPROPRIATION BILL

Washington, Feb. 4.—The house became so involved today in parliamentary tangles over shipping board sections of the independent offices appropriation bill that it failed to reach the roll call vote which republican leaders had announced they would demand on the Gardner amendment to eliminate the provision ofr the tariff commission.

Representative Longworth, the republican leader, who had marshalled his forces to reinsert the $712,000 item for expenses of the commission during the coming fiscal year, predicted that the vote would be taken tomorrow. He said it would show how many democrats desired to be placed on record as favoring abolition of the commission.

Defending his amendment, Representative Gardner of Texas, ranking democrat on the ways and means committee, declared that a vote for it was really not directed so much at the commission as at the apparent purpose of President Coolidge to make it a partisan body.

"My amendment," he said, "simply tells the president that he can't have money to run the tariff commission so long as he violates the letter and spirit of the law, which requires bi-partisan membership."

ELECTIONS IN EGYPT PROCEEDING CALMLY

PLENTY OF ACTION EXPECTED IN BOUTS AT DANIELSON CASINO THIS EVENING

(Special to The Bulletin)

Danielson, February 4.—Thursday evening at the Casino here Promoter Frank Barber will stage his February card of bouts. If the advance notices on the boxers, who are to meet in the ring indicate anything of their prowess, the patrons of the sport are due to see as classy a card as has been put on here this winter, and that is saying a great deal, for all of them have been more than satisfactory.

The bill comes close to being an all-star attraction for Danielson. For instance, Lew Gates, brother of Leo Gates, the famous Mohawk Indian, is to meet Billy Carney who has been substituted for Tony Smith. Carney beat Smith last week in Worcester. They are to climb into the ring here weighing 155 pounds and are scheduled to go eight rounds. Gates is a real Mohawk Indian and as tough as the moccasins his ancestors wore. He is in action every second while in the ring and has defeated such men as Jimmy Kelly, Young Laurette, Frank Carpenter and many others. Carney is a K. O. artist and has put away about a dozen and a half of his opponents via this route. He is a fast, hard and accurate hitter and should make the going plenty fast for the battling Mohawk.

There will be a lot of interest in the outcome of the eight round go between Charlie Ricardi of Worcester and Mike Scrola, the Fall River Iron Man. These boys will weigh in at 135 pounds. Ricardi has been knocking them dizzy in cities all over New England and has won 24 out of 26 bouts, losing one session to Harry Carlson and one to Sam Lucie. Scrola is a great battler, as is indicated by his title of Iron Man. He appeared at nine successive shows in his home city and always got a rousing welcome, because he delivers the goods. Scrola has lost but wto decisions in two years. Among some of the good boys he has met are Al Shubert, Frankie Britt, Terry Martin, Johnny Fox, Tommy (Kid) Murphy. Scrola has a whirlwind of action in the ring.

Still another good bout should be the one between Edward Kearney of the Submarine Base at New London and Sailor Andre of Hartford. The card calls for them to go 6 rounds at 148 pounds. Kearney is the welterweight champion of the Submarine Base and has an impressive record of victories against sailormen he has met since he started belting them around back in 1918. Kearney will have his work cut out for him in facing Sailor Andre, who is no stranger to the boxing fans that see the shows in Danielson. Andre has been battling in great form of late. He stepped into the limelight in a bout at Hartford on January 21, by outpointing Young Saxon in what the press described as a whirlwind of action. Andre's right is described as one of the hardest hitting weapons in captivity.

In the preliminary tonight Promoter Barber will send Teddy Darr of Norwich against Jimmy Crocia of Worcester. These boys will weigh in at 122 pounds and will go six rounds. As opening performers they are rated as being very good and should in their battle provide the fans an appetizer for the three star bouts that are to follow.

The C. F. C. basketball team defeated the Battery B quintet last night at the "Y" by the score of 31 to 20. The game was one of the fastest games played this year, but was marred by rough playing by the Battery B team. The C. F. C. hoopsters are yet to be vanquished on their home floor.

SUB BASE TAKES CLOSE GAME FROM COLCHESTER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Feb. 4.—Making a strong comeback in the second half, the Submarine Base just nosed out the fast traveling Colchester quintet at the State Armory this evening. With Bartz sending in some fancy throws through the hoop for scores, the tars were able to atone for a defeat Colchester gave them a short time ago at that town. The final score of this evening's game was 18 to 17 with the Base on top.

Scoring only two foul baskets in the first half for two points while Colchester had eight points. With Bartz making almost impossible baskets, the Sub Base gradually drew out in front until they were on even terms with the visitors. Bartz's work told heavily in the final outcome with the Base capturing the lead and keeping it throughout, although Colchester made a desperate attempt to come back in the last two minutes of play.

Both teams used the five man defense and that accounted for the close score in the first half. The second half found the defense slackening on both sides, and with Bartz throwing them in from every imaginable angle the Base drew out ahead at the final whistle.

Bartz lead the scoring for the night with five field and one foul goal, while Sweets the towering center for Colchester led his team with three field baskets.

CADETS WIN EASILY FROM THE MEBS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Feb. 4.—In the games played in the House League this evening, the Coast Guards struggled hard in the first half to win from the Mebs but their last minute efficiency in basket shooting brought them out in front by a score of 40 to 13. At half time the score stood at 20 to 11 for the Cadets, but the pace for the Mebs was too much for them and they had to give ground to the Cadets.

In the second game, the Dormats defeated the Acmy five by a 37 to 13 score. Taking a lead in the first half, the Acmy tied the Dormats at 14-all but lost to the superior play in the final half. Taylor and MacMahone starred for the Dormats.

FAST SKATING IN SARANAC LAKE RACES

Saranac Lake, N. Y., Feb. 4.—Good ice, fair weather and enthusiastic spectators favored the opening events here today of the International amateur outdoor speed skating championships, held on Pontiac rink. Three events were run, Leslie, Boyd, of New York, winning the 220-yard dash; Francis Allen, of Chicago, the half mile, and Richard Donovan, of Saranac lake, the one mile race.

The program for tomorrow calls for the three quarters and two mile events.

Boyd's victory in the 220-yard race was the surprise of today, the event generally being considered as the sole property of Charles Gorman, of St. John, N. B., who this year is defending his title as international champion. Boyd spurted at the finish and took the lead by a narrow margin.

The half mile event was anybody's race right to the tape. Five skaters being bounced at the finish. The one mile race was hampered by a series of mishaps.

In the second heat of the semi-final referee William Bratton called back the skaters and told them to quit stalling or all would be disqualified. All picked up speed.

In the third heat of the semi-final, Henry Nelson, of Chicago, fell and was carried unconscious from the course. He recovered later and was found to be uninjured.

William Steinmetz of Chicago, led a hot pace in the final of the mile, but fell and went out of the race. In the bell lap Allen picked up the lead and sprinted, when he too fell and was out. Donovan then continued his way to an easy victory.

MORIN-ALDI COMBINATION BEATS FILLMORE AND FOSTER

At the Aetna Bowling alleys on Wednesday evening Mike Morin and Mike Aldi turned the tables on the team of Fillmore and Foster in as pretty a match as can be seen. The Aetna bowlers fought an uphill battle throughout the nine strings the Palace combination getting away to an early lead and holding it to the end. In the ninth and last string the Palace team was leading by the small margin of fourteen pins but Morin held Fillmore while Aldi picked up on Foster finally winning the match by 30 pins. Morin rolled an exceptionally steady game getting an average of 116-3. His high string was 141. The scores:

NURMI SHATTERS 4,000 METRE RECORD AT NEWARK

Newark, N. J., Feb. 4 (By the A. P.)—Paavo Nurmi, wonderman from Finland, added another record to his list tonight at the games of the Newark A. C., when he passed the 4,000 yard mark of his 2 1-2 mile race in 10 minutes 55 seconds, bettering the mark set by Alfred Shrumm of England more than a decade ago.

The peerless Olympic star, failed, however, to reach the time for the full distance set by Willie Ritola of the Finnish-American A. C., at the Western Union games in New York last night, his figures being 14 2-5 seconds slower.

Running easily, without any apparent effort to break marks, Nurmi lapped Ilmar Prim and Gunnar Nilson, who have come to be part of his races, and circled August Fager twice.

One of the busiest men of the track was Loren Murchison, running for his home stub. Murchison captured two short dash events and then ran as anchor man for the club's relay team which captured the interclub event. In each of his sprints he defeated the outdoor star, Jackson Scholz, who won the 220 metres at the Olympic games in Paris last summer.

Willie Plant, the American walking champion, who has made the reception to Ugo Frigerio of Italy, Olympic champion, anything but pleasant by defeating him in three races, was unable to finish the two-mile distance allotted to him tonight and dropped out at the end of a half mile.

Phil Granville of Canada captured the race, leaving Charles E. Schenback of the Pastime A. C., a half lap behind and catching W. J. Modin of New York two yards from the finish. The Canadian, who was third to Plant and Frigerio last night, walked a steady race and finished in 14 minutes 32 2-5 seconds.

Clarence Fiahive of the Boston A. A., won the high jump with a lap of six feet, three inches from scratch. E. Innert of New York University with a handicap of five inches, was second.

MORE MONEY OF GRAND CIRCUIT THAN EVER BEFORE

Cleveland, Ohio, Feb. 4 (By the A. P.)—More money will be distributed on the Grand Circuit in 1925 than ever before, it was indicated today with the announcement by Secretary William H. Kinnan of three $25,000 stakes.

The first of this series is the $25,000 Geers Memorial for 2.08 class trotters to be raced at Toledo the week of July 13. The following week will see the first renewal of the American racing derby at Kalamazoo. The third, making a total of $75,000 for these events, is also for 2.08 trotters and will be staged by the Aurora Driving club, which joined the circuit last month.

In addition, stake offerings by the North Randall management during its two weeks' meeting which inaugurates the Grand Circuit season, June 22, total $37,000. These included four $5,000 stakes to be decided during the second week.

At its second meeting in August, the North Randall management will stage the rainy day sweepstakes for two-year-old trotters with a value of $10,000 which it is expected will be worth over $15,000 the day of the race, and the stallion stake which will be worth approximately $10,000.

The Matron stakes at Toledo will bring about $6,000 and events at other tracks, not yet announced, will swell the total thousands of dollars.

Grand Circuit racing here for this year at least will be done during the two weeks beginning Sept. 21, and ending Oct. 3, the announcement said.

Secretary H. D. Shepard of the Columbus Driving Park company, said it was his belief that the dates will be taken either by North Randall at Cleveland or by Toledo.

JOE BACHELDER IS IN HOSPITAL WITH INJURY

Joe Batcheider, reserve hurler of the Boston Braves, is in a Boston hospital suffering from injuries to his foot which he received while cutting ice in Beverly, Mass. Two of the small bones in his foot are fractured and he will be unable to go south with the Braves this spring.

Local people will remember Batchelder as the stocky little southpaw who pitched against the Kacey's several times with Boston teams during Bill O'Leary's reign. He came to Norwich later with the Pittsfield Hillies under Manager Art Wilson and gave promise then of becoming big league timber.

The most remarkable tobacco ever offered to pipe smokers — in quality, in value, in taste

Back about 1870, James N. Wellman developed a secret tobacco process which won instant and widespread favor. It yielded a fuller-bodied richness, mildness and fragrance which just seemed to "go" with a pipe. No one else ever knew his secret until we acquired "Wellman's Method" and by its means made "Granger Rough Cut"

CONN. AGGIES TROUNCE SPRINGFIELD IN GAME MARRED BY ROUGHNESS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Storrs, Feb. 4.—Connecticut Aggies successfully turned back Springfield tonight when in a rough game in Hawley Armory the Storrs outfit was victorious with a 28 to 13 score. Springfield took the lead at the start and it looked for a while as though the game would be a close one. An Aggie rally in the middle of the first half took the Storrs team out in front, however, and from then on the Connecticut team was never headed. Tonight's game gave a good comparison between Eastern and Western basketball, for the Springfield team, and like others of past years from that institution, plays a wide open game with much body contact. Connecticut, on the other hand, plays the eastern style, which involves a strict observance of the rule, especially in regard to body contact and traveling. Dick Dillon, of Hartford, refereed the game and his strict officiating slowed up the play of the Springfield five. Time and time again they had technical fouls called for traveling and in the last half many personal fouls were called. Springfield scored first when after four minutes of play Smith caged a basket from the floor. The Y. M. C. A. five was putting up a strong defense and for a while it looked as though they would successfully check the Aggie attack.

Connecticut soon went to the front, however, on baskets by Eddy, Schofield and Makofski and from then on they were never headed. The game in the second half was rough and hard fought with Springfield trying desperately to overcome the Aggies lead. Physical directors had many personal fouls called on them in this season and Banks was lost to his mates via the personal foul route. Makofski of Connecticut was the high scorer of the game with ten points while Schofield with nine points came a close second. Two eastern Connecticut boys played for the Aggie team tonight, Gerald Allard, former Putnam High athlete, played a star game at left guard and his close defensive work was in a large measure responsible for the failure of the Springfield forwards to cage more baskets from the floor. Paul Bitgood of Danielson was substituted at right guard where he showed up well for the Connecticut team. Berry, Smith and Loebs were the best players for the Springfield team. Berry is a former Connecticut Aggie star and his work tonight in a forward berth was of high order. The score:

HEYDLER PLEASED WITH FINDINGS OF INVESTIGATION

Philadelphia, Feb. 4.—John Heydler, president of the National league, in a statement tonight expressed gratification over the findings of the New York district attorney's office in the baseball bribery case. Mr. Heydler was in this city to attend a dinner given by William F. Baker, president of the Philadelphia Nationals, to local baseball writers, his statement follows:

"I have heard and read many fine things about baseball in the last few days, but I have never read anything more gratifying than the news of this afternoon that Kelly, Frisch and Young had again been completely exonerated of any connection with the O'Connell case, and this time by a tribunal outside of the game. I can appreciate the ordeal they have gone through for the past four months because of the suspicions under which they have suffered.

"I wish to express my personal thanks to District Attorney Banton and to Mr. Brothers for the very prompt vigorous manner in which they went to the bottom of this affair.

"I consider the finding of the district attorney's office a complete justification of the verdict so unerringly and quickly reached by the government of organized baseball, which of its own initiative and courage, imposed its maximum penalty by banishing O'Connell and Dolan and exonerating Kely, Frisch and Young."

WANDERERS TO PLAY FAST PORTLAND QUINTET

On Friday the Baltic Wanderers basketball team will play the Federals of Portland, who by all accounts have a fast team. The Wanderers, who have run up a string of victories and who are playing a good brand of basketball, are out to add another scalp to their string. In last Friday's game the fans had their money's worth when the home team managed to win out in the last few minutes of play.

The management will have as guests for this game Reverend Father O'Brien of St. Mary's church, who was born in Portland, Mr. Young, and Mr. Bulkeley of the Baltic Mills Co., Selectman Jodoin, and Reverend Father Jalbert, assistant to Father O'Brien of St. Mary's church.

For a preliminary game the Bantams will play the fast Emps of the Y. M. C. A. Both teams have a win to their credit so the fans will have a chance to see two fast junior teams in action.

The Wanderers will have on their forward line Ridgeway, Simoneau, Charron, W. Robertaile, and Sullivan, at guard the stonewall defense of Ralph Robertaile and Ragner Swanson, who saved the game for the Wanderers in last weeks game, with Coady to fall back on.

BOSTON-NEW YORK PLAYERS REACH TENNIS SEMI-FINAL

New York, Feb. 4.—Boston and the Metropolitan district will be equally represented in the semi-finals of the women's invitation tennis tournament at the Heights Casino.

Boston's brace of representatives today reached the semi-finals when Miss Anna Fuller defeated a fellow townswoman, Mrs. William Shedden, 6-2, 6-3, while Mrs. John D. Corbiere eliminated Mrs. Edward W. Raymond, New York, 3-6, 13-11, 6-4, in a match which lasted nearly three hours. New York's representatives will be Mrs. B. F. Stenz, who caused the tournament's biggest upset by eliminating Mrs. Lillian Scharman Hester of Brooklyn today, and the winner of the remaining fourth match tomorrow between Mrs. Molla Mallory and Miss Helen Hooker.

Mrs. Stenz, a veteran of many campaigns, displayed superior steadiness and driving power to win from Mrs. Hester, who was fourth in the 1923 national ranking and a member of the 1924 Olympic team. The scores were 6-4, 2-6, 8-6.

Mrs. Mallory, showing no effects in her playing of the cold which forced her to idleness yesterday, won easily in the third round from Mrs. J. D. Bremer, Boston, 6-1, 6-1.

NO EVIDENCE PRODUCED AGAINST DOLAN BY PROBERS

New York, Feb. 4.—(By The A. P.)—Three New York Giant players—Frankie Frisch, Ross Young and Geo L. Kelly—named by Jimmy O'Connell as implicated in his attempt to bribe Heinie Sand, Philadelphia National shortstop, were completely exonerated by Assistant District Attorney George N Brothers in a report made to District Attorney Banton today following the termination of the state's investigation of the scandal.

The assistant district attorney contends that O'Connell may be guilty of a violation of the penal law covering such cases, by virtue of his own testimony and the testimony of Sand but that the question of indicating O'Connell would await the return of Commissioner Landis from Panama, where he went on a brief vacation.

Mr. Brothers also contended that O'Connell's testimony does not place a stain on the record of Cozy Dolan also named by O'Connell as being the instigator in the bribe, but that Dolan's status remains unchanged due to the indecisiveness of his answers during and before Landis and his own investigation.

"There is no legal evidence to justify the belief that Kelly, Frisch and Young had anything whatsoever to do with this alleged bribe," said Mr Brothers.

"There is no evidence that they had any knowledge whatsoever of the alleged bribe, this, coupled with their excellent reputation and their manner in answering questions before Commissioner Landis and myself, points strongly to their innocence.

"Assuming that O'Connell is telling the truth in relating what he claims these players said to him, in my opinion such statements do not come within the decisions defining what constitutes aiding and abetting, etc., as set forth in Section 2 of the penal law.

"There is no corroboration of the statements of O'Connell that Cozy Dolan induced him to commit this offense. However, as appears in the record submitted by Judge Landis, Dolan by his answers in claiming not to recall the alleged talk with O'Connell of three days previous, brought suspicion upon himself which has not been removed by my examination of Dolan."

When informed that the investigation did not produce any evidence against Dolan, John J. McGraw, manager of the Giants said today, "I am glad for Cozy Dolan's sake as this should give him a chance to earn a living again."

RAY ANXIOUS TO RACE NURMI AT SHORT DISTANCE

New York, Feb. 4.—Joie Ray of Chicago, who failed by two-fifths of a second to break the mile record held by Paavo Nurmi of Finland last night at the Western Union A. A. meet, today requested that his entry in the 300-meter special at the Wico A. C. games Saturday night, in which Nurmi is to compete, be withdrawn. He challenged the Olympic champion to a mile race.

Ray said he preferred to enter the 1500-meter event, which will be extended to a mile to permit him an opportunity to break the record. The Chicagoan declared he would show his American friends that he could run his favorite distance in faster time than Nurmi has made.

The little flier attacked the Finn's attitude toward various distances.

"My record will show," Ray said in a letter to A. A. U. officials, "that for years and years I ran anybody at any distance from one-half mile up to three miles. I did not ask for special opponents, special conditions and special distances. I ran anybody, anywhere, any time and any distance in between the above two mentioned. I think that Paavo Nurmi should do the same and think that the majority of track fans agree with me.

"If Nurmi is anxious to race me at any distance nothing would suit me better than to have him meet me Saturday night."

NEW LONDON HUSBAND BEATEN UP WHEN HE RESENTS WIFE'S CALL

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, Feb. 4—Julius Stone, proprietor of a locksmith establishment, corner of Reed and Bliuman Sts., was arrested this evening by Patrolman Howard Sloan, charged with breach of the peace by Reuben Lubchansky, residing in a tenement above the Stone store. Stone was unable to secure a surety on his bond of $100 and was held for trial in the police court tomorrow morning. The arrest of Stone is is alleged, was the result of Stone being too familiar with Lubchansky's wife, Lottie Usher Lubchansky. It is understood that Mrs. Lubchansky went to Stone's place of business and remained there some time. Lubchansky waited outside the place when he became aware that the woman was in Stone's establishment. An argument, it is claimed, followed the departure of Mrs. Lubchansky from the store and when Stone realized the nature of the argument he is alleged to have gone to the Lubchansky apartment and to have remonstrated against Lubchansky's altered conduct and accusations. The argument became heated and terminated when Stone was attacked and administered a severe beating to Lubchansky. When she returned she observed that the bed had been made by a chambermaid. Miss Norton then sought her purse and although search of the bed and the room was made, no trace of it was found. Miss Norton stated that she had failed to report the theft to the police yesterday because she had reported her loss to the hotel management and felt reasonably sure that the purse, money, beads and money order receipt would be returned to her. When this did not result, Miss Norton stated, she decided to solicit the aid of the police in recovery of her property.

NUMBER FOUR

in an effort to establish Ricitelli as the man who shot and killed Herbert May, manager of a grocery store in Darien on April 5 last.

The Post road bandit sought by police of almost every city in this part of New England for many months past, dropped fighting. He was able to fire but one shot from the two loaded revolvers with which he was armed before he was mowed down by charges of buckshot from riot guns in the hands of Chief Nichols and Patrolman Flanagan. Ricciteli was given an opportunity to surrender but chose to give fight. He had shot one Stratford policeman, Edward Manchester, less than three months ago; he had the reputation of "shooting to kill." The officers accordingly did not hesitate. They fired repeatedly at the fleeing gunman. He fell in his tracks and sank into unconsciousness from which he never awakened.

He came to Stratford on a freight, after his daring holdup of the Guarantee Watch company's store in New Haven, leaving the train when it stopped to await clear signals before entering the freight yards here. He was sighted by one of the men detailed to watch the trains, and the two officers were soon on his trail.

After he had been taken to Bridgeport hospital, Lieut. George Haux Bertillon officer of the local police department took Ricciteli's fingerprints, and they were compared with those that were found on various places, proving to the satisfaction of the police that he was the man wanted for more than 20 holdups and two murders, that of Barney Muzan in New Haven and that of Herbert May, chain store manager, in a holdup in Darien last April.

Victims of the Post road bandit in this vicinity were called to the hospital, and practically all of the gasoline station and grocery store managers held up identified Ricciteli's body as that of their assailant.

Sergt. Frank Virelli of the state police office here said he was convinced that Ricciteli was the slayer of Herbert May, manager of the Atlantic & Pacific grocery store, in Darien on the night of April 5, 1924. He immediately communicated with Mrs. May, who was present when her husband was murdered, to have her come here to identify the body more positively. May was shot when he refused to put up his hands when ordered to do so by the bandit, who entered the store just after a Saturday night rush, while May and his wife were straightening records preparatory to closing.

Patrolman Edward Manchester, Stratford policeman, who was shot on the night of Nov. 15, 1924, while pursuing the bandit, who had held up and robbed the Davey Bros.' store on Barnum avenue, Stratford, also identified Ricciteli.

Manchester still has a bullet in his head from the bandit's gun, but is recovering his health and strength.

Sewed in Ricciteli's vest were several small steel saws, to be used apparently in sawing through cell bars in the event that he should be captured. In the pocket of his coat was the pair of horn-rimmed glasses invariably worn by the bandit when staging a holdup. All marks of identification had been removed from his clothing.

Diamonds and jewelry valued at more than $25,000 are locked in the safe at Stratford police headquarters, having been recovered in the satchel which Ricciteli dropped when he was shot. They represent the loot in his last holdup.

CRIMES FOR WHICH 'BIG MIKE" WAS SOUGHT

New Haven, Feb. 4.—Michael Ricciteli, of this city, alias "Big Mike," sought by the police for weeks in connection with the robbery and slaying of Barney Muzan, a fruit dealer, of this city some weeks ago and wanted by the Stratford police in connection with the shooting of Patrolman Edward Manchester of that place on the night of November 15, was shot and killed by police in Stratford today.

The shooting of Ricciteli in the railroad yards of Stratford followed a sensational and daring hold-up in this city early this morning when a bandit, believed to have been Ricciteli, held up a clerk in the jewelry store of the Guarantee Watch company here, forced him to disclose the combination of the safe and escape with jewelry said to have been valued at $25,000. The stolen jewelry was recovered when Ricciteli was captured.

Following the early morning robbery, the police worked on the belief that Ricciteli would try to make his escape by train and notified points throughout the state.

The fugitive was discovered by Chief of Police William Nichols, and Policeman P. J. Flanagan, of the Stratford department just as he hopped off a train from New Haven in the Stratford yards.

When he discovered that he had been recognized, Ricciteli's hand shot to his pocket as if he was about to pull his gun but the Stratford officers, using riot guns, fired and three bullets found their mark. Ricciteli's clothing also was riddled with bullets from the guns. The bandit fell, fatally wounded, and died two hours later in the Bridgeport hospital. The jewelry stolen from the Guarantee store here this morning was found in a bog the bandit was carrying.

The robbery of the jewelry store here this morning was one of the most daring in the long list of holdups that have kept the police here busy for the past two months.

With guns in both hands, the bandit forced the clerk, Adolph Silver, to disclose the combination of the safe and bound the latter and tied him to a drain pipe underneath a small sink. After securing the combination to the safe the bandit gagged the clerk to prevent him from making any outcry.

Silver finally worked the gag out of his mouth and his cries for help were heard by Samuel Greenwald, a tailor, who entered the jewelry store by smashing a window in the rear of the place after he had found the front door locked. Both men awaited the arrival of the owner of the store, Samuel Komroff, before the police were notified of the robbery.

Silver in his story to police, said that he had been confronted by the bandit when he opened an iron door leading into a room in the rearer of the store. Two guns were shoved into his face, the clerk declared, and the bandit said with an oath, "lay down and keep quiet or I'll give you the same dose that I gave Barney Muzan."

The police believe that the bandit had been in the store since midnight. Entrance was gained by smashing a pane of glass in a cellar door in the rear. After getting into the cellar the bandit went up a flight of stairs to a trap door and after drilling and sawing through this was able to push aside an iron bar that held the door down.

This gave the bandit entrance into the small room in the rear of the store but he was prevented in getting into the store proper by the iron bars that barricaded the entire partition between the store and the room in the rear.

Rewards totalling $6,500 have been offered for the arrest and conviction of Ricciteli and a reward of $1,000 had been offered by the Stratford town authorities for th capture of the same bandit who shot down Policeman Manchester.

Ricciteli was first arrested in this city in 1905, when 15 years of age, and had a long record on the police blotter here. He was twice sentenced to prison for burglary and had been arrested for numerous other offenses. He was shot in a gun duel at Meriden but recovered.

Electricity in Palestine

Plans for the electrification of Palestine by raising the level of the Sea of Galilee and harnessing the historic River Jordan, involving the opening expenditure of $10,000,000, are described in "Palestine—its Commercial Resources With Particular Reference to American Trade," by Addison E. Southard, American consul at Jerusalem, recently published by the department of commerce. The same project calls for the canalization of the Jordan valley from the Sea of Galilee to the Dead sea, where under irrigation, it is expected that copious crops of dates, rice, sugar cane, flax and cotton can be produced. Provision for 2,000 miles of motor highways, commercialization of the Bagdad-Cairo air route, traversing Syria, and agricultural credit banks are among the other innovations contemplated in the modernization of the Holy Land, as related by Mr. Soutard.

Cold Cure

An all-American cold cure, based on home-grown menthol, is a possibility held out by the bureau of plant industry of the United States department of agriculture. Inasmuch as menthol is now imported at a cost of more than $1,000,000 annually, government botanists point out that menthol-bearing mint plants can be a profitable crop if properly cultivated in regions where the climate is suitable. Experimental plantings in various parts of the United States in the last year have shown that the mint does not produce a high enough percentage of menthol in southern states, but in the cooler and moister northern states its culture can be made to pay.

Here Is a Mystery

"Ball Lightning" has thus far baffled all attempts at explanation. That it actually occurs cannot be doubted. Such lightning occurs during thunderstorms in the form of a small luminous ball or pear-shapedbody, averaging a few inches in diameter, which either moves freely in the air or travels along objects as if attached to them. According to Nature Magazine of Washington, the ball may be visible only an instant or it may remain for several minutes. Its appearance is often but not always preceded by an ordinary flash of lightning. It is accompanied by a hissing or humming sound.

2,700-Foot Cable

A submarine cable in one continuous length of 2,700 feet has been recently laid across the Hudson river at Garrison, just below West Point, according to the Electrical World. The make-up of the cable and the method of laying it presented some features not encountered in everyday practice. The cable is to carry current from the east side of the river to the west side for local distribution in the immediate vicinity of Garrison. Power is to be transmitted at first at 2,300 volts with underground star-connected transformers, and this will later be changed to 4,000 volts with the netural grounded.

Lights Fight Moths

Searchlights are being used in Germany and South Poland to save the forest from Swarms of caterpillors, the larvae of a species of moth. When the lights were set up at night in the woods, millions of the insects, attracted by the powerful rays, were cremated when they flew into the incandescent carbons of the arc lamps, which were not sheltered by globes.

Volcano as Lighthouse

A volcano on the Island of Sangallvador serves the purpose of a light house and requires no attention. The volcano lighthouse is about eight miles from the Port of Acajutla. It is a veritable pillar of cloud by day, and the flash of its light by night had served as a guide to mariners for nearly earl centuries.

Amethyst's Powers

Amethyst was traditionally supposed to be possessed of the virtue of warding off or curing drunkenness. The word itself, which comes from the ancient Greek, literally means "not intoxicating." The amethyst also has been held to have the power to make men shrewd in business deals.

Poetical Request

If we must part forever, give me but one kind word to think upon and please myself with, while my heart is breaking.—Otway.

Vanity Cost Life

The Assyrians were a luxurious and beauty-loving people, and both men and women were addicted to an elaborate use of cosmetics. According to history, the last monarch, by name Sardanapalus, "dressed and painted like his women," and it is due to this vanity that he met his death. One of his generals visiting him found him powdering his eyebrows and stabbed him.

Men Taught How to Cook

So many men are living alone in London that one of the polytechnic schools has started a cooking class to teach them how to prepare food properly. The classes are open to women also, as the need is quite great if these living alone on small pay are to be properly nourished. There are a great many more men at the classes, however, than women.

Accidents in London

More accidents occur in London on Saturday than any other day of the week.

What Nuxated Iron Is Made From

Sworn Statement of Composition of its Formula

It Increases the Strength and Endurance of Delicate, Nervous, Run-Down Folks in Two Weeks' Time in Many Instances.

The proprietors have authorized the broadest publication of the sworn statement of the composition of Nuxated Iron, one of the most widely used tonic, strength and blood builders in the world, so that the public may examine it for themselves and judge as to its merits.

It is conservatively estimated that this remarkable formula is now being used by millions of people in America alone. Among those who have used and strongly endorsed it are many physicians formerly connected with well known hospitals, former United States Senators, members of Congress, and former Health Officials.

Newspapers everywhere are invited to copy this statement for the benefit of their readers. It is suggested that physicians make a record of it and keep it in their offices so that they may intelligently answer questions of patients concerning it. Everybody is advised to cut it out and keep it. A copy of the actual sworn statement will be sent to anyone who desires such. It is as follows:

Iron Peptonate (Special specific Standard) Quantity given below.
Sodium Glycerophosphates U.S.P. (Monsanto.)
Calcium Glycerophosphates U.S.P. (Monsanto.)
P. E. Nux Vomica, U.S.P.
Cascarin Bitter.
Magnesium Carbonate.
Po. Ginger, U.S.P.
Oil Cassia Cinnamon U.S.P.
Calcium Carbonate Precip. U.S.P.

Each dose of two tablets of Nuxated Iron contains one and one-half grains of organic iron in the form of iron peptonate of a special specific standard which in our opinion possesses superior qualities to any other known form of iron. By using other makes of Iron Peptonate we could have put the same quantity of actual iron in the tablets at less than one-fourth the cost to us, and by using metallic iron we could have accomplished the same thing at less than one-twelfth the cost; but by so doing we must have most certainly impaired their therapeutic efficacy. Glycerophosphates used in Nuxated Iron is one of the most expensive tonic ingredients known. It is especially recommended to build up the nerve force and thereby increase brain power, as Glycerophosphates are said to contain phosphorous in a state very similar to that in which it is found in the nerve and brain cells of man.

As will be seen from the above, two important ingredients of Nuxated Iron (Iron Peptonate and Glycerophosphates) are very expensive products as compared with most other tonics.

Under such circumstances the temptation to adulteration and substitution by unscrupulous persons is very great and the public is hereby warned to be careful and see every bottle is plainly labeled "Nuxated Iron," by the Dae Health Laboratories, New York, N. Y., and that every tablet is stamped with the initials N. I. as only the genuine article is thus labeled and stamped. If you have taken other forms of iron without success, this does not prove Nuxated Iron will not help you. We guarantee satisfaction to every purchaser or your money will be refunded.

Nuxated Iron often increases the strength and endurance of delicate, nervous, run-down folks in two weeks' time.

Manufacturers' Note: Nuxated Iron is not a secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach. Nuxated Iron is not recommended for use in cases of acute illness, but only as a tonic, strength and blood builder. (In case of illness always consult your family physician and be guided by his advice.) If in doubt as to whether or not you need a tonic, ask your doctor, as we do not wish to sell you Nuxated Iron if you do not require it. If you should use it and it does not help you, notify us and we will return your money. It is sold by all druggists.

SHORT SESSIONS IN BOTH HOUSES OF THE LEGISLATURE ON WEDNESDAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Hartofrd, Feb. 4.—The house in the absence of Speaker Darbie was called to order by Representative Ernest L. Averill of Branford at 11.30 and prayer was offered by Rev. Mr. Smith of Mansfield.

A communication from the governor announced the appointment of Walter M. Pickett of New Haven as judge of the court of common pleas in New Haven county.

Disagreeing action on reference bills to committee came from the senate and on motion of Mr. Alling, the house reconsidered and concurred with the senate.

Favorable report was made by the committee on fish and game on closing of Bolton Lake and prohibits angling there.

Unfavorable report was made on bills repealing laws relating to snaring, the killing of quadrupeds and amending certain limitations in the fish and game laws. Announcements of committee meetings were made and at 11.43 the house adjourned till Thursday morning at 11.30.

The session in both houses were short as committees have not yet had time to consider and report bills that are before them. The house was in session but 13 minutes.

THE SENATE.

In the senate the sitting lasted five minutes. Rev. M. Lackey, of Hartford, served as chaplain. About a dozen matters for concurrent reference came up from the house and after these were read by Clerk Baker adjournment was taken on motion of Mrs. Merritt, of the Second district.

The New Haven road gave notice of an additional train between Hartford and Danbury, in the late afternoon to accommodate legislators and those who attend committee hearings.

Fish and Game Committee Hearing

The committee on fish and game made quick work in disposing of bills repealing all laws protecting wild quadrupeds, feeding on privately owned land and repealing laws to prohibit snares and snaring.

The unfavorable report of the committee was accepted and the bills were rejected. This committee also made a favorable report on the bill closing Bolton Lake. The water there is at a very low stage and it would be possible to fish "the pond out."

The bill closes the like for angling from Feb. 1, 1925 to April 30, 1928.

Ledyard Man's Fine Remitted.

The claims committee reported favorably the bill paying Henry T. Couchman $200 collected by the state after he had been convicted for driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor. The case was afterwards reopened and it was found that he was not driving but was cranking his car. In the time intervening between the first and second trial the money had been paid over to the state.

Cities and Boroughs

Today was "Hartford day" in the committee on cities and boroughs, the entire time being devoted to the consideration of Hartford matters. 12 bills being before them.

NO OPPOSITION TO HADLYME ROAD BILL

(Special to the Bulletin)

Hartford, Feb. 4—The roads, bridges and rivers committee had a well attended hearing on H. B. 134 introduced by Mr. Brockway of Lyme. The bill proposes to include in the trunk line system about 1 1-2 miles of road that lays between Hadlyme and the Connecticut river which will make an improved road from Norwich to the river. The portion of the road between Norwich and Hadlyme is now under construction. Among those who spoke in favor of the road being built were Judge Rollin U. Tyler of Haddam, Clarence W. Hungerford of Hartford, J. Warren Stark, first selectman of Lyme, and Judge Marvin of Lyme. No opposition was made to the bill.

PUBLISHERS' STATEMENT ON CANADIAN PULPWOOD

New York, Feb. 4.—Arthur J. Baldwin, president of the National Publishers' Association, issued a statement tonight defending the organization's recent action in presenting to Chairman Borah of the senate foreign relations committee a protest against a proposed export tax on Canadian pulp wood.

He also denied a charge by Edward Beck, secretary of the Canadian Pulp and Paper association, sponsors of the tax plan, that American publishers were preparing a propaganda campaign against the proposal by "brandishing the bogey of international hostility." The publishers' campaign, Baldwin said, was due to "a realization of the results to magazine publishers in this country who undoubtedly would be forced to absorb this tax by increased prices of their paper." He also ridiculed Canadian contentions that the proposed tax was a conservation measure.

Ninety per cent. of Canada's forest areas are crown lands, at present protected by an embargo, he said, adding that the remaining available ten per cent. was divided between Canadian mills, Canadian farmers and settlers from whom the Canadian mills mills buy in open competition with the American companies, and by several companies. The ten per cent in 1920 amounted to 22,731,743 cords, 18 per cent. of which were used for pulpwood. Only 30 per cent. of this amount was reported, he averred, declaring that this amount was but fifty-five-hundredths per cent. of the annual total consumption. He continued:

"The farmers and settlers of Canada who comprise the greater part of the population annual export to the United States about two-thirds of the 1,000,000 cords of Canadian wood which we use. They are opposed to the proposed embargo because they would be deprived of the United States market if it were decreed and would not get as high a price for their pulpwood as they would be absolutely at the mercy of the Canadian mills, practically all of whom have extensive timber limits of their own. The Canadian Pulpwood Association, composed of dealers and operators of pulpwood, have gone on record as being opposed to the proposed embargo.

The proposed embargo will be of no direct benefit to the larger part of Canada's population, namely the farmers and settlers

"It will benefit directly and immediately the comparatively few pulp and paper mill owners in Canada, and it is being fostered and proposed by them."

SENATE TO CONSIDER STONE NOMINATION TODAY

Washington, Feb. 4.—After a two-hour row the senate voted late today, 60 to 27, to consider tomorrow in open executive session the nomination of Attorney General Stone to be a supreme court justice.

Discussion of the nomination was not reached, all of the time the executive session today being taken up with debate as to whether the doors should be opened. The presiding officer ruled that a two-thirds vote was necessary to take such a course, and his ruling was sustained on a record vote, 48 to 36.

Administration leaders said neither of these votes was to be accepted as reflecting senate sentiment on the nomination; that they were purely on a question of senate rules, and that the nomination would be confirmed by an overwhelming majority.

Immediately after the senate went into executive session, a motion to consider the appointment in the open was made by Senator Overman, of North Carolina, a democrat on the judiciary committee, who first caused delay in considering the nomination in committee on account of the Ownbey case.

Senator Moses, republican, New Hampshire, who was presiding, ruled that this constituted in effect a change in the senate rules and that a two-thirds vote would be necessary. Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, counsel for his colleague, Senator Wheeler, in actions instituted against him in Montana, and the District of Columbia, appealed from that ruling.

On the vote on the appeal, seven democrats voted with 41 republicans to sustain the chair. They were Edwards, New Jersey; Glass, Virginia; Jones, New Mexico; King, Utah; Overman, North Carolina; Ransdell, Louisiana; Shields, Tennessee.

Four republicans, Brookhart, Iowa; Couzens, Michigan; Frazier, North Dakota, and Norris, Nebraska, and the two farmer-labors, Johnson and Shipstead, Minnesota, joined with 30 democrats against sustaining the ruling.

On the final vote for an open executive session, there was a split in the republican and democratic rank alike. Those voting for secret consideration were:

Republicans: Bingham, Bursum, Cameron, Dale, Edge, Fess, Herreld, Keyes, McCormick, Metcalf, Moses, Norbeck, Oddie, Pepper, Phipps, Reed, Pennsylvania; Shortridge, Smoot, Spencer, Stanfield, Wadsworth, Warren, Watson and Weller.

Democrats: Bruce, Edwards and King.

Senators Wheeler and Walsh voted both to override the ruling of the chair and for an open session.

HEARING ON RAILROAD CLASSIFIED FREIGHT RATES

Washington, Feb. 4—Efforts of the interstate commerce commission to eliminate discrepancies in railroad classified freight rates in the eastern section of the United States, which have resulted largely from horizontal percentage increases and reductions of general rates since the war, was brought today to the stage of hearings.

R. M. Collyer, chairman of the Trunk Line Railroad Rate Association, the first witness called, was given two days to set forth the railroads' view of the situation, and at the commission's request, filed a tentative mileage scale which they consider applicable to the problem of readjusting the schedules.

R. W. Barrett, counsel for the Lehigh Valley and for the association, told the commission it was the carriers' purpose to cooperate in every way to work out a new classification.

The hearings and other proceedings in the case are expected to continue for several months, although most of the alterations contemplated in existing rates are said to be slight.

AWARDED $3,715 JUDGMENT AGAINST INSURANCE CO.

Boston, Feb. 4.—Peter M. Harwood of Worcester was awarded a judgment of $3,715 against the Security Mutual Life Insurance company of Binghamton, N. Y., by a jury in federal district court today. Counsel for Harwood contended that an "expectancy of life" clause which resulted in the increasing of the premium from $84.60 yearly to $207.43 when Harwood reached the age of 70, had not been made clear. Harwood, it was contended, believed he had taken a "straight life" policy while the company asserted it was a form of term insurance. The jury's award was for the amount of the premiums paid since 1900, when the policy was issued, and accrued interest.

BLODGETT'S OPINION OF PERSONAL TAX LAW

Hartford, Feb. 4.—"Not wholly favorable" is State Tax Commissioner Blodgett's attitude on the personal tax as defined by him at a finance committee hearing today. He said "any tax so near the bottom of the ladder was vulnerable to political attack." All tax laws ought to be enforced, he argued, while claiming that the personal tax law was an "academic" matter in too many towns, especially in Fairfield county where he described conditions as "scandalous," with 57 per cent of the tax uncollected.

CONDITIONAL GIFT OF $100,000 TO WELLESLEY

Wellesley, Mass., Feb. 4.—A gift of $100,000 to Wellesley college by Edward Stephen Harkness of New York was announced today by President Ellen Fitz Pendleton. The gift is to be used for the building of a third dormitory on Tower court hill and is conditional on the raising of an additional $300,000 necessary for the completion of the building before April 1, 1925.

AFTER BABY WAS BORN

Mrs. Miles Was Miserable a Long Time—Owes Final Recovery to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Dover, Ohio.—"After my last baby was born I was up and around again, but I was sickly all the time and did not know how to get my work done. I had washed a heavy carpet and I think that was the cause of my troubles. I went to several doctors, but their medicines did not do me any good. I asked what the trouble was, for I could hardly walk and always had such pains in my left side and then in my right side. He told me I had inflammation that caused it. I had one of your text-books and was reading it, and I thought I would take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. After four days of taking it I began to feel better, so I took three bottles without missing a dose. That helped me more than any other medicine I had yet taken and I always have it handy now. It surely did put me on my feet again."—Mrs. JAMES MILES, 419 Cherry Street, Dover, Ohio.

For Ten Years the World's Greatest Buy

Hudson's position as the world's greatest value is not merely a new attainment. For ten years the Super-Six has stood alone in mechanical supremacy. Basic patents have kept others from copying its motor. The smoothness and long life it gives are exclusive. No motor has yet equaled the Super-Six in smoothness and long, economical car life.

A Leadership Never Disputed

Hudson, because of the simplicity of the Super-Six, has always enjoyed manufacturing advantages that permitted a lower selling price than is possible with more complicated types. That, in part, accounts for its leadership for ten years as the World's Greatest Value.

You hear everyone speak of Hudson value. To many that means lower first cost than is to be found elsewhere. Hudson was first by months to give closed car comforts at exactly open car cost. To hundreds of thousands of owners, Hudson value means the most economical service in operation and maintenance. No car ever built has equaled Hudson's record in that respect. For ten years the Super-Six has proved its lasting endurance. And while those cars of a decade ago still creditably account for themselves, today's Hudson, improved in many ways, is smoother, more lasting and more economical.

No wonder, then, that when Hudson value is spoken, all wanted qualities are included. Hudson is the World's Greatest Value, because it has always provided better looks and more comfort at less money.

No rival disputes that and every motorist knows it.

Happy Jack Squirrel Is Nearly Caught

Who takes a foolish risk for gain
May pay for it in fright or pain.
Happy Jack Squirrel.

There is such a thing as being too thrifty. Yes, sir, there is. Those who take foolish risks because of thrift are too thrifty. It was because he was too thrifty that Happy Jack Squirrel was very nearly caught and then got into trouble.

Happy Jack hadn't stopped long to talk with Peter Rabbit, who was sitting in the bramble-tangle on the edge of the Green Forest. Happy Jack wouldn't waste time talking. He is too thrifty for that. So he soon started running about, looking for more nuts buried under the snow. How he knew where they were Peter couldn't understand. But it was clear that he did know. He would suddenly stop, begin to dig in the snow, and presently up he would come with a nut. He was so intent in hunting for those nuts that he grew careless. He got farther and farther away from the trees.

He saw that Happy Jack was getting farther and farther away from the trees

Now, unseen by Happy Jack, Reddy Fox had come stealing through the Green Forest. The instant he saw Happy Jack, Reddy crouched down and didn't move. He kept his eyes fixed on Happy Jack. Every time Happy Jack's back was turned to him he would steal forward swiftly. He saw that Happy Jack was so busy hunting for nuts that he had forgotten to watch out. He saw that Happy Jack was getting farther and farther away from the trees. Reddy grinned and licked his lips. Hunger and eagerness showed in his eyes. If only Happy Jack would get far enough away from a tree Reddy knew that he would catch him. You see Reddy can run much faster than Happy Jack.

At last Happy Jack started to dig in the snow at some distance from the nearest tree, and that tree was a small one. Reddy waited until he could see only. Happy Jack's tail above the snow. Then swiftly he crept forward, his eyes fixed on that big, gray tail. It was then that Peter Rabbit saw him for the first time. You know Peter was in the bramble-tangle looking out. Peter saw Happy Jack's danger. His heart seemed to jump right up in his throat. "Oh!" cried Peter under his breath. "Happy Jack will be caught!" Then Peter thumped with his hind feet. It was his danger signal.

Instantly Happy Jack popped out of that hole in the snow. Of course he saw Reddy Fox, and of course he started for the nearest tree as fast as his legs could take him. Of course Reddy Fox started after him as fast as his legs could take him. To Peter Rabbit it seemed as if Happy Jack never had moved so slowly. "Run, Happy Jack, run! Oh, run!" cried Peter.

Happy Jack was running. He was doing his very best. But Reddy Fox was running so much faster that it seemed as if Happy Jack were hardly moving. Would he be able to reach that little tree before Reddy Fox could catch him? It didn't look so. No, sir, it didn't look so. Peter was sure he couldn't.

But he did. Reddy Fox was within one jump of him when Happy Jack reached that little tree and whisked up it. Never in his life had he had a narrower escape. His heart was thumping against his side as if it would thump its way out. He looked down at Reddy Fox. Reddy glared up at him. Then Happy Jack began to scold. He called Reddy Fox all the bad names he could think of, and listening to him Peter Rabbit chuckled. Happy Jack certainly had a sharp tongue.

MINERS TO VIGOROUSLY RESIST WAGE REDUCTIONS

Fairmont, W. Va., Feb. 4.—The aggressive campaign of resistance to "wage reductions made by operators who have broken their agreements with the United Mine Workers and others," will be continued in northern West Virginia, it was declared today by John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, in a statement he gave out at the conclusion of a visit to adjacent coal fields.

"The mine workers of northern West Virginia, who have been forced to strike against wage reductions and who are suffering eviction from their homes, together with other prosecutions, because of their attitude, are entitled to the greatest commendation," Mr. Lewis said.

FRANCE AND GERMANY IN COMMERCIAL CONTROVERSY

Paris, Feb. 4—(By the A. P.)—Dr. Trendelenburg, chief of the German delegation which has been negotiating for the resumption of commercial relations between France and Germany, today delivered to the French representatives what is considered by official circle as a veritable ultimatum.

In the German reply to the last French note proposing the establishment of a modus vivendi, France is plainly told that unless it is agreed now that Germany shall have the benefit of the minimum tariff on all her products when the final agreement is reached, the modus vivendi cannot be accepted. Commissioner of Commerce Raymaldy had suggested the modus vivendi for the period preceding the vote in parliament on the new French tariff.

The French, it was said this evening, propose to continue the discussions as long as the Germans want to talk, being determined not to be drawn into instituting the initiative in a final rupture of negotiations, but it is declared they are equally determined not to consent to the granting of the minimum tariff on all German goods.

It is expected that the situation, which has prevailed since Christmas when the negotiations were practically broken off, will continue one side or the other gets tired of the game.

The French delegates say they are good for a long siege and that if the Germans want to break off the discussions they must take the responsibility.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS IRREGULAR.

New York, Feb. 4. — Stock prices moved irregularly higher today under the leadership of the rail, oil, shipping and equipment shares. Buying orders were distributed over a broad list, the day's total transactions again exceeding 1,500,000 shares.

Persistent reports that a gigantic southwestern railroad merger was under way stimulated the buying of stocks of railroads operating in that territory. Record high prices were attained by Frisco common at 69 1-8, Missouri, Kansas and Texas common and preferred at 36 3-4 and 97 1-4, respectively, Missouri Pacific common at 39 1-2 and Wabash common and preferred at 24 1-2 and 63 1-4, respectively, the net gains ranging from fractions to nearly four points.

Southern Railway was another outstanding feature, touching 90 3-8, the highest price in its history, and then easing to 90, where it was four points up on the day. Seaboard Air Line touched a new top at 24 3-4, while Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, Texas and Pacific, Northern Pacific, New Haven, Norfolk and Western, Chicago Great Western preferred, Baltimore and Ohio, Omaha preferred, Chicago Northwestern and several others showed net gains of 1 to 2 1-8 points.

Oil shares continued their advance in response to further increases in crude and gasoline prices. Marking up of California Crude prices developed a brisk demand for companies owning properties on the west coast, the Pan-American issues, Shell Union and General Petroleum reaching their best levels since 1923.

American Locomotive recorded an extreme gain of 5 1-2 points by touching 120 1-2, the highest price attained by the present no-par stock, on buying stimulated by reports of heavy equipment buying. Baldwin closed 3 3-8 higher at 132 3-4 and Lima showed a net gain of 1 1-4 at 70 1-4 after having sold as high as 71 1-2. Gains of a point each also were recorded by Pullman, and Pressed Steel Car.

Revival of speculative interest in the shipping shares was based on reports of marked improvement in ocean freight and passenger traffic. Marine preferred showed a net gain of 3 1-3 points at 51; Atlantic, Gulf and West Indies common advanced 2 3-4 to 28 and American International Corporation showed a net gain of 1 5-8 at 39 1-4.

Federal Light and Traction broke from 140, its record top, to 135, in reflection of speculative disappointment over the failure of the directors to increase the dividend. A drop of more than two points on White Motors followed the announcement of a reduction in truck prices. Coppers were reactionary on reports of a slackened demand for the red metal. Calumet and Arizona closing more than two points lower. Independent steels were firm on buying influenced by a sharp gain in pig iron production last month.

Call money renewed at 3 1-2 per cent., and then dropped to 3 when offerings became more plentiful. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged with business in moderate volume.

Foreign exchange rates moved within irregular limits. Demand sterling eased slightly to around $4.78 1-2. Greek exchange broke five points on unfavorable political news, but most of the other European rates held steady.

MR. AND MRS. NICHOLAS B. KING NOTE GOLDEN WEDDING DAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Stonington, Feb. 4.—Fifty years married Wednesday, Feb. 4, was the record of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas B. King of Water street, Stonington borough. They had in honor of the event a special mass of thanksgiving read in St. Mary's church Wednesday morning at 7.30 o'clock by Rev. J. E. O'Brien. Their health did not permit them to attend, but relatives and friends were there to help honor them.

They have been almost lifelong residents of Stonington and are held in high esteem by neighbors and friends. Mr. King was long in business here and his dealings were always of a high character. Mr. and Mrs. King were married in St. Mary's church, Stonington, Feb. 4, 1875, by Rev. Father John Flemming, the pastor of the parish at that time. Mr. King was born in the Azore Islands in 1850 and came here when a young man. He at one time was keeper of the Eel Grass lightship, at that time on the shoal near where Latimer Reef light is now the beacon. Leaving there, he was for 16 years an employe on the wharf of the Stonington line here and later was engaged in the grocery business with his son under the name of Nicholas B. King & Son.

TWO YEARS, $10,000 FINE FOR FORBES AND THOMPSON

Chicago, Feb. 4 (By the A. P.).—Charles R. Forbes, former head of the Veterans' bureau, and John W. Thompson, wealthy St. Louis contractor, who were sentenced today to two years' imprisonment and $10,000 fine for conspiracy to defraud the government, issued lengthy denials of their guilt late today.

Forbes in declaring his entire innocence of the charges of conspiring with Thompson to give Thompson and his associates all the Veterans' bureau hospital contracts declared he was the victim of circumstances and would fight to the last ditch.

Thompson said he was "incidentally drawn into the maelstrom of Mortimer's hate for Forbes." Elias H. Mortimer, the government informer, and one of the alleged conspirators, furnished the bulk of the government's testimony upon which the jury returned a verdict of guilty last Friday.

Federal Judge George A. Carpenter, in overruling motions for a new trial today, said he was surprised that neither Forbes nor Thompson took the witness stand and refused to permit them to make a statement reviewing the case. They were privileged, Judge Carpenter said, to announce their opinion of the jury's verdict or the judge's fairness, before sentence was passed upon them, but would have to go to the newspapers with stories of their innocence, since they declined to testify before the jury.

"The better Forbes' war record," said Judge Carpenter, "the more severe he will find this court. He offered his life to his country and then when placed in a position of public responsibility, he betrayed his country's trust."

Both Forbes and Thompson condemned the "malice of Mortimer," and Forbes denies having had "any arrangement with Mortimer whereby he or anyone associated with him would receive any advantages whatsoever over any other persons having dealings with the government during my incumbency in office."

Attorney E. E. Godman, who presented the defense plea today for mitigation of punishment, indicated to the judge that peculiar personal reasons had influenced Forbes and Thompson in the decision not to go on the witness stand.

As a rule, a man judges all other women by his wife and a woman judges her husband by the worst things she hears about other men.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Chronic coughs and persistant colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germ that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. Adv.)

PUPILS WERE ALARMED WHEN BOMB EXPLODED

Boston, Feb. 4.—Pupils in the Boys' Continuation School on Common street were thrown into confusion today when a bomb exploded in a backyard adjoining a portable school building housing 40 boys. The explosion shattered windows in the vicinity but caused no serious damage.

Police investigation disclosed that the bomb was one of six found in the room of Evangel Crimbatzie, believed to be a native of Argentina, who died last Thanksgiving day in a Common street lodging house, after he had barricaded himself in his room for two weeks. Today 14-year-old John Breen, whose mother keeps the lodging house, was told to throw Crimbatzie's effects into the yard and the explosion followed.

The six bombs were six inches long and bound with wire. The police also seized a supply of chemicals and other materials believed to have been used in the manufacture of explosives.

AMERICAN WOOLEN CO. OPENS ITS NEW LINES

New York, Feb. 4.—The American Woolen company opened today its new lines of men's wear fabrics for the fall of 1925 with an advance in prices on staple and semi-staple worsteds averaging 6.6 per cent as compared with the opening a year ago, and even more compared with spring, when levels were cut about 7 per cent. No comparisons were made on woolen goods because of changing weaves and qualities, but in the open market it was estimated they averaged 10 to 12 per cent higher than fall, 1924.

While it was too early to gauge the buying movement, sentiment in the trade seemed to favor the new price list as indicating a reasonable policy in view of rising wool and yarns costs since last summer. Buyers expressed themselves as satisfied.

Favorable weather the next two or three months and improvement in spring trade, it was felt, would give stimulus to fall bookings. It was not expected that there would be a rush of buyers, though it was admitted that opening levels were likely to be the lowest of the season unless a break occurs in the wool market meanwhile.

Two heads are better than one—if neither one aches.

EXPLOSION OF DYNAMITE FATAL TO FOUR MEN

Fresno, Cala., Feb. 4.—Four men were killed and another badly injured by a premature explosion of dynamite at Camp 63 of the Southern California Edison company in the Sierras, 100 miles from this city today.

MEN'S BIBLE CLASS STUDIES FAVORITE PASSAGES

Wednesday evening at the weekly Bible study for men, the discussion proved interesting. Favorite passages of scripture were called for from those present, and among other passages the following were discussed. "Do unto others as ye would that they do unto you." It was agreed that no better rule could be followed in life than this wonderful verse from holy writ. A number of instances were cited of men who had lived in Norwich whose lives measured well up to this great principles. "Seek first the Kingdom of God and his righteousness and all needed things will be added unto you" was another passage quoted, and a number participated in the discussion of this verse; though some think it impossible to succeed in business if one puts God first it was decided by the men present that this principal will work as it has been tried by quite a number who have found it very practical. A member of the class quoted the passage, "what shall a man give in exchange for his soul." The value of the soul was discussed, and the decision was that nothing could equal the great value of a single soul, not even a world, and hence the wisdom of first of all seeing to it that the soul is secured in salvation by Jesus Christ. Joshua 1:9 was quoted as the great courage verse of the Bible and inasmuch as everyone is at times discouraged such a passage was well worth pondering over. The hour was spent profitably and greatly enjoyed by the members of the class.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Connecticut College Concert

Pablo Casals who comes to New London Monday went to Madrid to study at the Conservatoire under Breton for composition and Monasterio for chamber music. Monasterio, who had already recognized his ability in Barcelona, was quick to do all in his power to develop and encourage it. He had Casals compositions for chamber music played in public, and one of them he used for a study for his class. At this time, the first of this many honors, of which he has since been the recipient, was bestowed on him by the Queen,—the order of Isabella La Catolica. This was one of the rare cases of the bestowal of an order upon a student.

When he was about seventeen, the Queen granted him a stipend to study in Brussel's at the Royal Conservatoire; there he was treated rudely and the boy, proud as only a Spanish youth can be, decided at once to leave Brussels and go to Paris. Count Morphy thought this a piece of youthful waywardness, and had his pension suppressed, so that he was thrown on his own resources. Unknown in a foreign country, he experienced a period of intense hardship and discouragement. Finally he went to Colonne, director of "Les Concerts Colonne," which is the most important orchestra in Paris and probably in Europe. Many weeks elapsed before an audience was granted him, but once heard he was engaged immediately for the orchestra and the door to fame was thus open to him. From that time dates his world-wide success as a 'cellist and a musician, for the light of a genius like that of Casals cannot remain long hidden where there are any music lovers to discover it. Soon after that he made his debut in Vienna, where his playing created a furore.

He has played in all the countries of Europe; everywhere his astonishing art has been acclaimed, and recognized by the highest honors,—that rare distinction, the Beethoven Gold Medal of the Royal Philharmonic of London is his, among other decorations, he has The Legion of Honor, The Grand Cross of Alfonso III., the highest order awarded in his own land, he is an academician of Santa Cecelia, the highest Italian honor, and so on without number.

— Fritz Kreisler

Fritz Kreisler, who will play in New London on February 19th, is the greatest violinist of our time. He is moreover a living refutation of the old tradition that one who is a prodigy as a child will not realize the promise of his youth when he reaches maturity; for Kreisler was distinctly a child prodigy.

Born in Vienna, he displayed musical gifts of uncommon order in his earliest childhood. His father was an amateur musician of high order who encouraged him and instructed him to such purpose that at the age of seven he appeared in concert. Shortly after this he entered the Vienna Conservatory where he studied under Hellmesberger and Anker. He was the youngest child who studied there and justified the opinions formed of his exceptional talents by carrying off the gold medal over forty competitors. At the age of fourteen he made his first concert-tour in America, giving concerts with Moritz Rosenthal, the now widely known pianist.

After his tour as a child prodigy the critics and public alike were skeptical of his appearance which followed a few years later; but before the end of that season he had secured for himself a hold on the American music-lovers which has steadily increased with years. Today Kreisler's name is a household word and through his records as well as his concerts he has become the idol of many thousand people. Season after season his eager audiences fill theaters and halls to overflowing and let it be said that these audiences not only include musicians but many without a so-called "ear for music" who feel in Mr. Kreisler the sway of a potent personality.
